It seems to me, inasmuch as the regulations contained in my proposal now embodied in the bill are almost exactly in the same form or the regulations that were in effect under President Truman and President Eisenhower, it is appropriate that this provision should be a matter of law. I believe the committee was almost unanimous in approving the amendment.

I remind the Senate, as a matter of history, that the precedent for screening of foreign political publications was established in 1940, and was aimed primarily at Nazi propaganda. The legal basis for the restrictive action rested on an interpretation by the Attorney General of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938.

According to a report by the General Counsel of the Post Office Department. the emphasis of the detention program was shifted in 1948 from Nazi publications to Communist propaganda. Following this switch in emphasis there was thereafter no detention of material ordered by libraries, universities, political scientists, or individuals who had formally notified the Post Office Department that they had ordered the publications.

In 1958, the policy was amended further. Individual addressees from that time through the termination of the program were asked whether they wanted delivery of the publications. If they did, the material was delivered.

It must be remembered that the detention program did not apply to first-class mail. The opening of first-class mail would be censorship in a form for which there is no existing statutory authority.

The amendment to the committee bill, as I understand it, merely reinstates the policy which was adopted under President Truman and followed under President Eisenhower. It was discontinued early in the Kennedy administration, on the theory that it served no useful purpose. However, it is interesting to note that in 1960 the number of pieces of Communist printed matter turned over by the Post Office Department to the Customs Service, excluding first-class mail, was 21,607,000.

The most vicious propaganda cammaign is being conducted against the United States by both Communist China and Communist Russia. Inasmuch as the Communist Party is outlawed in the United States—and I voted for that measure in the Senate, and it was adopted, I believe, by a unanimous vote, several years ago—it is not unreasonable for us to restrict propaganda of a Communist nature, to the extent, at least, that the people of this country want it restricted.

People can have it sent to them if they want it. They would have to ask the Postmaster General to let it come to them. All schools and libraries and educational institutions are excluded from the provisions of the bill, so students of Communist propaganda would be in no way deprived of their right or opportunity to study it.

I believe that the danger is growing day by day, almost minute by minute, as we see Russians move into Cuba to establish another base, for the servicing of their so-called fishing fleet.

I have confidence in the President of the United States. I have not the slightest doubt that he hates communism as much as I do. However, I think it is entirely appropriate for Congress to state whether it wishes as a matter of law to restrict the flow of Communist propaganda into this country. That is all the bill would do.

The committee amendment is very moderate. It does not impinge upon intellectual freedom. It is designed merely to protect the interests of the United States and to avoid involuntary cooperation with the Communist propaganda machine, which is certainly an immense machine. I have seen the effects of it in various countries around the world, particularly in Latin America and Central America, at our back door.

Therefore, I hope the Clark amendment will be defeated and that the Senate will insist upon making the committee amendment a part of the law.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD at this point the section of the report on the bill beginning with the third paragraph on page 22 and continuing to the end of that page.

There being no objection, the excerpt from the report (Report No. 2120) was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The substitute drafted by the committee, which appears as section 305 of the bill, consists of a modification of S. 2740, introduced by Senator BUSH on January 25, 1962, which would have had the effect of reinstating the program of screening Communist political propaganda substantially as that program was conducted prior to March 17, 1961.

Section 305 provides for a program under which, with certain exceptions, Communist political propaganda coming into the United States from foreign countries would be intercepted and would be delivered only upon the request of the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed 60 days.

Section 305 specifically provides that mail matter, except sealed letters, originating in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be Communist political propaganda shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the U.S. domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received. Such detention would not be required in the case of any matter which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee.

Exempted would be matter addressed to Government agencies, to libraries, or to colleges, universities, graduate schools, scientific or professional institutions for advanced studies, or any individual connected therewith. Likewise, material addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal international agreement under which the U.S. Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in a Communist country, would be exempted.

In order to furnish guidelines to the Secretary of the Treasury as to what constitutes Communist political propaganda, the entire definiton of political propaganda contained in the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1948 is incorporated by reference and related to matter issued by or on behalf of any country from which tariff concessions have been withdrawn under section 5 of the Trade Agreement Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or which is denied assistance under section 620 (f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the Clark amendment and in support of the position expressed so ably by the Senator from Connecticut. I urge the Senate not to retreat in the face of this third successive attack on the anti-Communist mail provision. We have stood up against the attack twice. Let us stand up the third time.

This is the most intriguing and insidious attack of the three, because by adding the prelude we destroy entirely the purpose of the amendment.

It would be just as logical and effective to eliminate the language written by the committee itself, which would leave the residual authority in the hands of the President. The same effect would be achieved as if we were to add the prelude, as is proposed now. We would merely be authorizing the President to do what he has already done—namely, rescind the restrictions against Communist propaganda.

Therefore, if the Senate is really sincere in its determination to stop the distribution of Communist propaganda at the expense of the American taxpayer, this is the place and this is the way to do it, by defeating the Clark amendment.

I congratulate the distinguished Representative from Omaha, Nebr., Representative GLENN CUNNINGHAM, who has made such a valiant fight in this connection. I congratulate also the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BUSH] for his constructive role in this fight.

It seems to me that of all the errors of history, this would the most serious, if the Senate were to say, "As far as we are concerned, we are willing to approve the distribution of Communist propaganda through our American mails at the taxpayers' expense."

I suspect that I have had no greater amount of mail on any other subject than this one during this session of Congress. People send in the propaganda that they have received from Communists, and say, "Why do we receive this? We do not want it. Is this what we have to pay for as American taxpayers?"

The answer is "Yes." It will continue to be "yes" if the Clark amendment is not defeated.

Now is the time to stop it. This is our opportunity to do so. We ought to look seriously at the danger from communism.

Why did we pass a resolution on Cuba the other day? It was because of the Communists. Why did we vote to give the President authority to call up reservists on an emergency basis? It was because of the Communists. Why do I now leave the floor to go to a committee meeting, there to wrestle with the problems of a multibillion dollar foreign aid bill? Foreign aid for what? It is foreign aid designed to protect the free world against the Communists.

The U.S. Senate, on a yea-and-nay vote, can affirm or reaffirm its attitude toward Communist propaganda. We cannot constantly tend to encourage the cancer of communism. We cannot continue to coddle it. We cannot retreat on every action. We cannot worry about what some Communist satellite country or some neutralist government will think about us if we pass a resolution against communism. We cannot expect to stop communism alone by calling up the Reserves, passing a pious resolution about Cuba and appropriating billions of dollars for foreign aid.

We must develop a sustained policy, a firm policy. Those supporting the Clark amendment talk about American foreign policy. If we adopt the Clark amendment, it will have the effect of letting Communist countries write the postal legislation of America, because the amendment provides that if Communist countries do certain things, the United States must do certain things. That would put the triggering off of American foreign policy in the hands of other people. There has been too much of that sort of thing already in connection with American foreign policy.

The U.S. Senate is supposed to have something to say about foreign policy. Its duty is to advise and consent. Here is a chance for the Senate to advise by stating our belief that the door ought to be shut against the uninvited Communist propaganda which is sought to be distributed at the expense of the taxpayers generally. That is the issue simply put.

Let us defeat this third attack from the same source, just as we have defeated the other two, and write a bit of history today, that the U.S. Senate means business, that it means to resist communism.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, who has the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is in control of the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK] and the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON].

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, how much time have I remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania has 22 minutes remaining.

Mr. CLARK. I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. President, I intend to vote for the Clark amendment. I should like to have my reasons clearly understood, because this subject is of concern to the Nation and, of course, to all of us in the Congress.

I recognize the deep conviction of the Senators who support the committee provision, and I respect and appreciate their convictions. Last year a bill containing a provision similar to the committee amendment, and sponsored, I believe, by the Senator from South Dakota, was brought before the Senate. I remember that I raised that day the questions that I expect to raise today. After some debate, the majority leader moved to lay that bill aside.

With all due respect to the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MUNDT] and other Senators, I do not accept the terms in which he has placed the vote that the Senate is about to take on the amendment. It has been said or indicated that we shall be voting on the question of whether or not we approve Communist propaganda coming into this country, and the dissemination of Communist propaganda through the mail. I do not approve Communist propaganda—I reject it, because I know its falsity, and its subversive purpose. And I know that everyone in the Congress feels and belives as I do, and the able Senator from South Dakota. But that is not the issue. The issue is what we can constitutionally do.

I do not approve Communist propaganda but I approve and support the Constitution of the United States. The first amendment of the Constitution provides:

> Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press.

The courts have held and great judges have said that mail is an aspect of free speech, and therefore cannot be censored.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Kentucky yield?

Mr. COOPER. I would prefer to yield when I have finished my remarks.

Mr. MUNDT. The Senator mentioned my name; I thought he might wish to yield.

Mr. COOPER. The Senator is correct; I yield.

Mr. MUNDT. I point out that the constitutional provisions are not violated, because the proposed legislation submitted by the commitee does nothing whatsoever to stop first-class mail. The issue is whether there is anything in the Constitution or in good conscience which would compel citizens of the United States generally to finance the distribution of Communist propaganda in this country. If one is willing to pay the postage and send it through the mail, the proposed legislation will not apply. I think the RECORD should be clear as to that.

Mr. COOPER. I understand that argument, but I do not accept it in view of what I consider the Constitution to mean.

The committee amendment provides that mail may be detained. It provides that it may be destroyed. It provides that it may be censored. If anyone who has read the Constitution and the cases with respect to the first amendment believes that censorship of mail, detention of mail, and destruction of mail do not involve the first amendment, I do not believe he has studied very seriously the first amendment to the Constitution. The courts have laid down the standards under which free speech can be restrained—but not in the terms of the committee provision.

I have received Communist propaganda through the mail. Curiously enough, I have not received it from abroad but from New York City, where it was printed. I have received Communist propaganda on such subjects as Khrushchev's position on Berlin. The information in the propaganda was false.

I am aware of the serious situation which confronts the country as respects the cold war.

I know there is always the possibility that the cold war may lead to a hot war. And difficult situations in the past have resulted in legislation contravening the Constitution of the United States. We remember the Alien and Sedition Act. During the Civil War, an effort was made to place certain areas of Northern States in the theater of operations, and thus within the jurisdiction of military courts, to suppress anti-Union opinion. If I had lived then, I would not have liked anti-Union opinion, because my family, which lived in the Southern State of Kentucky, supported the Union, and served in the Union Army. Yet the Supreme Court held that the action of the Federal Government was unconstitutional.

I believe this question of Communist propaganda should be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, so that the lawyers on the committee can consider it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Kentucky has expired.

Mr. CLARK. I yield an additional minute to the Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. COOPER. The question ought to be seriously considered by the administration to determine if proper and constitutional action can be taken. I understand the United States is a party to the Postal Convention, which permits the entry of mail from Communist countries. I do not know whether the convention can be denounced in a way that the entry of propaganda can be excluded from entering into the United States.

This is a subject which, because of the constitutional questions involved, requires recommendations to the Congress by the administration; and if the administration will not recommend, by the thorough study of the Committee on the Judiciary rather than the Committee on Post Office.

But I say that even considering the serious position in which we find ourselves with respect to the Soviet Union, to chip away at the first amendment of the Constitution is not a good thing to do. We must adhere to the Bill of Rights.

I should like to comment further. I do not believe I have made many statements referring to myself on the floor of the Senate. However, I am sure that I will receive a large amount of mail on this subject, and all will not like my remarks. Just as has the Senator from South Dakota, I, too, have received much mail on it already. And some mail places this question on the basis of "toughness" on communism.

Like many who write, I, too, am a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and of the American Legion. I have served overseas as have thousands of fellow Americans.

I do not like to speak personally, but as a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations in 1951, I represented the United States on the issue when the first condemnation of the Soviet Union in the United Nations—and perhaps the only one—was secured, for its action against Nationalist China. I fought the proposal through to the end.

After World War II, as a captain in Germany, I urged General Patton to issue an order to prevent the displaced persons in Germany—whom the Soviet representatives were attempting to force, against their will, to return to Russia—from being forcibly separated from their own country, their spouses and children of other than Russian birth and returned, as the Soviet Union insisted. I took it in my hands as a captain to oppose my superior officers and insist that the question go to General Patton, and was upheld and was cited for my action in so doing.

This is not a question of "toughness." We are dealing with the Constitution. I am strong for the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I do not subscribe to the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania. The plan of operation proposed by the committee's version of the bill would reinstate the practice which was in effect during the Truman administration and the Eisenhower administration. When that practice was in effect, there was no disturbance and no complaints came from any source—especially no complaints about a lack of strength. But suddenly it was decided to change the plan and to allow the U.S. postal service to deliver Communist propaganda to American citizens. Since that time, difficulty has arisen. The complaints have been numerous. People have asked, "Why am I compelled to receive mail of a Communist propaganda type when I have not asked for it?" The citizen then finds that that mail has been carried practically free of charge. Then he says, "Not only am I forced to receive this unwanted mail, but as a taxpayer I am compelled to pay a part of the carrying charge." That is a rather forceful argument, and I do not think it can be answered.

With respect to the constitutional issue involved, every Communist propagandist can have the use of our postal service by mailing his propaganda first-class and paying that charge. Does not that give to every person a full right to enjoy his constitutional privileges? He is told, "You may use the mail and you may send Communist propaganda if you send it by first-class mail."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time yielded to the Senator from Ohio has expired.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, may I have 1 more minute?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 1 more minute to the Senator from Ohio.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized for 1 more minute.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, what is wrong with requiring the Post Office Department to impound Communist propaganda, notify the addressee that it has been impounded, and inform him, "If you want it mailed to you, let us know, and we will deliver it to you?"

I see nothing wrong with this whole plan; and for that reason I will vote against the Clark amendment.

Mr. GOLDWATER. Mr. President, will the Senator from South Carolina yield to me?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Arizona.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. GOLDWATER. Mr. President, I fully respect the position of the distinguished Senator from Kentucky [Mr. COOPER] in upholding the constitutional right of the people. But I point out that Congress also has the right to declare war. Today we are in a different kind of war than we have ever been in before; we are engaged in a so-called cold war, in which propaganda probably plays the most important part.

I hold in my hand a piece of so-called Russian literature entitled "Information Bulletin No. 5, Soviet Peace Committee." One paragraph of it is interesting, as it relates to the propaganda which is placed in the hands of American citizens, without any charge being made for delivering it by our mail service:

> Havana will soon have a monument, the Dove of Peace, in place where the monument to the American cruiser Maine had stood. This is highly symbolic of present-day Cuba; henceforward, instead of the rapacious American eagle, a snow-white dove will soar over beautiful Havana.

In addition, the pamphlet contains a rather vicious attack upon me. However, I shall not read that into the RECORD.

They have a right to their opinion; but I have enough trouble being a Republican in a country which has a dominance of Democrats, without having foreigners attack me in publications which are carried in this way by the American postal service.

All the indications we can get show that the Communists refuse to allow free circulation and mailing privileges in their country to American publications. I have before me a statistic which shows that the Saturday Evening Post sends only 10 copies to Russia.

I do not think the bill as reported violates any constitutional right. I think the bill as reported by the committee is in line with the right and duty of Congress. If we are to sit back and continually allow Russian propaganda to seep into our country and into other free countries, without the Soviets giving us any opportunity to do the same with our propaganda, I think that situation in itself requires the passage of this bill as reported; and I, for one, will vote against the Clark amendment.

Mr. PELL. Mr. President——

Mr. CLARK. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Rhode Island.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I rise to support the Clark amendment, and to submit one thought which I think has been lost sight of; namely, that thus far the argument is based on the thesis that Communist printed propaganda is effective.

To my mind, this is not correct. It is, in fact, most ineffective.

Mr. President, based upon my own experience over a period of years in the Foreign Service in the Eastern European area and as an officer of the International Rescue Committee, actually concerned with opposing Soviet redefection efforts, when I examined many pieces of Communist propaganda, I was most struck with its ineffectiveness, trashiness, and poor presentation. I believe that no matter what may be the flow of Communist propaganda, we do not pay a compliment to our people if we think that the opinion of our American citizens would be affected by it.

In addition, it is important to remember that we usually come out on top in any exchange with the Communists whether in regard to propaganda or otherwise. An excellent evidence of this point is that people flee from the Communist countries to our country, but very few indeed go from our country to the East.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, it is argued that this provision of the bill is constitutional because the first-class rate can be paid. I am startled to find that the Senator from Ohio, who is also an excellent judge, would make such an argument, which seems to me to be so patently unsound, on a constitutional basis.

Mr. HART. Mr. President——

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Michigan [Mr. HART], who wishes to speak on this subject.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. HART. Mr. President, it was not my intention to speak on this question; but I was moved, as I think all other Senators were, by the remarks of the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. COOPER].

I, too, heard the distinguished Senator from Ohio make his argument that because a certain rate can be paid by those who wish to enjoy the privileges of the Constitution, it is all right to deny the lower rate to certain types of mail. I understand that the mail service for such material is provided at rates which are subject to an international convention. I am not certain what the rate is in this case.

It seems to me that the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania gives us an opportunity to provide circumstances which will require this sort of protection. I think it would be tragic if the day were to come when we would have to shut off from the people of this country printed material coming from another country.

This amendment would permit us to avoid raising what I think is a very serious constitutional question in connection with the case made by the Senator from Kentucky. Is not this the "meat and potatoes" of the first amendment? Is not ours the society which argues that ideas are very powerful and that the exchange of ideas is essential if the truth is to be discovered? Yet we would shut off, by means of the bill as reported by the committee, the expression—at least by other than first-class mail—of ideas with which we do not agree.

If the Clark amendment is rejected, I think the Senate will be making possible the passage of a bill which will raise a very serious constitutional question.

Mr. BUSH. Mr. President——

Mr. CLARK. Does the Senator from Connecticut wish to have some time yielded to him?

Mr. BUSH. I should like to have about 1 minute.

Mr. CLARK. I shall need all the time which remains under my control.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I have only 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time available to the Senator from South Carolina be extended by 2 minutes, in order that he may yield to the Senator from Connecticut.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it so so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. BUSH. I thank the Senator very much.

I should like to direct my comment to the Senator from Pennsylvania, especially because his amendment is under discussion.

There is not a great deal of difference between his amendment and the committee's provision. The only difference is that the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania would permit the President, rather than the Congress, to judge whether such a requirement should be made because the national security was involved or for any other reason. Implicit in the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania is the fact that it may be necessary, in the opinion of the President, for any reason, to restrict the flow of Communist propaganda, as outlined in the committee amendment. So, really, he is not arguing philosophically about this question, but only politically, as to where the power should lie to do so, with the President or with the Congress.

I say again that it is not a constitutional question, with all due respect to my dearest friend, the Senator from Kentucky. I cannot agree that the restriction of Communist propaganda proposed in the bill is designed to breach freedom of speech or of the press, as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY].

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PELL in the chair). The Senator from Minnesota is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. MCCARTHY. Mr. President, I support the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania. First, I should like to respond to the Senator from Connecticut. I think there is a clear case for giving this authority to the President. Some Members of the Senate seem to support the committee's position on the ground, not that there is any danger to this country now, not that the people are being affected by Communist propaganda now, but that there might come a time when they could be. If that is a possibility—and I suppose no one can say there is not that possibility—the Senator from Pennsylvania admits the possibility of its happening and makes this concession to them.

The Senator from Pennsylvania, in offering the amendment, has indicated he does not feel this lack of confidence. He would like to have this whole section stricken from the bill.

Every day we talk about how we have effectively met the military challenge of communism. Every day we hear how we are meeting the economic challenge. I think we are meeting the political challenge of the Communists. Every day we talk about the superiority of our ideology. We say if only we could get the people to hear our story, they would accept our position; that if we could only get the people of the world to learn about our ideology and our ideas, we would have no problems.

Today we are saying we cannot trust the American people to screen what is true from what is false, as presented by Communist Russia.

A vote against the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK] would be a clear indication of lack of confidence in the American people; beyond that, a lack of confidence in American education, a lack of confidence in every institution that has been established in this country to help form the minds and wills of the people, a basic lack of confidence in the American way, a lack of confidence in the Constitution of the United States and the traditions and principles which have developed since the Constitution was adopted, and I think, too, an expression of lack of confidence in the President.

I hope the Clark amendment will be adopted.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, how much time have I left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania has 9 minutes remaining.

Mr. CLARK. I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. President, as this debate progresses, it seems to me clear that it concerns itself with three questions.

The first is, Is American propaganda in Russia more effective than Russian propaganda is in the United States? I believe it is. I believe we have made great inroads on censorship behind the Iron Curtain in recent years.

My belief is buttressed by testimony given to the committee by the Chief of the U.S. Information Service, Mr. Murrow, whose job it is to knew the answer to that problem. My contention is also buttressed by the testimony given by the Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, Mr. Tyler, who in turn said his views coincided with Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, who has just come back to this country after 5 years in Russia. These experts tell us American propaganda in the Soviet Union is very effective; that it is being delivered in increasing volume.

Mr. President, every Member of the Senate should know that the American people are not being fooled by any of the claptrap that is being sent into this country by Russia. Fifteen million pieces were intercepted under the censorship system in effect here from 1951–61. Was our security enhanced by these actions. Of course not.

I come back to what I said previously—that one candle in the dark room of the Iron Curtain countries lighted by the magazine Amerika, by material being sent by American citizens or agencies into Russia and other Iron Curtain countries, is worth far more than propaganda sent into our country, which is paid for, incidentally, under international postal rates, which, in my opinion, is doing nothing to subvert any group of our American citizens.

Unless we give the President the authority which would be given him under this amendment, it is very likely that we shall invite retaliation by Russia, China, Bulgaria, Rumania, and other countries to prevent propaganda from going into their countries from this country. That would be a great loss to America in the pursuit of its foreign policy objectives.

This debate has established pretty clearly that American propaganda is better than Russia propaganda, that it is doing more good than Russian propaganda is doing harm, and that we would be foolish indeed if we in the Senate voted to cut it out without giving the President of the United States, our Commander in Chief, the right, which he has under the Constitution, to direct our foreign policy.

The testimony before the committee was clear that our foreign policy would be adversely affected if the Senate committee version were to pass without the amendment which we now have under consideration.

The second question involved is that of the national security interest. It is perfectly clear, from the testimony we heard, that the national security interest would be adversely affected if we were to cut off propaganda going behind the Iron Curtain by inviting the retaliation which would be quite sure to come if we adopted the committee proposal. That testimony came from all concerned. The record is replete with it.

The third question which has developed in debate is the impossibility of administering the provisions of the committee amendment at all. I have adverted to it at such length before that I shall not again speak about the unenforceable provisions in the Senate version of the bill. There is hardly a Senator who does not recognize that situation. I suggest that making a pious declaration by enacting a law which we know cannot be enforced is a foolish thing for us to do.

Finally, as the Senator from Michigan has pointed out, the provision is clearly unconstitutional.

I ask the Senate to give the United States of America, through its President, the opportunity to continue to pursue effectively our sound long-range foreign policy interests.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. CLARK. I am prepared to yield back all except 2 minutes of my time.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield me 1 minute?

Mr. CLARK. I yield 1 minute to the Senator from New York.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I was delayed in a plane and could not reach the Chamber in time for the preceding vote. I announce myself as for the Clark amendment.

I think we should not let this bill pass in the present form. I think it is very unwise because of the fact that it shows some lack of confidence in our own people. I think we have every reason for confidence in the ability of the American adult and the American young person to screen what is right from what is wrong.

There was an example of that in New York recently in the case of Sir Oswald Mosley. We hate everything he said. Nevertheless, he was permitted to say it, because that is the kind of stimulating liberty we have in this country. It seems to me that that is one of the things that will toughen up, and not soften, America.

For those reasons, I would have voted for the Clark amendment. It is for those reasons that I shall vote for the pending amendment, for I consider it an assertion of confidence in my fellow Americans.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I have listened to the various Senators speak on this particular amendment. I call attention to the fact that under the Truman administration and under the Eisenhower administration there was a screening of Communist political propaganda. The program was stopped. There was a reason for stopping it. I do not think it was a good reason, but court action was threatened.

I think the provision in the bill takes the burden off the President and does what we think is right at the present time.

That is the reason why the committee took this attitude. It is not that we do not trust the President. I do not think we should shovel on him all the responsibility to act under all the circumstances.

If the pending amendment is agreed to, we might as well wipe out the amendment in respect to Communist political propaganda, for that would leave the situation where it is today.

The President has a right to act, not only under law, but under his powers as President of the United States. That could be questioned, I realize, but he has power in this regard.

If we put the language which has been proposed in the bill, we would impose on the President a responsibility to act.

The language which is in the bill has been discussed with the White House. It has been discussed with the Post Office Department. They say they can live under the particular language which is in the bill.

The amendment that is proposed now known as the Clark amendment, would leave the situation just as it is now. For that reason I think the Senate ought to take the responsibility and say that we wish to blot out the delivery of Communist political propaganda through the U.S. mails.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time to the distinguished senior Senator from Minnesota, the majority whip [Mr. HUMPHREY], who, shoulder to shoulder with the majority leader, is supporting this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota may proceed.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, how much time is there remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Three minutes.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I wish to say to the chairman of the committee, first, that the language in the bill is much better language than has been prepared on this subject in other instances. I know the purpose of that language is to give some flexibility and to not seal off the movement of mail or seal off what one might call the exchange of ideas, or even propaganda. It is a responsible amendment.

I appeal to my colleagues to remember that when we deal with matters relating to other countries, when we deal with matters relating to international agreements, we are dealing with matters affecting our Nation's foreign policy.

The President of the United States is the spokesman of this country in the field of foreign policy. We have no other. There can be no individual spokesman in the Congress. There are 100 equals in the Senate. Every Member of the House of Representatives is an equal. There are 437 equals in the House of Representatives. Surely we should not try to design a program in which the Congress itself feels it can conduct foreign policy.

The amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania is a very sensible amendment. It states, very candidly, that, "When the President of the United States determines that it is in the national security interest because of the failure of any Communist country or countries to handle mail from the United States in accordance with international postal agreements or for any other reason" the President may set in motion the formula and the procedure designed in the bill. In other words, we would say to the President. "Mr. President, we do not want to complicate your life any more than it is. We do not want to add burdens on you in terms of restraints and restrictions in the conduct of our foreign policy."

The President speaks for the Nation. If he finds that the national security interest is not being served by the manner in which mail is being handled by other nations, particularly Communist bloc countries, or if he finds that the national security interest is not being served because there is a failure on the part of Communist bloc countries to handle the mail according to international covenants nad agreements, the President can authorize and direct that the procedure outlined in the bill shall go into effect.

I think that is sensible. That is why I support the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The Senator has made a proposal which is in the national interest, which will protect the national security, and will see to it that if agreements are not kept we shall reciprocate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time has expired.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I have heard other Senators say there has been no reciprocity. I am for reciprocity. I want the President to have that authority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania. On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], and the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. MCCLELLAN] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING] would vote "yea."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Vermont [Mr. AIKEN] is absent on official business.

The Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent. If present and voting, the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON], the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] would each vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 33, nays 48, as follows:

So Mr. CLARK's amendment was rejected.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HOLLAND. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. RANDOLPH. Mr. President, the points of controversy centered in H.R. 7927 have occupied considerable time of the Senate in committee and in floor debate. The so-called Cunningham amendment has attracted the attention of news and editorial writers, and informed citizens throughout the Nation. The bill, as reported from the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, contains provisions authorizing the interception and censorship of Communist political propaganda, a condition which, while on the surface appearing to be beneficial to this Nation, could ultimately bring irreparable harm.

The modified Cunningham provision which most Senators seek to embrace in H.R. 7927, while in my view, is more reasonable than the House measure, provides that all mail matter, with the exception of sealed letters, which originate in Iron Curtain countries and which are determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be Communist political propaganda, shall not be delivered unless the addressee gives notification of his desire to receive such material.

It is my firm belief that such legislation is based on the assumption that the citizens of the United States require censorship to protect them from foreign ideas and reflects an appalling lack of faith in the most basic principles underlying our free society. For these reasons I firmly oppose the proposal.

In its issue of June 1, the New York Times published an editorial entitled "Two Strikes on the Postal Bill" stating that such censorship "represents the kind of pseudo-anti-Communist activity that actually hurts America's cause by aping some features of the very Communist totalitarianism we oppose." Mr. President, I concur in this expression.

Further, Mr. President, the proposed Senate amendment to H.R. 7927 inadequately defines Communist political propaganda as "any expression reasonably adapted to prevail upon, indoctrinate, convert, induce, or in any other way influence a recipient or any section of the public within the United States with reference to political or public interests, policies, or relations of a government of a foreign country or a foreign political party or with reference to the foreign policies of the United States or promote in the United States racial, religious, or social dissensions."

Deputy Attorney General Nicholas deB. Katzenbach has strongly criticized such a definition in a statement before the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, of which I am privileged to be a member.

Mr. Katzenbach affirmed that—

> It is highly probable that all newspapers or magazines of general circulation published in Communist-bloc countries would fall within this definition. It might also cover newspapers in neutral or friendly countries which take a position on any particular question consistent with the position taken by a Communist country. It might even cover publications in which statements from Communist sources are reprinted for their news value * * *. The possibilities for arbitrary application in interpretation of this standard are obvious.

It occurs also that some manner of administrative hearings are necessary prior to any determinations by the Secretary of the Treasury. The demands of departmental litigation and judicial review must be added to the burdens of enforcement at the initial level, and procedures for making these first determinations will of necessity be quite lengthy. Indeed, Deputy Attorney General Katzenbach has expressed doubt that such measures could be practically applied.

Another flaw in this provision becomes apparent when we recognize that its adoption would separate American citizens into two distinct categories: those courageous enough to indicate their interest in receiving Communist political propaganda and willing to have their names placed on an official Government list, and those persons who are too timid to undergo such regulation. In my remarks on yesterday I stressed this fact.

The New York Times commented editorially on this question in its September 25 issue, as follows:

Should Congress write into the statutes of this country a system of political censorship and screening of the mails? This is the real issue posed by one section of the new postal-rate and pay-raise bill reported out yesterday by the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

The Senate Committee was seeking to meet the problem raised by the House-approved Cunningham amendment, which would go far toward preventing American citizens from receiving mail from the Soviet Union and other Communist countries. The Senate version is more reasonable, since it contains important exemptions. But it still declares, in effect, that there are two kinds of Americans: those who can be trusted to receive any kind of mail from the Communist world, and those who cannot. The Senate provision, like the Cunningham amendment, is probably unconstitutional, and certainly contrary to the most fundamental traditions of our country.

Mr. President, there are certain exemptions delineated in the proposed legislation intended for those who work for U.S. Government agencies or educational institutions who may require access to Communist political propaganda. However, there are many individuals in this country who continually make productive use of materials from Iron Curtain countries, and who do not fall within the exemptions outlined. For example, a retired Coast Guard officer with the unique avocation of studying various navigational problems confronting the Russian fleet would be prevented from receiving required source material contained in Soviet periodicals, and thus would be unable to carry on his studies. This is but another evidence of the inadequacy of the Senate amendment to H.R. 7927.

Mr. President, it has been gratifying to note that some citizens and certain news media in West Virginia remain true, as I see it, to the national interest, and informed as to the possible impact of this proposed measure on the foundation of our American way of life. In a compelling editorial of February 14, 1962, the Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette commented effectively on the adverse effect which would derive from adoption of H.R. 7927. The Gazette asserted:

We hardly will have freedom of speech and freedom of the press if the people are to be limited to selected subjects in their discussions and reading.

We say little for the American system if we fear the people will abandon it, and adopt communism, just by having access to Communist propaganda.

It seems plausible that some people might be won over to communism, or become sympathetic toward it, by the very fact that our Government prohibited them from knowing what the Communists were saying.

Included in a letter I received from the West Virginia Library Association, Huntington, W. Va., are the following forthright and pertinent statements regarding H.R. 7927:

The fact that no increases for the educational and library materials rates were included is very commendable but the Cunningham amendment should not be included. This amendment could have a very adverse effect on research libraries. If this legislation were really enforced there would be times when even the New York Times would not be delivered because it contained a speech of Khrushchev or other Communist leaders. Interlibrary loan between research libraries of source materials on communism could even be banned.

Our students here at Marshall must have these materials in order to understand the Communist methods of gaining footholds in our country. Such titles as "Current Digest of the Soviet Press" included translations of the Soviet press and which could be called propaganda as it is the information that the Communist government gives to the people. To be well informed we must understand what the Russian people are being told of world events in their press. This publication could very well be prohibited from being carried in the mails under the Cunningham amendment.

As you can see this is a very dangerous amendment, please explain to your colleagues the importance of leaving the Cunningham amendment out of the bill.

From a letter sent by the American Association of University Professors come the following thoughts:

In effect, the amendment would result in the exclusion from the mails of material which the Attorney General held to be "Communist political propaganda." The AAUP views this amendment as being harmful to academic research, public affairs, and education since it would seriously impair the scholarly study and analysis of arguments being used by the Communists in any worldwide propaganda campaign.

An official of the Huntington Public Library writes:

The Huntington Public Library receives several major reputable publications, which in the past frequently have included items which conceivably might be considered Communist propaganda. Newspapers such as the New York Times and the Christian Science Monitor have carried, and undoubtedly will carry, texts of statements by Communists, both foreign and domestic, and indeed, such statements have been read into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, which we also receive. Should such publications come within the provisions of such an amendment as this, the library's provision of source materials on economic and political ideologies, could be seriously obstructed.

With your awareness of libraries and library needs, you may well be aware of the threat to us by the so-called Cunningham amendment. As a member of the Senate Post Office Committee, you can continue your help to West Virginia libraries by seriously considering the effects of the amendment, and, I hope, urge work for its defeat.

Mr. President, on August 17 I received a letter from William P. Fidler, general secretary of the American Association of University Professors, which summarizes one of the principal flaws in H.R. 7927 and the Senate amendment thereto, with regard to screening from the mails all Communist political propaganda. I quote:

The reports to us from research scholars and teachers throughout the community of higher education—whatever their type of institution or their particular discipline—call attention to the fact that these provisions would hamper considerably the study, knowledge, and understanding of key developments and position in the Communist-dominated countries, and, as a result of their broad scope of Communist program and activity in other countries as well. Again and again, these reports emphasize, as a matter of deep concern to the general, as well as to the academic community, that this would happen at the very time and under the very conditions when it is so basic that we be and keep fully informed as to the developments and position of Communist countries and Communist activity in other countries.

Yet another objection to this proposed approach becomes apparent when we consider that substantial quantity of American literature and reading material is made available behind the Iron Curtain through the joint efforts of the U.S. Information Agency, and officials of the various Communist countries. Senator CLARK and I stressed this fact last evening in debate. Such printed matter is distributed by the government of the nations in question, and does much to create increased understanding of the American way of life, and respect for our principles. Testimony given by U.S. Information Agency Director Edward R. Murrow before the Post Office and Civil Service Committee indicates that the influence of these books, pamphlets, and magazines is considerable, and represents a significant portion of the mission of his Agency. The senior Senator discussed this development on yesterday in this forum.

Is it not reasonable to assume, Mr. President, that this privilege of free exchange of information allowed by the Communists would swiftly be withdrawn were we to ban their literature from our mails? Thus we would be denied an effective and straightforward means of extending the message of truth and freedom to enslaved peoples who are enduring Communist domination.

It is worth noting also, that the Senate version of H.R. 7927 would revive a program which has already been tried in this country, and which was ended in 1961 by order of President John F. Kennedy.

From 1950 until March 17, 1961, the Post Office seized books, magazines, and other non-first-class mail which came from behind the Iron Curtain. The program was widely denounced by scholars and others interested in studying life in Communist countries, and was attacked by other Americans who were justly concerned about what they considered a violation of their right to read and think as they wished. This was a point I made during my earlier remarks during discussion on this vital subject.

During the term of office of Dwight D. Eisenhower, the discontinuance of mail interception was unanimously recommended by the planning board of the National Security Council. Further, and most significantly, in announcing that mail screening and censorship was to be stopped, President Kennedy noted that responsible officials of the Departments of State, Treasury, Justice, and the Post Office Department had found the program to be without "useful intelligence function." I spoke of this finding on yesterday.

A news story in the New York Times of September 25, 1962, states:

The Senate committee's version of the postal rate bill would revive a controversial program, ended by President Kennedy last year, of intercepting Communist propaganda in mail from abroad.

From 1950 until March 17, 1961, the date of the Kennedy order, the Post Office seized books, magazines, and other non-first-class mail coming in from behind the Iron Curtain. About 15 million pieces of mail a year were intercepted.

Until 1958 the Post Office did not inform addresses that their mail was being withheld. Then it began to advise them that they could get the foreign political propaganda if they returned a card saying they wanted it.

The program drew attack from scholars and others who complained about interference with studies of life in the Soviet Union and other Communist countries. The program was also denounced as a violation of Americans' freedom to read and think as they wish.

NO USEFUL FUNCTION SEEN

In ending the program, Kennedy said the State, Treasury, Justice and Post Office Departments had found it to be without "useful intelligence functions."

During the Eisenhower administration, he notes, the planning board of the National Security Council unanimously recommended discontinuance of the mail interception.

Mr. President, I reiterate my opposition to the proposed Senate amendment to H.R. 7927, and emphasize my belief that such legislation would not be in the best interests of the citizens of the United States. The measure is probably unconstitutional; it is very probably unworkable; it would doubtless cause the Communists to withdraw the U.S. Intelliency Agency's presently held privilege with regard to distribution of our own literature; it would work extreme hardship and detriment upon those scholars and other citizens who study facets of life behind the Iron Curtain; and finally, and perhaps most important, mail censorship represents a dangerous departure from our traditions as a free society wherein men and women can think as they choose.

For my part, I am confident of the ability of my fellow Americans to withstand the blandishments of Communist ideology, and to gain strength of conviction in our cherished mode of life through a free exchange of ideas.

I have the considered conviction that the Senate has voted unwisely. There will be an undesirable impact by the action on the proposal in question. Let us be careful that we do not erect a wall—of a different type to be sure—but a barrier nevertheless against the basic concepts of freedom and justice. I feel deeply that we cannot strengthen our Republic by the means indicated in the rollcall just completed.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the chairman of the committee yield so that I may ask him a question?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. HOLLAND. I should like to address a question to the chairman of the committee who is handling the bill on the floor. There is a provision in existing law, in the Farm Credit Act, to the following effect:

Provided, That the salary of not more than three positions of deputy governor each shall be fixed by the board at a rate not exceeding the maximum scheduled rate of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Earlier in the year the Farm Credit Board understood that the proposed legislation might repeal that particular provision. I should like to ask the distinguished chairman of the committee what the situation would be with respect to that particular provision of existing law under the proposed legislation we are considering today if it were enacted into law.

Mr. JOHNSTON. That particular act is still in existence. We do not affect it in any way. We leave it exactly where it is and where it has been.

Mr. HOLLAND. I thank the distinguished chairman. The provision relates to deputy governors of the Farm Credit Administration, who are paid by the Farm Credit Administration. This salary had to be fixed at that level before appropriate personnel to fill these positions could be obtained.

Mr. JOHNSTON. That it true. That is why we have left it that way.

Mr. HOLLAND. I thank the chairman.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I offer an amendment, which would change lines 6, 7, and 8 on page 33 of the bill and line 19 also on page 33.

The bill as now written reads:

Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

My amendment would change the language so as to read that the Federal salary rates shall be comparable with rates paid by private enterprise, and by municipal, county, and State governments. Instead of the Federal rate being comparable only to the rate paid in private enterprise, I would make it comparable to the average rate paid by private enterprise, and county, municipal, and State governments.

To achieve this, two sections of the bill must be modified. These are sections 502 and 503. I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. PASTORE. What would be the situation in the District of Columbia? It would mean would it not, that the people in the District would be making twice as much as the people of the State of Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I assume that we must achieve a general application, and that we cannot expect to have perfection. That is the general experience in the enactment of all laws. However, I submit that it is wrong to have the Federal rate compared only to private enterprise, and not to the rate paid by Rhode Island, by Providence, by Cleveland, and by Ohio, or Montana.

Mr. PASTORE. I realize that, but the Senator's answer is not responsive to my question. The Senator admits, does he not, that a different situation exists in the District of Columbia? The formula will not apply.

Mr. LAUSCHE. If it should be modified further, that can be done. But basically, I declare the principle that a comparison cannot be made only with private enterprise. The comparison ought to be with the rates which other governments are paying, and not merely what private enterprise is paying. That is the way the rate should be determined, if it is desired to be logical.

Mr. PASTORE. I understand the Senator's argument, but I again say that there will be defections, so far as the District of Columbia is concerned, where most of the Federal employees are employed. So we would be using a sledge hammer to drive in a little tack.

Mr. LAUSCHE. My answer is that we are responsible for the inequality. We are responsible for the fact that the Federal employees who work in the District of Columbia are getting many times more than the pay which is received in the States of the Nation. Congress is responsible for that. We have been loose. What I seek to do is to move along a path which will be the right one for all.

The Senator from Rhode Island may not agree with the course I am proposing; but if the Federal Government is to pay rates which are comparable with those paid by private enterprise, I respectfully say, as I pointed out yesterday, that pipefitters and plumbers in the San Francisco area are now earning $7.50 an hour by agreement. I have checked that information, and my statement is correct. Are all pipefitters and plumbers who do Federal contractual work or who are employed by the Federnment to be paid $7.50 an hour? That is the rate which is paid to such workers in the San Francisco area for a 39-hour week.

On that basis, if such employees in the Federal Government worked 2,000 hours, they would earn $15,000, with the Federal taxpayer paying the bill. That is why I say it is wrong to make the comparison only with the rates paid by private enterprise. If a comparison is to be made, we ought to ascertain what is paid the civil service workers of Ohio or Rhode Island.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, would the Senator from Ohio be agreeable to a unanimous-consent agreement on his amendment?

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I told the majority leader that I would agree to a unanimous-consent request; but I am not yet prepared to make an agreement as to time.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Ohio yield

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Does the language of the Senator's amendment contemplate fringe benefits, or only the actual money paid?

Mr. LAUSCHE. It contemplates the entire rate structure.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Including fringe benefits?

Mr. LAUSCHE. Surely; they are a part of the salary.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Including annual leave and sick leave?

Mr. LAUSCHE. Yes; they are a part of the salary.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, I understand and appreciate the contention of the distinguished Senator from Ohio; but his amendment, which was drawn up in a hurried fashion, simply will not work. I agree that no one should be paid more than he deserves, whether he works for private industry, for a State government, for a municipal government, or for the Federal Government. That applies to Senators of the United States as well as to anyone else. No one should receive a nickel more than he is worth.

The Senator's amendment, drawn up in haste, really does not solve any problems, because the majority of the Federal workers under civil service are located in the District of Columbia. The Senator's amendment does not begin to affect them.

As far as plumbers are concerned—and this subject was discussed at length yesterday—the fact is that plumbers and janitors who work for the U.S. Government do so under the blue collar formula. The blue collar formula provides that they cannot be paid more than is paid in private industry in the particular area where they work. That has been the law for many years.

To leave the impression that plumbers who work for the U.S. Government will begin to receive $7.50 an hour is ridiculous. It is ridiculous to leave that impression because most of those people work at much lower rates of pay. The actual amount which is paid plumbers, carpenters, and janitors who work for the U.S. Government does not compare with the rates of pay for similar work in private industry. I see nothing dishonorable, extravagant, or wrong in paying people who work for the U.S. Government on a basis comparable with that of private industry. Why? Because ours is a land of private industry. Our free enterprise system is the heartbeat of American progress.

When we begin to say that a person who works for his Government is not worth as much as a man who does comparable work in private industry, we are downgrading the U.S. Government, and we should not do that.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Rhode Island yield?

Mr. PASTORE. I yield.

Mr. LAUSCHE. My amendment contemplates giving full consideration to what is paid in private enterprise, but adds to that consideration a recognition of what is paid by State and municipal governments. I think that is the only comparison that can be made which will enable us to make an overall consideration of salaries in determining what the Federal Government should pay.

I subscribe to the belief that private enterprise should guide us in our determination, but so also should State and local governments.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, I understand the argument of the Senator from Ohio, but I still insist that we are reaching for a headline which will read well when we begin to leave the impression that we are working today on a bill that plans to provide that a plumber who works for the U.S. Government will begin to receive $7.50 an hour. It is absolutely wrong and unfair to leave such an impression, because that is not the case. It never was and never will be. If it is sought to reach for headlines by such a suggestion, trying to down-grade the bill by unfair inference, I say an injustice will be done to many thousands of persons who work for the U.S. Government.

There is not a plumber in the United States who works for the Federal Government who even begins to reach $7.50 for several hours work, let alone for 1 hour's work.

The Senator from Ohio has referred to the rate paid plumbers in San Francisco. But what about Los Angeles? I do not know what plumbers are paid in Los Angeles. I have been to Los Angeles only twice. The last time I was there was to attend the Democratic Convention. I do not know how much plumbers are paid there.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, will the Senator from Rhode Island yield?

Mr. PASTORE. I yield to the Senator from California.

Mr. KUCHEL. First, I invite the Senator from Rhode Island to return to Los Angeles. When he does, I want him to be my guest. He will do me a great honor.

Mr. PASTORE. I could not have a better host in the State.

Mr. KUCHEL. I am grateful to the Senator.

Second, the statement of the Senator from Rhode Island is unassailably correct. I served in the government of California for a few years after World War II. I know something about the downgrading of public employees in some States of the American Union. The reason why my State of California has been so progressive is that some officials in the government of California tried to demonstrate by the rate of takehome pay of Federal employees that it was a great honor to be employed by the government of Californa. That is why the State government over the years began to suffer less and less from attrition among those who entered the State government service and then had to leave.

So far as I am concerned, the Senator from Rhode Island speaks for me 100 percent in his argument.

Mr. PASTORE. Furthermore, there is today a large number of postal employees who, in order to support their families, let alone nourish the hope of sending their children to college, as many of us in the Senate of the United States are privileged to do, must go outside and obtain for themselves extra work. Many of them must do odd jobs on the side in order to bring home sufficient money to buy the bread that is needed for the table.

It is a cruel distortion of fact if we stand on the floor of the Senate and create the impression that everyone who works for his Government is excessively paid. I think we are doing a great injustice. That is all I have to say.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, will the Senator from Rhode Island yield?

Mr. PASTORE. I yield.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, will the Senator from Rhode Island yield?

Mr. PASTORE. I yield.

Mr. KUCHEL. I come from a small town in California—at least, it used to be a small town; I suppose it is a big city now. It is Anaheim, Calif., known as Disneyland. I belong to a fraternal organization in that town, and most of my fellow townsmen also belong to it. I know a postal worker there whose wife must work, too, in order to make ends meet. I resent that situation; and when I have an opportunity to help in that situation, I am going to do so. I have an opportunity to do that today, by means of my vote on this proposed legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senator from Ohio will be stated.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I am not asking that my amendment be considered now. I merely sent it to the desk, to be printed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Very well.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, the Senator from California has referred to the salaries paid in the States. I submit that my amendment contemplates giving full recognition, in connection with the fixing of the Federal salaries, to the salaries in California and in other States. So the argument of the Senator from California fits in completely with my argument. I am asking that Senators consider the situation in California and the other States.

Second, we have the question of whether the Federal Government has to pay the rates of pay fixed by collective bargaining in the various parts of the country. Undoubtedly in California, under every contract covering Government work, the workers are paid on the basis of the salary level fixed in that community, as established by a Federal statute, which provides—and I voted for it—that the provisions of the Bacon Act shall apply. That means that in California, the workers on jobs under Federal contracts are paid the rates fixed by collective-bargaining agreements.

Mr. President, I yield to no other Senator in compassion for workers. I want the postal service employees to get their raise in pay, and I will support it. I have no hesitation in doing so, and I have told that to delegation after delegation.

But I am not in favor of having inordinate pay raises given to employees who already are receiving large salaries. On that point I differ from the general arguments which are being made. I want to help those who are struggling with low salaries, but I will not vote to have the salaries of workers who now are receiving $17,500 increased to $18,500. Neither will I vote to increase my own salary. However, I anticipate that 2 years from now there will be a vote on the question of increasing the salary of Senators.

My position is taken on the basis that I want to lift the burden from the taxpayers a little.

Mr. President, little thought is given on this floor to the taxpayers. The only thought we give is when we say we are going to lower their taxes. Of course it is simple to advocate lowering taxes and increasing spending, but where will that course lead us? The end of that road will be the poorhouse and calamity.

If the argument being made were to lower taxes and to keep expenditures in line, I would say we would then be moving on a sound basis. But almost every bill which has been brought up on this floor—and especially the weak ones—is advocated on the basis of the demagogic argument that the bill is based on a feeling of compassion for fellow human beings; and the implication is that some Senators are devoid of such compassion.

Mr. President, compassion does not reside in one person more than in others.

However, I submit to the Senate that realistic facts which cannot be avoided must be considered. I will support the measure which calls for increasing practically all salaries, but I will not go along with the program to increase the pay of those who already are receiving high salaries.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator from Ohio yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. I respect the arguments being made by the Senator from Ohio, as I always do, although I drastically disagree with him.

I wonder how he thinks the committee is buying votes when it advocates increasing the salaries—and increasing them to only an inadequate extent, I emphasize, from my point of view—to be paid to the real brains the Federal Government has in the civil service. If one wished to buy votes, he would advocate increasing the salaries of the people with strong backs and weak minds. So it seems to me it takes a great deal of courage to advocate—as the chairman of the committee has done—that the salaries of those with good brains be increased. I do not think votes are being bought in that way. In this regard, I support the chairman of the committee. I do not think the salaries would be raised high enough.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I suppose there is much to what the Senator from Pennsylvania has said. However, I refer to the practice in an election year of supporting all sorts of giveaway programs. How is it that all the bills of that sort come before the Senate in an election year? Why do not they come before the Senate in a nonelection year? Mr. President, I know the answer to that question; and I think everyone else knows it too.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator from Ohio yield again to me?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. I wonder whether the Senator from Ohio thinks there are enough good brains in the Federal Government.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I cannot answer that question; but I know that if salaries at the Federal level are increased, private enterprise firms engaged in space work and electronics work will, in their quest for engineers, increase the salaries they pay; and then the Federal Government will have to increase, once again, the salaries it pays; and thus the competition will continue, and the problem never will be solved.

As Governor of Ohio, I had a similar experience. I increased the salaries of our mental-hygiene workers; but as soon as I did that, I found that the other States did likewise, and the problem was never solved.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator from Ohio yield again to me?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. Does not the Senator from Ohio agree that today private industry pays from two to three or four times what the Federal Government pays to workers with good brains?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I agree; but I think the Federal Government is responsible for that situation. I repeat that the Federal Government is responsible for the high salaries that are being paid in private industry. We are letting contracts on a cost-plus basis in the field of space and electronics. Those contractees, knowing that whatever they pay in salaries will be paid by the taxpayers, are robbing one another of employees, lifting salaries all the time, robbing the Federal Government of employees; and thus the chase on the treadmill goes on.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. Does not the Senator agree that about 91 percent of the higher salaries is returned to the Federal Government in income taxes? Is that not true?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I suppose that is so, but what does that prove? Does it prove that we give it to them and then steal it from them?

Mr. CLARK. Does the Senator think the income tax laws are a thief?

Mr. LAUSCHE. But that is in effect what the Senator says—we give them 100 cents and then take 91 cents away from them, so everything is fine.

Mr. CLARK. It seems to knock the Senator's argument into a box.

I personally would like to see the high income tax brackets come down. The point of the bill is to see to it that the brains represented in the upper and middle income brackets can be made available to the U.S. Government as well as to private industry. That is why I support the committee.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I agree with the Senator from Pennsylvania—I want our Government to get men with brains, but I cannot see how we are going to do it in this race by trying to determine who will pay the highest salaries and by providing that salaries for engineers and scientists shall be raised. The moment we do it, the companies to whom we are assigning contracts will raise the salaries of their scientists; and we will be back where we started. We are not getting to the cause, I say to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Let me now summarize my position on the bill. I am in favor of adopting the principle of comparability, but the comparison of salaries should not be confined to a comparison of what is paid by private enterprise and what is paid by the Government. If a just rule is to be arrived at, the salaries paid by State, local, municipal, and county governments must be included.

I favor the granting of a pay raise at this time generally as envisioned in the bill, with a few exceptions. The exceptions are that I will not support the section giving a pay increase to the legislative branch of the Government.

While I am on that subject, has the Senator from South Carolina been able to get the figures showing what the potential cost of this bill will be in the increases which can be given to legislative employees? I asked for that information yesterday. Basically, I am in favor of that phase of the bill, except for the items I have mentioned.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, the maximum amount of the cost of the pay raise for all employees of the U.S. Senate, provided each employee was given the full amount of the increase provided, would be $1,650.00.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, has the Senator from Ohio concluded?

Mr. LAUSCHE. Yes.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, no one Senator has a monopoly on compassion. No one Senator has a monopoly on the public interest or interest in the welfare of the taxpayers. When it comes to a regard for the taxpayer, his interest, and his welfare, I defer to no one, just as I am sure the Senator from Ohio defers to no one.

All I am saying is that if a girl is working in one's office here in Washington as a stenographer, or if there is a mail carrier going his rounds in the State of Rhode Island, I would not want their pay determined by whether the State of Massachusetts, for example, pays more or pays less for comparable work. The standard for Federal wages should not be the measure by which salaries in one State government may be paid as against those paid in another State government. The minute we begin to follow a formula that the pay of Federal employees will be based on what is paid in a certain State or municipality, we shall have a lopsided civil service establishment. There is no question about it.

We have a responsibility. As legislators in the American Congress, we have a responsibility to fix wages for Federal employees, and that job should not be done by the State legislatures. I realize that many States may pay higher salaries than they should. I am aware there are scandals alleged in many States. Merely because a higher salary is paid in a State does not mean that a Federal employee working in that State should be paid more than he deserves. By the same token, if the salary in a certain State is lower, it does not mean that a Federal employee working in that State should be paid less than he deserves.

The formula suggested by the Senator from Ohio will not work. It is impracticable. For that reason it should be defeated.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, is the amendment pending before the Senate now?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No; the amendment has not been offered.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. MORSE. What is the amendment before the Senate?

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, I ask for the third reading, if there is no further amendment to be offered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, is an amendment in order now?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. An amendment is in order.

Mr. MORSE. I call up my amendments, identified as "9–26–62—D."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendments offered by the Senator from Oregon will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. It is proposed on page 11, beginning with line 1, strike out all through line 9 on page 32.

On page 101, line 8, strike out "Part III" and insert "Part II".

Amend the title so as to read: "An Act to adjust the salaries of Federal employees, and for other purposes."

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I shall not take very long on these amendments.

I would like to have the attention of the majority leader. I am open to the possibility of a unanimous-consent agreement limiting time on this amendment, because there is the record of years standing of objection by the senior Senator from Oregon to combining pay increases with rate increases. I would like to have a yea-and-nay vote on the amendments. I would be willing to enter into an agreement limiting ourselves to 10 minutes on a side. We all know how we are going to vote, anyway.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, I am so surprised I hardly know what to say, but I would like to make a unanimous-consent request along the lines indicated by the Senator from Oregon, limiting debate on the amendment to 10 minutes to a side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I would like to suggest that the majority leader call for a quorum, and then withdraw it when there are enough Senators present to order the yeas and nays on the amendments.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendments of the Senator from Oregon.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, my speech in support of the amendment was made yesterday. I just think it is bad public policy to hitch postal rates to postal pay and pay for other civil service employees. It is a bad precedent. It will rise to plague the Senate and the parties concerned.

The precedent is going to be cited some time in the future that there cannot be a consideration of pay increases unless there is an increase in rates. I think it is bad legislative policy both for the postal service, and for all the services of the Federal Government.

If the Senate is going to tie salaries to rates now, is the Senate ready to do it in connection with all Government services? Let us take the large body of proprietary interest in the Federal Government. Let us take the Bonneville Administration, the TVA, any of the Government services in the field of utilities. Does the Senate want to set a precedent that there cannot be pay increases for those Federal employees unless there are changes in the rates in the operation of the proprietary interest that will pay their way?

As a matter of principle, the combining of postal rate increases and pay increases cannot be justified as good political science.

This goes back to the whole history of the purpose of the postal service. We cannot erase the pages of American history on this subject matter. When the postal service was established there was never any intention on the part of our Constitutional Fathers that it should pay its way. To the contrary, there were debates at the time of the Constitutional Convention in regard to this matter, and there was strong opposition to the idea that there ought to be a private enterprise system in connection with the delivery of mail. In some colonies the mail was distributed in that manner. That was an efficient service, because the people in charge of the business distributed the mail from the standpoint of making a profit. They gave service accordingly.

As a result, there was not a uniformity of service. It was decided there should be established a Federal postal service to serve the people of this country, to give assurance that there would be uniformity of efficiency to the extent possible, and that there would be uniformity of service to the American people, whether they lived in the mountains, on Main Street, in Washington, D.C., or anywhere else.

I think that is the way we ought to keep it.

I quite agree that there should not be waste in the postal service. I quite agree that the rates ought to be reasonable. But the idea that it is necessary to raise the rates so that there will be no deficit in the postal service, in my judgment, overlooks the fact of its original purpose.

Do Senators wish to apply that principle in terms of fire protection? Do Senators wish to apply that principle in regard to all the other public services to which we know a free people are entitled?

What do I propose? I say, "Separate them." That is what the amendment would do. It would eliminate from this bill the whole of part I on postal rates. We could pass part II and part III. In January we could consider another bill to deal with the matter of rates, at a time we could deliberate on it and I think do a more thorough job than we can now do. Or, if Senators wish, even in the closing days of this session we could consider an independent bill with regard to postal rates. We could debate that to our heart's content and present in some detail the evidence which I think ought to be presented against an increase in the postal rates, particularly in the rates on first-class mail and airmail.

That is my case. I am only making a plea today for the application of sound political science to the legislative process in the Senate.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I shall use only 4 or 5 minutes.

I agree with most of what the Senator from Oregon has said. I also believe that salaries of employees of the Government should not be absolutely dependent upon increases in rates, especially in the Post Office Department.

I think, along with the Senator from Oregon, we ought to provide certain things under the postal service which do not pay all their way. I do not think all must pay their way.

With respect to first-class mail, we must look at the overall situation. A person may send a telegram and may pay for 10 words. A person may write 50 words and send the telegram immediately, at any time during the day, or he may send it in the form of a night letter, at a cheaper rate.

The same is true in this regard to the Post Office Department. First-class mail receives preferential treatment. Those letters go out first. If time is available, the second-class mail is handled. When second-class mail has been handled, the third-class mail is then handled, and so on down the line until all classes of mail have been processed.

For this reason, rates should be a little cheaper for various classes other than first class, since they do not receive preferential treatment.

We should think about these things in regard to regulating rates.

Coming back again to the question of salaries, I would not wish to have anybody at any time think that an employee should not have his salary raised until the budget is balanced. Never would I believe that. If I did, certainly the employees would not be getting the increases they deserve. I think the salaries of employees should depend upon whether or not the employees do their work and the amount to which they are entitled for doing the particular work they do, whatever it is. That is my position, and it has been at all times.

We did not want to tie the two bills together. For the information of the Senator, we would not have been able to get any pay increase for the employees if we had not tied the bills together.

A bill has not come to the Senate from the House with regard to the pay raise, and for that reason we have tied the two bills together, in order to do something for the employees and at the same time do something to the increase in postal rates.

Both of these are equitable.

We have also provided in the bill retirement provisions, so that they may be passed.

We think all these proposals are equitable.

I do not agree with everything that is in any bill of this scope. Every committee chairman has to "give and take" in committee. When the committee reports a bill, it is my duty as chairman, to do everything possible to see that the bill is passed by the Senate in the form reported by the committee unless there should be some very unusual provision that goes too much against the grain. Of course, I am not tied, and no other Senator is tied, to follow the committee recommendation 100 percent. However, in considering the bill in the Senate it becomes necessary at times to go along with matters in which one Senator may not thoroughly believe.

We cannot follow the Senator in regard to this particular amendment. If we should do so, there would not be any increase in salaries for employees. There would not be any retirement provisions passed this year. There would not be, this year, any increase in rates provided.

We hope all of these things will go into effect, in order that we may have a better postal system and do justice to the employees at the same time.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, if I may, I will take back 1 minute of my time.

I understand the position of the Senator from South Carolina. It is the same position that Senator after Senator has stated to me. It is the old story that many have told me, that the political science principle for which I am fighting is absolutely sound; but apparently there are some problems of expediency which will smother out a sound political science principle.

I offer the amendment. I think it is a proper amendment. I suspect I shall be defeated on the yea-and-nay vote, but I do not think I should be, for I think the way to pass legislation properly is on the basis of my amendment.

I hope that my amendment and the vote on it, the legislative history we are now making, will at least blunt somewhat the argument which may be made in the future pointing back to this hour as an hour of precedent in regard to the question of linking pay increases with rate increases or linking pay increases with the argument, "You can get them only if that particular part of the Government service pays its way."

If I have performed that service I have accomplished at least something, and I am glad I have offered my amendment.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. Mr. President, will the Senator from Oregon yield to me for a question?

Mr. MORSE. I yield to the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Oregon has expired.

Mr. MORSE. My time has expired.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 1 minute to the Senator, so that he may ask a question.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. In view of the fact that some of us would be tempted to vote, if the measures were separated, for the pay raise portion and against the rate increase portion, I am somewhat curious as to the Senator's attitude in that regard. Does the Senator think we ought to defeat the rate increase and vote for the pay increase, or would he vote for both, even though separated?

Mr. MORSE. If they could be separated I would vote against the rate increase in the form provided in the bill, unless it were drastically modified.

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield me 2 minutes?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. MONRONEY. I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Oregon. Having campaigned throughout the years and crusaded against joining together proposed legislation relating to a pay raise and a postal rate increase, I dislike having to do so now. The only time I remember that our committee supported such a measure was when we made an effort to avoid the killing of a proposed pay increase through a Presidential veto.

Today we are faced with a different situation. Time has run out on the opportunity to consider the two bills separately, and to do a satisfactory job on a most necessary measure, namely, a bill which would raise $600 million in revenue every year to help pay for the operation of the Post Office. I point out that the pending bill would cover only a portion of the necessary revenue. The $308 million of the proposed pay increase will have to be charged to public service. To postpone action on the rate bill and take up the pay bill now would unquestionably result in a loss of approximately $300 million before the mail rate bill could later be passed.

Furthermore, I am convinced from the information that our committee has that without a rate bill, which should have been passed separately if we could have finished our job, I doubt very seriously that the President of the United States would sign proposed legislation which would extend over $1 billion in pay increases in the half of the bill that we might pass, while we neglected to provide the $600 million necessary increase in revenue from additional postal rates.

I agree with the distinguished Senator from Oregon. We never wish to set a precedent on the question. The lateness of the session explains the reason the proposal is necessary, and I hope the amendment will be rejected.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I yield back my remaining time.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I yield back any time I may have remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I should like to suggest a brief quorum call. I do so because one of the cars going to the new Senate Office Building is out of commission. Furthermore, I understand that the bells in the Public Works Committee room have not been ringing. Therefore, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Oregon. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. EASTLAND], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from California [Mr. ENGLE], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY], and the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. EASTLAND], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from California [Mr. ENGLE], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] would each vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Vermont [Mr. AIKEN] is absent on official business.

The Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN] is detained on official business.

If present and voting, the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] would each vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 6, nays 72, as follows:

So Mr. MORSE's amendment was rejected.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I call up my amendment designated "9–26–62—E" and ask that it be read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 11, it is proposed to strike out lines 3 to 8, inclusive, and renumber succeeding section numbers accordingly.

On page 11, beginning with line 12, strike out all through line 15.

On page 11, line 16, strike out "(3)" and insert "(1)".

On page 11, line 4, strike out "(4)" and insert "(2)".

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I should like to offer the majority leader another unanimous-consent proposal: That there be a limitation of 10 minutes to a side on this very sound and speaking-for-itself amendment, and that we have a yea-and-nay vote on it. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been requested. Is there a sufficient second?

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, will the Chair entertain the request of the Senator from Oregon that the time on the amendment be limited to 20 minutes, 10 minutes to a side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Oregon? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, my amendment strikes out the increases provided in the bill for first-class mail and airmail. The case is made for me by the committee on page 2 of the report. I ask Senators to turn to page 2 and examine the table entitled "Comparison of Estimated Cost Coverage."

The first item in the table is "First class, current rates." That class returns to the Post Office 100.4 percent of the carrying charges. In other words, the return on first-class mail, now being carried with a 4-cent stamp, is 0.4 percent more than the cost of carriage.

I ask Senators to look at the second item in the table—airmail. Airmail is now being carried through the mail at 112.8 percent of the current rate. In other words, the Government receives 12.8 percent more than it costs to carry the airmail.

What does the committee propose with respect to these two items? I ask Senators to examine the last column of the table, headed "Senate Amendment." That is the amount which will be received for first-class mail if the bill is passed. According to the table, the amount to be received will be 127.4 percent of the cost of carrying first-class mail. In other words, the senders of first-class mail will be paying a subsidy of 27.4 percent to the other branches of mail to help pay a part of their carrying costs. That is much more than the subsidy they are now paying, which is about four-tenths of one percent.

In contrast, even when the increases for second- and third-class mail have gone into effect, second class will be paying only 35 percent of its carrying cost, and third class 82 percent.

What about airmail? Under the committee bill, 127 percent of the cost of carriage will be received. I do not think that is right or fair. I do not believe it is fair to the senders of first-class mail to require them to pay what is really a subsidy to the users of other classes of mail, who will not be paying nearly their share of the load. I do not believe it is fair to the senders of airmail, who will be paying a subsidy, in effect, of 27 percent.

Nor do I think, if anyone has any doubt about it, that it is fair or right to charge the users of second- and third-class service the full cost of sending that mail.

The reason for that, heard so many times from the lips of the senior Senator from Oregon—I shall not dwell on it at length now—is that I hold to the proposition that the whole purpose of the postal system is to render a public service to the American pepole, so that there will be a guarantee of quick and cheap dissemination of knowledge and information into the homes of America, which is essential to keeping men and women free; for we will not keep freedom in this country unless we keep knowledge at the hearthstones of America. It will not be possible to keep freedom in this country unless we keep the people enlightened; and the postal service is one of the great educational institutions in America. It is a part of our educational system. It should not be maintained on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Certainly we should not be expecting the senders of first-class mail and airmail to subsidize the senders of magazines and newspapers and the other users of second- and third-class mail. If there is to be a subsidy—and I am for it, because that is what this proposal is, in effect—it ought to be paid out of the Treasury of the United States by all the taxpayers, and not be paid by some select group.

As a matter of policy, I believe that where subsidies are desirable, they should be financed from general revenues and not borne by just one group.

I simply do not believe it is fair or right to increase the charge of first-class mail to 5 cents and for airmail to 10 cents, in order to subsidize the other users of the mail.

In my opinion, the rates for these two classes should remain at their present levels. Those classes are paying their cost; in fact, airmail is more than paying its cost. I think that to retain the first-class and airmail rates at their present levels would be fair and equitable. Therefore, I offer my amendment.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, if the amendment of the Senator from Oregon is adopted, the following amounts of revenue will be eliminated: The increased amount of revenue for first-class mail under the bill will be $437,800,000. The proposed increase in rate for airmail will result in $21,200,000 additional revenue. So the adoption of the amendment of the Senator from Oregon would result in eliminating $459 million of revenue from the bill. That would leave very little revenue remaining.

First-class mail has always paid more than its cost of delivery. That has been true since almost the beginning of the carrying of the mails. At one time it was carried at 170 percent of the cost of delivery. When the first-class rate was increased to 3 cents in 1933, it can well be imagined just what part of the cost it was carrying at that particular time. As I remember, it was 170 percent of the cost. So, first-class has always more than paid its cost.

This is true in the main because first-class mail receives preferential treatment. It is the mail which is delivered first. When it comes into the post office, it is the first mail sorted. Although in many instances it is sorted 11 times, each time it is sorted first and keeps getting into the front row, so to speak. It is given preferential treatment all the way through the post office. And it is because first-class mail receives preferential treatment that an additional amount is paid.

The committee believes that the proposed rates are equitable under the circumstances at this time.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield back the rest of my time.

Mr. BIBLE. Mr. President, for the same reason as was advanced previously, I suggest the absence of a quorum. It is my understanding that some of the bells are not ringing; therefore, a short quorum call is desired.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BIBLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on the amendment lettered "E" of the Senator from Oregon. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered; and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr.

ANDERSON], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from California [Mr. ENGLE], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], and the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING] would vote "yea."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Vermont [Mr. AIKEN] is absent on official business.

The Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN] and the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS] are detained on official business.

If present and voting, the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] would each vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 12, nays 65, as follows:

So Mr. MORSE's amendment was rejected.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I call up my amendments identified as "9–26–62—F."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendments offered by the Senator from Ohio will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed on page 96, beginning with line 9, strike out all through line 17 on page 99.

Renumber sections 1006, 1007, and 1008 as 1005, 1006, and 1007, respectively.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. MANSFIELD. With the acquiescence and support of the Senate, I wish to make a unanimous-consent request that 10 minutes be allowed on the pending amendment, 5 minutes to a side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. MANSFIELD. With the further provision that, when the Senator from Colorado [Mr. CARROLL], calls up his amendment, 30 minutes be allowed, 15 minutes to a side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I would like to have the yeas and nays on my amendment. I understand the Senator from Ohio does not want them on his amendment, but I would like to have them on mine.

Mr. MANSFIELD. At the appropriate time the yeas and nays will be requested.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the Senator from Montana? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, my amendments, if adopted, would strike from the bill those provisions which authorize a discretionary pay raise of 7 percent to the employees of the legislative branch of Government.

Senators are thoroughly familiar with this problem. It requires no argument on my part to point out the facts as I see them supporting my position, or for other Senators to point out the facts as they see them in support of their position in favor of the proposal.

Two years ago a pay raise of 10 percent was granted. I recognize that it was not mandatory that the pay raise be put into effect. It was discretionary with each Senator. However, when the employees of Senators B, C, and D receive a pay raise, it is pretty hard for another Senator to say, "No, I cannot do it."

Therefore, I urge the adoption of my amendment.

Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has a minute and a half remaining.

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield to the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER].

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, a few years ago, when this same matter came before the Senate, I opposed any increase for employees of the legislative branch. As I indicated then, we of the legislative branch have a system of our own that we can utilize to fix salaries of our employees. Depending on the size of the respective States, Senators have a base salary allowance ranging from $52,980 to as much as $79,980. Thus any Senator can hire the number of employees he specifically needs and fix salaries of his choice. This is something that is left up to individual Senators. After all, each Senator should know best how many employees he needs to serve his constituents.

It is true that a Senator is limited in the amount he can pay his administrative assistant. The maximum base for such positions is $8,820. But this is not the full amount of the salary. There is a special fund which raises the base salary to a gross salary of $17,525 per year. As my good friend the Senator from Ohio has indicated, I think a salary of that size is sufficient.

I do not like to see this practice of coupling a salary raise for other employees of the Federal Government with a raise in salaries for post office employees. I would cheerfully vote for an increase in the salaries of post office employees if I could get the opportunity to do so because I believe they are underpaid. However, I do not believe it is wise for us to vote for a bill at this time which will raise salaries to such a great extent for a host of Federal employees. This proposed salary raise would increase Federal expenditures over $1 billion a year.

As I had said earlier this year, I am in favor of an increase in pay rates for postal employees if it is coupled with an increase in postal rates. However, I am not in favor of increasing the maximum salary for a Senator's administrative assistant from $17,525 per year to $18,880 per year or of increasing the salary of a GS–17 by $1,768 per year. I think salaries paid people in these positions are high enough.

I repeat: If the bill dealt only with increasing salaries of postal employees along with an increase in postal rates, I would vote for it. If it includes pay raises for any other Government employee, I am against it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. The Senator from South Carolina is recognized.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, speaking for the committee, we decided that 7 percent would be an equitable amount to increase the fund for each Senator to have available. The raise would be left entirely to the Senator.

We did establish a ceiling, so to speak, in respect to salaries of employees in the offices of Senators and for the staffs of the committees.

We think that amount is well within the line. If a Senator did not wish to increase the salary of anybody working in his office, he would not have to do so. The Senator could submit a letter, after the bill is signed by the President, any time before the next pay day, setting salaries for those in his office at any salary rates he desires.

However, the Senator could not provide salaries amounting to more in the aggregate than was assigned to his particular office, nor could he raise the salary for any particular person above the ceiling.

We thought it was right and just to provide for employees on Capitol Hill and to put the appropriation in each Senator's allotment, so to speak, so that Senators could act according to their wishes.

I wish to invite attention to one other thing before the Senate. Senators from the large States have a great deal of difficulty answering mail which comes to their offices. That is the report which has come to us from New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and other States. There has been a plea for a larger allowance in regard to particular States because of the additional burden of answering the mail and carrying on correspondence in the office. I am informed that some Senators must pay expenses out of their own pockets.

That is not a question for our committee. We could not adjust that situation. I only bring it to the attention of the Senate, so that the committee which can properly deal with it and the Appropriations Committee can make the proper adjustments to see that justice is done to all the States.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. ELLENDER. Is the base figure to be raised?

Mr. JOHNSTON. No.

Mr. ELLENDER. How would the additional amount be given, let us say, to the employees in the Senator's office?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Each base would be given an additional amount. A person receiving a base pay of $5,000, for instance, would receive a gross pay of more than $5,000.

Mr. ELLENDER. The Senator says the base would not be changed?

Mr. JOHNSTON. The base would not be changed.

Representatives of the Disbursing Office came before the committee and said that would be the easiest way to handle the problem.

Mr. ELLENDER. Is there to be an increase over and above some base as now exists?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Does the Senator refer to the base?

Mr. ELLENDER. In other words will the same base be used with a salary increase coming out of a special or contingent fund?

Mr. JOHNSTON. The base the Senator gets will provide a gross of 7 percent more.

Mr. ELLENDER. That is the question I was asking. The Senator said the base would not be changed, but the amount of salary will be raised from the same base.

Mr. JOHNSTON. The base would not be changed, but the gross would.

Mr. ELLENDER. Assume that a Senator wished to give an employee the highest salary possible. At the present time the base pay is $8,820, which would make it possible for the employee's gross salary to be $17,525.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Yes.

Mr. ELLENDER. How would the Senator effectuate the addition over $17,525?

Mr. JOHNSTON. The same base pay would provide for the additional amount. That has been the procedure used in the past.

Mr. ELLENDER. In other words, if the Senator fixed the base pay at the same rate the employee now has, the gross salary of the employee would automatically be augmented, to give an additional 7 percent.

Mr. JOHNSTON. It would vary in some grades a little bit, but very little. It averages out the same.

Mr. ELLENDER. Would the funds come from the contingency funds of the Senate?

Mr. JOHNSTON. They would.

Mr. YOUNG of Ohio. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. YOUNG of OHIO. Is it a fact if the amendment offered by my colleague, the senior Senator from Ohio, were rejected, an administrative assistant, an assistant to a Senator, might receive a salary of approximately $18,250 maximum?

Mr. JOHNSTON. The administrative assistant would get that much. The pay scale would be graduated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. YOUNG of Ohio. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for 1 additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request by the Senator from Ohio? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. YOUNG of Ohio. It happens that my colleague and I both represent what is called a big State, because the State of Ohio now has a population in excess of 10 million. I disagree with statements made earlier today that the Senators representing populous States lack sufficient clerical allowance to pay our staff members who assist us. I feel that we are given ample allowances at the present time to pay salaries to our employees and my vote will be recorded in support of my colleague's amendment.

Furthermore, as to administrative assistants, we can use that fancy title if we wish, nevertheless very few work as hard as we Senators nor as long hours, we see them loafing around the Senate Chamber when important issues are before the Senate frequently lining the sides and rear of the Senate Chamber as curious spectators.

An administrative assistant in my office or in any other Senator's office who receives in excess of $18,000 a year would really be receiving more money than the Senator.

Senators maintain two homes. We want to maintain two homes. We are glad to maintain a home in the State we represent. We travel back and forth a great deal, and often at our own expense.

In addition, if a Senator runs for reelection, he must spend a great deal of money in his campaign. Furthermore a Senator has no expense or entertainment allowance. We are glad to entertain our constituents at our own expense. Each of us spends substantial amounts for charities and entertainment.

I feel that we have been very liberal to the staff assistants under our present system, and I support the amendment offered by my colleague to maintain the status quo instead of giving this handout as a gift.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Ohio. (Putting the question.)

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I ask for a division.

Mr. ELLENDER. I ask for a division, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A division has been requested.

On a division, the amendment was rejected.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, I offer my amendment which is at the desk, and I ask to have it stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 13, beginning with line 12, it is proposed to strike out the remainder of the page and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(3) The rates of postage on publications of a qualified nonprofit organization mailed in accordance with subsection (a) are as follows:

[In cents]

	Mailed after Jan. 6, 1963, and prior to Jan. 1, 1964	Mailed during calendar year 1964	Mailed after Dec. 31, 1964
Rate per pound	1.6	1.7	1.8
Minimum charge per piece	.125	.125	.125

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, the amendment is very simple. There is nothing complicated about it. I had the privilege of debating the subject with the able Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY] just 4 years ago.

My amendment does one thing. It retains in existing law the historical and traditional second-class postage rate for publications of nonprofit organizations. I have reference to the newspapers and magazines published by religious, educational, scientific, philanthropic, agricultural, labor, veterans, and fraternal organizations. Through the years, those engaged in the publication of such newspapers have always had a one-eighth cent minimum per copy rate for bulk mailing. The House of Representatives has always retained this rate. The present House bill retains this rate, but unhappily the Senate committee saw fit to increase it by 100 percent.

Yesterday I had printed in the RECORD certain letters which I have received in opposition to the action of the Senate committee, and at that time I made an extensive statement on the subject.

Senators, I am sure, are fully informed on the merits of this proposal.

I would like to emphasize the fact that my amendment involves only a small amount of revenue. About $1 million would be involved in relation to these many publications that bring inspiration, information, and pleasure to those who receive them.

The committee heard testimony by representatives of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the DAV, and other veterans' organizations, from Protestant groups, from the Christian Herald, from Jewish groups, Catholic groups, the Association for the Blind, the National Council of Boy Scouts, and the National Foundation of Medical and Scientific Research. There was also testimony from representatives of crippled children's organizations. All agreed upon the importance of preserving the postage rate for nonprofit publications.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CARROLL. I yield.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Would the Senator's amendment include the parent-teachers 'association bulletin?

Mr. CARROLL. It would include anything that is nonprofit.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Would it include the Easter Seal program?

Mr. CARROLL. Exactly.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Philanthropic and charitable organizations?

Mr. CARROLL. Yes.

Even though pound rates have been increased my amendment does not alter the commitee bill in this respect. Although it is preferable that there be no change at all in second-class mailing rates for the publications of non-profit organizations; I believe it is most important that the minimum piece rate remain unchanged. For this reason my amendment is directed to that end.

In his testimony before the committee, the Postmaster General made an important point:

> Of course, the entire loss under the public service approach that we advocate on these nonprofit publications is picked up in public service. Our philosophy in regard to taking on that area of controversy was that the amount we could probably anticipate and obtain by a hard-fought battle to increase not-for-profit rates would not justify that entirely separate and extremely difficult area of dispute which we would get into.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CARROLL. I am happy to yield.

Mr. PASTORE. Is the Senator from Rhode Island correct in saying that the House left the rate exactly where it had been theretofore?

Mr. CARROLL. The Senator is exactly correct. Many witnesses appeared before the House committee and testified to the point. I have placed some of that testimony in the RECORD. The House refused to raise the rate for these publications. Able representatives of organizations also came before the Senate committee and testified. They did not dream that the committee would take the extreme action which it has.

Four years ago the able Senator from Oklahoma and I debated this same issue on the floor of the Senate. At that time I felt that the provision was a "sleeper." My people at home did not understand the complex formula proposed. We had about 24 hours to marshal our forces. The vote on the issue on February 28, 1958, as shown by the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, was 35 to 49.

We were defeated in the Senate. However, the bill went to conference, and the provision was eliminated in conference by the House conferees. The rate was not raised.

What is the present danger? I have heard certain rumors to the effect that when the Senate passes the bill, there may not be a conference. That is why I have asked for the yeas and nays on the amendment. This may be our last chance to strike this increase from the bill.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CARROLL. I am happy to yield.

Mr. PASTORE. Is it true that the Senate amendment applies only to nonprofit organizations?

Mr. CARROLL. That is exactly correct. I have drafted it very carefully.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CARROLL. I yield to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. CURTIS. I am interested in the Senator's amendment. Last evening I received a telephone call from a distinguished clergyman from the State which I have the honor in part to represent. His particular assignment was to publish a religious newspaper. The newspaper was sent primarily to missionary forces around the world. It also went to many in this country. The clergyman reported to me that the doubling of the rate from one-eighth cent per piece to one-fourth cent per piece would annually cost his paper between $3,000 and $4,000 additional. It has no income. It is supported through the money that the good people of the country give to support missionary causes. Were the proposal to increase the rate included in a bill that would bring the income and the outgo into balance, I might be inclined to say to that man that we should go along with it. But in the light of the great increases that would be given to some, I do not believe that we should raise all or a part of that money by increasing the postage on religious nonprofit publications.

Has the Senator any idea what portion of the nonprofit publications affected are publications of an established church or religious organization?

Mr. CARROLL. I do not know the percentage, but there are many such publications, in every State. As the able Senator from Nebraska has said, the provision in the bill would double the costs of these papers and magazines. I have been informed that if the Senate position on the proposed increase prevails, some of these fine publications will not be able to continue their fine work, they will "wither on the vine." We heard that expression in some of the testimony.

Mr. CURTIS. What other postal rates would be doubled in the bill?

Mr. CARROLL. I do not know that there is any other that would be increased 100 percent.

Mr. CURTIS. I venture to guess that there are no other postal rates in the bill that would be doubled.

Mr. CARROLL. I should emphasize that historically, nonprofits groups that have been printing newspapers have always had a lower rate than the regular newspaper rate. But I assure the Senator from Nebraska that his statement is absolutely correct. The increase would go across the board with relation to these groups, and they would suffer greatly.

Mr. CURTIS. Their rates would be doubled.

Mr. CARROLL. Their rates would be doubled not next year, but the following year.

Mr. CURTIS. I cannot find any provision in the bill in which the rate of any other class of postage would be doubled.

Mr. CARROLL. I am not an expert on the bill, but I know that in the instance about which I speak the rates would be doubled.

Mr. President, how much additional time have I?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 5½ minutes remaining.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, I yield myself an additional 1½ minutes.

Mr. ERVIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CARROLL. I yield.

Mr. ERVIN. What have the organizations to which the Senator has referred been required to pay for postage on their publications?

Mr. CARROLL. The present rate is one-eighth of a cent.

Mr. ERVIN. What was it before?

Mr. CARROLL. It has always been one-eighth of a cent.

Mr. ERVIN. In other words, the rate would be increased from one-eighth of a cent to one-quarter of a cent per pound?

Mr. CARROLL. No, per copy. I am leaving the pound rate alone. We are speaking of what is called the minimum rate for newspaper copy.

I wish to reserve some of my time, to reply to the spirited argument that will be made by the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY]. The question before us is whether we are prepared to allow this increase to stop these great organizations from informing their people.

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CARROLL. I yield.

Mr. KUCHEL. This proposal provides that a year from now there will be a 100-percent increase with respect to what can be described generally as nonprofit or religious or charitable organizations. Is that correct?

Mr. CARROLL. That is correct. I will yield myself another half minute.

Mr. KUCHEL. A local organization, in which I am interested, would be affected, as I understand. It is the Columbia Lighthouse for the Blind. They would be gouged under the present committee amendment.

Is that correct?

Mr. CARROLL. That is correct.

Mr. KUCHEL. I will vote for the amendment of the Senator. I hope the Senate will adopt the amendment.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CARROLL. Yes; but I wish to save some time to answer the great debater from Oklahoma.

Mr. HUMPHREY. The Senator is making such a formidable argument for his amendment that he may find that he has taken some of the fight out of the opposition. When was this proposal last before us?

Mr. CARROLL. In 1958. I wish to read the statement made by the Senator from Minnesota at that time. He said:

Mr. HUMPHREY. Yet the increase, if it goes into effect, might very well threaten the existence of certain important scientific, educational, philanthropic, and church publications. We are not dealing with a subsidy of $250 million or $600 million. We are dealing with a small amount of money. Yet we are dealing with the very basic principle of American life, the right to be heard by the Government. Secondly, there is involved the principle of utilization of the services and facilities of the Government to promote the industry and the enlightment, and the scientific progress and the spiritual improvement of the American people.

The Senator made a great speech that day in 1958. It is as true today as it was then. The Senator could not improve upon this statement of his.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I am delighted that the Senator from Colorado has read that statement. It was a good speech. I feel exactly the same way today. With the oratorical abilities of the Senator from Colorado, I am more and more convinced than ever. I support the Senator.

Mr. CARROLL. I thank the Senator.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, I wish to associate myself with the statement made by the Senator from Minnesota 4 years ago.

Mr. CARROLL. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, how much time have I remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has a total of 1½ minutes remaining.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CARROLL. I have only 1½ minutes left.

Mr. CURTIS. Only for a unanimous-consent request.

Mr. CARROLL. As long as it does not come out of my time, I will be happy to yield.

Mr. MONRONEY. I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have two telegrams printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the telegrams were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

OMAHA, NEBR.,
September 27, 1962.

Senator CARL CURTIS,
Senate Office Building,
Washington, D.C.:

We are strongly opposed to raise in minimum per piece postal rate for nonprofit second-class publications.

Respectfully,
Msgr. EDMOND C. WALSH,
The True Voice, Omaha.

BELLEVUE, NEBR.,
September 26, 1962.

Senator CARL T. CURTIS,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, D.C.:

The Far East magazine Organ of the Columban Fathers strongly opposes in union with all Catholic publications the proposed minimum per piece rate increase in new postal rates bill, our survival is at stake, please help, thanks.

Rev. DONAL O'MAHONEY,
Editor, St. Columbans, Nebraska.

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Colorado, knowing how little good it will do, because most Members of the Senate have already spoken in favor of it. I do wish to take this time, however, at least to call the attention of the Senate to the situation that they face in the magnitude of the so-called nonprofit publications. There are now 9,903 so-called nonprofit organizations, and I believe that the bill would add two or three more.

According to the testimony of Postmaster General Day, at page 38 of the hearings, the total loss for second-class mail is $342 million, and the total loss for the so-called reduced rate publications of nonprofit organizations is $93 million. That does not mean that we are subsidizing them to the extent of $93 million. It means that they, along with other low rate second-class publications, are failing to pay their own way to the extent of $93 million; and the same is true of other segments of second-class mail. These include some wonderful publications. Many of them are worthy and deserving. Many of them have church connections. Many of them have fraternal connections. Others have connections with labor organizations.

It seems to me, however, that inasmuch as we are asking that the first-class postage be raised from 4 cents to 5 cents, and thereby authorizing a burden of $437 million to be placed on the individual users of letter mail, and on the air mail users of $21.2 million; and inasmuch as we have required the very small country and county weeklies and dailies—and they agreed to it—to give up their privilege of free mailing, we owe a duty to those users of the mail to make some increase through the whole second- and third-class area, in order that each class may carry a part of the load being passed along so heavily to the first-class users.

Therefore, although the amendment represents a 100-percent increase, it means an actual cash increase of only one-eighth of a cent a year, or one-fourth of 1 cent spread over 2 years. In other words, there would be an increase of one-sixteenth of a cent per copy per year for 2 years before the rate would reach one-fourth of 1 cent.

Mr. PASTORE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MONRONEY. I yield.

Mr. PASTORE. No matter how it is calculated, the amount that would be paid by these users would be twice as much as now.

Mr. MONRONEY. That is true. Most of this mail comes from church and charitable and similar organizations. There are other big users of it also, particularly labor publications. One labor newspaper publishes many thousand copies, and because of its size goes out at the ⅛-cent rate. We feel that they could pay the extra one-eighth cent, and in 2 years pay a total of a quarter of a cent. The publications we are talking about can be mailed from New York to Alaska, or from New York to Hawaii or from California to Florida, and they are now carried at the ⅛-cent rate.

I am convinced that the attitude of Senators is not to make this increase. They fear that it might injure religious publications and other small magazines. I have no further desire to press it to a yea and nay vote. If the chairman wishes to accept the amendment of the Senator from Colorado, I will not insist on a yea-and-nay vote.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I agree with what the Senator from Oklahoma has said. We should realize that we are dealing with eleemosynary corporations and nonprofit corporations. If the request for the yea-and-nay vote is rescinded, I am willing to accept the amendment, with the understanding that a study will be made next year of eleemosynary corporations. They have grown, until today there are 9,900 such eleemosynary corporations in the United States using the mails. Let me show Senators how far reaching this cost to the Government is. It is possible to send 40 pieces of such mail, with the expenditure of the same time in sorting and making delivery of it that is expended on the handling of one first-class letter. For 5 cents, 40 of these pieces of mail are carried. I want to look into these eleemosynary corporations, to see which ones are qualified to use this low rate, yet placing proper rates upon some of the others. But we have not been able to do that, so at this time I think it would be equitable to accept the Senator's amendment.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, I commend the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY], who is an expert in this field. He has worked on this subject for many years.

What the distinguished chairman has stated is true. The subject needs reexamination and further study. I hope that along wtih the study, the committee will consider the vital groups of which I have spoken.

Mr. President, since the Senator has accepted my amendment, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my request for the yeas and nays. I am ready to vote. As I understand, the Senator from South Carolina will accept the amendment.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I will accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The request for the yeas and nays is withdrawn.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I commend the Senator from South Carolina upon his decision, and I commend the Senator from Colorado [Mr. CARROLL] and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY] for the effort which they have made to achieve a better understanding of the situation and to make what I consider to be a very sensible decision. I hope the study will be undertaken, as it must be.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I associate myself with the position of the Senator from Colorado, the Senator from Rhode Island, the Senator from Minnesota, and the Senator from Oklahoma, who have agreed upon this excellent method of handling the problem. I favor the amendment.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, I desire to have the RECORD show that the Senator from Michigan [Mr. HART] has been a source of great comfort and support to me as we have compiled the data for discussion. I did not want the vote to be taken without making this statement, since the Senator from Michigan is not in the Chamber at the moment, and Senators should not be foreclosed from speaking. I desired to give proper recognition to the Senator from Michigan.

I am ready for the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has been yielded back. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. CARROLL].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, before the final vote is taken on the bill, I should like to make some comment upon the action of the Senate in regard to the increases in postage rates. I deprecate tying postal rates to postal pay and have disapproved of this practice. But as it has been done by the committee with the clear indication that without it there would be no postal pay raise this year, realism requires its support. For the right of the postal workers to a fair raise is to me very clear and the issue is to actually achieve one by the means which are required to achieve it.

Like many Members of Congress, I have received a great volume of mail in protest against the rate increases provided for in the House version of the bill, and which has now been beneficially adjusted in the Senate version. The problem of raising sufficient revenues to cover a major part of the cost of our postal system is a longstanding one and one which the committee in reporting this bill is frank to admit is not entirely solved by the bill. But the bill does seek to reduce materially the deficit in the operation of the postal system, and recognizes it is most important that in doing so the Congress not stifle certain public interest uses of the mails for which rightfully we as a people and as taxpayers should pay.

I believe that the committee has attempted to satisfy this need in dealing with second- and third-class mail provisions, which in the House bill would have very materially reduced the economic viability of many worthwhile publications. The committee eliminated the heavy surcharge which the House had placed on second-class mail, which includes magazines and newspapers, and also reduced somewhat the very large House increase in third-class rates, which relate to circulars, pamphlets, and certain other unsealed mailings.

While no one wishes to see the cost of his doing business increased, it is my understanding that users of second- and third-class mail will be able to continue their operations under the Senate version of the bill and I strongly urge that the Senate conferees insist upon that version.

From what I have heard in the Chamber this morning, that is the general purport of the feeling among Senators.

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. President, I offer an amendment and ask that it be read. I ask unanimous consent that the distinguished Senator from Colorado be included as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 12, in the last line of the table appearing between lines 9 and 10, it is proposed to strike out "¼" and insert in lieu thereof "⅓".

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. President, the amendment is required because of the attempt to equalize two rates, one rate being for the very small country weekly, which was raised to one-fourth of a cent from one-eighth of a cent.

Representatives of the National Editorial Association and other editorial groups representing the press, and particularly the smaller press, appeared before the committee and voluntarily agreed to give up the historic free-in-county rate.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD a letter from the National Editorial Association to the editor of the Washington Post, dated September 27, 1962.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION,
Washington, D.C., September 27, 1962.

EDITOR, THE WASHINGTON POST.

DEAR SIR: In your editorial (September 26) regarding the postal rate bill, which incorporates the amended Federal pay rates, reference is made to the fact that the proposed revision in postal rates "alters a historic policy of the Federal postal service in a way that may unhappily turn out to be decisive for some publications. It will eliminate the traditional free-in-county service so important to many country newspapers."

The National Editorial Association, as the organization representing these country and community newspapers before the Congress, would like to point out that the majority of the State newspaper trade associations, which comprise the structure of the National Editorial Association, have voted to recommend the abandonment of free-in-county. One of the foremost proponents of this position is the Virginia Press Association, one of our 39 affiliated newspaper trade groups.

A condition for voluntarily recommending to the Senate and the House Post Office Committees that free-in-county be abandoned after three-quarters of a century was that this segment of the press in America be accorded fair treatment in this postal rate bill. As the measure now stands before the Senate, we do consider it fair and equitable.

At one time free-in-county was of immense value to the hometown press. It encouraged the establishment of local newspapers produced in local printshops that could also supply the business needs of the community. If it was a Federal subsidy, it was one for the benefit of the subscriber rather than the newspaper publisher.

Newspaper publishers everywhere have resented the implication that this was a subsidy for newspapers. They will be relieved when that charge can no longer be made, since an overwhelming majority are not in favor of Federal subsidies of any nature.

As the economy of this country has changed, so has that of the country newspaper. In recent years the community newspapers, country and suburban, have enjoyed a resurgence in economic vitality and in increased services to their readers.

We must also be frank to admit that the expansion of population in many communities has permitted the Post Office to provide carrier delivery of the mails. Where such carrier service is provided, then free-in-county is not available to the newspaper and its readers.

We must compliment the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee membership for listening attentively to the presentations made by our representatives in this regard.

Sincerely,

THEODORE A. SERRILL,
Executive Vice President.

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. President, I call attention especially to the third paragraph, which reads:

A condition for voluntarily recommending to the Senate and the House Post Office Committees that free-in-county be abandoned after three-quarters of a century was that this segment of the press in America be accorded fair treatment in this postal rate bill. As the measure now stands before the Senate, we do consider it fair and equitable.

That was when we had raised the rates for everyone else and had not imposed an added burden on the free-in-county publications. Therefore, I asked the chairman of the committee if, in light of the action which the Senate has just taken with respect to mail from nonprofit groups, which can be sent across the 50 States, the rate for the in-county publications could be frozen at the former rate of one-eighth cent per copy minimum.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I think we would be doing nothing but justice by accepting this amendment as we have accepted the other amendment; and also because in-county-publication deliveries have been discontinued.

Mr. MONRONEY. Incidentally, the information we have received shows that the post office will save $16 million on the basis of the cost ascertainment for free-in-county publications. But the newspapers wanted to give it up because they did not want to be subsidized.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. President, I am happy to associate myself as a cosponsor of the amendment. I think it is fair and equitable and, under the circumstances, ought to be approved.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I send to the desk an amendment to correct a possible misinterpretation that some salaries might be raised beyond $20,000. I think the amendment is proper. It does not change the provisions of the bill one iota; it is merely a clarifying amendment to make certain that the limit will be $20,000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 101, between lines 7 and 8, it is proposed to insert a new section, as follows:

CEILING PROVISION

SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, in preparing the bill, a number of errors in spelling, punctuation, and figures were noted. I submit an amendment to make these corrections. The amendment does not change any substantive provision of the bill; it merely inserts the proper amounts. I ask that the amendment be accepted as presented.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment will be printed without being read.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 16, line 17, before the period, insert a comma and the following: "effective January 1, 1963".

On page 57, in the first table preceding line 1, in the space containing the rate for the fifth step of level 4, strike out "6,205" and insert in lieu thereof "5,205".

On page 57, in the second table preceding line 1, in the space containing the rates for the fourth and fifth steps of level 18, strike out "17,500" and "17,400' and insert in lieu thereof "17,000" and "17,500", respectively.

On page 83, in the table appearing between lines 7 and 8, in the space containing the rate for the third step of class 2, strike out "$11,900" and insert in lieu thereof "$16,900".

On page 84, in the table appearing between lines 3 and 4, in the space containing the rate for the sixth step of class 2, strike out "12,795" and insert in lieu thereof "12,975"; and in the space containing the rate for the fifth step of class 8, strike out "5,790" and insert in lieu thereof "5,740".

On page 101, line 17, strike out "followng" and insert in lieu thereof "following".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, one or two Senators may have amendments to be called up. We have sent for some of the absent Senators, to give them an opportunity to reach the Chamber, so that they may call up amendments if they desire to do so.

So, Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURDICK in the chair). The clerk will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I call up the amendment which I have at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senator from Ohio will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 33, it is proposed to strike out lines 6 to 8, inclusive, and to insert in lieu thereof:

(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with salary rates for the same level of work paid on an average by private enterprise and by State, county, and municipal governments.

On page 33, in line 19, after the word "enterprise", it is proposed to insert "and to the extent possible with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work by State, county, and municipal governments."

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, will the Senator from Ohio yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I propose the following unanimous-consent agreement: that on the pending amendment of the Senator from Ohio, there be a time limit of 30 minutes, with 15 minutes thereof to be controlled by the Senator from Ohio, and 15 minutes to be controlled by the chairman of the committee [Mr. JOHNSTON].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, the following language appears on page 8 of the committee report:

Title I of part II states proposed Federal salary policy, provides for continuing application of the governing principles, and clarifies the role of the Executive.

The bill offers a basis for Federal pay reform by the adoption of two principles:

The comparability principle: Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise rates for the same levels of work.

That is the principle which is supposed to be the foundation for approaches to salary adjustments in the future.

Again I point out that the language of the bill provides that in the future salaries shall be adjusted on the basis of comparability with salaries paid in private enterprise.

My amendment contemplates declaring it as a principle that Federal salaries shall be related to the average salary paid by private enterprise, municipal, county, and State governments.

It is justified to ask, Why does the principle embody only the salaries paid by private enterprise, and not by municipal, counties, and State governments? In fixing salaries on the Federal level, should we not give consideration to what is paid by municipalities, counties, and State governments? My answer to that question is that it is inequitable and illogical to make the comparison only on the basis of salaries paid by private enterprise. A logical comparison would be the relationship with salaries paid by governments. Then we would have the approach by which governments, by their legislative branches, fix salaries. Governments are more amenable to public reaction than is private enterprise.

The bill as it is now written says, "Pay no attention to what States, counties, and municipalities are paying, but relate Federal salaries only to salaries paid by private enterprise."

Now I wish to read from page 7 of the report:

ESSENTIAL FLEXIBILITIES

To maintain Federal salaries at levels comparable with private enterprise levels and to assure that other features of statutory salary systems are corrected and improved as experience shows the need, the bill provides that the President shall require an annual report, from an agency he designates—

And I suppose it will be the Labor Department—on the relationship of Federal salaries to those in private enterprise and shall submit an annual report to Congress recommending the adjustments in salary schedules, structure, and policy he considers advisable.

It will be observed that the bill requires the President to designate an agency to make a study of the salaries paid in private enterprise; and, when that study is made, to recommend to Congress what is needed to be done to equitably relate Federal salaries with those of private enterprise. Nowhere is it mentioned that the salaries of Connecticut, Ohio, California, Wisconsin, or Iowa should be studied.

I have some knowledge on that subject, because I was Governor of Ohio for 10 years, and I know the Federal Government was constantly pirating the employees of the State.

The salaries of the States, under the language of the bill, will not be considered at all. I submit to the Senate that that is not a proper approach.

Let us take a look at what happens when the salaries in private enterprise are considered. I do not intend to be denunciatory in what I am saying; but, the way we are heading, private enterprise is pricing itself out of world markets. If we follow salaries being paid in private enterprise we shall build up a salary obligation on the part of the Federal Government that will further increase the burdens on the already bent backs of the taxpayers of our country.

In the report there are discussions pointing out that private industry is paying salaries of $32,000, $35,000, and $40,000 a year. I supose that is so, but the Federal Government is primarily responsible for it as a result of the work in which it has engaged in space and defense.

About 6 or 8 weeks ago, I called a meeting of economists, businessmen, and university leaders of Ohio to learn why Ohio was losing research and development assignments. I asked the question of practically every one of the 25 or 30 persons present, "Are you losing scientists and research men to the Federal Government and to competing scientific institutions?" The answer invariably was, "Yes."

In space work and in defense contracts, frequently assignments of research are let on a cost-plus basis. Competitors A, B, C, D, and E are all engaged in the same type of research work for the Federal Government. The Federal Government says to A, B, C, D, and E, "You do the research, hire the scientists you need, pay them whatever salaries you must, and we will reimburse you." The result is that A, B, C, D, and E begin to compete with each other, pirating from each other the scientists needed in their development work. The consequence is that the salary structures have been built up to $25,000, $30,000, and $35,000.

Mr. CURTIS. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. NEUBERGER in the chair). Does the Senator yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. CURTIS. I think the amendment of the distinguished Senator from Ohio has a great deal of merit. I saw an article a few moments ago concerning teachers in Nebraska. Teachers are taxpayers, too, and many of them render a great public service. The article referred to Grand Island, Nebr., the third largest city in Nebraska. The article reads:

> Under the new schedule, which was explained to the faculty at a general meeting Monday afternoon at senior high school, teachers with a bachelor's degree can earn to a maximum of $5,600 annually.
> Those with master degrees will get a minimum of $4,700 a year and a maximum of $6,200 a year.

When that is considered in the light of some of the salaries to be paid under the terms of the bill, it certainly causes one to pause in reference to the bill. I thank the Senator.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Of course that is true. We make the condition worse all the time. The more we pump up our salaries the worse becomes the relationship with those whom the Senator describes.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LAUSCHE. I yield to the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. I was interested in the Senator's discussion a minute ago about the competition of the Government for scientists. As I understood the Senator's statement, I believe it was absolutely correct.

I have not had a check made for 3 or 4 years, but we heard for many years in the committee that the Atomic Energy Commission needed to increase salaries—and it did—because the Government was having such a great competition in regard to getting scientists and scientific personnel to work for the Commission.

We made several checks. Finally, when witnesses took the stand, where they had to give their testimony, they testified that they had no trouble geting scientists to work for the Government at the salaries they were paying; that there was no shortage for their needs; and that they probably got a greater share; proportionately, than did business and some of the educational institutions. Government really was having no trouble at that time, although the claim was made, when the salary scale was presented, that the Commission was having a death struggle to induce these people to work for Government.

A short time ago one of the Washington newspapers conducted a survey, and discovered that 95 percent of all the schedule C jobs in Government, which are the policymaking jobs, were held by individuals who were receiving more pay in the Federal Government than they ever got in private life.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Yes.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. That survey was conducted by one of the newspapers.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Madam President, under the terms of the bill the President is to appoint an agency to gather statistics. That agency, under the language of the bill, is to gather statistics only from private enterprise. My proposal is that the agency also learn what is being paid by municipal, county, and State governments. I wish the statistics were available. I called the Department of Commerce, and that Department does not have them. I found out what the State of Ohio pays from the State of Ohio.

I see that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. JORDAN], the former Governor of that State, is in the Chamber. I hazard the statement that if the Senator would compare the salaries paid by the Federal Government with those paid to State employees in his State, he would find they probably are 40 percent more than the salaries paid in the State.

Perhaps there are some State or local government employees who are paid more, but the problem really is one of the States being unable to obtain employees in competition with the Federal Government.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Ohio has expired. The Senator from South Carolina has 15 minutes.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Madam President, may I ask for the yeas and nays at this time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina has the floor.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Will the Senator from South Carolina yield so that I may request the yeas and nays?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield for that purpose.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been requested.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I yield to the Senator from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS].

Mr. SMATHERS. Madam President, as we all know, three pieces of badly needed legislation have been under careful consideration by the Senate Committee on Post Office and Civil Service for some while. The bills were to provide a just and equitable pay raise for all postal and Federal workers, a long-overdue postage rate increase, and a modern and humane upward adjustment of annuities for retired Federal employees.

As the time for the adjournment of Congress approached, there were some Members of this body who grew apprehensive about the fate of these bills. The time was growing short. The technicalities involved in getting the proposed legislation out of committee were great.

However, those who were apprehensive underestimated the quality of leadership with which the distinguished chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee [Mr. JOHNSTON] is endowed, and reckoned not with the wisdom and bipartisan liberality of the committee members—particularly the able Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY], and the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK]—both among the majority and the minority. With infinite care and consideration they sifted the testimony on all three proposed pieces of legislation, ironed out the "bugs" and the inadvertent inequities, and produced an omnibus bill covering all three areas where improvement is needed. In my opinion, Madam President, this was committee work at its best, and the Senators who produced this legislation should be roundly congratulated by all the Members of this body.

We have an opportunity now to fulfill three pressing needs in approving a single bill. This is intelligent legislation. It is fair legislation. It is badly needed legislation. I certainly hope that this body will support the unanimous action of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee as quickly as possible.

I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I thank the Senator from Florida for his remarks. I know the committee as a whole appreciates what he has said about the committee and its members.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield back his remaining time?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from New York [Mr. KEATING].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. KEATING. Madam President, I commend the committee for bringing the bill before the Senate. Personally I should have preferred to see the proposed legislation brought before the Senate in two packages, one dealing with postal rates, and the other dealing with pay raises for postal and other Federal employees. However, to oppose the bill as it stands would be to seek to defeat the effort to give well-justified relief to underpaid postal and other civil service employees, whose compensation in general, even after the passage of the bill, will be substantially less than that paid for comparable work in private industry.

Particularly as regards the postal workers, these pay increases are warranted, not only by the cost of living but also by the continuing fine work and effort of employees. Without the benefit of their labor, the Nation's mail could not be distributed and a very large part of the Nation's business could not be be transacted. Without their labor individuals could not communicate with one another and overcome the barriers of distance which separate many of us from our loved ones. In short, their work is indispensable. We could not do without it, ever.

Yet the conditions under which many postal employees work are not always easy or pleasant ones. The work is tiring. The pay rates have never, in all fairness, been generous. Raises have been hard to get. Although the pay raise recommended in this bill is a moderate one, the increase will make it easier for postal workers, many of whom hold two jobs, to provide better for their families and to make ends meet and it will provide well-deserved recognition for their serious needs. The committee has acted wisely in rejecting the proposal to put off any pay raise until next year.

Mr. President, I am very happy to support particularly that title of this legislation which provides for a fully merited pay raise for the Nation's postal and other Government employees. I hope this bill will pass by an overwhelming vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Ohio [Mr. LAUSCHE]. On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from California [Mr. ENGLE], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], and the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING] would vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. MURPHY] is detained on official business.

On this vote, the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM] is paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON]. If present and voting, the Senator from South Dakota would vote "yea," and the Senator from Kentucky would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART] is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON]. If present and voting, the Senator from Indiana would vote "yea," and the Senator from Kansas would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON]. If present and voting, the Senator from Texas would vote "yea," and the Senator from Kansas would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 21, nays 59, as follows:

So Mr. LAUSCHE's amendment was rejected.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask that it be read.

The legislative clerk proceeded to state the amendment.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the further reading of the amendment be dispensed with, and that the amendment be printed in the RECORD at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 97, line 17, after "(d)" insert "(1)".

On page 98, line 2, strike out "$8,880" and insert in lieu thereof "$9,480".

On page 98, between lines 4 and 5, insert the following:

"(j)(1) The second proviso in the paragraph relating to the authority of Senators to rearrange the basic salaries of employees in their respective offices, which appears in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1947, as amended (2 U.S.C. 60f; Public Law 87–130); is amended to read as follows: 'Provided further, That no salary shall be fixed in a Senator's office under this section at a basic rate of more than $5,100 per annum, except that (1) the salary of one employee may be fixed at a basic rate of not more than $6,540 per annum, (2) the salary of one employee may be fixed at a basic rate of not more than $8,460 per annum, (3) the salary of one employee may be fixed at a basic rate of not more than $8,880 per annum, and (4) the salary of one employee may be fixed at a basic rate of not more than $9,000 per annum.'

"(2) The paragraph relating to rates of compensation of employees of committees of the Senate, contained in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (2 U.S.C. 72a–1a; Public Law 85–462), is amended by striking out so much of the second sentence thereof as follows the words 'First Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1947,' and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'the basic compensation of any employee of a standing or select committee of the Senate (including the majority and minority policy committees and the majority conference of the Senate and minority conference of the Senate), or a joint committee of the two Houses the expenses of which are paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, whose basic compensation may be fixed under such provisions at a rate of $8,000 per annum, may be fixed at a rate not in excess of $8,460 per annum, except that the basic compensation of one such employee may be fixed at a rate not in excess of $9,000 per annum and the basic compensation of two such employees may be fixed at a rate not in excess of $8,880 per annum.'"

Mr. MANSFIELD. Madam President, will the Senator yield briefly?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Montana.

Mr. MANSFIELD. I should like to have the attention of the Senate, to propound a unanimous-consent agreement. This has been cleared with interested Senators on both sides, especially with the author of the amendment. I ask unanimous consent that 20 minutes of debate be allotted to the amendment, 10 minutes to be under the control of the Senator from Maine, and 10 minutes under the control of the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, the amendment is identical with the amendment identified as "9–25–62—D," which was originally prepared and was to be offered by the distinguished senior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK].

I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, the amendment is very simple. It would place legislative employees on the same basis as employees of the executive department.

I now yield 2 minutes to the senior Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CLARK. Madam President, first I thank the Senator from Maine for calling up this amendment; secondly, I thank her for yielding me this time.

If Senators will refer to my individual views, at page 41 of the committee report, I can summarize very quickly what I have to say about the amendment.

The problem of attracting to the Federal service the best qualified careerists is already serious. It will only intensify in the future. Can we truly say we are prepared to face the challenge of this decade and those to come when, in fact, salaries for employees at the higher levels of the various schedules are a decade behind? I do not think so, and I do not believe we will until the reform is completed.

Employees who are treated worst are the employees of Senators and also the employees of committees, on which Senators serve.

This bill also falls short in its treatment of the employees of the legislative branch. It sets a ceiling for compensation of top legislative employees substantially below that paid top career officials in the executive branch. I do not concede that the responsibilities of the staff directors of Senate committees or of the senior assistants in Senators' offices are less than those of GS–17's and GS–18's in the executive branch, but the bill before us would place the upper limit on legislative staff pay at a point somewhat below the top pay allowed to a GS–17.

I therefore support the amendment of the Senator from Maine, and I hope that on a bipartisan basis we will vote to do justice to our own employees.

Mr. SCOTT. Madam President, I support the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Maine [Mrs. SMITH] and the views of my colleague, the senior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK].

The trouble with Senators is that they are always afraid—I do not use the word in a derogatory sense—to do justice whenever their own staffs or they themselves are concerned. There is a certain timidity which sometimes causes a Senator to say, "What will the press say about me or what will a commentator say about me if I say that my employee is as good as an employee in an executive department?" In my judgment, if my employees did not work harder than some drones I have seen downtown, I would not have them on my staff.

I say to the Senator from Maine that while I have no personal intention of presently taking advantage of this particular proviso, the opportunity to do justice exists, the reservation exists, and I think it would be unfair for anyone to be critical of the proponents of the amendment, even though I am not a cosponsor of it, because if we do not meet the whole problem of fair and proper compensation, we will end by having a group of pompous knotheads downtown receiving more than they are worth, while many hardworking people downtown and on Capitol Hill are receiving less. Therefore, I am happy to support the amendment.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I thank the distinguished Senators from Pennsylvania for their support of the amendment. I offered it only because the senior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK] advised me that he would not present it. However, I am grateful to him for having had it drafted. I urge its adoption.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I always dislike opposing the distinguished senior Senator from Maine. She is one of our finest Senators. However, the committee made a profound study of this particular subject and concluded that a 7 percent increase was the amount that should be recommended for all these salaries.

If it is the desire of the Senate to increase the amount to 14 percent for the higher brackets, the Senate should adopt the amendment now before the Senate. I believe that the amount provided in the bill is a proper increase. As I remember, the committee was unanimous in that same view. Of course, some members of the committee proposed a higher amount.

If the bill is passed as it is written, it will do justice and work equity for our employees. I hope the amendment of the Senator from Maine will be rejected.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I see no reason for placing our own people on whom we depend so much in a secondary citizen category.

I cannot subscribe to the view that our committee staff members and our individual staff members are inferior to the executive department employees and are less deserving in compensation for the importance, the quality, the efficiency and the loyalty of their service.

What is good for the executive department employees is surely good enough for our legislative department employees.

To hold any other view is to belittle the very people upon whom we depend so much in our own service to the people of our States.

Mr. KEATING. Madam President, will the distinguished Senator from Maine yield?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I yield.

Mr. KEATING. As I understand it, the amendment would not increase in any way the overall allowance. It would merely permit a Senator to make what he believed was a more equitable distribution within the controlled amount which each Senator is given.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. That is correct. The amendment would not increase the overall amount; it would only provide equity as between the executive and legislative departments.

Mr. KEATING. I thank the Senator from Maine.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Maine has expired.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has been yielded back. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maine. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], and the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

On this vote, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING] is paired with the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS]. If present and voting, the Senator from Alaska would vote "yea" and the Senator from Mississippi would vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. GOLDWATER] is detained on official business. If present and voting, the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] would each vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON] is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON]. If present and voting, the Senator from Kentucky would vote "yea" and the Senator from Kansas would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 38, nays 40, as follows:

So the amendment of Mrs. SMITH of Maine was rejected.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, I move that the vote by which the amendment was rejected be reconsidered.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Madam President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I send to the desk an amendment and ask to have it stated.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, will the Senator yield, so that I may place additional amendments before the Senate?

Mr. MILLER. I yield.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I send amendments to the desk and ask to have them stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendments offered by the Senator from Maine will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed——

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendments be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered, and without objection, the amendments may be printed in the RECORD.

The amendments offered by Mrs. SMITH of Maine are as follows:

On page 37, strike out the last two lines in each of the two compensation schedules following line 11 and insert in lieu thereof in each case the following:

"GS–17	18,000	18,250	18,500	18,750	18,880	",
GS–18	18,880					".

On page 57, strike out the last two lines in each of the two compensation schedules preceding line 1 and insert in lieu thereof in each case the following:

"19	16,750	17,250	17,750	18,250	18,750	18,880 ",
20	18,000	18,250	18,500	18,880		".

Mr. MANSFIELD. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I yield.

Mr. MANSFIELD. I ask unanimous consent that 20 minutes be allotted to the amendment, 10 minutes to a side, to be controlled by the Senator from Maine [Mrs. SMITH] and the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendments.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, now that the Senate has rejected the amendment to raise the ceiling with respect to legislative department employees to the same level as that of executive department employees, I offer this amendment to remove the discrepancy between the lower ceiling of legislative department employees and the higher ceiling of executive department employees by cutting down the ceiling for executive department employees to the same figures as the $18,880 for legislative department employees.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maine.

Does the Senator from South Carolina yield back his time? The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maine.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, has the Senator from Maine yielded back her time?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I shall be glad to, if the Senator will yield back his time.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I would like to have a moment or two to make a statement.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I do not yield back any time until the Senator from South Carolina has completed his statement.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, the amendment now before the Senate would change the entire plan of the Classification Act. It would throw it all out of order. If the Senate accepts the amendment it will have the worst bill it could possibly create, for the simple reason that it would apply to certain groups; it would conflict with others, and collide with those above, and there would be nothing but a conglomerated mess.

For that reason, I could not accept the amendment.

Furthermore, I point out that the committee made a study of this question, over a period of many weeks. We worked with almost every department downtown in an effort to arrive at a solution for this particular bill, and the classifications in it. There are dozens of classifications and in-grade steps, as Senators who are on the committee know.

For those reasons, I think the Senate should by all means defeat the amendment.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, if I may have the attention of Senators for a moment, I hope the amendment will not be agreed to because I am afraid the amendment is to some extent in retaliation for what the Senate has just done. I voted against the previous amendment for the obvious reason that legislative employees have never been included under the civil service system. That subject has been handled by the Appropriations Committee. Time and time again we have received requests to make certain adjustments. We have considered them and have made equitable adjustments over several years.

It falls to my lot, as chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Legislative Matters, to deal with this problem year in and year out. Possibly the Senator from Maine has a point, but we have not been given an opportunity to consider it. That is the reason why I voted against her previous amendment.

With respect to the pending amendment, I do not think we ought to disrupt the formula that has been arrived at by the Democratic and Republican members of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. I assure the Senator from Maine, for whom I have the highest respect, that come next year, we shall be perfectly willing to listen to whatever arguments she has respecting any problems she has within her own office, and do what is equitable.

If the ceiling were raised, with the appropriation made to each office, I fear that we would be in serious trouble. If the ceiling for the salaries of the three top employees were raised and all the money were used, the money would be taken away from those at the bottom of the list.

I fear that the Senate acted too hastily on the previous amendment, but, I assure the Senator from Maine that, come the next session of the Congress, we will consider any complaints or suggestions made on the part of any Members of the Senate with reference to the operation of their own offices; but I do not think we ought to take out of this bill those who deserve an increase.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I think perhaps the distinguished Senator from Rhode Island does not recall the fight I made on this very question in the Appropriations Committee. I am not talking solely about staffs of all Senators. I am also talking about members of committee staffs in the Senate.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I yield.

Mr. PASTORE. Does she not feel that our committee, of which she is a member, has jurisdiction over this subject?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I do. But if the committee, of which we are both members, does not act, we have a right to seek consideration on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. PASTORE. The Senator did not present this question. We have just gone through the consideration of the bill. This is the first time I have heard of the proposal. The Senator from Pennsylvania asked that the fourth person on his staff be given the same salary as the third person, and we went along with that suggestion. We have never resisted the charming Senator from Maine.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I thank the distinguished Senator for his kind words, but as a member of the legislative subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, I took this question up and worked very hard on the problem 4 or 5 years ago. Not only did I receive no response; I got no cooperation whatever. I think it is time for Senators to realize that our employees, both in our offices and in our committees, should be recognized in the same way that similar employees are recognized in other branches of the Government.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana and Mr. PASTORE addressed the Chair.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I do not appreciate the Senior Senator of Rhode Island becoming personal with respect to my own staff. In his first statement on this amendment he implied that I was offering this amendment just to help my staff. That is not true. I offer this amendment with respect to all Senators' staffs, and all Senate committee staffs and it would affect probably two hundred or more Senate employees—not just the members of my staff.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I am glad to yield.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. I say to the Senator from Maine that I did not hear the previous debate, but came into the Chamber in time to vote on the amendment. As one Senator, I appreciate what the Senator from Maine has tried to do with respect to administrative assistants. I know that a number of Senators have had administrative assistants who have come to our offices from jobs which paid them more than they are now receiving. They came at a considerable sacrifice.

I have had the experience of having someone on the committee staff come to me to ask for a recommendation for a position in the executive branch because he could no longer afford to make the sacrifice of serving the legislative branch. Invariably those are the most dedicated and deserving employees, who cannot be given raises because of the situation which prevails.

Perhaps some Senators do not have administrative assistants who are as good as others. That is the only excuse I can think of for the Senate declining to go along with the previous amendment.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I thank the Senator.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. However, I am not sure I can go along with the Senator on this amendment. I think we should take action to see that deserving employees are paid what they should be getting, rather than to reduce the pay of employees in another branch of the government.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I thank the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. SCOTT. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I am glad to yield to the Senator.

Mr. SCOTT. To do justice is to love equity. That is what we seek to do, in support of the amendment offered by the Senator from Maine.

If Senators voted against the other amendment on the ground that they were voting for economy, surely they should vote for this amendment on the ground that they will be voting for economy, because the amendment undertakes to reduce certain salary schedules.

If Senators wish to go to their home States and say, "I voted for economy" this is an oportunity to vote for economy.

I shall vote for the amendment because I believe there should be an even, fair, and equitable relationship between the legislative employees and the employees in the executive departments. I have heard nothing whatever from my own staff members in this regard; and I am sure that other Senators have not. This is merely an attempt to provide equal treatment for those who serve on Capitol Hill, who work very hard indeed, and who have earned recognition of equality in the handling of their salaries, particularly considering the fact that the salaries paid to many who have much less responsibility for supervision will now be above the salaries paid on Capitol Hill.

Therefore, if Senators wish to vote for justice, equality, or economy, there are three fine reasons to support the amendment offered by the Senator from Maine.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I yield to the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. I think this is a very timely and proper amendment.

I did not support the Senator's previously amendment, because it would have increased salaries which I think are already adequate, but I believe the pending amendment is very good. I think equality should be established.

I agree with some of the sentiments expressed by the Senator from Pennsylvania. I am also quite convinced that there is no dearth of applicants for jobs at the salaries which are being paid.

A while ago I called attention to the fact that I understand a survey conducted by one of the local newspapers a short time ago showed that 95 percent of the schedule C policymaking jobs in Government now are held by employees who are getting more than they ever received by way of salary in private life. Apparently, salary is not the inducement. The attempt by the departments downtown is to increase the pay of those who are already in office.

I shall support the Senator's amendment at this time.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, I thank the Senator from Iowa.

Madam President, I see no reason for placing our own people on whom we depend so much in a secondary citizen category.

I cannot subscribe to the view that our committee staff members and our individual staff members are inferior to the executive department employees and are less deserving in compensation for the importance, the quality, the efficiency and the loyalty of their service.

What is good enough for the legislative department employee is surely good enough for the executive department employees.

To hold any other view is to belittle the very people upon whom we depend so much in our own service to the people of our States.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Texas, Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas may proceed for 2 minutes.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Madam President, it seems to me that most of the discussion of the pending amendment has been about the legislative pay raise. I wish to point out that the pending amendment would not apply to the legislative employees, but would apply to the pay of those who serve in the executive branch. It would cut back some of the salaries in the higher brackets.

The amendment would cut back the salaries so far that a number of the salaries in the higher brackets would be cut back to a point lower than the salaries of those in lower brackets in the Government service.

We heard much testimony in this regard. The committee considered the problem for a long time.

The report was a unanimous report by the Democratic and Republican members of the committee. We did not seek to raise the level of salaries of those in the executive department as the House committee recommended. We did not seek to raise them as the executive department recommended. We held them down to minimal raises, with the thought that a comprehensive bill could be offered next year with respect to the desires of the executive branch to obtain people who have exceptional talent.

If this is cut back in the manner proposed, it will hurt our scientific research program. The very purpose of the raises for employees in the executive branch is to make it possible to obtain technical and skilled personnel.

I point out for the information of Senators the tables apearing at pages 84 and 85 of the report. I respectfully invite attention of the Senate to the proposed raises.

The amendment would cut back the salaries for surgeons in the Veterans' Administration, the salaries for Foreign Service officers, the salaries for scientific personnel, though we are losing them now because of higher salaries paid in private industry. We cannot hold these employees at the present salary rates.

I respectfully urge, after having listened to this discussion and to the testimony for many days in the committee—for this question was discussed many days in executive session, and did not have merely 1, 2, or 3 days' consideration, but had weeks of consideration in executive session—that the amendment not be agreed to.

Again I point out that the bill was unanimously agreed to by Senators on both sides of the aisle. We did not provide the high raises requested. That matter was reserved for later consideration, in a proposal to be presented next year.

I respectfully urge the Senate not to cut back the modest raises provided for those in the executive branch.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, will the Senator yield me 2 minutes?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Rhode Island.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island may proceed for 2 minutes.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, I merely wish to leave one further thought with the Members of the Senate. The power to regulate salaries of legislative employees has always been reserved to the Congress. We have never included that power under the Civil Service provisions.

What was bad about the previous amendment is that we would have been delegating authority. We would have been writing that authority under the Civil Service law.

We do not preclude consideration of what was intended by the previous amendment. I am only asking that we consider these things at the proper time. We can consider the problem next year, in the next session of Congress. The request can be renewed at that time.

The distinguished Senator from Maine said that 4 or 5 years ago she tried to do this, and has tried to do it for 4 or 5 years. Unfortunately I was not the chairman of the subcommittee.

I ask the distinguished lady from Maine to give me an opportunity to consider the problem. I have been chairman of the subcommittee only a year. I hope she will give me an opportunity.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. PASTORE. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. LONG of Louisiana. Could the Senator possibly consider this problem in the remaining days of this session of Congress?

Mr. PASTORE. That would be quite impossible. I do not think we could work it out with the House. It is not that urgent. After all, any adjustment can be made in good time. There is no emergency involved.

It is true that if we raise the wage scales under the civil service law we may be compelled, in all equity, to do the same for the legislative employees. We should go into the qeustions of whether the money appropriated would be sufficient to do so, and other related matters. We should like to hear from all Senators. But this ought to be done in an unhurried and systematic way.

What I say this afternoon is "Don't delegate away the authority we have. We have reserved this to ourselves. Don't give it to the Civil Service Commission under the law."

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, will the Senator from Rhode Island yield for a question?

Mr. PASTORE. I yield.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Is the Senator from Rhode Island willing to give the Senate some idea of the date we might consider this in the legislative subcommittee next year?

Mr. PASTORE. Within the first week after we come back in January.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. I thank the Senator.

Mr. FONG. Madam President, will the Senator yield me 2 minutes?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Hawaii.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii may proceed for 2 minutes.

Mr. FONG. Madam President, I am a member of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. We spent long hours considering the bill.

I sympathize with what the senior Senator from Maine is trying to do. In fact, I tried to do the same thing in the committee, but I was not successful.

I voted with the Senator on the first amendment. I thought our administrative assistants should have the same pay as the GS–17's.

The amendment of the Senator from Maine would lower the wages of those classified as GS–17, which would wreak havoc upon the schedule which has been presented to the Senate. The schedule presented to the Senate has been devised by experts. The differences between one grade and one step and other grades and steps must be calculated very meticulously. If the Senate should agree to the amendment of the Senator from Maine, the action would be disastrous to the schedule. So I ask Senators not to vote for the amendment.

I sympathize with what the Senator from Maine is trying to do. I believe that the administrative assistants should have the same pay as those in grade GS–17. When such a measure comes before the Senate again, I shall vote for it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield back the remainder of his time?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Maine has expired.

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Madam President, in view of the assurances of the chairman of the Subcommittee on Legislative Appropriations, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the yeas and nays be rescinded and that the amendment be voted upon by voice vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Maine? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maine [Mrs. SMITH].

The amendment was rejected.

VISIT TO THE SENATE BY HON. NICK McKENNA, MINORITY LEADER OF THE AUSTRALIAN SENATE

Mr. DIRKSEN. Madam President, today we are honored by the presence in the Chamber of a distinguished visitor. He is the minority leader of the Australian Senate. His name is Nick McKenna. The minority party there is known as the Australian Labor Party. It is my pleasure to present at this time Hon. Nick McKenna, minority leader of the Australian Senate. [Applause, Senators rising.]

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is pleased to have the distinguished visitor with us, and hope that his visit will be rewarding.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in recess, subject to the call of the Chair, so that Senators may meet our distinguished visitor.

There being no objection, at 3 o'clock and 33 minutes p.m., the Senate took a recess, subject to the call of the Chair.

At 3 o'clock and 36 minutes p.m., the Senate reassembled on being called to order by the Presiding Officer [Mrs. NEUBERGER in the chair].

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes.

Mr. KERR. Madam President, yesterday the distinguished majority leader, the Senator from Montana [Mr. MANSFIELD], placed in the RECORD a statement by the Senator from Oklahoma on the pending bill, H.R. 7927, with reference to certain positions in the National Aeronautical and Space Administration.

I invite the attention of the chairman of the committee, the distinguished Senator from South Carolina, to the following statement, which appears in the middle of page 19697 of the RECORD, and ask him if he has read the statement and if it sets forth accurately the intent of the bill as the Senator from South Carolina understands it:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR KERR ON H.R. 7927

I note that this measure, H.R. 7927, made no changes in the number of excepted positions for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The space program and the Nation faces its greatest scientific and technological effort, and NASA is this coming year doubling its effort in this regard.

I am happy to see that the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service raised from $19,000 to $20,000 the current ceiling for NASA's 395 excepted positions. However, the 30 positions currently authorized to be paid up to $21,000 were unaffected. I assume that these latter positions fall in category of positions which the committee points out in its report will be considered "in conjunction with a reform of top level executive salaries which were not included in the proposals submitted by the President and a consideration of the executive pay problem in its full dimensions at one time rather than by treating one part now and the rest later."

It was the intent of the administration proposal that in addition to its excepted positions the needs of NASA above GS–15 would be met under the authority of the Civil Service Commission to allocate positions to GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. Since this is a different measure, I nevertheless understand that this is still true and that these NASA needs will be met by the Civil Service Commission from the authority it obtains in this bill in section 606(a), which provides for the allocation, without limitation, of professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Replying to the Senator from Oklahoma, I agree that what is set forth is correct.

Mr. KERR. I thank the Senator.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment of the Senator from Iowa will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 32, line 2, it is proposed to strike the words "for delivery" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "which is promptly delivered".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, my amendment is designed to make a little more meaningful the provision in the bill relating to the mailing of Communist literature. The bill as it is presently drafted provides for an exception to the restrictions on Communist literature in the case of the material addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal international agreement under which the U.S. Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in any country. That provision is not meaningful because we all know that we can send mail to one of these nations and it can be "for delivery," but there is no guarantee and no assurance that it will be delivered. Furthermore, we know that there are instances in which it has not been.

My amendment provides that in lieu of the words "for delivery" the words "which is promptly delivered" would be substituted therefor.

I recognize very well that such a provision would not be easy to administer. I recognize that it would be virtually impossible in some instances to maintain a current check. Nevertheless, the very fact that there is such language in the bill would put countries on notice that we expect prompt delivery, just as we furnish prompt delivery to them; that we will be checking up on them, and that if they do not deliver mail promptly we will be in a position to call the deal off. This is a good amendment. It would merely clarify what is already in the bill. I believe it is in harmony with the intention of the committee.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, the amendment the Senator from Iowa has offered should not be accepted. Therefore, I am opposed to it. The language in the bill is agreed to by the majority of the committee whether every member thereof agreed to the particular amendment or not.

Mr. CLARK. I sustain my chairman in his position. I would not like to see adopted the language proposed by the Senator from Iowa. I hope his amendment will be defeated.

Mr. JOHNSTON. It would be impossible to define "promptly delivered." Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. MILLER. I ask for the yeas and nays. I understood that the Senator from South Carolina might have some substitute language to propose.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. KEFAUVER], the Senator from Washington, [Mr. MAGNUSON], the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], and the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS], are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD], the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. KEFAUVER], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG], would each vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON] and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent.

On this vote, the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM] is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON]. If present and voting, the Senator from South Dakota would vote "yea," and the Senator from Kansas would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON]. If present and voting, the Senator from Texas would vote "yea" and the Senator from Kansas would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 15, nays 62, as follows:

[No. 286 Leg.]

So Mr. MILLER'S amendment was rejected.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President, for myself and on behalf of the Senator from New York [Mr. KEATING], the Senator from Ohio [Mr. LAUSCHE], the Senator from Arizona [Mr. GOLDWATER], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BUSH], the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. HRUSKA], the Senator from Maryland [Mr. BEALL], the Senator from Delaware [Mr. WILLIAMS] and the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. THURMOND] I offer an amendment which I ask to have stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 32, after line 9, it is proposed to add a new section to be identified as "Sec. 307":

NOTICE WITH RESPECT TO OBSCENE MATTER DISTRIBUTED BY MAIL AND DETENTION THEREOF

"SEC. 307. In order to alert the recipients of mail and the general public to the fact that large quantities of obscene, lewd, lascivious, and indecent matter are being introduced into this country from abroad and disseminated in the United States by means of the United States mails, the Postmaster General shall publicize such fact (1) by appropriate notices posted in post offices, and (2) by notifying recipients of mail, whenever he deems it appropriate in order to carry out the purposes of this section, that the United States mails may contain such propaganda or such obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter. Any person may file a written request with his local post office to detain obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter addreessed to him, and the Postmaster General shall detain and dispose of such propaganda and such matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President——

Mr. MANSFIELD. Madam President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. MANSFIELD. After consultation with Senators who expect to offer amendments, with the minority leadership, and with the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, I should like to propose a unanimous-consent request to the effect that as to the amendment offered by the Senator from South Dakota, which is now pending, and the amendment to be offered by the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS], the time for debate be limited to 40 minutes on each amendment, 20 minutes to a side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. MANSFIELD. I further ask unanimous consent that with respect to each of the two amendments to be offered by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER], the time be limited to 20 minutes, 10 minutes to a side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President, although 40 minutes have been allotted for the consideration of this amendment,

I am very much inclined to believe—knowing the chairman of the committee as I do—that he will accept the amendment, and that it will not be necessary to have a yea-and-nay vote. Of course, if the chairman of the committee does not accept the amendment, we shall request that a yea-and-nay vote be taken.

In view of the fact that the Senate has taken similar action, in order to keep Communist propaganda from being distributed to the homes of the people of America, against their will, the amendment merely provides that similar action be taken against the distribution of lewd, pornographic, or similar material which may be received from abroad. The amendment does not apply to such material which may originate in this country; but at least the amendment tends to close the door insofar as the importation of lewd pictures and lascivious material is concerned.

Mr. CLARK. Madam President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield for a question?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. CLARK. Is this amendment about the same sort of proposal as the one which Representative GRANAHAN brought before the House, last year?

Mr. MUNDT. I believe that it resembles it. It also resembles the amendment the Senator from Pennsylvania submitted earlier today.

Mr. CLARK. It does, indeed; but that was what is called the Walter amendment. I am merely seeking clarification.

Mr. MUNDT. We call this the Mundt-Keating - Bush - Goldwater - Lausche amendment.

Mr. CLARK. That suits me fine.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President, I point out that the Senate has twice gone on record against this filthy business, which has developed into a million dollar business of distributing filthy material in our country; but the House has failed to act. Twice the Senate has approved legislation introduced by the senior Senator from South Dakota to take action against this smut racket. Unfortunately the House has failed to act.

Now we have set a pattern in regard to the treatment to be given to Communist propaganda material; therefore, it seems to me that we should take a similar step to protect the youth of America against this filthy and obscene material which originates from abroad. Often it is indirectly financed and supported by Communists seeking to demoralize American youth. The amendment provides that the head of the family shall be given adequate notice, by means of the establishment of notices in the lobbies of post offices; and the amendment also provides that the intended recipients of such mail shall have an opportunity to have their names taken off the delivery list.

I am inclined to believe that the chairman of the committee will accept the amendment. Therefore, for the time being I yield the floor.

Mr. PASTORE. Madam President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield for a question?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. PASTORE. Would the name of an intended recipient who was an innocent party be published?

Mr. MUNDT. No. This information would be for the use of the Postmaster General, to notify him of the sources of such material.

Mr. PASTORE. But the name of an innocent recipient who had nothing to do with it would not be included?

Mr. MUNDT. Definitely not.

Mr. KEATING. Madam President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield to me?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. KEATING. The amendment covering Communist propaganda material has now been rejected, although the Judiciary Committee unanimously voted to report such a provision to the Senate. Therefore, provisions in regard to Communist propaganda have been omitted from this amendment, because the Senate has already dealt with that matter.

The pending amendment is in precise terms the same as the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK], except that the pending amendment includes only the part relating to obscene, lewd, and lascivious material.

I regretted, in a way, that I felt compelled to vote against the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania, because I wished to strike a blow against such dirty, filthy material coming from abroad. But because I felt that the amendment would weaken the bill as reported by the committee, I voted against it.

However, the pending amendment would reinstate in the law what has been unanimously approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, insofar as lewd and lascivious material or matter is concerned; by notices posted in the post offices, the public would be alerted to the fact that such material was coming into this country. Innocent persons would be able to prevent future delivery to them of obnoxious or obscene mail originating overseas.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President, I thank the Senator from New York for his contribution.

Let me say that the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. THURMOND] has asked that his name be added as a cosponsor of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HRUSKA. Madam President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield to me?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. HRUSKA. As a member of the Judiciary Committee, I recall that this measure was considered in that committee, and was reported unanimously.

I subscribe to the thesis and content of the amendment, and I should like to support it; and, if I may have the permission of the Senator from South Dakota, I should like to have my name added in the records of the Senate as one of the cosponsors of the amendment.

Mr. MUNDT. I shall indeed be happy to have that done. I know the Senator from Nebraska was an ardent supporter of the two previous measures which I introduced on this subject, both of which were passed rather overwhelmingly by the Senate.

Madam President, I have also been asked to add as cosponsors of the amendment, the names of the Senator from Maryland [Mr. BEALL] and the Senator from Delaware [Mr. WILLIAMS]; and I am definitely in accord with having such additional sponsorship recorded, Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, that will be done.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President, unless the chairman of the committee is willing to accept the amendment, I ask that on the question of agreeing to the amendment the yeas and nays be ordered.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from South Dakota yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. MUNDT. I am happy to yield to the distinguished Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, the Judiciary Committee, of which I am a member, voted unanimously for the provision the Senator from South Dakota has submitted by means of his amendment.

Mr. MUNDT. That is correct.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Therefore, I am inclined to accept the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota. Personally, I think the Post Office Department is already doing what is called for by the amendment.

For that reason, Madam President, at this time I accept the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. MUNDT. It may be that the Post Office Department has such authority, but the question is whether it is using it at the present time.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield back the remainder of the time available to him?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I do.

Mr. MUNDT. Madam President, I do likewise.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment submitted by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MUNDT], on behalf of himself and other Senators.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 104, in line 5, after the word "rise", it is proposed to insert "or fall".

On the same page, line 8, after the word "increased", it is proposed to insert "or decreased, as the case may be,"

On page 104, in line 12, after the word "rise", it is proposed to insert "or fall".

On the same page, in line 15, after the word "increased", it is proposed to insert "or decreased, as the case may be."

On page 104, between lines 17 and 18, it is proposed to insert a new subsection (3), as follows:

(3) Contributions to the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by such percentum as will preserve the actuarial or fiscal soundness of the fund.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, my amendment is relatively simple. I do not plan to ask for a yea-and-nay vote on the question of agreeing to the amendment.

The purpose of the amendment is quite evident. On page 104 of the bill, provision is made for an increase in annuities, based on any increase in the cost of living. It seems to me that while we are dealing with that subject, we might as well provide, also, for a decrease in the annuities if there is a decrease in the cost of living. That is the reason for proposing insertion of the words "or fall" after the word "rise."

Inasmuch as the bill provides that if there is a rise of 3 percent, there shall be an increase in the annuity, I believe, also, that if there is a decrease by a similar percentage, there should be a decrease in the annuity.

This amendment ties in with the escalation clause which today is prevalent in so many industries.

Finally, my amendment is designed to make sure that the fiscal integrity of the civil service retirement fund will be preserved. It provides that contributions by participants in the system will be increased if there is an increase in the annuities paid as a result of the increase in the cost of living. Similarly, if there is a decrease in the annuities as a result of a decrease in the cost of living, contributions will be decreased, providing what would be necessary for the fund to be fiscally sound.

That is all there is to the amendment. I am happy to yield the floor.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK].

Mr. CLARK. Madam President, as chairman of the Subcommittee on Retirement of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, which reported the bill to the full committee, let me say that in my opinion this amendment is unwise, unsound, and unnecessary. I hope it will be defeated. It attempts to put a standard in the act with respect to retirement which has never been there before.

The real question is whether the fund is operationally sound, not whether it is actuarially sound. In a footnote to a table reflecting whether the fund is actuarially sound, it is stated:

There is no question but that the fund is operationally sound under the present system.

The amendment has not been requested or suggested by the Civil Service Commission, any representative of the fund, or anyone else. It will throw administrative and other roadblocks in the way of sound administration. I hope the amendment will be defeated.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, I call the attention of the Senate that several years ago, when retirement benefits were increased, and the amounts paid into the fund were increased, it was said that the fund would not be actuarially sound. I am glad to report to the Senate that since that time the surplus has increased from approximately $2 billion to $12 billion. That is the amount in the fund at the present time.

I hope the Senate will defeat the amendment.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. MILLER. If what the Senator has said with regard to several billion dollars being in the fund is true, what possible objection could the Senator have to the wording of my amendment, which merely provides that the actuarial or fiscal soundness of the fund shall not be impaired?

Mr. JOHNSTON. How can the amount paid out be increased at any time unless it is endangered?

Mr. MILLER. That is exactly the point of the amendment. The point of the amendment is to provide that there will be an increase in the contributions necessary to prevent the fund from being impaired.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Since the amounts of contributions into the fund were increased several years ago, the surplus has been increasing by leaps and bounds, almost annually. The reason for the difference in the figures is that in the actuarial accounting I do not think there is taken into account the fact that there is a turnover of 20 percent of the Federal employees each year. When those employees leave the civil service, they draw out the money they have contributed into the fund, and the amount the Government put into the fund to match the employees' contributions remains in the fund. This results in a building up of the fund year by year to a greater extent than the actuarial figures show.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I do.

Mr. MILLER. I invite the Senator's attention to a statement I made which appears in the RECORD of July 11, 1962, at page 12383, in which I said:

We are running into a similar problem—

That is, a similar problem with respect to the lack of proper funding of the social security trust fund—

now with respect to the retirement of our Federal civil service employees. In the July 2 issue of the Washington Evening Star, a timely article by Joseph Young, staff writer for the Star, calls attention to the present unfunded liability of the civil service retirement fund of $32 billion and to warnings by CSC officials that the fund will go bankrupt by 1980 if additional means of financing it are not secured.

My question to the Senator is, granted that this is merely an article——

Mr. JOHNSTON. It is an article. That might be true if every Federal employee remained in his employment and drew the maximum amount after the maximum number of years' service after he retired. This will never happen, however.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MILLER. I yield to the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. I think the RECORD should be clear, lest there be any misunderstanding, this retirement fund is not actuarially sound. I am quoting now not from a newspaper but from a letter I received from the Civil Service Commission under date of August 21, 1962. The letter is signed by John W. Macy, Jr., Chairman of the Civil Service Commission. This report was prepared at my request.

The amount of the unfunded liability as of June 30, 1962, is estimated at $33.7 billion. We estimate that enactment of S. 2937 would increase this amount as follows:

Section 1 cost $700 million, section 3 cost $900 million; or a total of $1.6 billion of unfunded liability.

S. 2937 was the bill which at that time was pending on the Senate calendar, and the substance of which is embraced in the bill before us.

So, based on the Civil Service Commission's own report, the provisions of the retirement measure before us would increase the unfunded liability of the civil service retirement fund by $1.6 billion, and there is no provision in the bill to provide for payment of the increased expenditures.

I ask the Department in the event the contributions today being made by the employees are unchanged, and those made by the U.S. Government are continued as provided under existing law, when the fund will be depleted. I quote from the same letter:

We have previously estimated that if the Government payments to the retirement fund are limited to the present agency matching contributions, the fund balance would be depleted by 1987, with increasing direct appropriations required from that year forward in order to meet benefit payments.

We may as well recognize the fact that as we increase retirement benefits without increasing contributions correspondingly from employees pay or without increasing the contributions by the Federal Government, within a matter of a few years the fund will be depleted. That estimate is based not on any newspaper reports but on a report compiled by the Chairman of the Civil Service Commission. I would favor a liberalization of the payments if those proposing these increases would also include the method for raising the money.

I ask unanimous consent that the letter be incorporated in full as a part of my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,
Washington, D.C., August 21, 1962.

Hon. JOHN J. WILLIAMS,
U.S. Senate.

DEAR SENATOR WILLIAMS: This is in response to your telephone conversation of August 15 with Mr. Ruddock, in which you requested certain estimates for each section of S. 2937, a bill to adjust annuities under the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Section 1 provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, to annuitants than on the roll. Annuities commencing between January 2, 1963 and December 31, 1966 would be increased on a scale graded down from 4 percent to 1 percent. Survivors of annuitants who received any of the above increases would receive the same percentage increases in their own annuities, regardless of commencing date. The ceilings on increases granted in 1952 and 1955 would be removed prospectively.

Section 2 establishes a plan for future automatic adjustment of annuities, based on changes in the cost of living. Section 3 liberalizes the reduction required to provide annuities to the surviving widows and widowers of employees retiring after its effective date and increases the survivor's rate from 50 percent to 55 percent of the basic annuity of the retiring employee. This same increase would apply to the annuities of widows and dependent widowers of employees dying in the service.

None of the following estimates include possible future cost-of-living adjustment of annuities as proposed in section 2 of the bill, since we do not feel qualified to predict future changes in the Consumer Price Index. The first such adjustment could occur no sooner than April 1, 1964. If it were at the minimum rate of 3 percent which is required to trigger an adjustment, the first year cost would be about $29 million.

The increase in benefit disbursements during the next 10 years, if sections 1 and 3 of S. 2937 were enacted, is estimated as follows:

[In millions]

Calendar year	Increase in benefits
	Total	Sec. 1	Sec. 3
1963	$57	$56	$1
1964	61	58	3
1965	64	59	5
1966	66	59	7
1967	66	57	9
1968	66	55	11
1969	65	52	13
1970	65	50	15
1971	65	48	17
1972	65	45	20
Total	640	539	101

The amount of the unfunded liability as of June 30, 1962, is estimated at $33.7 billion. We estimate that enactment of S. 2937 would increase this amount as follows:

	Billion
Section 1	$0.7
Total	1.6

We have previously estimated that if Government payments to the retirement fund are limited to the present agency matching contributions, the fund balance would be depleted by 1987, with increasing direct appropriations required from that year forward in order to meet benefit payments. Enactment of S. 2937 would hasten this situation by about 2 years.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN W. MACY, Jr.,
Chairman.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware. Madam President, I concur in the opinion of the Senator from Iowa that the time has come when if we are going to grant increased benefits from the retirement fund, we have the responsibility as directors of the fund to see that the fund remains solvent. It would be a bad situation if we should reach the point at which a retiree in the latter years of his life would find that the fund had been depleted and some future Congress had decided not to underwrite the cost.

If we want to vote for an increase in retirement benefits we should also provide for an increased contribution by the employees and the Government to pay for it. When we vote for an increase in pay for Federal employees then we should provide for corresponding increases in revenue. If we are not willing to increase contributions on the part of Federal employees and the Federal Government in order to keep the fund solvent we should not be so eager to vote increased benefits on the eve of every election.

By the same token I would support a salary increase to cover the increased cost of living, but this bill represents an increase of 8 percent to 14 percent. It will cost over $1 billion, and we can only meet this cost by borrowing the money and further increasing our debt.

To make matters worse the same group promising these salary increases and extra expenditures in every other phase of Government are also promising tax reductions.

As evidence of the political character of this pay increase I call attention to the fact that its effective date is such the Government employees will get their first pay check bearing these increases just a few days before the election.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I am grateful for the statement and the statistics furnished by the Senator from Delaware.

I suggest that the argument by the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK] is completely unresponsive to the point. He refers to actuarial soundness. This argument is not to be applied to actuarial soundness. The argument would have been responsive if he had talked about fiscal soundness, but he did not. That is the point. Are we willing to pass legislation which would tear down the fiscal soundness of the civil service retirement fund? My amendment is designed to protect the fund. It is that simple. I hope it will be adopted.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER].

The amendment was rejected.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa has the floor.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I yield to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Madam President, I merely wish to have the RECORD show that I voted "yea" on the amendment.

Mr. MILLER. I thank the Senator from Ohio.

Madam President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk, which is my final amendment, and ask that it be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 101, lines 12 and 13, it is proposed to strike the words "by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "by such amount as can be paid from the fund, but not in excess of 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity, without impairing the actuarial or fiscal soundness of the fund and without reliance on congressional appropriations to the fund".

On page 101, lines 18 and 19, it is proposed to strike the words "in accordance with the following table" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "by such amount as can be paid from the fund, but not in excess of the amounts shown in the following table, without impairing the actuarial or fiscal soundness of the fund and without reliance on congressional appropriations to the fund".

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, this amendment is similar to my previous amendment, except that it relates to the increase provided on page 101 of the bill. The objective is the same.

The amendment provides that the increase of 5 percent be replaced by the language "not in excess of 5 per centum" and only by such an amount of increase as will still leave the civil service retirement and disability fund in a sound actuarial or fiscal condition.

I wish to point this up with a little further quotation from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, page 12383 for July 11, 1962, by a further reference to the article by Mr. Joseph Young, to which I previously referred, at which time I stated:

Mr. Young reports that a considerable number of Members of Congress believe the situation—

This is the desperate situation facing the civil service retirement fund—poses a greater threat to the civil service retirement system than any plan to coordinate the retirement system with social security, as the administration is expected to advocate next year.

Madam President, I hope that in his comments on my amendment the distinguished chairman of the committee, who is in charge of consideration of the bill, will give the Senate some indication as to whether or not it is the intention of his committee to do what Mr. Young says the administration plans to do, which is to try to get the civil service retirement system integrated into the social security system next year.

I suggest that if my amendment is not adopted the situation with respect to the civil service retirement and disability fund will become so desperate that the only solution to the problem would be to integrate it with the social security retirement system, which, as we know, is already over $300 billion unfunded.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Iowa relinquish the remainder of his time?

Mr. MILLER. No. The Senator from Iowa does not relinquish the remainder of his time, but yields the floor. Does the Senator from South Carolina wish to speak?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is the Senate ready to vote?

Mr. JOHNSTON. All I have to say is that I am not in favor of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from South Carolina relinquish the remainder of his time?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I will yield back my remaining time, if the Senator from Iowa will do so.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I ask the Senator from South Carolina if he will respond to my question with respect to the intention of the committee.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I answer the Senator in this manner: We have not studied that question at all. Neither have I studied it to see what we ought to do, or what we should consider next year. That being the position, I am not able to answer the Senator's question, because I do not know whether we will do it or not. The Senator talks about combining the civil service retirement fund and the social security fund.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I should like to ask the Senator a further question. Could the Senator give us some assurance that as of now there is no plan or no intention on the part of his committee that the two systems be integrated?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I answer the Senator by saying that the committee had a bill before it this year and decided not to act favorably upon the bill. That is all I can say. Does that answer the Senator's question? That is what we did. We decided not to act favorably upon the bill.

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, that does not quite answer the question by the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. JOHNSTON. The bill will die with the end of the session.

Mr. MILLER. I should like to ask the Senator from South Carolina if he is in favor of such an integration?

Mr. JOHNSTON. We have not made a thorough study. So far as I am concerned personally, I have not made up my mind on it, as I said a few moments ago. My mind is open, to look into the question to see what would be for the best interests of all the people in the United States; that is, the taxpayers as well as the recipients who would derive the benefits.

Mr. MILLER. I thank the Senator for being as frank in answer to my question as he has been.

Madam President, I suggest that Mr. Joseph Young's intimation that the administration is going to favor integration between the social security and civil service retirement systems next year probably is accurate. I hope it does not happen, but the failure to adopt the pending amendment would hasten the day.

Madam President, I yield back my remaining time.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I can only reply by saying that the bill came before the committee this year, and the committee did not act favorably upon it.

Madam President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. MILLER].

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. JAVITS. Madam President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 107, following line 22, it is proposed to insert:

(f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: "or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have atained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim."

(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: "The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, (2) his becoming capable of self-support after age eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one."

(C) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the benefits resulting from enactment of this amendment shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund.

Mr. JAVITS. Madam President, I yield myself 5 minutes. The amendment I am proposing is the subject of a bill which was favorably reported.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Madam President, to conserve time, I am willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. JAVITS. I am very grateful.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I have consulted with the members of the committee who are in the Chamber, and they have agreed.

Mr. JAVITS. I am very grateful to my colleague.

So that the RECORD will be clear, the amendment proposes that the survivors, between the ages of 18 and 21, receiving benefits under the Civil Service Retirement Act, pursuing courses in college or the schools named, may continue to receive benefits while pursuing those courses; making the provision analogous to that for the survivors of veterans.

I am very grateful to my colleague.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS].

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The committee amendment is open to further amendment. If there be no amendment to be proposed, the question is on agreeing to the committee amendment, as amended.

The committee amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment of the amendment and the third reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill (H.R. 7927) was read the third time.

Mr. McGEE. Madam President, the debate on H.R. 7927 has had as a basic concern the spending of money—money for postage stamps and money for the salaries of Federal employees. And I think that there the connection between the two ends.

It is no secret that first-class and airmail, before the current proposed increase, paid their own way. This is the type of postal service of which the average citizen makes the most use. I voted against any raise in these rates because I do not believe that Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen should be made to subsidize less efficient forms of postal service. I am prepared to listen to arguments that some classes of mail cannot pay their own way but I cannot believe it is either just or logical to insist that those classes that do should make up the difference.

Nor can I see that there is a connection between the wage rate for Federal employees and the cost of the mail. I believe that our civil servants should be paid a just wage for the service performed. I am in favor of the increase contained in H.R. 7927; and I so indicated by my vote, because I believe that in many cases Federal salaries have not kept up with comparable civilian salaries and in many cases salaries are too low to attract competent personnel.

Nothing could be more pennywise and pound foolish than to skimp on salaries and then see any savings go right out the window because of mediocrity of performance. Nor is it fair to trade on the patriotism and devotion of Federal employees by expecting them to work at substandard wages simply because they are doing important Government work. It is true that patriotism cannot be purchased, but neither can it be preserved with contempt.

MAGAZINES AND NEWSPAPERS: THEIR VALUE TO THE NATION

Mr. SYMINGTON. Madam President, it is not my purpose in these remarks to embark on a technical discussion of postage ratemaking; rather, to present for the consideration of my colleagues the magnificent contribution which the magazine and newspaper industry has made to the growth, the development and the unity of the United States.

The magazine and the newspaper have frequently been described as the twin pillars of free government; and we all know that the first defense against tyranny is a free press.

In Soviet Russia and the other Communist countries, thought is a perpetual prisoner of the State, primarily because there is no privately owned press and because the Government controls every avenue of public information.

In contrast to life in a democracy, the people of Russia are compelled to live in an intellectual prison—to the point where, for the vast majority of Americans, life under such conditions would be intolerable.

But the contribution of magazines and newspapers to our national life has been something more than the negative one of preserving basic freedoms against the encroachments of tyranny. This industry of America is a unique institution; and in the creation of present-day America, it carried out a role which no other agency could have done. For business and professional groups, for farmers and educators, the magazine and the newspaper have become the normal means for carrying on that constant exchange of new ideas which is so important to the development of their work. It has performed the same service for all those interested in the Nation's social and cultural progress.

But the unique contribution of the newspaper and magazine industry is that to a remarkable degree it has quickened the creative talent of the American people. In a hundred different ways, life in the United States has become more rich and more varied, because magazine and newspaper editors have deliberately set out to stimulate and provoke new ways, and better ways, of doing things. The newspapers and magazines which specialize on homemaking and home gardening, the popular science units, those which devote themselves exclusively to travel or fashion or recreation, or the care of children—these publications over the years have provided a veritable treasure trove of new ideas for their faithful readers. The specialist magazine, independent or included as part of your newspaper, is, in fact, an American invention.

In the field of economics, the contribution of these two media has been equally impressive. Because it found ways to make the printed advertisement so attractive to its readers, this industry helped to create mass markets for the new products of all American industry which otherwise might have taken years to catch on. At the same time, by popularizing these new machines and chemicals and household appliances, newspapers, and magazines have helped to relieve the women of America from much of the neverending drudgery of household and domestic tasks.

In short, magazines and newspapers in America have helped to make life brighter, easier and happier for millions of citizens.

And they have made other contributions to the national well-being which I shall mention briefly during these remarks. At this point, let me point out that the sincerest tribute ever paid to the newspapers and magazines of America is the fact they are so widely copied in other countries. Not only private firms abroad, but even a larger number of governments now issue publications, most of which are copies, in style and format, of their American cousins.

Since the foundation of the United States, the preservation of a free press has been a goal of the National Government. The Citizens Advisory Committee, which made a comprehensive study of the postal service a few years back, reported the interesting fact that after the war with Great Britain, and even before the Declaration of Independence, the first action ever taken by the Congress was to reduce the postal rates which had been put in effect for the Colonies by the British Government.

Through all the years since, both Congress and the executive branch have continually shown this same concern for the health and well-being of the Nation's press.

Nearly a century ago, the Congress established second-class mail rates for the express purpose of aiding the spread of ideas and knowledge through magazines and newspapers. In this way, the Federal Government made it a fixed policy that the Post Office Department was more than just a business organization—it was a public service institution.

I believe that this policy of helping circulation has paid enormous dividends in terms of national understanding, national development, and national unity. Once again, the farseeing men who framed policy during the early days of the Republic knew what they were doing. These founders acted on the principle that the quick and easy transport of ideas was vital to the growth of the Nation and the preservation of democratic principles.

In our day, no one questions the validity of that proposition; but in their day it was revolutionary. In the old, closed societies of Europe the printing press was looked upon as a potential troublemaker, the handy weapon of agitators whose only purpose was to stir up discontent and strike down the established order.

In the United States the printing press was hailed as a new ally in the battle for human rights.

This attitude, so prevalent among the Founding Fathers, was well expressed by Thomas Jefferson when he said there were only two ways to influence a man—operate on his mind or operate on his body. In other words, "convince him or you can shoot him."

This was Jefferson's unique way of expressing the supremacy of the "idea" in the affairs of men. He made the idea supreme in his generation; and in this nuclear-space age, the survival of the United States may depend more upon our stockpile of ideas than it does upon our stockpile of atomic bombs.

In a December statement the President put the case well when he said:

> An open society grows or withers according to the power of its ideas and to the validity of its interior dialog.
> If ever the United States should reach a point where the clash of ideas comes to an end, where debate disappears, where everybody agrees with everybody else on everything, then we are finished as a nation—and the idea of freedom, to which our Nation has been dedicated since the time of Washington and Adams, Jefferson and Hamilton, perishes.
> From the beginning of the Republic, newspapers and magazines have provided a major forum for carrying on the interior dialog of American society.

As the President said, the great debate about every phase of life in a democracy has been going on in the press and magazines since colonial times.

It is the freedom of this discussion which has made us a great Nation; in fact, full and frank political debate is the very soul of democracy. This has been the American substitute for internal wars that have transformed some nations into military cockpits—the release valve which lets men expose their violent emotions in words instead of deeds.

The privately owned newspaper or magazine is the constant testing ground for new ideas in the political, social, and economic life of America; and the American people get more of this constant debate than any people on earth.

The number of privately owned and operated magazines and newspapers—daily, weekly, monthly, quarterly, and semiannually—is a phenomenon that never ceases to amaze visitors from abroad. Along with our unprecedented development in material resources, there has kept pace a gratifying increase in publications, many of which please the eye as well as feed the mind.

The average dentist has more publications piled up in his waiting room than some families in other lands are privileged to see, not in 1 year, but in 10 years. Surely this is a rare form of public wealth and I am delighted the pioneering fathers had the vision to encourage this phenomenon by means of relatively low postal rates.

A publisher of earlier years used to say that these media, whose circulation reached from coast to coast, had knitted the spiritual, political, and cultural unity of the United States.

Perhaps pride in his profession caused him to overstate the case; but it is a fact that the early United States had a problem faced by few other nations. The facts of geography had very largely made the French people into one nation, and the English people one nation, and ultimately the German people one nation. But the territory of the United States was large, and therefore in danger of sectional rivalries. Those papers and periodicals which regularly went across the State lines did much to develop in the average citizen loyalty to the National Government and a sense of pride in being an American.

There is one further performance by magazines for which they deserve the lasting gratitude of the American people. They have functioned for generations as the seedbed for genuine literary talent. Since the time of Edgar Allen Poe, they have served as the first outlet, and in many cases the sole outlet, for aspiring young writers who later went to enduring fame because of the excellence of their output. Many well-known American writers got their first paycheck from magazine editors and something more besides—the first vote of confidence in their own worth as creative writers.

The story of Thomas Wolfe and his editor is the tale of an authentic genius whose great talents might have been lost forever except for the endless patience and warm sympathy of a great editor.

What happened to Thomas Wolfe has happened time and again in the editorial sanctum of the country's leading publishers. William Faulkner, Ernest Hemingway, Willa Cather—such towering figures on the literary landscape—plus a host of others, were helped along the road to success, in some degree, through these media.

We have a right to be proud of our literary heritage and we owe a debt of gratitude to those who played such a prominent part in its creation.

This land is fairly sprinkled with publications which are privately owned but which continue in business, not only to make a profit, but also because they are sincerely devoted to the development of the arts and sciences. Some have great prestige and some are virtually unknown; some are famed for their literary excellence and some are not. But their great value lies in the fact they are exploring and illuminating our conceptions about every facet of American life.

In these days of television and motion picture, some good citizens are under the mistaken impression that the printed word has less significance than it formerly had. This is a misconception. The television and the printed word are not mutually exclusive; each one has a special job to do in this modern world of high speed communication.

In its thirst for world conquest, Soviet Russia has converted the printing press into the most effective political weapon of the 20th century.

Mr. Khrushchev continues to boast about his stock of nuclear weapons, but the fact is that international communism has made its greatest advances by means of the printed word. There are many students of the subject who believe that the downfall of China was carefully prepared by the deluge of Communist propaganda which saturated that unhappy country before the actual takeover.

There are estimates that Soviet Russia is spending as much as $100 million annually on propaganda in South America alone. While the Communists make liberal use of the radio, the bookshop is the major weapon in this gigantic effort to subvert the political and economic thinking of our Latin neighbors. Books and pamphlets are distributed in heavy quantities, stressing the alleged virtues of Marxism and attempting to corrupt the minds of youth.

What is going on now in South America, and what went on in China a decade ago, is going on also in the new republics of Africa and throughout the Orient.

It would be a matter of deep regret if the Soviets can do more for tyranny through the printed word than we can for freedom.

For these reasons I am glad the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee reduced the high rates on second and third class mail. The publishers of some of the Nation's most distinguished news media testified before this committee that the original rates would have compelled them to suspend publication.

In my own State of Missouri, no institution exerts a healthier force for intelligent leadership and active cooperation among all community interests for the common good than our strong, locally edited, locally published newspapers. In recognition of this fact, our State established and supports the world's first and most famous undergraduate college in this field—the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri.

Mr. RANDOLPH. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SYMINGTON. I yield.

Mr. RANDOLPH. Madam President, since I was in attendance during the hearings of the Senate Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, I can testify to the truth of what the distinguished Senator from Missouri has said this afternoon.

I was particularly impressed by the witnesses who appeared representing newspapers and magazines, so essential to the entertainment and enlightenment of the citizens of this country. These publications perform a significant service. We are a better informed people; and even though we seem to read as we run, there are substantial values which sustain us. A free press is a strengthening influence in our Republic.

Mr. SYMINGTON. Madam President, I thank my friend, the Senator from West Virginia, for his constructive remarks, especially since he did so much to get the bill in its present form before the Senate.

More than 300 community weeklies and 50 dailies are represented in the Missouri Press Association, whose manager, William Bray, is not only a former outstanding young weekly newspaper editor in our State, but also serves as professor of community service journalism at the Missouri University School of Journalism.

In speaking of the postage rate bill prior to its revision by the Senate committee, Mr. Bray said:

> I believe the proposed rates will destroy at least a dozen Missouri newspapers in the beginning, and as many as 40 within 5 years.

However, under the rates now recommended by the Senate committee, this peril is reduced so that our community newspapers, as well as our magazines, should be able to survive and continue their contribution to the Nation's welfare.

The periodicals of America constitute one of the Nation's great cultural and spiritual storehouses. They constitute one of the first lines of defense for the preservation of democratic freedoms. They are indispensable to the well-being of America—and I sincerely hope that government at all levels will continue to guard their growth and prosperity, as it has since the Nation was founded.

ILLNESS OF SENATOR DIRKSEN—DESIGNATION OF ACTING MINORITY LEADER

Mr. KUCHEL. Madam President, I very much regret to announce that our minority leader, the distinguished Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN], has had an abdominal upset. He has been compelled to go to the hospital for a checkup. I rise not only to make that announcement, for I know all Senators will share my very deep regret, but also to have the RECORD show very clearly that, were the distinguished minority leader present, he would wholeheartedly support the bill which is now before the Senate. He believes implicitly in what the distinguished Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], the chairman of the committee, and the distinguished Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON], the ranking Republican member of the committee, and all other members of the committee have fashioned in the proposed legislation.

He believes that the scale of pay provided in the bill is commensurate with the abilities and capacity of employees in the postal and civil service of the Federal Government, and would give them what they deserve. He believes also that what has been accomplished jointly and unanimously by all I have named in relation to postal rates has been in the public interest. I wish the RECORD clearly to demonstrate that point.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Madam President, I join in what the distinguished Senator from California has said. The distinguished minority leader has gone to the hospital and will be there for several days. We all anticipate that he will return next week hale and hearty.

Mr. KUCHEL. The Senator is correct.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter dated September 27, 1962, addressed to me by the minority leader, the distinguished Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN], designating the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. HRUSKA] to serve as acting minority leader on Friday and Saturday of this week, be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
September 27, 1962.

HON. MIKE MANSFIELD,
The Majority Leader,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MIKE: I designated Senator ROMAN L. HRUSKA to serve as acting minority leader for Friday and Saturday of this week in the absence of both Senator KUCHEL and myself. I have also notified the other members of the minority leadership. Thanks much for everything.

Sincerely,
EVERETT MCKINLEY DIRKSEN,
Minority Leader.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays on passage of the bill.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, within the past 2 weeks I raised the salaries of my office help $1,200 a year. I do not wish the proposed additional raise to apply to them. I ask the Senator from South Carolina if each Senator will be allowed to fix the salaries of employees in his own office under the provisions of the bill?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Yes. The Senator will have a right to adjust the salaries of all employees in his office as he sees fit.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. President, I shall not be able to have my vote recorded in the regular way on this bill, because I have a pair with my dear friend and colleague, the distinguished Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN]. For that reason I wish to speak briefly and give my reasons why I shall vote against the bill.

I vote against the bill with reluctance, because in past years I have supported many bills which have been brought before the Senate to adjust pay scales of Federal employees and to raise their pay. Among these, were bills in 1955, 1958, and 1960 increasing pay by 7½, 10, and 7½ percent, respectively, a total of 25 percent. I vote against the bill with reluctance also because I find no fault with the provisions of the bill. Good work has been done by the committees, with the purpose of adjusting equitably Federal pay scales and providing increases where they are needed.

I shall vote against the bill, first, because we do not know, and have no way of knowing, what the fiscal situation of our country will be in the latter months of this year and in the early months of 1963. We know there will be a large budget deficit. We know the deficit will be much larger than the estimate that was given by the administration when it submitted its budget at the beginning of the year. We know that items of expenditures have been added by the administration and the Congress which will increase the deficit. An addition reaching $400 million will be made for the emergency public works program, to help people without any jobs at all. Added appropriations have been made for defense.

A loss of revenue of $700 to $800 million is the result. The tax bill we have passed, and next year a second tax bill will be passed which will cause a further loss in revenue. A deficit reaching $5 to $8 billion can affect injuriously our economy, still moving slowly, with 4 million people out of work.

I am not opposed to the substance or the principle of the bill, but I believe we should not take this action until we meet again in 1964—when we will have a clearer idea of the state of our economy, on which all of our citizens depend, and which is the base of our strength and national security. Its provisions should not become effective until fiscal year 1964, for it represents an ultimate cost of about $1,400 million a year.

I would be very happy if I could vote for that section of the bill which would increase immediately the annuities of employees who have retired, and of their survivors, because they are in a different situation from those who are now employed.

I believe also that the passage of the bill this year contravenes the declared policy of the administration—that of asking labor to defer its petitions for pay increases, and industry to show restraint in raising the prices of their products.

I believe it inconsistent to ask restraint of others—and not exercise similar restraint both on the part of the administration and the Congress.

I do not believe it is proper to join the mail-rate bill to the pay raise bill. The savings from the mail-rate bill will accrue to the general revenue. However, the fact that these two bills have been joined to insure the passage of each indicates that a chief reason for the increases in mail rates is to reduce the additional deficit that will be occasioned by the pay raise sections of the bill.

It is inequitable to place upon those who use first-class mail, perhaps not technically, but certainly practically, this burden of paying for the pay raise in 1 cent additions to letters and post cards.

As I have said, it is with reluctance that I cast my vote against the bill. I will be paired with my distinguished friend, the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN]. I support the substance and principle of the bill, and I recognize the devoted service of those who labor for our Government.

I base my reasons for voting against the bill on what I have said. Because of the unknown factors relating to our fiscal and monetary position, the fears of recession, the policy of restraining increases in wages and prices, and the possibility that we may have to spend billions more for defense, I think it is inappropriate to pass the bill at this time.

I would have been glad to vote for this bill if the effective date had been made July 1, 1963. I did not offer such an amendment, because I knew it would have been useless to do so. There was no point in putting Senators on record, because they had already made up their minds. I recognize that deferral until 1963 would work some hardship on certain employees. But they are at work, while millions are out of work. And the first responsibility of all of us who serve the Government is to the largest interests of the Nation itself.

Mr. LAUSCHE. Mr. President, I contemplate voting against the bill. At the beginning I wish to commend the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. COOPER] for the position he has taken, and the sound reasons he has outlined in support of his conclusions.

Page 11 of the report shows that for fiscal year 1963 the cost of the pending bill will be $280 million above the cost of the bill recommended by the President of the United States. In 1964, the cost will be $167 million above the plan recommended by the President. In 1965, it will be $111 million more.

There have been deficit operations of the post office, and they will continue this year. The bill has gone the full limit in attempting to provide salary increases, not only to the low bracket employees, who definitely are entitled to increase, but also all the way up to the top of the ladder.

I am opposed to the bill because it contains a built-in formula that will plague Congress in the handling of the wage scale of its employees. The bill provides that, instead of Congress fixing the salaries, the salaries shall be fixed by ascertaining what wages are being paid in private industry. I do not subscribe to that abdication of power.

The bill is in complete noncomformity with the President's recommendation. It will add to the deficit that has been created. For that reason I cannot support it. I will give a live pair to the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART] on the bill. If he were present and voting he would vote for it. I would vote against it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CANNON in the chair). The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall it pass? On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. COOPER (when his name was called). On this vote I have a pair with the junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "yea"; if I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "nay." I therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. CURTIS (when his name was called). On this vote I have a pair with the senior Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "yea"; if I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "nay." I therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. LAUSCHE (when his name was called). On this vote I have a pair with the senior Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "yea"; if I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "nay." I therefore withhold my vote.

The rollcall was concluded.

Mr. ELLENDER (after having voted in the negative). On this vote I have a pair with the junior Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "yea"; if I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "nay." I withdraw my vote.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], and the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from

Wyoming [Mr. HICKEY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], and the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE] would each vote "yea."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON and Mr. PEARSON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN], the Senator from Arizona [Mr. GOLDWATER], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] are necessarily absent. If present and voting, the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Arizona [Mr. GOLDWATER], and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON] would each vote "yea."

The respective pairs of the Senators from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON], that of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN], and that of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART] have been previously announced.

On this vote, the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEARSON] is paired with the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER]. If present and voting, the Senator from Kansas would vote "yea," and the Senator from Texas would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 72, nays 3, as follows:

AID AND RESEARCH

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I should like to call to the attention of the Senate a report which summarizes a study which is being done for the research, evaluation, and planning assistance staff of the Agency for International Development. The Brookings Institution, an organization with which I am sure we are all familiar, is carrying out this very extensive study.

An outstanding scholar, Mr. Wilfred Owen, is supervising the study. Mr. Owen is one of this country's most eminent authorities and writers on the subject of transportation. Among his efforts have been the books "The Metropolitan Transportation Problem and National Transportation Policy." These credits, along with his many other accomplishments in the field of transportation, thoroughly qualify him for this task.

The study, one of several being conducted by the research evaluation, and planning assistance staff, will yield information long needed by the Agency for International Development, and will prove invaluable in that Agency's efforts to coordinate present activities with long-term objectives.

Among other things, the report points out how extremely important transportation is to any aid program undertaken. Money alone cannot assure the success of any program. The important question is how effectively the money is used. Transportation's role in development must be considered, for if it were neglected, the entire aid program might be a dismal failure.

The research, evaluation, and planning assistance staff is headed by Dr. Edward C. Fei. Doctor Fei is to be congratulated for REPAS's fine effort during the first trying and uncertain months of its existence. I know that in the future it is going to contribute much to the success of our AID program.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the first 5 pages of this report be printed in the RECORD at this point in my remarks.

There being no objection, the excerpt from the report was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TRANSPORT RESEARCH PROGRAM

(Study by the Brookings Institution, Economic Studies Division)

The Brookings Institution is conducting a major 5-year program of research on the role of transportation in development. The effort to advance the stage of knowledge in this relatively neglected area will enlist the participation of individual scholars, universities, and other agencies throughout the country and abroad in a comprehensive program of studies involving economics, political science, and technology.

The new program follows from a continuing series of transportation studies conducted by Brookings staff over an extended period of time. Previous undertakings have involved a variety of issues relating to national transportation policy, urban transportation, and the transport problems of Asia, Africa, and Latin America. The present effort is made possible by a grant from the Agency for International Development, which has provided $1,470,000 for the first 3 years' work, with support for the balance of the program to be determined at the end of that period.

PURPOSE AND SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM

The work to be undertaken is designed (a) to increase our understanding of the role that transportation plays in development, in order to help guide resource allocation in emerging economies and in foreign assistance programs; (b) to shed light on the possibilities that science and technology offer for the solution of transport problems, both with respect to transport methods and to innovations outside the transport field that affect transport; (c) to develop criteria for judging among transport investments and between transport investments and investments in other sectors of the economy; (d) to determine the kinds of transportation facilities which are best suited to the transport tasks to be performed in a given environment; (e) to assess what is needed to implement transport programs, including an evaluation of alternative organizational arrangements and financial policies in the public and private sectors.

All of these factors are involved because all of them play a role in achieving an optimal use of resources for transportation. At present, there is no clear understanding of the developmental effects of transport improvements, the desirable timing of transport investments, nor the potentials for achieving economic, social, cultural, and political objectives through transport. The many factors that need to be taken into account in selecting desirable transport methods have not been given proper consideration, and there has been no systematic appraisal of the role of public and private enterprise, of various administrative solutions, nor of different approaches to financing, ratemaking, and regulation. Yet all of these aspects of the transport program can have profound effects on development.

What is unique about the Brookings program is that we are studying the transport sector as it relates to the total environment. And we are exploring the problem and the benefits of achieving greater mobility with all of the ingredients of mobility under examination. This is not a study of transportation per se, but of transportation's role in development. And since accessibility and mobility are essential to almost everything that underdeveloped countries are striving to accomplish, it follows that transportation may be a key factor in the success or failure of the entire development effort. This does not mean that transport is all-important, for it is food, shelter, health, education, and jobs that are the ultimate objectives. Transport may be the catalyst, however, and this is the function that makes it important.

What research approach do these considerations imply? Essentially they dictate that the research should be concerned with applying transport technology to the realization of development objectives. At the same time, they imply an approach which not only looks at transportation as a whole (each form of transport is usually planned and provided separately), but which looks beyond transport itself to the processes of production and distribution that the transport system is called upon to serve.

One goal common to most developing countries is the production of more food. The role that transportation can play in attaining this objective is to provide access to arable lands, to help communicate new agricultural techniques, to make possible the delivery of seeds and fertilizer, and to assemble and move the increased product to consumers. If the transport goal is thought of as serving agriculture, then the research must include more than an examination of the type of transport facilities needed. It should also be concerned with the organization and financial arrangements for keeping roads passable; necessary arrangements to enable producers to purchase vehicles; and provision for transshipment to line-haul truck, railway, or inland water carrier. The objective is to close the gap between the producer of agricultural surpluses and the consumers who need food.

Looking at transport in this broader framework may lead to solutions that are satisfactory from a transportation standpoint but which are still unsatisfactory from a development standpoint. The goal of increasing the food supply may not be served best by expediting movement at all. One alternative may be to provide storage facilities. When storage is made possible in producing areas, peak traffic demands typical of agricultural economies can be flattened by spreading the transport burden over a longer time period, and transport capacity requirements can be reduced accordingly.

For some types of perishables the solution may not be storage but processing. The establishment of processing centers close to sources of supply will reduce spoilage and eliminate the need for speedy transport or for refrigerated equipment. Processing may have the added advantages of creating local employment, providing a source of local capital accumulation, making agricultural waste available for fuel or local manufactures, and reducing the weight and bulk of commodities flowing into the transport system. This kind of solution to the transportation problem may emerge if attention is focused on the objective of raising per capita food consumption rather than simply on making areas of production more accessible.

The concept of optimizing resource use for development also applies to the accommodation of transport facilities to industry. Various aspects of the industrial program may be dictated by transport limitations, including the location and size of industrial plants and the decision to favor a concentration or dispersal of industrial activity. It may be necessary on transportation grounds to modify completely the types of industrial activities to be engaged in. Modification may be necessary because transport costs are excessive, or because transport possibilities suggest comparative advantages through interregional or international specialization and trade.

The same need to look at the total environment is encountered in the analysis of factors governing the choice of alternative technological solutions. To judge the feasibility of road, rail, river, pipe, or air transport alternatives requires matching the demands for transport with conditions governing the supply of transport facilities. What are the relative requirements for capital, managerial talent, foreign exchange, and maintenance? How much time will elapse before the investment will begin to pay off? What are likely to be the forward and backward linkages, the multiplier effects? What kinds of direct and indirect employment will result, and to what extent will entrepreneurship and new resource development be encouraged? What social and political impacts can be anticipated?

These questions are all part of the process of selecting wisely among technological alternatives because the ultimate objective is higher standards of living, and not merely higher standards of moving.

TOPICS FOR RESEARCH

Thinking in these terms, with higher levels of living as the goal, makes clear that there is an essential unity in the program despite an apparent heterogeneity. The fact that the program has many aspects stems from the fact that transportation performs many functions. But the following general categories cover all of the principal research needs:

1. Evaluation of the Role of Transport in Development.
2. Determination of Transport Investment Requirements.
3. The Economics of Technology.
4. Minimizing the Demand for Transport.
5. Organizational and Administrative Solutions.
6. Financial Support and Expenditure Policies.

ORDER OF BUSINESS—CONSIDERATION OF CERTAIN MEASURES ON THE CALENDAR

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, with the concurrence of the Senate, I should like to have the Senate proceed to the consideration of some measures on the calendar to which there is no objection, and thereafter proceed to the consideration of certain measures on the calendar to which there are only minor objections.

SETTLEMENT OF CERTAIN CLAIMS

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 2087. House bill 310, providing for the settlement of certain claims.

The motion was agreed to; and the bill (H.R. 310) to amend title 10, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of Defense, the Secretaries of the military departments, and the Secretary of the Treasury to settle certain claims for damage to, or loss of, property, or personal injury or death, not cognizable under any other law was considered, ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD a statement of the reasons for the bill.

There being no objection, the excerpt from the report (No. 2123) was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PURPOSE

The purpose of the proposed legislation is to permit the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to the Coast Guard, and the military Secretaries to settle claims up to $1,000 caused by actions of military personnel and civilian employees of such departments outside the scope of their employment involving the use of Government vehicles anywhere and the use of other Government property on Government installations.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Subsection (a) of the proposed section 2736 would authorize the Secretary of a military department or the Secretary of the Treasury, as regards the Coast Guard, to settle claims of not more than $1,000 for damage to or loss of property, or personal injury or death arising from the use of a Government vehicle anywhere or incident to the use of any other property of the United States on a Government installation when the claim would not be cognizable under any other law.

Subsection (b) grants the Secretary of Defense equivalent authority resulting from the activities of officials or employees of the Department of Defense when the claims would not be covered by the provisions of subsection (a).

Subsection (c) bars the allowance of a claim where the damage, loss, personal injury, or death was caused in whole or in

87TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. R. 7927

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

SEPTEMBER 27, 1962

Ordered to be printed with the amendment of the Senate

AN ACT

To adjust postal rates, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

~~SHORT TITLE~~

~~SECTION 1. This Act may be cited as the "Postage Revision Act of 1962".~~

~~POSTAL POLICY~~

~~SEC. 2. (a) Section 2302(c)(4) of title 39, United State Code, is amended by striking out "deemed to be attributable to the performance of public services under section 2303(b) of this title" and inserting in lieu thereof "deter-~~ mined under section 2303 of this title to be attributable to the performance of public services".

(b) Section 2303(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by amending the heading so as to read "§ 2303. Identification of public services and costs thereof";

(2) by striking out paragraph (2) and renumbering the succeeding paragraphs accordingly; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence:

"The terms 'total loss' and 'loss' as used in this subsection mean the amounts by which the total allocated costs incurred by the postal establishment in the performance of the public services enumerated in this subsection exceed the total revenues received by the postal establishment for the performance of such public services."

(c) Section 2303(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The Postmaster General shall report to the Congress, on or before February 1 of each year beginning with the year 1963, the estimated amount by which, in the then current fiscal year, the cost incurred by the postal establishment in the performance of each of the public services enumerated in subsection (a) of this section exceeds the revenue received by the postal establishment for the performance of each such public service. The aggregate amount by which, in any fiscal year, the costs incurred by the postal establishment in the performance of each such public services exceed the aggregate amount of the revenues received by the postal establishment for the performance of such public services shall be excluded from the total cost of operating the postal establishment for purposes of adjustment of postal rates and fees."

(d) The table of contents of chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out and inserting in lieu thereof:

"2303. Identification of and appropriations for public services."

"2303. Identification of public services and costs thereof.".

FIRST-CLASS MAIL

SEC. 3. Section 4253 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words "four" and "three" wherever appearing in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "five" and "four", respectively.

AIRMAIL

SEC. 4. Section 4303 of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the word "seven" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the word "eight";

(2) by striking out the word "five" in subsection (b) and inserting in lieu thereof the word "six"; and

(3) by striking out the phrase "3 cents an ounce or fraction thereof" in paragraph (2) of subsection (d) and inserting in lieu thereof the phrase "the rate of postage for other first-class mail matter".

SEC. 5. Paragraph (1), subsection (a), section 4358, of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows—

"(1) resides in the county in which the publication is published; and".

SECOND-CLASS MAIL BEYOND COUNTY OF PUBLICATION

SEC. 6. Section 4359 of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out so much of subsection (b) as precedes the table and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(b) (1) Subject to the minimum rate provided for publications of qualified nonprofit organizations and classroom publications by section 4360 of this title, the rates of postage on publications mailed in accordance with subsection (a) of this section are fixed both by the piece as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection and by the pound as provided in the following table:

"[In cents]"; and

(2) by adding at the end of subsection (b) a new paragraph (2), as follows:

"(2) The piece rates of postage are charged on each individually addressed copy of a publication (except a publication of a qualified nonprofit organization and a classroom publication) mailed in accordance with subsection (a) of this section in addition to the pound rates. The piece rates are as follows:

"Publications other than classroom publications and other than publications of qualified nonprofit organizations—½ cent, effective on and after July 1, 1962, and before July 1, 1963; and 1 cent, effective on and after July 1, 1963."

MINIMUM POSTAGE RATES ON SECOND-CLASS MAIL

SEC. 7. Section 4360 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 4360. Minimum postage

"The minimum rate of postage is one-eighth cent for each individually addressed copy of—

"(1) a classroom publication or a publication of a qualified nonprofit organization mailed under section 4359 of this title, or

"(2) any publication mailed for delivery within the county of publication except when mailed free under section 4358(a) of this title."

CONTROLLED CIRCULATION PUBLICATIONS

SEC. 8 Section 4422 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "12 cents" and inserting in lieu thereof "14 cents".

THIRD-CLASS MAIL

SEC 9. (a) Section 4451(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "(a)(2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(a)(3)".

(b) Section 4452 of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by amending the table in subsection (a) to read as follows:

"Type of mailing	Rate	Unit
	Cents
(1) Individual piece	4	First 2 ounces or fraction thereof.
	11½	Each additional ounce or fraction thereof.
(2) Bulk mailings under subsec. (c) of this section of:
(A) Books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants:
(i) Qualified nonprofit organizations.	10	Each pound or fraction thereof.
(B) Other matter	21	Do."

(2) by amending the table in subsection (b) to read as follows:

"Mailed by—	(In cents)
Other than qualified nonprofit organizations	3½
Qualified nonprofit organizations	1¼";

and

(3) by amending subsection (c) to read as follows:

"(c) The minimum postage rate on pieces or packages of third-class mail of such size or form as to prevent ready facing and tying in bundles and requiring individual distribution is four and one-half cents."

(c) The third proviso in section 3 of the Act of October 30, 1951, as amended by the Act of June 23, 1959 (73 Stat. 89; Public Law 86-56), is hereby repealed.

EDUCATIONAL AND LIBRARY MATERIALS

SEC. 10. (a) Section 4554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by amending that part of subsection (a) which precedes paragraph (1) to read as follows:

"(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, the postage rate is 9 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 5 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof, except that the rates now or hereafter prescribed for third or fourth-class matter shall apply in every case where such rate is lower than the rate prescribed in this subsection on—

(2) by amending paragraph (5) of subsection (a) to read as follows:

"(5) sound recordings;";

(3) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (6) of subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon and the word "and";

(4) by adding at the end of subsection (a) the following:

"(7) printed educational reference charts, permanently processed for preservation.";

(5) by inserting "(including cooperative processing by libraries)" immediately following "loaned or exchanged" in paragraph (1) of subsection (b);

(6) by striking out the word "students'" immediately preceding the word "notations" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) and in paragraph (2) of subsection (b);

(7) by striking out:

"(D) bound volumes of periodicals;

"(E) phonograph recordings; and" in paragraph (2) of subsection (b) and inserting in lieu thereof:

"(D) periodicals, whether bound or unbound;

"(E) sound recordings; and "; and

(8) by striking out "and catalog of those items" in subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof "scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, or other devices and catalogs of those items, and guides or scripts prepared solely for use with such materials".

(b) Sections 204(d), 204(e)(1), and 204(e)(2) of the Postal Rate Revision and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1948, as amended by the Act of July 14, 1960 (74 Stat. 479; Public Law 86-644), are hereby repealed.

METHOD OF DETERMINING GROSS RECEIPTS

SEC. 11. Section 711(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "Public Law 85-426" and inserting in lieu thereof "any Act of Congress enacted on or after May 27, 1958".

COMMUNIST POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

SEC. 12. (a) Section 505 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by inserting immediately after the first sentence and before the second sentence in subsection (a) thereof, the following sentence: "In furtherance of this authority to counteract adverse usage of the mails and to reduce the domestic postal deficit, no international mail

~~handling arrangement under which any postal rate, whether or not reciprocal, is established, shall permit the receipt, handling, transport, or delivery by the United States Post Office Department of mail matter determined by the Attorney General to be Communist political propaganda."~~

~~"§ 4008. Communist political propaganda~~

~~"No United States postal rate established by the Postage Revision Act of 1962 shall be available for the receipt, handling, transportation, or delivery of mail matter determined by the Attorney General of the United States to be Communist political propaganda financed or sponsored directly or indirectly by any Communist controlled government."~~

~~SEC. 13. The foregoing provisions of this Act shall become effective on July 1, 1962.~~

That this Act may be cited as the "Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1962".

PART I—POSTAL SERVICE

TITLE I—POSTAL RATES

FIRST-CLASS MAIL

SEC. 101. Section 4253(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words "four" and "three" wherever appearing in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "five" and "four", respectively.

AIRMAIL

SEC. 102. (a) Section 4303 of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the word "seven" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the word "eight";

(2) by striking out the word "five" in subsection (b) and inserting in lieu thereof the word "six";

(3) by increasing each of the rates under the heading "First pound over 8 ounces or fraction thereof" in the table in subsection (d)(1) by 8 cents;

(4) by striking out paragraph (2) of subsection (d) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) The rate of postage on air mail of the first class weighing in excess of eight ounces shall be the rate provided by subsection (a) for each ounce not in excess of eight ounces, plus 5 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof in excess of eight ounces, but in no case less than the rate provided under paragraph (1) for air parcels."

SECOND CLASS WITHIN COUNTY OF PUBLICATION

SEC. 103. Subsections (a) and (b) of section 4358 of title 39, United States Code, are amended to read as follows:

"(a) Except as provided in subsection (b), the rate of postage on publications admitted as second-class mail when addressed for delivery within the county in which they are published and entered is as fouows:

"[In cents]

	"Mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1965"	Mailed after December 31, 1964
"Rate per pound"	1	1¼
Minimum charge per piece	⅛	⅛

"(b) The rate of postage on the following publications admitted as second-class mail when mailed for delivery, within the county in which they are published and entered, by letter carrier at the office of mailing, shall be—

"(1) publications issued more frequently than weekly, one cent a copy;

"(2) publications issued less frequently than weekly—

"(A) weighing two ounces or less, one cent a copy;

"(B) weighing more than two ounces, two cents a copy."

SECOND CLASS BEYOND COUNTY OF PUBLICATION

SEC. 104. (a) Section 4359(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(b)(1) Except as provided by paragraphs (2), (3), and (4), the rates of postage on publications mailed in accordance with subsection (a) are as follows:

"[In cents]

	"Mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964	Mailed during calendar year 1964	Mailed after December 31, 1964
"Rate per pound:
Advertising portion:
Zones 1 and 2	3.4	3.8	4.0
Zone 3	4.4	4.8	5.0
Zone 4	6.4	6.8	7.0
Zone 5	8.4	8.8	9.0
Zone 6	10.4	10.8	11.0
Zone 7	12.0	12.0	12.0
Zone 8	14.0	14.0	14.0
Nonadvertising portion	2.6	2.7	2.8
Minimum charge per piece	.6	.8	1.0

"(2) The postage on classroom publications is 60 per centum of the postage computed in accordance with paragraph (1).

"(3) The rates of postage on publications of a qualified nonprofit organization mailed in accordance with subsection (a) are as follows:

"[In cents]

	"Mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964	Mailed during calendar year 1964	Mailed after December 31, 1964
"Rate per pound	1.6	1.7	1.8
Minimum charge per piece	.125	.125	.125

"(4) In lieu of the minimum charge per piece prescribed by paragraph (1), the minimum charge per piece to be paid by the following publications (other than publications to which paragraph (2) or paragraph (3) is applicable) shall be as follows—

"(A) publications mailing fewer than 5,000 copies per issue outside the county of publication—one-half cent per piece;

"(B) any issue of a publication the advertising portion of which does not exceed 5 per centum of the entire issue—.55 of a cent per piece when mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964, .65 of a cent per piece when mailed during calendar year 1964, and .75 of a cent per piece when mailed after December 31, 1964."

(b) Section 4359(e)(2) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "and fraternal," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "fraternal, and associations of rural electric cooperatives, and not to exceed one publication published by the official highway agency of a State which meets all of the requirements of section 4354 and which contains no advertising".

(c) Section 4360 of title 39, United States Code, is repealed.

SECOND-CLASS TRANSIENT MAIL

SEC. 105. Section 4362 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "two cents" and inserting in lieu thereof "four cents".

CONTROLLED CIRCULATION PUBLICATIONS

SEC. 106. Section 4422 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "12 cents a pound or fraction thereof" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "12½ cents a pound or fraction thereof when mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964, 13 cents a pound or fraction thereof when mailed during calendar year 1964, and 13½ cents a pound or fraction thereof when mailed after December 31, 1964".

THIRD-CLASS MAIL

SEC. 107. Section 4452 of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by amending subsections (a), (b), and (c) to read as follows:

"(a) Except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, and subject to the minimum charge per piece provided in subsection (b) of this section, the postage rates on third-class mail are as follows:

"Type of mailing	Rate	Unit
	Cents
(1) Individual piece	4	First 2 ounces or fraction thereof.
	2	Each additional ounce or fraction thereof.
(2) Bulk mailings under subsec. (e) of this section of:
(A) Books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants.	12	Each pound or fraction thereof.
(B) Other matter	18	Do.

"(b) Matter mailed in bulk under subsection (e) of this section is subject to a minimum charge for each piece of $2\frac{5}{8}$ cents when mailed subsequent to January 6, 1963 and prior to January 1, 1964, $2\frac{6}{8}$ cents when mailed during calendar year 1964, and $2\frac{7}{8}$ cents when mailed after December 31, 1964.

"(c) The postage on matter mailed in bulk under subsection (e) by qualified nonprofit organizations is 50 per centum of the postage computed in accordance with subsections (a) and (b)."

(2) by striking out "subsections (a) and (b) of" wherever it appears in subsection (d).

(3) by striking out "$20" and "twenty pounds" in subsection (e) and inserting in lieu thereof "$30" and "fifty pounds", respectively, effective January 1, 1963.

commission shall provide by regulation for the procedure of submission, review and consideration of projects, and for its determinations pursuant to this section. Any determination of the commission hereunder shall be subject to judicial review in any court of competent jurisdiction.

3.7 Coordination and Cooperation. The commission shall promote and aid the coordination of the activities and programs of federal, state, municipal and private agencies concerned with water resources administration in the basin. To this end, but without limitation thereto, the commission may:

(a) Advise, consult, contract, financially assist, or otherwise cooperate with any and all such agencies;

(b) Employ any other agency or instrumentality of any of the signatory parties or of any political subdivision thereof, in the design, construction, operation and maintenance of structures, and the installation and management of river control systems, or for any other purpose;

(c) Develop and adopt plans and specifications for particular water resources projects and facilities which so far as consistent with the comprehensive plan incorporate any separate plans of other public and private organizations operating in the basin, and permit the decentralized administration thereof;

(d) Qualify as a sponsoring agency under any Federal legislation heretofore or hereafter enacted to provide financial or other assistance for the planning, conservation, utilization, development, management or control of water resources.

3.8 Advisory Committees. The commission may constitute and empower advisory committees, which may be comprised of representatives of the public and of Federal, State, county and municipal governments, water resources agencies, water-using industries, water-interest groups, labor and agriculture.

ARTICLE 4

WATER SUPPLY

Section 4.1 Generally. The commission shall have power to develop, implement and effectuate plans and projects for the use of the water of the basin for domestic, municipal, agricultural and industrial water supply. To this end, without limitation thereto, it may provide for, construct, acquire, operate and maintain dams, reservoirs and other facilities for utilization of surface and ground water resources, and all related structures, appurtenances and equipment on the river and its tributaries and at such off-river sites as it may find appropriate, and may regulate and control the use thereof.

4.2 Storage and Release of Waters.

(a) The commission shall have power to acquire, operate and control projects and facilities for the storage and release of waters, for the regulation of flows and supplies of surface and ground waters of the basin, for the protection of public health, stream quality control, economic development, improvement of fisheries, recreation, dilution and abatement of pollution, the prevention of undue salinity and other purposes.

(b) No signatory party shall permit any augmentation of flow to be diminished by the diversion of any water of the basin during any period in which waters are being released from storage under the direction of the commission for the purpose of augmenting such flow, except in cases where such diversion is duly authorized by this compact, or by the commission pursuant thereto, or by the judgment, order or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction.

4.3 Assessable Improvements. The commission may undertake to provide stream regulation in the main stream or any tributary in the basin and may assess on an annual basis or otherwise the cost thereof upon water users or any classification of them specially benefited thereby to a measurable extent, provided that no such assessment shall exceed the actual benefit to any water user. Any such assessment shall follow the procedure prescribed by law for local improvement assessments and shall be subject to judicial review in any court of competent jurisdiction.

4.4 Coordination. Prior to entering upon the execution of any project authorized by this article, the commission shall review and consider all existing rights, plans and programs of the signatory parties, their political subdivisions, private parties, and water users which are pertinent to such project, and shall hold a public hearing on each proposed project.

4.5 Additional Powers. In connection with any project authorized by this article, the commission shall have power to provide storage, treatment, pumping and transmission facilities, but nothing herein shall be construed to authorize the commission to engage in the business of distributing water.

Article 5

POLLUTION CONTROL

Section 5.1 General Powers. The commission may undertake investigations and surveys, and acquire, construct, operate and maintain projects and facilities to control potential pollution and abate or dilute existing pollution of the water resources of the basin. It may invoke as complainant the power and jurisdiction of water pollution abatement agencies of the signatory parties.

5.2 Policy and Standards. The commision may assume jurisdiction to control future pollution and abate existing pollution in the waters of the basin, whenever it determines after investigation and public hearing upon due notice that the effectuation of the comprehensive plan so requires. The standard of such control shall be that pollution by sewage or industrial or other waste originating within a signatory state shall not injuriously affect waters of the basin as contemplated by the comprehensive plan. The commission, after such public hearing may classify the waters of the basin and establish standards of treatment of sewage, industrial or other waste, according to such classes including allowance for the variable factors of surface and ground waters, such as size of the stream, flow, movement, location, character, self-purification, and usage of the waters affected. After such investigation, notice and hearing the commission may adopt and from time to time amend and repeal rules, regulations and standards to control such future pollution and abate existing pollution, and to require such treatment of sewage, industrial or other waste within a time reasonable for the construction of the necessary works, as may be required to protect the public health or to preserve the waters of the basin for uses in accordance with the comprehensive plan.

5.3 Cooperative Legislation and Administration. Each of the signatory parties covenants and agrees to prohibit and control pollution of the waters of the basin according to the requirements of this compact and to cooperate faithfully in the control of future pollution in and abatement of existing pollution from the rivers, streams, and waters in the basin which flow through, under, into or border upon any of such signatory states, and in order to effect such object, agrees to enact any necessary legislation to enable each such party to place and maintain the waters of said basin in a satisfactory condition, available for safe and satisfactory use as public and industrial water supplies after reasonable treatment, suitable for recreational usage, capable of maintaining fish and other aquatic life, free from unsightly or malodorous nuisances due to floating solids or sludge deposits and adaptable to such other uses as may be provided by the comprehensive plan.

5.4 Enforcement. The commission may, after investigation and hearing, issue an order or orders upon any person or public or private corporation, or other entity, to cease the discharge of sewage, industrial or other waste into waters of the basin which it determines to be in violation of such rules and regulations as it shall have adopted for the prevention and abatement of pollution. Any such order or orders may prescribe the date, including a reasonable time for the construction of any necessary works, on or before which such discharge shall be wholly or partially discontinued, modified or treated, or otherwise conformed to the requirements of such rules and regulations. Such order shall be reviewable in any court of competent jurisdiction. The courts of the signatory parties shall have jurisdiction to enforce against any person, public or private corporation, or other entity, any and all provisions of this Article or of any such order. The commission may bring an action in its own name in any such court of competent jurisdiction to compel compliance with any provision of this Article, or any rule or regulation issued pursuant thereto or of any such order, according to the practice and procedure of the court.

5.5 Further Jurisdiction. Nothing in this compact shall be construed to repeal, modify or qualify the authority of any signatory party to enact any legislation or enforce any additional conditions and restrictions to lessen or prevent the pollution of waters within its jurisdiction.

FLOOD PROTECTION

Section 6.1 General Powers. The commission may plan, design, construct and operate and maintain projects and facilities, as it may deem necessary or desirable for flood damage reduction. It shall have power to operate such facilities and to store and release waters on the Susquehanna River and its tributaries and elsewhere within the basin, in such manner, at such times, and under such regulations as the commission may deem appropriate to meet flood conditions as they may arise.

6.2 Flood Plain Zoning.

(a) The commission shall have power to adopt, amend and repeal recommended standards, in the manner provided by this section, relating to the nature and extent of the uses of land in areas subject to flooding by waters of the Susquehanna River and its tributaries. Such standards shall not be deemed to impair or restrict the power of the signatory parties or their political subdivisions to adopt zoning and other land use regulations not inconsistent therewith.

(b) The commission may study and determine the nature and extent of the flood plains of the Susquehanna River and its tributaries. Upon the basis of such studies, it may establish encroachment lines and delineate the areas subject to flood, including a classification of lands with reference to relative risk of flood and the establishment of standards for flood plain use which will safeguard the public health, safety and property. Prior to the adoption of any standards delineating such area or defining such use, the commission shall hold public hearings, in the manner provided by Article 14, with respect to the substance of such standards. At or before such public hearings the proposed standards shall be available, and all interested persons shall be given an opportunity to be heard thereon at the hearing. Upon the adoption and promulgation of such standards, the commission may enter into agreements to provide technical and financial aid to any municipal corporation for the administration and notice given by posting at the offices of the commission. The commission shall also provide forthwith for distribution of such notice to the press and by the mailing of a copy thereof to any person who shall request such notices.

(c) The minutes of the commission shall be a public record open to inspection at its offices during regular business hours.

14.5 Officers Generally.

(a) The officers of the commission shall consist of an executive director and such additional officers, deputies and assistants as the commission may determine. The executive director shall be appointed and may be removed by the affirmative vote of a majority of the full membership of the commission. All other officers and employees shall be appointed by the executive director under such rules of procedure as the commission may determine.

(b) In the appointment and promotion of officers and employees for the commission, no political, racial, religious or residence tests or qualification shall be permitted or given consideration, but all such appointments and promotions shall be solely on the basis of merit and fitness. Any officer or employee of the commission who is found by the commission to be guilty of a violation of this section shall be removed from office by the commission.

14.6 Oath of Office. An oath of office in such form as the commission shall prescribe shall be taken, subscribed and filed with the commission by the executive director and by each officer appointed by him not later than fifteen days after the appointment.

14.7 Bond. Each officer shall give such bond and in such form and amount as the commission may require for which the commission may pay the premium.

14.8 Prohibited Activities.

(a) No commissioner, officer or employee shall:

1) be financially interested, either directly or indirectly, in any contract, sale, purchase, lease or transfer of real or personal property to which the commission is a party;

2) solicit or accept money or any other thing of value in addition to the compensation or expenses paid him by the commission for services performed within the scope of his official duties;

3) offer money or any thing of value for or in consideration of obtaining an appointment, promotion or privilege in his employment with the commission.

(b) Any officer or employee who shall willfully violate any of the provisions of this section shall forfeit his office or employment.

(c) Any contract or agreement knowingly made in contravention of this section is void.

(d) Officers and employees of the commission shall be subject in addition to the provisions of this section to such criminal and civil sanctions for misconduct in office as may be imposed by federal law and the law of the signatory state in which such misconduct occurs.

14.9 Purchasing. Contract for the construction, reconstruction or improvement of any facility when the expenditure required exceeds ten thousand dollars and contracts for the purchase of services, supplies, equipment and materials when the expenditure required exceeds two thousand five hundred dollars shall be advertised and let upon sealed bids to the lowest responsible bidder. Notice requesting such bids shall be published in a manner reasonably likely to attract prospective bidders, which publication shall be made at least ten days before bids are received and in at least two newspapers of general circulation in the basin. The commission may reject any and all bids and readvertise in its discretion. If after rejecting bids the commission determines and resolves that in its opinion the supplies, equipment and materials may be purchased at a lower price in the open market, the commission may give each responsible bidder an opportunity to negotiate a price and may proceed to purchase the supplies, equipment and materials in the open market at a negotiated price which is lower than the lowest rejected bid of a responsible bidder, without further observance of the provisions requiring bids or notice. The commission shall adopt rules and regulations to provide for purchasing from the lowest responsible bidder when sealed bids, notice and publication are not required by this section. The commission may suspend and waive the provisions of this section requiring competitive bids whenever:

1) the purchase is to be made from or the contract to be made with the federal or any state government or any agency or political subdivision thereof or pursuant to any open end bulk purchase contract of any of them;

2) the public exigency requires the immediate delivery of the articles or performance of the service;

3) only one source of supply is available;

4) the equipment to be purchased is of a technical nature and the procurement thereof without advertising is necessary in order to assure standardization of equipment and interchangeability of parts in the public interest; or

5) services are to be provided of a specialized or professional nature.

14.10 Insurance. The commission may self-insure or purchase insurance and pay the premiums therefor against loss or damage to any of its properties; against liability for injury to persons or property; and against loss of revenue from any cause whatsoever. Such insurance coverage shall be in such form and amount as the commission may determine, subject to the requirements of any agreement arising out of the issuance of bonds by the commission.

14.11 Annual Independent Audit.

(a) As soon as practical after the closing of the fiscal year, an audit shall be made of the financial accounts of the commission. The audit shall be made by qualified certified public accountants selected by the commission, who have no personal interest direct or indirect in the financial affairs of the commission or any of its officers or employees. The report of audit shall be prepared in accordance with accepted accounting practices and shall be filed with the chairman and such other officers as the commission shall direct. Copies of the report shall be distributed to each commissioner and shall be made available for public distribution.

(b) Each signatory party by its duly authorized officers shall be entitled to examine and audit at any time all the books, documents, records, files and accounts and all other papers, things or property of the commission. The representatives of the signatory parties shall have access to all books, documents, records, accounts, reports, files and all other papers, things or property belonging to or in use by the commission and necessary to facilitate the audit and they shall be afforded full facilities for verifying transactions with the balances or securities held by depositaries, fiscal agents and custodians.

(c) The financial transactions of the commission shall be subject to audit by the general accounting office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commercial corporate transactions and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the comptroller general of the United States. The audit shall be conducted at the place or places where the accounts of the commission are kept.

(d) Any officer or employee who shall refuse to give all required assistance and information to the accountants selected by the commission or to the authorized officers of any signatory party or who shall refuse to submit to them for examination such books, documents, records, files, accounts, papers, things or property as may be requested shall forfeit his office.

14.12 Reports. The commission shall make and publish an annual report to the legislative bodies of the signatory parties and to the public reporting on its programs, operations and finances. It may also prepare, publish and distribute such other public reports and informational materials as it may deem necessary or desirable.

14.13 Grants, Loans or Payments by States or Political Subdivisions.

(a) Any or all of the signatory parties or any political subdivision thereof may:

1) Appropriate to the commission such funds as may be necessary to pay preliminary expenses such as the expenses incurred in the making of borings, and other studies of subsurface conditions, in the preparation of contracts for the sale of water and in the preparation of detailed plans and estimates required for the financing of a project;

2) Advance to the commission, either as grants or loans, such funds as may be necessary or convenient to finance the operation and management of or construction by the commission of any facility or project;

3) Make payments to the commission for benefits received or to be received from the operation of any of the projects or facilities of the commission.

(b) Any funds which may be loaned to the commission either by a signatory party or a political subdivision thereof shall be repaid by the commission through the issuance of bonds or out of other income of the commission, such repayment to be made within such period and upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the commission and the signatory party or political subdivision making the loan.

14.14 Condemnation Proceedings.

(a) The commission shall have the power to acquire by condemnation the fee or any lesser interest in lands, lands lying under water, development rights in land, riparian rights, water rights, waters and other real or personal property within the basin for any project or facility authorized pursuant to this compact. This grant of power of eminent domain includes but is not limited to the power to condemn for the purposes of this compact any property already devoted to a public use, by whomsoever owned or held, other than property of a signatory party and any property held, constructed, operated or maintained in connection with a diversion authorized by a United States Supreme Court decree. Any condemnation of any property or franchises owned or used by a municipal or privately owned public utility, unless the affected public utility facility is to be relocated or replaced, shall be subject to the authority of such state board, commission or other body as may have regulatory jurisdiction over such public utility.

(b) Such power of condemnation shall be exercised in accordance with the provisions of any federal law applicable to the commission; provided that if there is no such applicable federal law, condemnation proceedings shall be in accord-matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 501. This part may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 502. The Congress hereby declares that, whereas the functions of a Federal salary system are to fix salary rates for the services rendered by Federal employees so as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the Government's programs and to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and whereas fulfillment of these functions is essential to the development and maintenance of maximum proficiency in the civilian services of Government, then, accordingly, Federal salary fixing shall be based upon the principles that—

(a) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and

(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

Salary levels for the several Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated, and salary levels shall be set and henceforth adjusted in accordance with the above principles.

IMPLEMENTATION OF POLICY

SEC. 503. In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 502, the President: (1) shall direct such agency or agencies, as he deems appropriate, to prepare and submit to him annually a report which compares the rates of salary fixed by statute for Federal employees with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work in private enterprise as determined on the basis of appropriate annual surveys conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and, after seeking the views of such employee organizations as he deems appropriate and in such manner as he may provide, (2) shall report annually to the Congress (a) this comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and (b) such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structures, and compensation policy, as he deems advisable.

SEC. 504. (a) Whenever the President shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under (1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), (2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, (3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or (4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), he may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level: Provided, That in no case shall any minimum salary rate so established exceed the seventh salary rate prescribed by law for the grade or level. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency or agencies as he may designate.

(b) Within the limitations specified in subsection (a), rates of basic compensation established under such subsection may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

SEC. 505. The functions, duties, and regulations of the departments and the Civil Service Commission with respect to this title, the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, and the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38 of the United States Code relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration, shall be subject to such policies and rules as the President may issue. Among other things, the President's policies and rules may provide for—

(1) preparing and reporting to him the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates,

(2) obtaining and reporting to him the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison, and on other salary matters,

(3) reviewing and reporting to him on the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures for the Federal programs to which they apply,

(4) reviewing the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupation and local areas, and

(5) providing step-increases in recognition of high quality performance and providing for properly relating supervisory salary rates paid under one system to those of subordinates paid under another system.

TITLE II—PAY SYSTEM OF THE CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 601. This title may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962".

BASIC COMPENSATION SCHEDULES

SEC. 602. (a) Section 603(b) of the Classificaton Act of 1949, as amended (74 Stat. 298; 5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The compensation schedules for the General Schedule shall be as follows:

(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (10) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive basic compensation at the highest rate of the appropriate grade plus an amount equal to the value of the maximum within grade increment provided for that grade in effect on and after such day.

(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate, of grade 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(4) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(5) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

of this Act at the rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

(8) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate between two scheduled or two longevity rates, or between a scheduled and a longevity rate, of a grade of the General Schedule, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates, as specified in paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection, in effect on and after such day.

if such rate is less than his existing rate, (i) the lowest rate of the new schedule for his grade which equals or exceeds his existing rate or (ii) if there is no such rate, his existing rate.

(10) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such day, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

(11) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after the date of enactment of this Act, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964, as follows:

at the maximum rate for his grade, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation if such existing rate is higher.

(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and the amount of the initial increase provided by this section, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

STEP-INCREASES

SEC. 603. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

"SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

"(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

"SEC. 703. This title shall not apply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

SEC. 604. (a) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher."

(b) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

"(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is later demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.".

(c) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act, who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.".

SALARY RETENTION

SEC. 605. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

(1) by striking out "(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

(2) by striking out "(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;".

TOP GRADE POSITIONS UNDER CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SEC. 606. (a) Section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, is amended by striking out "not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine" and substituting in lieu thereof "not to exceed an aggregate of twenty-four hundred, in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades".

(b) Section 505(j) of such Act is amended by inserting after the word "positions" the following: "(in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades)".

(c) Section 505 of such Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsections:

"(k) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of ten positions of Warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).

"(l) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of eight positions of Member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b)."

CONFORMING CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

SEC. 607. (a) The following provisions of law are hereby repealed:

(1) Section 104 of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 234; 5 U.S.C. 592(d)), authorizing grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 for the position of Budget Officer of the Department of Commerce so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(2) Section 206 of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 360; 5 U.S.C. 483–2), authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the position of Director, Division of Budget and Finance, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(3) The second paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provisions" in title III of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 364; 10 U.S.C. 1335, note), authorizing the Chief of Engineers to place the position of Chief of the Programs Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Engineers for Civil Works, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(4) Section 24(d) of the Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 62; 42 U.S.C. 2521(d)), authorizing five positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 for agencies performing functions under that Act.

(5) The fourth sentence of section 3(a) of the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1120; 16 U.S.C. 742b(a)), relating to the annual salary of the Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife in the Department of the Interior, which reads: "He shall receive compensation at the same rate as that provided for grade GS–18.".

(6) That part of section 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 200; 7 U.S.C. 1857), relating to the annual salary of an agricultural surplus disposal administrator in the Department of Agriculture, which reads: ", at a salary rate of not exceeding $15,000 per annum,".

(7) Section 1102 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (63 Stat. 971; 5 U.S.C. 1073), relating to the submission of reports with respect to the rates of compensation under, and the administration of, such Act.

(b) The second proviso of the paragraph under the heading "FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM" and under the subheading "SALARIES AND EXPENSES, BUREAU OF PRISONS" in title II (the Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956) of the Departments of State and Justice, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 273; Public Law 133, Eighty-fourth Congress; 5 U.S.C. 298a) is amended by striking out "three positions" and inserting in lieu thereof "one position".

SEC. 608. (a) Each position specifically referred to in, or covered by, any repeal made by section 607(a) of this title shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, in accordance with the provisions of such Act.

(b) Positions in grade 16, 17, or 18, as the case may be, of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, immediately prior to the effective date of this section, shall remain, on and after such effective date, in their respective grades, until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect on and after such effective date.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 609. (a) The changes in existing law made by this title shall not affect any position existing immediately prior to the effective date of any such changes in existing law, the compensation attached to such position, and any incumbent thereof, his appointment thereto, and his entitlement to receive the compensation attached thereto, until appropriate action is taken in accordance with this title.

(b) The incumbent of each such position immediately prior to the effective date of this title shall continue to receive the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving immediately prior to such effective date until he leaves such position or until he is entitled to receive compensation at a higher rate in accordance with law. When such incumbent leaves such position, the rate of basic compensation of each subsequent appointee to such position shall be determined in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 610. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

TITLE III—POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYEES

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 701. This title may be cited as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962".

POSTAL FIELD SERVICE SCHEDULES

SEC. 702. Subsection (a) of section 3542 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules for positions in the postal field service which shall be known as the Postal Field Service Schedules and for which the symbol shall be 'PFS'. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Except as provided in sections 3543 and 3544 of this title, basic compensation shall be paid to all employees in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes."

(b) The first sentence of section 3543(f) of title 39

United States Code, is amended to read as follows: "In addition to the compensation provided in the Rural Carrier Schedule, each rural carrier shall be paid for equipment maintenance a sum equal to—

"(1) 12 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

"(2) $4.20 per day, whichever is greater."

(c) Section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding thereto new subsections (i) and (j) as follows:

"(i) Each person serving as a substitute of record on the effective date of this subsection shall be placed in step 2 of the Rural Carrier Schedule and he shall be advanced by step-increases, on the basis of time on the rolls prior to the effective date, in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552, except that no such person shall be so advanced to a step higher than the step to which a regular carrier with the same length of service would have advanced prior to such effective date. Thereafter, he shall be advanced by step-increases, pursuant to the provisions of sections 3552 and 3553 of this title. On and after the effective date of this subsection, each substitute rural carrier shall be paid the daily rate, based on the step attained by him, for the route on which service is performed.

"(j) Each temporary rural carrier who, on the effective date of this subsection, is serving on a vacant route pending the appointment of a regular rural carrier shall be placed in step 2 and shall be advanced by step-increases on the basis of any prior substitute or temporary rural carrier service in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552."

FOURTH CLASS OFFICE SCHEDULES

SEC. 704. (a) Section 3544(a) of title 39, United States, Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules which shall be known as the Fourth Class Office Schedules, and for which the symbol shall be 'FOS', for postmasters in post offices of the fourth class. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Each such schedule is based upon the gross postal receipts as contained in returns of the post office for the calendar year immediately preceding. Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary shall be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposes of advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment."

SEC. 705. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases

"(a)(1) Each employee in levels 1 through 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, each employee subject to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and each employee subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and,

"(B) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(2) Each employee in the postal field service in level 7 or above of the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, and 4—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service;

"(B) To steps 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and four calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and,

"(C) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(3) The receipt of an equivalent increase during any of the waiting periods specified in this subsection shall cause a new full waiting period to commence for further step-increases.

"(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law on or after the date of enactment of the Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962, to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

"(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services."

SEC. 706. Section 3554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3554. Compensation of certain temporary employees

"Temporary employees hired for a continuous period of one year or less for a position in the postal field service shall be paid basic compensation at the entrance step of the position to which they are appointed.".

SEC. 707. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3559. Promotions

"An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the rate for the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.".

SEC. 708. Subsection (a)(4) of section 6402 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) delivery and collection service may not be established or extended under a star route contract on a rural route except when such rural route does not meet the minimum standards established by the Postmaster General, and becomes vacant; and".

SEC. 709. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

"(5) 'basic salary' and 'basic compensation' mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.".

SEC. 710. Subsection 3541(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by (a) inserting in paragraph (3) thereof, after "rural carriers," the phrase "(other than substitute rural carriers,)" and (b) adding a new paragraph (5) as follows:

"(5) To compute the daily rate of basic compensation for substitute rural carriers, the annual rate of compensation shall be divided by 304.".

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER THE DATE OF ENACTMENT OF THIS ACT

SEC. 711. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to Postal Field Service Schedule I or Rural Carrier Schedule I, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees (except employees subject to section 3543(j) of title 39, United States Code) in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph.

(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1) prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a), and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule I on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER JANUARY 1, 1964

SEC. 712. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule II, Rural Carrier Schedule II, or Fourth Class Office Schedule II, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

SEC. 713. Subject to sections 711(c) and 712(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary.

BASIC SALARY IN CASES OF ASSIGNMENTS OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES

SEC. 714. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: "The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.".

(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b). if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment. Payments of increases validated by this subsection shall be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267).

SALARY PROTECTION REVISION

SEC. 715. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,".

(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and".

(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting "; or" in lieu of such period, and

(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.".

(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date of enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

RULES FOR SPECIAL COMPENSATION

SEC. 716. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106 as follows:

"§ 3106. Special compensation rules

"In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may, within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase."

PERSONNEL REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 717. (a) Section 3301 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3301. Personnel requirements

"The Postmaster General shall determine the personnel requirements of the postal field service, and fix the number of supervisors and other employees in that service, except that there may not be at any one time more than one assistant postmaster employed at any post office or a total of 70 employees assigned to salary levels 18, 19, and 20 in the postal field service."

(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word "Provided," the following: "That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950 shall not be chargeable to this limitation: And provided further,".

CONFORMING AMENDMENT

SEC. 718. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after the heading entitled "EMPLOYEES GENERALLY", the following:

"3106. Special compensation rules".

(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting "3558. Longevity step-increases".

REPEALS

SEC. 719. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296, Public Law 86-568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 720. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, except that section 712 (conversion rules for second postal field service salary increases) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 801. (a) Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended by striking out the words "not to exceed eight Assistant Chief Medical Directors" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated to suit the needs of the Department,".

(b) Such section is further amended by striking out subsections (d) to (i), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid a salary of $20,000 a year.

"One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid a salary of $18,500 minimum to $19,500 maximum a year.

"(f) The Director of Nursing Service shall be a qualified registered nurse, appointed by the Administrator, and shall be responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operation of the Nursing Service. During the period of service as such, the Director of Nursing Service shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(g) The Administrator may appoint a chief pharmacist and a chief dietitian. During the period of his service as such, the chief pharmacist and the chief dietitian shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(h) Except as provided in subsection (j), any appointment under this section shall be for a period of four years but persons so appointed shall be subject to removal by the Administrator for cause.

"(i) Reappointments may be made for successive like periods.

"(j) The Administrator may designate a member of the Chaplain Service of the Veterans' Administration as Director, Chaplain Service, for a period of two years, subject to removal by the Administrator for cause. During the period that any such member serves as Director, Chaplain Service, he shall be paid a salary, as determined by the Administrator, within the minimum and maximum salary limitations prescribed for grade GS–15 positions by the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Redesignations under this subsection may be made for successive like periods. An individual designated as Director, Chaplain Service, shall at the end of his period of service as Director revert to the position, grade, and status which he held immediately prior to being designated Director, Chaplain Service, and all service as Director, Chaplain Service, shall be creditable as service in the former position."

PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, AND NURSES

SEC. 802. Section 4107 of such title 38 relating to the minimum and maximum rates of annual salary of certain physicians, dentists, and nurses of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration is amended to read as follows:

"§ 4107. Grades and pay scales

"Assistant United States attorneys and attorneys appointed under section 503 of this title—not more than $17,500."

(b) The rates of basic compensation of assistant United States attorneys whose basic salaries are fixed by section 508 of title 28, United States Code, shall be increased by 7½ per centum effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

EMPLOYEES IN THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

SEC. 1004. (a) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in or under the judicial branch of the Government whose rates of compensation are fixed by or pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision a of section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. 102(a)(2)), section 3656 of title 18 of the United States Code, the third sentence of section 603, section 604(a)(5), or section 672 to 675, inclusive, of title 28 of the United States Code, or section 107(a)(6) of the Act of July 31, 1956, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2206 (a)(6)), are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(b) The limitations provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EMPLOYEES IN THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

SEC. 1005. (a) Each officer and employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be paid additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of his gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law).

(b) The basic compensation of each employee in the office of a Senator is hereby adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, to the lowest multiple of $60 which will provide a gross rate of compensation not less than the gross rate such employee was receiving immediately prior thereto, except that the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of any employee if on or before the fifteenth day following the date of enactment of this Act the Senator by whom such employee is employed notifies the disbursing office of the Senate in writing that he does not wish such provisions to apply to such employee. In any case in which, at the expiration of the time within which a Senator may give notice under this subsection, such Senator is deceased such notice shall be deemed to have been given.

(c) Notwithstanding the provision referred to in subsection (d), the rates of gross compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (except the Presiding Officer of the Senate), the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate, the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the Senior Counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate are hereby increased by 7 per centum.

(d) The paragraph imposing limitations on basic and gross compensation of officers and employees of the Senate appearing under the heading "SENATE" in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (74 Stat. 304; P. L. 86–568), is amended to read as follows:

"No officer or employee whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of $8,880 per annum, or gross compensation at a rate in excess of $18,880 per annum, unless expressly authorized by law."

(e) The limitation on gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the Senate is hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. The provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall not apply to employees whose compensation is subject to such limitation.

(f) Each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of the rate of his total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section.

(g) The limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives are hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of each such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

(h) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following).

(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by this section, and no increase provided by this section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

SAVING PROVISION

SEC. 1006. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

ABSORPTION OF COSTS

SEC. 1007. (a) The departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions.

(b) No request for additional or supplemental appropriations to meet the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act shall be transmitted to the Congress unless it is accompanied by a certification of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget that the amounts requested are necessary to provide for the continued execution of essential functions of the department, agency, or corporation concerned.

(c) Pursuant to the objective of this section, heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignation, retirement, or death and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions.

(d) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1008. Except as otherwise expressly provided, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

CEILING PROVISION

SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

SEC. 1101. The annuity of each person who, on the effective date of this section, is receiving or entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity.

(b) The annuity of each person who receives or is entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund commencing during the period which begins on the day following the effective date of this section and ends five years after such date, shall be increased in accordance with the following table:

If the annuity commences between—	The annuity shall be increased by—
January 2, 1963, and December 31, 1963	4 per centum
January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1964	3 per centum
January 1, 1965, and December 31, 1965	2 per centum
January 1, 1966, and December 31, 1966	1 per centum

(c) In lieu of any other increase provided by this section, the annuity of a survivor of a retired employee or Member of Congress who received an increase under this section shall be increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which the annuity of such employee or Member was so increased.

(d) No increase provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

(e) The limitation reading "or (3) the sum necessary to increase such annuity, exclusive of annuity purchased by voluntary contributions under the second paragraph of section 10 of this Act, to $2,160" contained in section 8(c)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended by the Acts of July 16, 1952 (66 Stat. 722; Public Law 555, Eighty-second Congress), and August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1043; Public Law 747, Eighty-third Congress), shall not be effective on or after the effective date of this section.

(f) The limitation contained in the next to the last sentence of section 8(d)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, as enacted by the Act of August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 692; Public Law 369, Eighty-fourth Congress), shall not be effective on and after the effective date of this section.

(g) The increases provided by this section shall take effect on the effective date of this section, except that any increase under subsection (b) or (c) shall take effect on the beginning date of the annuity.

(h) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.

SEC. 1102. (a) Section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(t) The term 'price index' shall mean the annual average over a calendar year of the Consumer Price Index (all items—United States city average) published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics."

(b) Such Act is further amended by redesignating section 18 as 19, and by inserting after section 17 the following new section:

"COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

"SEC. 18. (a) After January 1, 1964, and after each succeeding January 1, the Commission shall determine the per centum change in the price index from the later of 1962 or the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. On the basis of such Commission determination, the following adjustments shall be made:

"(1) Effective April 1, 1964, if the change in the price index from 1962 to 1963 shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2, 1963, shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(2) Effective April 1 of any year other than 1964 after the price index change shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2 of the preceding year shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(b) Eligibility for an annuity increase under this section shall be governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable from the fund as of the effective date of an increase, except as follows:

"(1) Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commenced the day after the annuitant's death, shall be increased as provided in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) if the commencing date of annuity to the annuitant was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

"(2) Effective from its commencing date, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commences the day after the annuitant's death and after the effective date of the first increase under this section, shall be increased by the total per centum increase the annuitant was receiving under this section at death.

"(3) For purposes of computing an annuity which commences after the effective date of the first increase under this section to a child under section 10(d), the items $600, $720, $1,800, and $2,160 appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section, and, in case of a deceased annuitant, the items 40 per centum and 50 per centum appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section to the annuitant at death.

Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply as if such first increase were in effect with respect to computation of a child's annuity under section 10(d) which commenced between January 2 of the year preceding the first increase and the effective date of the first increase.

"(c) No increase in annuity provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"(d) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar."

SEC. 1103. (a) Section 9(g) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The annuity as hereinbefore provided (excluding any increase because of retirement under section 7) for any married employee or Member retiring under this Act, or any portion of such annuity designated in writing for purposes of section 10(a)(1), shall be reduced by 2½ per centum of so much thereof as does not exceed $3,600 and by 10 per centum of so much thereof as exceeds $3,600, unless the employee or Member notifies the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in section 10(a)(1)."

(b) Section 10(a)(1) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(1) If an employee or Member dies after having retired under any provision of this Act and is survived by a wife or husband to whom the employee or Member was married at the time of retirement, such wife or husband shall be paid an annuity equal to 55 per centum of an annuity computed as provided in subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 9, as may apply with respect to the annuitant, or of such portion thereof as may have been designated in writing for such purpose by the employee or Member at the time of retirement, unless the employee or Member has notified the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive such annuity."

(c) Section 10(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(d) Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(e) Section 10(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: "or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have attained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim."

(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: "The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, (2) his becoming capable of self-support after age eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one."

(C) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the benefits resulting from enactment of this amendment shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund.

SEC. 1104. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the benefits made payable under the Civil Service Retirement Act by reason of the enactment of this part shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund.

SEC. 1105. Section 1101 of this part shall take effect on January 1, 1963. The amendments made by section 1103 shall not apply in the case of employees or Members retired or otherwise separated prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and the rights of such persons and their survivors shall continue in the same manner and to the same extent as if these amendments had not been enacted.

Passed the House of Representatives January 24, 1962.

Attest: RALPH R. ROBERTS,
Clerk.

Passed the Senate with an amendment September 27, 1962.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 87th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 108 WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1962 No. 176

House of Representatives

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor, People's Church, Chicago, Ill., offered the following prayer:

Infinite and Eternal Father, we are grateful that in a world bewitched by hatred, tortured by religious and racial animosities, there is this deliberative assembly trying to give proper evaluation and perspective to the great problems of our time.

We ask Thy blessing upon it and upon every Member of this House. May we ever be sensitive to the responsibilities which are upon us in this fragile hour in the history of the world.

We are grateful most of all for the opportunity which is presented to us in this greatest and most important parliamentary body of the world. We must stand for that which is honorable and right and just. May we respect each other's loyalties and find a great common denominator upon which we can build and find our way back again to dignity, to greatness, and to peace.

In the spirit of love we pray, and for love's dear sake. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. McGown, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills, joint resolutions, and a concurrent resolution of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 310. An act to amend title 10, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of Defense, the Secretaries of the military departments, and the Secretary of the Treasury to settle certain claims for damage to, or loss of, property, or personal injury or death, not cognizable under any other law;

H.R. 2952. An act to direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey certain public lands in the State of California to the city of Needles;

H.R. 5423. An act to amend title 10, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to take possession of the naval oil shale reserves, and for other purposes;

H.R. 11887. An act to provide for the conveyance of all right, title, and interest of the United States reserved or retained in certain lands heretofore conveyed to the city of El Paso, Tex.;

H.J. Res. 659. Joint resolution granting consent of the Congress to a compact entered into between the State of Maryland and the Commonwealth of Virginia for the creation of the Potomac River compact of 1958;

H.J. Res. 693. Joint resolution granting the consent and approval of Congress for the State of Maryland, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the District of Columbia to amend the Washington metropolitan area transit regulation compact, and for other purposes; and

H. Con. Res. 569. Concurrent resolution authorizing the Clerk of the House to make a correction in the enrollment of H.R. 10.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, bills of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 8556. An act to amend the National Science Foundation Act of 1950 to require certain additional information to be filed by an applicant for a scholarship or fellowship, and for other purposes; and H.R. 11793. An act to provide criminal penalties for trafficking in phonograph records bearing forged or counterfeit labels.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 2683. An act for the relief of Laszlo Janos Buchwald;

S. 2928. An act for the relief of Seymour K. Owens;

S. 3453. An act for the relief of Dr. Felix Nabor Sabates; and

S. 3600. An act for the relief of Chao Hua-Hsin.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the amendments of the House to a bill of the Senate of the following title:

S. 919. An act to amend section 9(b) of the act entitled "An act to prevent pernicious political activities" (the Hatch Political Activities Act) to eliminate the requirement that the Civil Service Commission impose no penalty less than 90 days' suspension for any violation of section 9 of the act.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 10) entitled "An act to encourage the establishment of voluntary pension plans by self-employed individuals."

POSTAGE REVISION ACT OF 1962

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates and for other purposes, together with the Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment and request a conference with the Senate thereon.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

Mr. HECHLER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I am sure the gentleman from Tennessee appreciates the strong feelings of the House in respect to the 3½-cent rate on circulars for third-class matter which was voted by the House in January. I shall not object, but I am sure the gentleman appreciates the strong feeling in the House on that aspect of the bill. The people of the country are up in arms against the junk mail which crams their mailboxes, and they resent the fact that the Federal Government subsidizes this form of advertising through absurdly low third-class rates. I withdraw my reservation, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I do so initially for the purpose of raising a point of order, the point of order being that H.R. 7927 contains a pay increase bill which has never been considered by the House of Representatives, involving some $1 billion.

Mr. Speaker, I invoke rule XX which provides as follows, paragraph 1:

Any amendment of the Senate to any House bill shall be subject to the point of order that it shall first be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union if, originating in the House, it would be subject to that point of order.

Mr. Speaker, this rule was adopted in 1880 to prevent a practice by which Senate amendments of the class described had escaped consideration in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Speaker, a Senate amendment which is a modification merely of a House proposition like the increase or decrease of the amount of an appropriation, and does not involve new and distinct expenditures, is not required to be considered by the Committee of the Whole. But where the question was raised against the Senate amendment, which on its face apparently placed a charge upon the Treasury, the Speaker held it devolved upon those opposing the point of order to cite proof to the contrary.

Mr. Speaker, I further call attention to rule XXIII, paragraph 3, entitled "Bills Required To Be Considered in Committee of the Whole." Rule XXIII, paragraph 3, provides:

All motions or propositions involving a tax or charge upon the people, all proceedings touching appropriations of money, or bills making appropriations of money or property, or requiring such appropriation to be made, or authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, or releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, or referring any claim to the Court of Claims, shall be first considered in a Committee of the Whole, and a point of order under this rule shall be good at any time before the consideration of a bill has commenced.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that the regular prescribed order under the rules is for the Speaker to refer such propositions as H.R. 7927 to the standing committee having jurisdiction.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that the rules mentioned by the gentleman from Iowa are not involved at the present time. The matter before the House is the unanimous-consent request to send a bill to conference. The unanimous-consent request, if granted, would waive all rules mentioned by the gentleman from Iowa.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER. Objection is heard.

TRIBUTE TO DR. PRESTON BRADLEY

(Mr. O'HARA of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. O'HARA of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, something unusual happened in Chicago and in Illinois a week ago today. By proclamation of Mayor Richard J. Daley, September 21 was made Preston Bradley Day in Chicago. By proclamation of Gov. Otto Kerner, September 21 was made Preston Bradley Day in Illinois. That evening 500 leaders in every activity of a great city and a great State met together in tribute and in honor to the Reverend Dr. Preston Bradley. Today we have with us, by invitation of our next Speaker and our beloved Chaplain, Preston Bradley, as Chaplain for a day of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States.

Preston Bradley came to Chicago from his native Michigan and in 1912 began preaching independently on the north side of Chicago. I think there were not more than 40 or 50 in his flock. At the end of his first year of ministry some of us, not members of his flock but who were close to him in association at the Press Club in Chicago, joined in sponsoring a little dinner there in his honor. Henry Horner, later Governor of Illinois, Frank Comerford, later a judge in our courts, and I were of that number. That little dinner was 49 years ago. I thought back to it last week when in Chicago and Illinois the day was being proclaimed as Preston Bradley Day and in the evening there was held in celebration of 50 years of a remarkable ministry, one of Chicago's largest banquets.

The little church that Preston Bradley started in 1912 now is housed in a building costing close to $1 million and with a membership running into the thousands. The voice of Preston Bradley for many years has gone into the homes of Chicago and of Illinois over the radio and TV. No man has ever made a larger, more penetrating spiritual impress upon a community, a city, and a State.

For all my colleagues in this historic body, I extend to Preston Bradley an expression of our appreciation of him and our every good wish for every good fortune in the years of fruitful service ahead.

DR. PRESTON BRADLEY

(Mr. MURPHY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join with my colleague, the distinguished gentleman from Illinois [Mr. O'HARA], to pay my respects to a great American; namely, Dr. Preston Bradley, of the People's Church of Chicago. I have been a personal friend of Dr. Bradley for a period of 30 years and am thoroughly aware of his many accomplishments in behalf of the city of Chicago.

In my 24 years as a member of the City Council of Chicago it has been my privilege to be associated with him in many programs for the welfare and betterment of the city of Chicago, such as juvenile delinquency, redevelopment, and housing. He was not only a great spiritual leader and civic leader but was admired by many people interested in athletics as was indicated by a well-known organization known as the Old Timers, which held an annual dinner at the Conrad-Hilton Hotel to pay respect to outstanding athletes in the field of professional baseball, football, and basketball by being the annual principal speaker for a period of 20 consecutive years.

Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate Dr. Preston Bradley on 50 years of spiritual guidance to the people of the city of Chicago, and his great contribution to the civic accomplishments in behalf of the city of Chicago.

I pray to God that He will allow Dr. Bradley carry on his great work for many years.

DR. PRESTON BRADLEY

(Mr. FINNEGAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FINNEGAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to join my good friends, the gentlemen from Illinois, BARRETT O'HARA and BILL MURPHY, in extending greetings of the day to Dr. Bradley. I am fortunate in the fact that Dr. Bradley is a member of the political organization of which I am a member in the city of Chicago, that he is a resident and has his church in the middle of my present district and in the new district as it will be in the fall.

I have always known Dr. Bradley as a leader of youth and a spiritual leader on the North Side of Chicago. He has been admired by everyone over the years.

I remember him in an early day when he was ready and willing at all times to proceed on any civic question, to take the platform for it, and he has been doing it as of the latest date.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Dr. Bradley on reaching his 50th year in the ministry. I wish I had been able to be present when they celebrated Dr. Bradley Day in Chicago on September 21.

THE LORD'S LIGHT SHINES THROUGH THE WORDS OF DR. PRESTON BRADLEY

(Mr. LIBONATI asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point.)

Mr. LIBONATI. Mr. Speaker, the Members of the House had the honor and privilege of hearing in prayer one of the Lord's most profound ministers of divinity whose dedication in life is to advance humanitarian causes. The People's Church in Chicago is the house of refuge for believers in the redemption of the human race through prayer and the realistic practice of the doctrine of faith, hope, and charity in everyday life.

Dr. Preston Bradley personifies the spirit of benevolence that imbued the Good Samaritan—human frailties shall be measured in the spirit of human kindness and overcome by the virtues of love, to instill confidence and interest and to give courage and hope.

As a churchman and orator, Dr. Preston Bradley has enjoyed international renown. The city of Chicago is the proud recipient of his great work for good. Its people are proud of his works both in the pulpit and in his authorship on public questions that affect the morality and civic responsibility of the citizenry.

The members of the Chicago delegation of the Congress are especially proud of Dr. Preston Bradley's contribution to the good name of Chicago in his many travels to foreign shores and the British Isles. It was a signal honor and memorable event to participate with him in the opening prayer this morning—the

H. RES. 818

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

OCTOBER 1, 1962

Mr. MURRAY submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to

RESOLUTION

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the bill H.R. 7927, with the Senate amendment thereto, be, and the same hereby is, taken from the Speaker's table, to the end that the Senate amendment be, and the same hereby is, disagreed to and a conference is requested with the Senate upon the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

87TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. RES. 818

RESOLUTION

Relating to the bill H.R. 7927, the House disagreement to the Senate amendments thereto, and a request for a conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

By Mr. MURRAY

OCTOBER 1, 1962
Considered and agreed to Constitution. That was their prime purpose.

I submit that we would be making a tragic mistake if, in this critical hour in our international affairs, we should tie President Kennedy's hands or tie any President's hands by these limitations.

I stood on this floor and argued for Dwight Eisenhower time after time with respect to aid to Poland and aid to Yugoslavia. And that was not popular. It is not popular now. I think I was right then, and I think President Eisenhower was right then, and I think Foster Dulles was right then.

I argue now for the President of the United States to be given at least the same authority under conditions which are no less grave than they were then.

What does the amendment provide? It states the policy of Congress. It says to the President and to the Secretary, "Look, stop this business of aid to these countries which assist in any way this Cuban regime of Mr. Castro and his kind. That country has been taken over, for all practical purposes now, by the Communists."

It also says to the President, "If, perchance, you feel it is in the national interest or important for our national security that you must make some exceptions"——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time yielded by the Senator from Minnesota has expired.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 more minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator may proceed for 2 additional minutes.

Mr. HUMPHREY. The amendment says to the President, "If you feel there should be some exception, then you will report to the Congress of the United States, through its appropriate committees."

We are asked to change that so that the report will be made public.

We are laying down the mandate. The President knows the views of this Congress. The Secretary of State is negotiating every hour of the day to do something about this problem. As was said earlier today, we have allies, rather than satellites.

I do not like to provide aid to dictators, but I remember the time when the question of aid for Spain came up, and I voted for it. The first time it came before the Senate I did not vote for it, and I was wrong. The second time it came up, I voted for it. I will tell Senators why. It was because I thought it was important to the security of this country that we have bases in Spain. I still do. I will support that aid.

I think one must sometimes put bigger issues ahead of what seem to be immediate concerns.

If the Senate strikes the committee proposal language from the bill, then the language will not be in conference and there will be nothing we can do about it. For all practical purposes, we then will have said to the President of the United States, "Scrap your allies. Scrap your alliances. Get in trouble not only with Cuba but also with every friend this country has."

We are making progress under existing diplomacy. I think that what the Congress is now seeking to tell the President is, "Mr. President, press your case with respect to cutting off these shipments."

The senior Senator from Minnesota stood on the floor of the Senate as one of the first to raise the issue. I have raised this issue again and again, even with the Secretary of State, as I did earlier today when I attended the breakfast meeting. I told the State Department representatives I did not think they were active enough, that something more needed to be done, that we needed a stronger policy. But I would not put such a provision in the law as would shackle the President of the United States.

I submit that we should give our President the opportunity to be the chief spokesman of our foreign affairs. Let us give him the opportunity to be Commander in Chief. But if we desire to take over those duties, let us say so. Then God bless America when and if the Legislative body starts to become the diplomatic body, the foreign policy body, of our country.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. BUSH. Mr. President, will the Chair state the question so that Senators will understand what they are voting on?

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. HUMPHREY. If it is the desire of the Senate, and Senators individually, to support the language which was prepared and adopted by the Committee on Appropriations, the vote should be "yea."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. HUMPHREY. If it is the desire of the Senate to repudiate the Committee on Appropriations and support the language of the House of Representatives, the vote should be "nay."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment before the Senate will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 7, beginning with line 3, it is proposed to strike the language down to and including line 23 on page 7.

Beginning with page 7, line 24, insert the language down to and including line 6 on page 9.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment stated. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD (when his name was called). Mr. President, on this vote I have a pair with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. MCCLELLAN]. If he were present and voting, he would vote "nay." If I were at liberty to vote, I would vote "yea." I therefore withhold my vote.

The rollcall was concluded.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ], the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK], the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE], the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Ohio [Mr. LAUSCHE], the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. MCCLELLAN], the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY], and the Senator from Oregon [Mrs. NEUBERGER] are absent on official business.

I further announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], and the Senator from Wyomng [Mr. HICKEY] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL] would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ] is paired with the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT]. If present and voting, the Senator from New Mexico would vote "yea," and the Senator from Utah would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK] is paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART]. If present and voting, the Senator from Pennsylvania would vote "yea," and the Senator from Indiana would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS] is paired with the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON]. If present and voting, the Senator from Illinois would vote "yea," and the Senator from Kentucky would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. GORE] is paired with the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING]. If present and voting, the Senator from Tennessee would vote "yea," and the Senator from Alaska would vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Oregon [Mrs. NEUBERGER] is paired with the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM]. If present and voting, the Senator from Oregon would vote "yea," and the Senator from South Dakota would vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. COTTON], the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN], the Senator from Maryland [Mr. BUTLER], the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON], the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY], the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SCOTT], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWERS], are necessarily absent.

If present and voting, the Senator from Maryland [Mr. BUTLER], the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROUTY], the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SCOTT], and the Senator from Texas [Mr. TOWER] would each vote "nay."

On this vote, the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT] is paired with the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ]. If present and voting, the Senator from Utah would vote "nay," and the Senator from New Mexico would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART] is paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLARK]. If present and voting, the Senator from Indiana would vote "nay," and the Senator from Pennsylvania would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON] is paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS]. If present and voting, the Senator from Kentucky would vote "nay," and the Senator from Illinois would vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. BOTTUM] is paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mrs. NEUBERGER]. If present and voting, the Senator from South Dakota would vote "nay," and the Senator from Oregon would vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 39, nays 36, as follows:

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had disagreed to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes; asked a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. MURRAY, Mr. MORRISON, and Mr. CORBETT were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEE SALARY ACT OF 1962

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives announcing its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendment, agree to the request of the House for a conference, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. JOHNSTON, Mr. MONRONEY, and Mr. CARLSON conferees on the part of the Senate.

A REPORT ON SOUTH VIETNAM

Mr. JACKSON. Mr. President, Hon. Roger Hilsman made what I consider a most significant and helpful speech on South Vietnam and problems of guerrilla warfare, at the American Hospital Association Meeting, Chicago, Ill., on September 18.

Mr. Hilsman speaks with authority from first-hand experience with the art of guerrilla warfare in the Far East in World War II and as the able and vigorous Director of Intelligence and Research in the Department of State.

I recommend his speech for wide reading and serious consideration as an outstanding statement of the problems we confront in South Vietnam and of the programs being fashioned to meet them.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of his speech be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the speech was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

A REPORT ON SOUTH VIETNAM

(Remarks by Hon. Roger Hilsman, director of intelligence and research, Department of State, at the American Hospital Association meeting, Chicago, Ill., September 18, 1962)

In the period when Mr. Acheson was Secretary of State and General Marshall was Secretary of Defense, it is said that the two men had a special understanding.

Whenever anyone said, "This is a purely military problem," or "This is a purely political or diplomatic problem," then whoever said it had to leave the room.

In South Vietnam we are confronted with an extraordinary example of the way military decision and action are interdependent with many other decisions and enterprises. The war there is a guerrilla war and the successful means of countering guerrilla war are as much political as military, for the long-run task is nation building.

This guerrilla war is a form of hidden Communist aggression, an internal war, if you will. As President Kennedy has said, "their aggression is more often concealed than open. They have fired no missiles; and their troops are seldom seen. They send arms, agitators, aid, technicians and propaganda to every troubled area. But where fighting is required, it is usually done by others—by guerrillas striking at night, by assassins striking alone—assassins who have taken the live of 4,000 civil officers in the last 12 months in Vietnam alone—by subversives and saboteurs and insurrectionists, who in some cases control whole areas inside of independent nations."

This war in the shadows may well be one of the most decisive battles of our time. My subject is a report on one of these shadow wars, the one in South Vietnam, and I would like to start by giving you my outline; there is a guerrilla war in South Vietnam, so I would like, first, to say something about guerrilla warfare in general—the conditions in which it arises and a strategic concept for fighting against it. Second, I would like to tell you how these ideas are being applied in South Vietnam. And, finally, I'd like to give you a report on how things are going there in South Vietnam.

There is something about guerrilla warfare which gives rise to legends. It is part of the operation, in fact, to see that the enemy is full of rumors which keep him in the dark as to facts.

But in appraising the uses of guerrilla tactics we should certainly try to separate legends from realities.

So it seems useful to begin with the elementary observation that guerrilla warfare is possible only in two very special sets of circumstances:

The first is, when the main body of the enemy is otherwise engaged. When France was occupied by the Germans in World War II, virtually the entire population hated the Nazis. There was a well-organized and supplied guerrilla movement—the Maquis. But so long as the German armies had nothing else to do, the French guerrillas could not be effective. There were many individual acts of sabotage and violence, but not much else. At any time that a small guerrilla band attacked, the Germans could counter with overwhelming force.

But after D-day, when the German divisions were fully engaged in fighting the Allies, the Maquis became a formidable and effective force.

The second set of circumstances is now the more usual setting for guerrillas when they operate in the emerging, still developing countries of the world. In much of the world today, the different communities that make up what we think of as nation-states are isolated from the central government—isolated by lack of communications or by the terrain, as in mountains, islands, or the desert, but more importantly isolated in a psychological and political sense.

The basic situation in many underdeveloped areas is that the villages are turned inward on themselves. The people are living there as they have for hundreds of years, with few ties to their government. They appear rarely to have strong political convictions one way or another. In my personal experience in southeast Asia during World War II where a few of us in the OSS were sent behind the enemy lines to organize bands of guerrillas against the Japanese, it seemed to us that perhaps 10 percent of the people had some sympathies for our side and perhaps 10 percent had some sympathies for the Japanese. But 80 percent of the populace did not have much awareness of the struggle being fought out in their country. Much less did they have ideological convictions. Even with white faces we recruited a guerrilla force that was larger in numbers than the Communist guerrilla force in South Vietnam today.

My point is that in these underdeveloped, but at the same time ancient cultures, the villagers are isolated from each other and from the central government in a way that we in the West are not equipped by our experience to understand. The villagers are turned inward on themselves and identify not with the nation but often only with their family, clan, and village.

Let me illustrate my point.

Recently some friends of mine made a tour of the border areas of such a country. They visited 40 villages. In 10 of these vil-tory, possession, the District of Columbia, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and another State, Territory, possession, the District of Columbia, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

(2) The term "motor vehicle" means any other vehicle or machine propelled or drawn by mechanical power and used on the highways principally in the transportation of passengers.

(3) The term "seat belt" means any strap, webbing, or similar device designed to secure a passenger in a motor vehicle in order to mitigate the results of any accident, including all necessary buckles, and other fasteners, and all hardware designed for installing such seat belt in a motor vehicle.

SEC. 4. This Act shall take effect on the date of its enactment except that section 2 shall take effect on such date as the Secretary of Commerce shall determine but such date shall be not less than one hundred and eighty days nor more than one year after the date of publication of standards first established under the first section of this Act. If such standards first established are thereafter changed, such standards as so changed shall take effect on such date as the Secretary of Commerce shall determine but such date shall be not less than one hundred and eighty days nor more than one year after the date of their publication in accordance with the provisions of the first section of this Act.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 1, line 4, after the word "Register", insert "minimum".

The committee amendment was agreed to.

(Mr. ROBERTS of Alabama asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. ROBERTS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 134 is a safety measure which will reduce the highway accident death toll. This is accomplished by establishing Federal safety standards for automobile seat belts manufactured for sale or offered for sale in interstate commerce.

The standards would be established by the Secretary of Commerce.

Enactment of the bill is favored by the Department of Commerce and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Bureau of the Budget has no objection to enactment of the legislation. Hearings were held by the Subcommittee on Health and Safety, August 17, 1962, and have been printed.

In recent years, due to educational campaigns carried on by the American Medical Association, the National Safety Council, the U.S. Public Health Service, the Advertising Council, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the automobile manufacturers, other national groups, and many local organizations such as chambers of commerce, there has been a phenomenal increase in the sale and use of seat belts.

Safety experts are greatly pleased with this. But one development has cast a shadow on the program.

Automobile seat belts of inferior quality and design have been placed on the market in response to the growing public interest in automotive safety devices. There is no way to determine exactly how many substandard seat belts are now being used by unsuspecting motorists, but the number will increase unless, and until, there is some means to establish adequate standards, such as provided in this bill.

It would appear both desirable and necessary to protect the public from inferior and unsafe seat belts placed on the market by some manufacturers and dealers who are more concerned with profit than with the public safety. The vast majority of seat belt manufacturers are maintaining high standards of quality. Unfortunately, however, a newly created public demand for a product often results in the marketing of substandard equipment.

The States have traditionally exercised regulatory authority of motor vehicle safety features, and there may be some question as to the entry of the Federal Government into the field of the automotive safety standards.

However, as the President pointed out in his March 15, 1962, message on consumer protection and interest program, consumers have a right to be protected against the marketing of goods which are hazardous to health or life. The President made clear that the Federal Government has a responsibility to consumers in the exercise of this right and that additional legislation would be required in some fields for the Federal Government to meet such responsibilities.

Federal standards have been established in other areas of public safety. The Federal Aviation Agency has promulgated standards governing certain aircraft equipment. In the trucking field certain technical requirements have been established by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

H.R. 134 provides for similar action by the Department of Commerce on seat belt standards.

The Secretary should have no difficulty in complying with the provisions of this legislation. Standards have been established by the Society of Automotive Engineers and by the General Services Administration.

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce believes that enactment of H.R. 134 would be in the public interest. Its purpose is to assure purchasers of seat belts sold or offered for sale in interstate commerce that the belts conform to reasonable safety standards designed to make them adequate for the purpose for which they are intended.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to House Resolution 818.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the bill H.R. 7927, with the Senate amendment thereto, be, and the same hereby is, taken from the Speaker's table, to the end that the Senate amendment be, and the same hereby is, disagreed to and a conference is requested with the Senate upon the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

The SPEAKER. Is a second demanded?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GROSS. At what point, if any, would a point of order to invoke rule XX be in order in the consideration of this bill? Would it be in order now, or if the motion to suspend the rules is adopted, would it be in order then?

The SPEAKER. In response to the inquiry of the gentleman from Iowa, the Chair will say that it is not in order on a motion to suspend the rules. If the rules are suspended, the point of order then is too late.

Is a second demanded?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

There was no objection.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, last January 24 the House passed by a strong voice vote H.R. 7927, to place in effect long overdue postal rate adjustments necessary to wipe out the $800 million postal deficit.

The House-passed bill would increase postal revenues by $691 million in first-, second-, and third-class mail. Most of the remaining deficit is due to losses in fourth-class, or parcel post mailings and the Postmaster General is required by law to petition the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate adjustments in that class sufficient to place it on a pay-as-you-go basis, with only 4 percent variation permitted.

The other body has amended H.R. 7927 and made three major changes in the House bill.

The first such change is in postage rates for second-class commercial publications and in the minimum per piece rate for third-class advertising bulk mailings.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. JOHANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). Evidently a quorum is not present.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 254]

The SPEAKER. On this rollcall 336 Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

TO AMEND SECTION 502 OF THE MERCHANT MARINE ACT, 1936, AS AMENDED

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 11586) to amend section 502 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. BONNER, DOWNING, CASEY, TOLLEFSON, and PELLY.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MURRAY].

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, the second such change is the addition of a modified form of the President's official request for reformation of the four major Federal statutory salary systems.

The third such change is the addition of language to liberalize existing civil service retirement annuities and survivor benefits by 5 percent, to provide for future annuity adjustments whenever the consumer price index of the Bureau of Labor statistics has risen by 3 percent or more, and to grant certain other retirement benefits.

As to postal rates, the bill as passed by both Houses increases rates on first-class letters from 4 cents to 5 cents, cards and drop letters from 3 cents to 4 cents, airmail letters from 7 cents to 8 cents, and airmail cards from 5 cents to 6 cents. These adjustments will increase postal revenues by $454 million—approximately 75 percent of the total revenue increase under the Senate bill and 66 percent of the total under the House bill.

The chief differences between the House and Senate postal rate provisions are in regular second-class publications beyond county and in the third-class bulk rate minimum charge per piece.

In second-class mail, the House bill applies to each copy of a regular commercial publication sent beyond county a fixed charge of one-half cent for the first year after enactment and 1 cent thereafter. The Senate amendment strikes this fixed charge and, in lieu thereof, adjusts existing pound zone rates in three annual increments. Editorial matter would receive three successive 4-percent increases, and advertising material would receive three successive increases totaling, for the various zones, from 10 percent to 33⅓ percent in the third year. The House bill would increase second-class postal revenues by a total of $53.4 million, but the Senate amendment would increase such revenues by only $25.1 million, a difference of $28.3 million.

As to third-class mail, the House bill increases the minimum charge per piece on bulk commercial mailings of circulars, books, catalogs, and so forth, from 2½ cents to 3½ cents in one stage. The Senate amendment increases such bulk minimum per piece charge to 2⅝ cents in 1963, to 2¾ cents in 1964, and to 2⅞ cents thereafter. Increased revenue from third-class mail under the House bill would be $161.9 million—most of it imediately available in the first year—while the Senate amendment would increase revenues from third-class mail by only $97.2 million spread over a 3-year period—a difference of $64.7 million when all new rates are in effect.

The House bill makes no increase in rates on either second- or third-class mailings of nonprofit organizations or classroom publications. The Senate amendment increases the pound rate on such publications from 1½ cents to 1.6 cents in 1963, to 1.7 cents in 1964, and to 1.8 cents in 1965. It also requires classroom publications to pay 60 percent of regular commercial rates, in lieu of their existing rates of 1½ cents per pound on editorial matter and zone rates on advertising subject to one-eighth cent minimum per copy.

In view of the material differences between H.R. 7927 as passed by the House and as passed by the Senate, I strongly recommend adoption of the resolution to send this bill to conference.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 minutes.

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, when the distinguished chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, the Honorable TOM MURRAY, sought unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table H.R. 7927, a bill to adjust postal rates, together with Senate amendments and requested a conference, I objected. This was on the grounds that it would be an irregular and unwise procedure for the House to shirk its responsibility by failing to insist that the Committee of the Whole House consider the far-reaching Senate amendments which were added to the House bill.

This is no ordinary conference that is sought to be made in order through the arbitrary process of suspension of the rules. The Senate-attached amendments deal with subject matter, among other things, involving the spending of more than $2,600 million—subject matter and spending that has had not one moment of consideration in the House of Representatives.

I insist that the motion to suspend the rules be defeated; that this legislation be sent to the Rules Committee and a procedure agreed upon whereby the entire House membership has an opportunity to examine the Senate amendments and take appropriate action in accordance with the dictates of their conscience.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is sent to us on a virtual take-it-or-leave-it basis. I call attention to page 19662 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of September 26, 1962, wherein during debate in the other body, the chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee made the following statement:

> Last year the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, after extended public hearings and many executive sessions, reported a reasonably sound bill which would have provided $550 million in additional revenue when fully effective. Due to ill-advised and totally inequitable amendments adopted in an air of utter confusion during the closing moments of the session, the bill referred to the Senate was little less than a chaotic monstrosity. Under these circumstances the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee had no alternative but to start afresh on the construction of a sound measure that would at one and the same time produce needed revenues and yet not hamstring the Nation's economy.

Mr. Speaker, it borders on arrogance to describe the House-approved postal rate increase bill as a "chaotic monstrosity," and to imply that Members of the House did not know what they were doing when they passed the postal rate bill in January of this year. I did not support that bill, but I did not then, nor do I now, charge the Democrat leadership of the House or anyone who voted for it with having given birth to a "chaotic monstrosity." I do call your attention to the fact, for whatever it may be worth, that the postal rate bill as approved by the House 9 long months ago was closer to the recommendations of the President than is that portion of the bill which this semigag procedure of rule suspension seeks to send to conference.

I seriously doubt, Mr. Speaker, whether any Member of this body can fully explain what the Senate did to the House-approved postal rate bill, much less the ramifications of the Government-wide pay increases and policies dealing with the so-called pay reform.

There has been little time to analyze the differences that now exist between the House and Senate postal rate bills, but apparently the other body reduced the rate increases which the House had provided for certain categories of mail and in order to make up the loss of this revenue the Senate increased rates for smaller mail users. A notable example of this is the fact that the historical policy with respect to free-in-county mailings for the smaller publications of the Nation was eliminated in the Senate bill. The amount of increase which the other body then imposed on these smaller county newspapers is impossible to determine, and I insist this matter be fully explored before the House takes further action.

Another inconsistency between the House and Senate postal rate bills relates to the increase which the Senate imposed on nonprofit publications, such as religious and veterans' publications. The House had made no change whatever in that category of mail.

I note, too, that the Senate weakened the so-called Cunningham amendment regarding Communist propaganda which is being mailed into the United States from countries behind the Iron Curtain. I recall that the House was almost unanimous in its support of this amendment and I question whether this body is ready to abdicate its responsibility in connection with these provisions and others in this legislation which are being crammed down our throats.

Now with respect to the other provisions of the bill relating to pay for Federal employees and increases in the annuities of retired civil service employees, not one provision of which has had one moment of consideration on the House floor in the 9 months of this session. I say to you that there are hidden provisions which makes it imperative that this bill be considered by the House in Committee of the Whole where a full explanation may be had and amendments offered.

Members will recall the long struggle that has been made in the House to hold down the number of supergrade positions in the Federal service—grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. It is my understanding that the Senate has specifically added 411 supergrades, with salaries ranging from $16,000 to $20,000 per year and further provided, in rather vague and indefinite language, for an unknown additional number. In other words, I doubt seriously if anyone in this body or the other body can tell us accurately whether the Senate added 500, 600, 700, 800, or 1,000 supergrade positions.

Another hidden section in the Senate approved rate bill provides for the addition of 111 positions in the top three postal service levels, PFS–18, PFS–19, and PFS–20, which will pay salaries of between $15,500 and $18,000 annually.

Let me also call attention to the fact that the Senate amendments provide pay increases for all legislative employees, including those of Members of Congress. And if I read the bill correctly, certain employees of the Members of the other body may be paid up to $18,800 per year.

I seriously doubt whether the Members of this body are aware that the Senate amendments provide a change in the Whitten amendment and thus opens the door to an increase in the number of permanent positions in the Government. This is contrary to the will of this body. Time and again the House Appropriations Committee has emphasized the need for retaining the Whitten amendment and the House Members have always concurred in this.

I do not want these remarks to be construed as opposing a pay increase for Federal employees, especially postal workers in the lower levels. I do insist that before the House can vote intelligently on this measure it should be completely explored, analyzed and explained. I reiterate that the amendments by the Senate will provide pay increases costing more than $1 billion, and the increased annuities, also provided by the other body, will add $1,600 million to the liability of the Government employees retirement fund which, as of June 1962, was estimated to be $33,700 million in the red.

Mr. Speaker, more than a conference is needed on this legislation. It requires far more consideration than can be given here today or under the 1 hour allowed for the conference report. I have tried to invoke rule 20 which was designed for the very purpose of sending such legislation as this to the Committee of the Whole wherein Members of the House could learn at least something of the ramifications of what is being proposed and vote with at least some degree of intelligence.

I am reminded by what is now taking place of the action that at the start of the 87th Congress when the Rules Committee was packed for the alleged purpose of giving Members of the House the opportunity to understand and work their free will upon legislation. Do those of you who voted for that proposition mean what you said then by your votes?

Now you are confronted with a motion to suspend the rules, a harsh, abnormal proceeding which permits of no amendments and a total of 40 minutes of debate—a semi-gag rule when applied to legislation of such vital importance.

I earnestly hope that whoever made the decision that the House was either too busy or not competent to act on this legislation under the normal and prescribed procedures will reconsider and permit H.R. 7927, with its many ramifications and hidden provisions, to come before the House in Committee of the Whole.

To end this, I ask you to defeat the motion to suspend the rules.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BROYHILL].

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Speaker, I hope that the House will suspend the rules and permit this bill to be sent to conference. Most certainly it is far-reaching legislation, it is complicated legislation, it is controversial legislation. Any measure which provides a $600 million-odd increase in revenue is bound to be controversial; any legislation that provides a $1 billion increase in expenditure is bound to be controversial but I think that the overwhelming majority of us will agree that we must raise postal rates, because the Department has to bear hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars increased cost in transporting, distributing, and delivering the mails. I think it is altogether fitting and proper that the users of the mails should pay a larger portion of the cost. Certainly it is the best bargain the American people can possibly receive, even with a $600-million increase in rates.

I think we all realize also that we must have some adjustment in the salaries of Federal and postal employees. We must certain help increase and maintain a decent standard of living for the vast majority of our employees, and good management dictates that we see that Federal salaries are competitive with comparable positions in free enterprise. If we ever hope to attract and retain efficient employees, employees who are competitive with those in free enterprise, we have got to recognize that proper salaries must be provided.

The House has already acted on the postal rate legislation. It acted rather affirmatively, and approved it by a rather substantial majority. That is the portion of the bill that is back before us here with a Senate amendment.

I regret that the House has not acted on the salary increase portion of the legislation; however, the Committee on the Post Office and Civil Service did hold extensive hearings on the subject, and we came up with a reasonable compromise bill. It was reported out of the Committee on the Post Office and Civil Service by an overwhelming majority. It is merely due to a parlimentary technicality that the House has not yet had an opportunity to consider the legislation which was reported out by the committee.

The bill for the increase in salaries is similar to the bill our committee overwhelmingly approved. I say quite similar but it does not go quite as far as the majority of our committee would like, but we feel that this should be acceptable, especially when we are confronted with the situation that this is the best we can hope for. So if this bill is taken from the Speaker's table and sent to conference I am sure the conferees will come back with a reasonable compromise, not one that all of us will agree with, but one that the vast majority of us will agree is acceptable under the circumstances at this late stage of the 87th Congress.

I do hope, Mr. Speaker, that the House will overwhelmingly approve suspension of the rules so that this bill can go to conference and we can get some pay adjustment and rate adjustment legislation through before this Congress adjourns.

Mr. BARRY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROYHILL. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. BARRY. I would like to ask the gentleman, if when we send this to conference, can the provisions of the House bill with regard to rate structure on postage be insisted upon or do we surrender our right by sending it to conference.

Mr. BROYHILL. I do not know whether I am qualified to answer the question of the gentleman or not. We have a right to insist on the original House position insofar as the rate bill is concerned. Unfortunately, we do not have a House bill pending in the House on pay legislation, and what the Senate has done in that regard would be the ceiling.

Mr. WALLHAUSER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROYHILL. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WALLHAUSER. Does the gentleman believe if we do not suspend the rules we would ever be able to consider any measure in this Congress with reference to rates and pay increases?

Mr. BROYHILL. I am fearful we will not have time. I would rather not take the chance, and I think the overwhelming majority of the people who will be affected by the legislation are willing to go along with this procedure as the best we can possibly hope for at this stage of the session.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. JOHANSEN].

(Mr. JOHANSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHANSEN. Mr. Speaker, as a matter of self-respect of this House, the pending resolution should be defeated. We are considering this resolution today under the cloud of an accusation—and the accusation was not even factually accurate—that this House "in an air of utter confusion" adopted this legislation at the end of the last session. Of course we adopted the postal legislation in January of this year. We are acting under a cloud of accusation that the legislation produced by this House with respect to postal rates "was little less than a chaotic monstrosity."

I suggest, Mr. Speaker, also as a matter of legislative responsibility, that we should reject this resolution.

As the gentleman from Iowa has so forcefully pointed out, two of the major items in this 3-in-1 deal have not been considered on the floor of the House. I think as a matter of respect for the labors of your Committee on the Post Office and Civil Service, which worked for weeks and weeks in hearings on Federal pay legislation and a lesser time on the matter of retirement pay, and the fruits of all those labors will be brought to you, under a conference report with a limitation of 1 hour of debate. As to the legislative procedure, let me say further that the House is being asked to vote up or down an omnibus bill involving three distinct and separate areas of legislation—Federal pay increases, and within that category are at least four or five separate and distinct pay matters. We are asked to consider an increase in retirement pay. We are asked to consider postal rate legislation as it may be modified in conference.

With respect to the Federal pay and retirement provisions, as I have pointed out, and as the gentleman from Iowa has pointed out, neither of these provisions of the bill has been brought to the floor of this House for thorough debate, and under the conditions we will face if this bill goes to conference, there will be no opportunity for meaningful debate in 1 hour's time.

With respect to the postal rate legislation, I want to be completely frank with the House. I spoke for, I voted for the postal rate bill that was adopted in January. I did so despite some declared misgivings regarding certain provisions of the legislation. But that was before the President of the United States had decided that he could by arbitrary act deny something in the neighborhood of a 5-percent increase in prices of a certain major basic industry of the country.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation with respect to first-class users of the mail alone involves a 25-percent increase and very substantial increases in the price of mail service in the other classes.

Mr. Speaker, I supported the legislation earlier this year, but that was before it became a determined judgment that we needed tax relief in this country. Now we propose to impose additional costs, an increased tax, if you please, upon the American people. A major victim of this increase will be small business itself.

Mr. Speaker, I have always supported the principle that we should be rid of the postal deficit. But I must say in all candor that I lose some zeal for a balanced postal budget in the light of testimony before our committee—and I refer especially to the testimony given by Budget Director Bell—that there are circumstances and that we now exist in a circumstance in which overall deficit financing by the Federal Government is a desirable thing.

Mr. Speaker, in the circumstances I lose some of my concern about closing the gap of this deficit in one segment of the Government. Of course, that brings me to the fact that this omnibus bill involves a $1 billion a year increase in Federal pay. It involves, to be sure, a $603 million increase in revenues under the Senate version. But there is still almost $400 million of additional expense, a good share of which will be added to the national deficit.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 additional minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. JOHANSEN].

Mr. JOHANSEN. Mr. Speaker, as has been pointed out by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS] a moment ago, there is an increase in the number of supergrades. The pay bill involves excessive increases at the higher levels of pay. Let the House be on notice that this legislation, if enacted, sets the stage for next year for consideration of an executive pay increase; for further increases in salary for higher levels; for increases in the pay of the judiciary, and for substantial proposed increases in the compensation of Members of Congress.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHANSEN. Yes; I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. Is it not true that the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service passed out a bill on pay increases weeks ago, and does the gentleman know what the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BROYHILL] was referring to when the gentleman spoke of some technicality that had prevented the House from considering this bill that was voted out so long ago?

Mr. JOHANSEN. It is entirely true that this pay legislation was voted out several weeks ago. The gentleman from Michigan is at a total loss to know what the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BROYHILL] is talking about with respect to a technicality.

I will say this, however; that I am not willing to see orderly and sound legislative processes frustrated by any technicality, particularly when the technicality is invoked for the very purpose of accomplishing such frustrations.

Mr. GROSS. Is it not true that this bill, if the gentleman will yield further, which suspension of the rules seeks to send to conference, is a bill of 114 pages, and only some 20 of those pages are devoted to the rate increase, while the other 70 to 80 pages of the bill constitute an amendment by the other body which has never been considered in the House of Representatives?

Mr. JOHANSEN. The gentleman is correct with reference to that portion of the bill that is referred to as merely an amended postal rate bill. It is a case of the tail wagging the dog, I will say to the gentleman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has again expired.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman 1 additional minute.

Mr. JOHANSEN. Let me say in conclusion that the story on this legislation, so far as the retirement pay provisions of this bill are concerned, as amended in the Senate, involves, as the gentleman from Iowa has pointed out, an additional commitment of obligation by the Government of the United States of $1.6 billion. And as is so often the case in such matters, there is no offsetting assurance of revenue to meet that obligation.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Montana [Mr. OLSEN].

(Mr. OLSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARRY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OLSEN. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. BARRY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentlemen if the question before the House is to disagree to the Senate amendments and send the bill to conference. Is that the proceeding under which we are now deliberating at this moment?

Mr. OLSEN. That is my understanding.

Mr. BARRY. In effect, when we vote for this measure, we are voting to reject the Senate amendments and send the bill to conference?

Mr. OLSEN. That is my understanding of the resolution.

Mr. BARRY. This would have to do only with the pay rate provisions since the matter of salary has not been before this entire body; is that not correct?

Mr. OLSEN. As I understand, the question that will go to conference to be discussed is the postal rate portion of this bill.

Mr. BARRY. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. OLSEN. Mr. Speaker, I urge support of this resolution. As we send H.R. 7927 to conference the normal procedure, as I understand, is satisfied. The House passes a postal rate bill and it goes to the Senate. The Senate passes a postal rate bill. Then we have a conference on the two bills on the differences involved. I have studied both the Senate and House versions of the rate bill and there is really not much difference between them, but there is enough differences so that they should go to conference so that the differences can be reconciled.

The third-class rates provided under the Senate bill are about one-eighth of a cent less than the President recommended. They are about five-eighths of a cent less than we provided in the House bill, and about three-eighths of a cent higher than the House Post Office Committee recommended to the House. So there is not much difference in third-class mail to go to conference.

In second-class mail some differences arise. That is where most of the differences are in the bill. This is very normal procedure and I think that the members of our Post Office Committee would say for the most part that there is very little difference between the two bills. So far as objecting to this bill going to conference is concerned, I think anyone who insists upon its not going to conference is really insisting that there be no new pay bill, that there be no new retirement bill and that there be no postal rate adjustment in this session of Congress.

The urgency is that the pay increase for classified and postal employees is more than 18 months late by all of the studies that anyone or any group has made. The pay bill that the Senate passed is less in amount than the bill the House passed. It is much more moderate than the House-passed bill. So I submit that sending this to conference and finally approving the pay bill and the retirement bill of the Senate is a very reasonable thing for this House to do.

Finally I submit the question is as follows—if you are in favor of a pay increase for Federal and postal employees and increased benefits for Federal retirees, this is the only opportunity you will have to provide it. Only those who are against a pay increase for Federal employees or increased benefits for retirees will vote against this resolution.

(Mr. ROGERS of Colorado asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to note that the bill provides in section 606(a) for an increase in the ceiling on grades 16, 17, and 18 from the present 1,989 to 2,400. I understand that in its requests for additional authority to allocate these so-called supergrades the Civil Service Commission advised the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee that a sufficient number of these grades was required to enable it adequately to reclassify the 324 Federal hearing examiners now holding GS 15 grades to appropriate supergrade levels. Now that provision is being made for this additional authority an important step can be taken by the Civil Service Commission to preserve and promote the best interests of the Federal Government and to relieve the years' long inequity borne by the Government's underpaid hearing examiners.

Section 11 of the Administrative Procedure Act mandates that the Civil Service Commission alone shall prescribe the compensation for the Federal hearing examiners. Because of the ceilings imposed by Congress on the number of allowable grades 16, 17, and 18, the Civil Service Commission has been unable for several years to discharge its statutory mandate by reclassification of any of the hearing examiner positions to the appropriate supergrade level merited by their responsibilities.

The records established before congressional committees and the Civil Service Commission amply sustain the entitlement of these positions to supergrade classifications. The President's message on the regulatory agencies supported by the opinions of distinguished legal authorities, private practitioners and bar associations intimately acquainted with the duties and responsibilities of the hearing examiner function unqualifiedly urge the immediate reclassification of these positions to supergrade levels. Nevertheless, because of the numerical ceilings on supergrades and the necessity of treating hearing examiners performing the same function alike, the Civil Service Commission has been unable to date to upgrade any of the examiners now frozen at the GS–15 level for many years.

This inability has produced the following undesirable results: Hearing examiners of proven ability with years of invaluable Federal experience have been lost to the Government because of the greater monetary attraction of private employment, frequently with the very industries regulated by the Federal agencies by whom these examiners had been employed. For example, hearing examiners formerly employed by the CAB now hold positions as counsel for Trans World Airlines, Continental Airlines, Trans-Texas Airways, and a number of other major air carriers.

At the same time the Federal agencies are severely handicapped in the employment of hearing examiners of superior caliber from the registers established by the Civil Service Commission because of the high percentage of declinations from persons on these registers offered employment at the GS–15 level. For example, recently the National Labor Relations Board sought to fill 10 hearing examiner vacancies from a CSC certificate containing the names of 34 qualified persons. Twenty-two of them, or over 64 percent, stated they were not interested in appointment at Grade GS–15. Similar statistics are available for other agencies.

In addition, serious intra-agency inequities have been created by the advancement of individual attorneys, economic analysts, and administrative personnel to supergrade levels while the examiners, largely because of their numbers, have been bypassed. It is not unusual for GS–16 attorneys and GS–17 economic witnesses to appear before GS–15 examiners in the hearings over which they preside.

The competence and devotion of the Federal hearing examiners are the best guarantees of the effectiveness of the Administrative Procedure Act. I am gratified that the Civil Service Commission by the appropriate reclassification of these hearing examiners under the additional grant of authority of this bill will, in sum, avoid the erosion of highly trained and competent manpower, facilitate the procurement by the Government of the able men needed to perform the exacting judicial functions of the hearing examiner position, and rectify the longstanding inequity borne by the Federal hearing examiners.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, 3 minutes is mighty little time to discuss a bill which involves a charge on the Treasury of over a billion dollars a year permanently, from now on out.

I am not going to discuss the merits of the bill, but under the rules of the House any Senate amendment that comes over here that inflicts any charge on the Treasury of the United States is required under rule XX of the House of Representatives to go to the Committee of the Whole, the purpose of that being that the House might consider the bill on its merits and have an opportunity to say its will. By suspension of the rules, this method that is now invoked in this case, the House is deprived of the privilege of ever considering whether this is a good bill or a bad bill. You are establishing a precedent here today that is going to damn you for a long time to come.

I am greatly interested in the rules of this House and the proper procedures of this House. I think this is a terrible thing to do. I know it is going to be done. I know this House is going to vote for it. I know there are a great many Members here who cannot resist any demand that it made upon them by their servants, the civil service employees, the employees of the people of the United States.

What you are doing here today, irrespective of the merits of this bill, is to deprive yourselves and the people you represent from being represented in the expenditure of a billion dollars a year of the money that the taxpayers put up, and you say, "No; we won't consider this bill. We are going to suspend the rules and we are going to turn everything loose here in the last days of the session." If that is the way you think you ought to run this Congress, go ahead and do it, but I will have no part of it.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CURTIS].

Mr. CURTIS of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, the question I had in mind has been clarified by the gentleman from Virginia in regard to procedures. It is a complicated procedure. We actually are rejecting the Senate amendment, which is the pay increase bill. In sending this to conference in this manner the House will never have an opportunity to consider the merits of the Senate pay increase bill. I could not agree more with the gentleman from Virginia in his pointing out that procedures are the essence of civil rights. If we do not have regard for our own procedures and the integrity of this House, we might just as well disband this Congress. I think the procedural votes are coming to be meaningful more and more each day as we move more and more toward government by men and away from government by law.

From the bottom of my heart I would urge everyone to reject this motion to suspend the rules.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GROSS. Under the rule providing for suspension of the rules it is unnecessary to alternate as to time; is that not correct?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The proponents are entitled to close the debate, under the rules.

Mr. GROSS. That is not the rule, is it?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is what the Chair has stated the rule to be.

(Mr. HARSHA asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. HARSHA. Mr. Speaker, I find myself in a rather peculiar position because I must say that I concur in the judgment of some of my colleagues who feel that this motion and parliamentary procedure to suspend the rules and circumvent adequate hearings by the appropriate committee is not the way to legislate, particularly, with a measure involving so many billions of dollars and so many lives of Federal employees. I would much prefer that the normal procedures be followed and a proper bill reported to this House after adequate hearings with the opportunity afforded all interested parties to be heard. However, this is not a new procedure and there are many bills that are being offered to this body under the suspension rules procedure, many of which are as equally important as this and many have been denied committee hearings. Yet, this body chooses on various occasions to adopt that procedure so I am in total disagreement with those that will say that this preliminary procedure today will set a precedent.

I think we must be realistic when we look at this procedure. Everyone knows that we are all anxious to return to our districts. Everyone knows that Congress will soon adjourn and unless we adopt this procedure here today all likelihood of obtaining a much needed raise for postal employees and Federal workers will vanish.

We hear impassioned pleas from certain Members of the House about raising the standard of living of people throughout the world, yet, when it comes to raising the standard of living of our own citizens and our Government employees that same impassioned support has been lacking heretofore. These very same people who we were trying to help through foreign aid and other economic dole throughout the world will never come to the assistance and aid of this country in the event she needs it. This is exemplified by the very way that some of our so-called allies who have received billions of dollars in foreign aid over the years, and are still receiving billions of dollars of foreign aid, will not even assist us with the embargo of Cuba but instead choose to say that it is "your problem" and continue to trade with the Communist nations. If this Government can continue to help those kind of allies, certainly this much needed pay raise is little enough to do for its own citizens who will assist this Government and come to its aid in time of need.

Our Government is one of the most important phases of our economy. Because Government does have such a vital effect on our well-being, it should be staffed with the most competent and efficient people possible.

There should be adequate incentives to Government careers to encourage this type of individual to enter Government service. Certainly Government should be able to compete with private enterprise and industry in obtaining competent, efficient and dedicated employees.

In order to do this, Government must be in a position to offer competitive wage scales and other incentives to personnel—competitive that is with and comparable to those offered by industry or private enterprise.

I have long subscribed to the theory that Government employees should be paid on a comparable basis with employees of private enterprise for comparable work.

A survey conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics reveals that postal workers are among those wage earners receiving approximately $1,000 less than the established average wage of a family of four.

Under the circumstances, such as these, how can Government compete with private industry in employing able, conscientious employees? The answer is obvious. Certainly the postal service and its employees have built an enviable reputation over the years and I am interested in seeing that record and reputation enhanced. In order to do this we must be able to continue to interest qualified persons in the postal service. They have earned this increase and are justly entitled to it.

Certainly, the other Federal employees are entitled to a reasonable cost-of-living increase and this is all that this bill offers.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as I have indicated, I support this portion of the bill, particularly which grants increases to postal employees and Federal classified employees. I, therefore urge my colleagues to vote in favor of suspending the rules so that the Senate bill may be referred to conference committee and the conflicting portions of the House and Senate bills compromised so that a pay raise can be granted to these employees before Congress adjourns.

But again, as so often happens in legislation, I find some of the bitter mixed in with the sweet and this is true in this instance. As you know, the House of Representatives passed a postal rate bill with an amendment which prohibited the free distribution of Communist propaganda in this country. I was a cosponsor of this amendment, and when the matter was before the House debated in favor of it, and had introduced, previous to that time, a bill prohibiting the free distribution of Communist literature by the Post Office Department to the citizens of the United States. Now the Senate version of the bill has watered down this amendment. The amendment as passed by the Senate puts into effect substantially the same Executive order that had existed throughout the Eisenhower administration—prohibiting the indiscriminate and free distribution of Communist literature in this country. This order was rescinded by President Kennedy allowing tons of subversive matreial to reach all citizens at the expense of the American taxpayer.

Now the Senate bill will again reinstate this Executive order; however, it will allow all Communist literature addressed to any particular individual to be delivered if he so desires and it will continue to deliver such propaganda to universities, Government agencies, libraries, and so forth, all at the expense of the American taxpayer.

Americans throughout the country are calling on Congress to end this subsidy given Communist propaganda. The time for the House of Representatives to act on this serious problem is now and to put an end to this unholy situation. If we are going to ask the American taxpayer to pay higher postal rates how, in good conscience, can we do this and not put a stop to the free delivery and subsidization of this trash? To ask the American taxpayer to pay increased postal rates while at the same time permitting this Red propaganda to be distributed in this country free of charge is sheer hypocrisy.

If the free distribution of this propaganda were stopped, an increase in first-class rates would not be needed. To argue as the Post Office Department does that because we send out more mail than we receive is not a valid reason for continuing to accept Red propaganda. To accept such an argument is tantamount to saying that because we send out larger quantities of perfume we should continue to accept smaller quantities of poisonous gas. So I would urge my colleagues, particularly those members of the conference committee, to insist that the House version, or House amendment to prohibit the free distribution of Communist propaganda, be included in the conference report and here again is another reason for voting to suspend the rules to consider this bill in conference because, if we do not consider this bill in this manner then there will be no valid Executive order or law prohibiting this distribution of Communist mail and it will continue to be delivered to the citizens and youth of this country at the expense of the taxpayer.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote in the affirmative on this motion.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of the time to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. MORRISON].

(Mr. MORRISON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORRISON. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, I am sure all of us realize that Congress is not going to be in session very much longer. We all are realists and we all know that unless this suspension of the rules is voted by a two-third vote, the pay legislation for Federal postal employees and classified employees will be killed and dead for this session. We further know that the legislation for increased rates for postage will also be killed if this bill is not sent to conference. We know it would be impossible to send this bill with the Congress closing in these last remaining few days to the Committee on Rules with the idea of expecting favorable consideration and being returned in time for the consideration of the House under a rule.

I might say, we had a very, very important bill that our committee passed out several weeks ago on retirement. On September 21 I wrote to the chairman of the Committee on Rules and all the members of the Committee on Rules and asked them please to grant us a hearing on this retirement bill that we had passed out of our committee, and up to the present time the Rules Committee has not granted our committee chairman, or myself as vice chairman, an opportunity to be heard on this very important retirement bill.

So it boils down to this, that the House committee has passed out a pay bill providing salary increases for 2½ million Federal employees and so has the Senate.

Mr. BECKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a brief question?

Mr. MORRISON. I yield.

Mr. BECKER. The gentleman will concede, however, that this obnoxious situation was not created by the Republican side of the aisle but that side of the aisle.

Mr. MORRISON. Well, I will not agree to that. I think that is your opinion, and not mine.

Mr. BECKER. The gentleman's side has control of this and not this side.

Mr. MORRISON. Mr. Speaker, I refuse to yield further because I do not have enough time. But you know as well as I do that if you are in favor of the Federal employees getting a pay raise and if you are in favor of action on the postal rate increase legislation, the thing to do is to vote to suspend the rules and send this bill to conference. That will enable the conferees to work out all differences. All this legislation has been passed by the full committee of the House and has been passed by the full committee of the Senate. If you are against the Federal employees and the postal workers getting a pay raise in this session of the Congress, then you vote against this suspension. If you are in favor of a Federal pay raise for Federal employees, including the postal employees, then you will vote yea to suspend the rules and send this to conference, a procedure which is followed almost every day during the closing days of the session of Congress. There is nothing unusual about this and there is nothing different about it. This is the customary procedure. The time is late, and if you want to send this legislation to conference, then you have to vote for this motion to suspend the rules by a two-thirds vote.

Mr. DANIELS. Mr. Speaker, I hope the House will suspend the rules and send this bill, H.R. 7927, to conference. The House has fully considered the postal rate increase bill and passed it by an overwhelming vote. The Senate also has fully debated the bill and added an amendment relative to pay raises for Federal employees and increased benefits for retirees. The latter amendment does not grant the increases in salaries approved by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, but it appears to be a reasonable compromise. I regret that a parliamentary technicality prevents full debate of the salary increases in this House. However, the testimony before the House committee was convincingly clear that a pay raise for postal workers and classified employees was 18 months overdue. The Senate amendment provides increases less than those approved in the House. It appears to me that these Federal employees should not be penalized any longer, and I urge that the rules be suspended and the bill sent to conference.

Mr. JOELSON. Mr. Speaker, I will support the motion to suspend the rules and send the postal bill to conference. I am concerned that legislative maneuvering is being used as an excuse to deny Federal employees the pay increases they so well deserve.

Although I feel the rate increases for second- and third-class mails are inadequate, I will support the total bill if the conference retains the pay increase provisions which I strongly endorse.

Mr. ADDABBO. Mr. Speaker, I believe that the underpaid, dedicated, Federal employees have waited too long for their overdue adjustment of wages.

Though we may not agree fully with the procedures being followed today I believe we must and should take whatever steps needed to expedite this increase of salary and annuities.

Extensive hearings have been held by the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, of which I am a member, which clearly proved that these increases are necessary and long overdue.

Mr. BURKE of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I highly commend the distinguished Speaker of the House for his fine leadership in enacting H.R. 7927 postal and Government employee pay bill.

It was a privilege for me to work for and give my vigorous support to this meritorious bill and I trust our action today will move the measure to early final passage and enactment.

The bill is fair, equitable and helpful to many efficient employees of the Federal Government and its passage will be applauded and approved by the country.

I, therefore, urge that the rules be suspended and the bill be passed so that it may become law before the session ends.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Louisiana has expired. All time has expired.

The question is on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution.

The question was taken.

Mr. JOHANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will count. [After counting.] Two hundred and five Members are present, not a quorum.

The Doorkeeper will close the doors, the Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members, and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 327, nays 22, not voting 86, as follows:

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints the following conferees: Messrs. MURRAY, MORRISON, and CORBETT.

Mr. MORRISON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members be permitted to extend their remarks following my remarks on the resolution just agreed to.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREE

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentlemen from Washington [Mr. TOLLEFSON] be excused as a conferee on the bill (H.R. 11586) to amend section 2 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints the gentleman from California [Mr. MAILLIARD] as a conferee on the bill H.R. 11586, vice the gentleman from Washington [Mr. TOLLEFSON].

CONSERVATION OF TROPICAL TUNA

Mr. SELDEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (S. 2568) to amend the act of September 7, 1950, to extend the regulatory authority of the Federal and State agencies concerned under the terms of the Convention for the Establishment of an Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission, signed at Washington May 31, 1949, and for other purposes, with amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatievs of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 2 of the Act entitled "Tuna Conventions Act of 1950" (16 U.S.C. 951) is amended by repealing subsection (e) in its entirety and substituting therefor a new subsection (e) as follows:

"(e) 'United States' shall include all areas under the sovereignty of the United States, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and the Canal Zone."

SEC. 2. Section 6 of the Act entitled "Tuna Conventions Act of 1950" (16 U.S.C. 955) is amended by striking out the phrase "head of the enforcement agency" where it appears once each in subsections (a) and (b) and inserting in lieu thereof in both places the term "Secretary of the Interior," and by adding a new subsection (c) immediately following subsection (b), as follows:

"(c) Regulations required to carry out recommendations of the commission made pursuant to paragraph 5 of article II of the Convention for the Establishment of an Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission shall be promulgated as hereinafter provided by the Secretary of the Interior upon approval of such recommendations by the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Interior. The Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be published in the Federal Register a general notice of proposed rulemaking and shall afford interested persons an opportunity to participate in the rulemaking through (1) submission of written data, views, or arguments, and (2) oral presentation at a public hearing. Such regulations shall be published in the Federal Register and shall be accompanied by a statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of the regulations. After publication in the Federal Register such regulations shall be applicable to all vessels and persons subject to the jurisdiction of the United States on such date as the Secretary of the Interior shall prescribe, but in no event prior to an agreed date for the application by all countries whose vessels engage in fishing for species covered by the convention in the regulatory area on a meaningful scale, in terms of effect upon the success of the conservation program, of effective measures for the implementation of the commission's recommendations applicable to all vessels and persons subject to their respective jurisdictions. The Secretary of the Interior shall suspend at any time the application of any such regulations when, after consultation with the Secretary of State and the United States Commissioners, he determines that foreign fishing operations in the regulatory area are such as to constitute a serious threat to the achievement of the objectives of the commission's recommendations. The regulations thus promulgated may include the selection for regulation of one or more of the species covered by the convention; the division of the convention waters into areas; the establishment of one or more open or closed seasons as to each area; the limitation of the size of the fish and quantity of the catch which may be taken from each area within any season during which fishing is allowed; the limitation or prohibition of the incidental catch of a regulated species which may be retained, taken, possessed, or landed by vessels or persons fishing for other species of fish; the requiring of such clearance certificates for vessels as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of the convention and this Act; and such other measures incidental thereto as the Secretary of the Interior may deem necessary to implement the recommendations of the commission: Provided, That upon the promulgation of any such regulations the Secretary of the Interior shall promulgate additional regulations, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, which shall become effective simultaneously with the application of the regulations hereinbefore referred to (1) to prohibit the entry into the United States, from any country when the vessels of such country are being used in the conduct of fishing operations in the regulatory area in such manner or in such circumstances as would tend to diminish the effectiveness of the conservation recommendations of the commission, of fish in any form of those species which are subject to regulation pursuant to a recommendation of the commission and which were taken from the regulatory area; and (2) to prohibit entry into the United States, from any country, of fish in any form of those species which are subject to regulation

The Ways and Means Committee reported with amendment H. R. 12109, to amend the Tariff Act of 1930 to permit certain natural grasses and other natural materials to be imported free of duty (H. Rept. 2516). p. 20650

8. DRUGS. The "Daily Digest" states that "Conferees, in executive session, agreed to file a conference report on the differences between the Senate- and House-passed versions of S. 1552, proposed Drug Industry Antitrust Act." p. D929

9. LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM. Rep. Albert announced that the following bills will be considered on Wed.: H. R. 13290, the supplmental appropriation bill; H. R. 13273, the public works authorization bill; S. 1123, to extend certain child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act to children employed in agriculture; and the conference report on H. R. 11665, the school lunch fund apportionment bill. He further announced that the conference report on the proposed Trade Expansion Act of 1962 will be considered on Thurs. p. 20616

SENATE

10. WHEAT. Passed without amendment H. R. 13241, to amend Sec. 309 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1962 so as to provide that a farm marketing quota on the 1963 crop of wheat shall be applicable to any farm on which acreage of wheat planted exceeds the smaller of 15 acres or the highest number of acres planted to wheat on the farm in calendar years 1959, 1960, 1961, or 1963, (instead of 1959, 1960, or 1961). This bill will now be sent to the President. p. 20492

FEDERAL SALARY REFORM ACT OF 1962

OCTOBER 2, 1962.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. MORRISON, from the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, submitted the following REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 9531]

The Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 9531) to amend the law relating to pay for postal employees, having considered the same, report favorably thereon with amendments and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

AMENDMENTS

The committee proposes two amendments to the bill: an amendment to the text and an amendment to the title.

AMENDMENT TO THE TEXT

The committee amendment to the text of the bill strikes out all after the enacting clause and inserts in lieu thereof a substitute text which is contained in the reported bill in italic type. An explanation of this amendment to the text is set forth hereafter in this report.

AMENDMENT TO THE TITLE

The committee amendment to the title of the bill is as follows: Amend the title so as to read:

> A bill to provide for improvement in the statutory salary systems of the Federal Government; to adopt and apply the principle of Government-private enterprise salary comparability; and for other purposes.

STATEMENT

The purpose of this legislation, as approved by the overwhelming majority of the committee, is to modernize the Federal statutory salary systems and to make necessary adjustments in the compensation of over 1,600,000 Federal employees. In every major respect this bill carries out the recommendations of the President with regard to Federal employee salary reform. Without question it is the most comprehensive and far-reaching legislative proposal to improve Federal personnel management to be considered by the Congress in four decades.

Minority views are printed at the end of this report, beginning at page 108.

The bill approved by the committee carries out the recommendations of the executive branch with respect to Federal employee salary reforms, except that it provides slightly higher pay adjustments for postal employees in the first six levels of the postal field service schedule and for classified employees in the first five grades of the general schedule under the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. The only other respect in which the bill differs from the recommendation of the administration is that salary adjustments become effective in two phases—the first portion of the adjustments shall become effective at the beginning of the first pay period on or after July 1, 1962, and the remaining portion shall become effective in July 1963; whereas the salary reform measure recommended by the administration would take effect in three phases—the first phase in January 1963, the second phase in January 1964, and the final phase in January 1965.

The changes made by the committee in the President's salary reform proposal were based upon evidence presented at lengthy and thorough hearings, during which all interested parties were given an opportunity to testify, including the heads of the executive departments and agencies, leaders of postal and other Federal employee organizations, and representatives of private industry.

Postal and other Federal employee organizations wholeheartedly endorse and support the bill approved by the committee. The executive branch, however, supported the pay reform proposal submitted to the Congress by the President.

The committee is convinced that the enactment of this legislation is essential if the Federal Government is to attract and retain competent personnel under statutory salary structures and classification laws which are sufficiently flexible to motivate initiative and efficiency while establishing the principle that Federal employees shall be paid salaries comparable to those received by their counterparts in private life. The committee believes that to pay Federal employees more than is provided in this legislation would be unfair to the taxpayers, but to pay less than is provided in this bill would degrade the Government service and endanger our national security.

The coverage of the reported bill and estimated annual costs are as follows:

NEED FOR GOVERNMENT-PRIVATE ENTERPRISE COMPARABILITY

The justification for a comprehensive salary reform bill as proposed by the committee has been amply supported by the evidence presented to the committee. It was agreed that the Congress should adopt and apply the principle of Government-private enterprise salary comparability. The salary schedules provided in this legislation carry out this principle and the bill provides for the establishment of a permanent Committee on Federal Pay to be appointed by the President which shall give effect to this policy. From time to time the Pay Committee shall review the statutory salary systems, report to the President the result of these studies, and make appropriate recommendations for improvements in the Federal salary structure. The President shall submit to the Congress in March of each year a report summarizing the findings of the Pay Committee together with his recommendations for the enactment of such legislation as he deems desirable.

SALARY CEILINGS AND SUPERGRADE POSITIONS

The bill establishes a $22,500 annual salary ceiling with respect to classified and postal employees and a salary ceiling of $22,000 per annum is established for legislative employees who are granted pay increases under the bill. Scientific and professional employees, with the exception of 30 positions in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, are subject to the same salary ceiling as established for classified employees, but no salary ceilings are imposed on the annual compensation of the other employees covered by the bill.

The legislation increases the number of supergrade positions (grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18) by authorizing the establishment of 51 additional positions by raising the total number of such positions from 1,989 to 2,040.

ONLY TWO BASIC DIFFERENCES BETWEEN BILL AND EXECUTIVE BRANCH RECOMMENDATIONS

By establishing the beginning of the first pay period after July 1, 1962, as the effective date for the first phase of the pay adjustments for Federal employees, the committee has determined that, based upon the testimony of witnesses, pay adjustments provided in this legislation should take effect 6 months earlier than the date recommended by the administration. It was shown during the hearings that the basic data and surveys upon which the salary reform legislation was submitted to the Congress are outdated. Apparently there is an 18-month lag between the salary data upon which the administration's salary reform proposal was based and the date upon which it was to become effective. Recent studies by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and independent surveys by competent research analysts show the need for the salary reform measure as approved by the committee to become effective in July 1962.

The overwhelming majority of the committee believes that the increased cost resulting from advancing the effective date of the bill by only 6 months is amply justified in the light of evidence presented to the committee during the comprehensive hearings. The committee believes that it is "penny wise and pound foolish" to declare arbitrarily in the light of this evidence that for some fictitious reason salary adjustments for Federal employees should be postponed until next year. Evidence was presented to the committee showing that salary adjustments for Federal employees are justified even earlier than the July 1962, effective date provided in this bill.

The only other major difference between this legislation and the salary reform measure submitted by the administration relates to the adjustments in the salaries of 700,000 employees in the lower pay levels who are making less than $5,000 a year. They comprise the great bulk of Federal employees both in the postal field service and in other parts of the Government.

PAY ADJUSTMENTS FOR CLASSIFIED EMPLOYEES

With respect to over 1 million employees paid under the provisions of the Classification Act of 1949, the bill provides a 7.5- to 8.2-percent increase in the first five grades while the proposal submitted by the executive branch provides a pay increase of 3.4 percent in grade GS–1, 3.2-percent increase in GS–2, 3.1-percent increase in GS–3, 7-percent increase in GS–4, and a 6.6-percent increase in GS–5.

The committee believes that recent studies completed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and other independent surveys justify the increases provided in the bill above those recommended by the executive branch in the salaries of 484,342 classified Federal employees in grades GS–1 through GS–5. In grade GS–6 through grade GS–18 the bill recommended by the committee carries out the President's proposal in every detail except with regard to effective dates.

On the overall, the bill approved by the committee grants an average 11.8-percent increase in the salaries of classified Federal employees when the bill becomes fully effective, while the proposal recommended by the executive branch grants an average increase of 11 percent in the salaries of such employees.

The following table shows the pay increases for classified Federal employees, by grades, as recommended in the committee bill as compared to the proposal submitted to the Congress by the executive branch:

Increase in base pay for Federal employees in Classification Act positions, by grade, as proposed in administration salary reform proposal and in H.R. 9531, as approved by the committee

[1] H.R. 9531 proposes the same rates for these grades (GS-17 and GS-18) as those in the administration bill, but limits the amount which may actually be paid to a ceiling of $22,500.

PAY ADJUSTMENTS FOR POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYEES

With regard to over 525,000 employees in the postal field service when the final pay increase becomes effective in July 1963 the bil provides a 13.7-percent increase in the first five levels (level 4 includes all postal clerks and carriers), while the proposal submitted by the executive branch provides a pay increase of 7.4 percent in level 1, 8.4-percent increase in level 2, 9.7-percent increase in level 3, 7.5-percent increase in level 4, and an 11-percent increase in level 5. In levels 6 and above, the higher percentage increases provided in the bill results from the desire of the committee to make certain that postal supervisors and postmasters are granted full credit for longevity benefits already accrued. This protection of all postal employees' longevity benefits increases the cost of the bill by only $9 million annually.

Testimony at the hearings showed conclusively that the lower levels in the postal field service are unique by reason of the fact that most of the employees in these levels spend their entire Government careers in lower paying positions. This is particularly true with respect to clerks and carriers in level 4, most of whom have little or no opportunity for advancement to higher levels. The postal service must depend upon proper salary incentives established by the Congress to attract and retain competent and well-qualified persons in the clerk-carrier level. Consequently, the committee agreed with the policy adopted by the administration's salary reform proposal that special consideration should be given to clerks and carriers in level 4.

The committee was impressed by the difficulty which the Civil Service Commission is experiencing in connection with the recruitment of postal clerks and carriers in the larger metropolitan areas. For example, it was reported to the committee that in 1961 the New York region had 4,709 "quits" by carriers; 1,865 resigned to take other employment; 211 refused to give their reasons; 130 stated they were resigning because of inadequate salary; and 86 left for military service and stated they had no desire to return. It was reported to the committee that civil service examination requirements for clerk-carrier positions in the New York area were relaxed this year in order to recruit a sufficient number of eligibles to fill vacancies. This action, designed to reduce the large number of failures in the written examination, took the form of eliminating the general abilities questions from the test. The general abilities phase of the examination for clerk-carrier positions was eliminated in the Jamaica, Flushing, Long Island City, and Far Rockaway post offices. The committee believes that providing proper and adequate pay incentives for positions of clerk-carrier will greatly improve the postal service.

In addition, the committee believes that recent studies completed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and other independent surveys justify the increases provided in the bill above those recommended by the executive branch in the salaries of 481,024 postal employees in levels 1 through 6. In level 7 through level 20, the bill recommended by the committee carries out the President's proposal in every detail, except with regard to the effective dates and longevity benefits.

Under provisions of the bill, the final pay increase for fourth-class postmasters, which is to become effective in July 1963, amounts to a 30-percent increase in their annual compensation, which is identical to the final phase of such pay increase recommended by the administration for fourth-class postmasters.

The committee rejected the administration's proposal to create a new pay policy and a new pay schedule for rural carriers. Instead, the bill provides in the final phase, effective July 1963, an average 12-percent increase in the annual compensation of rural carriers as compared to a 6.7-percent pay increase for rural carriers in the administration's pay proposal.

On the overall, the bill approved by the committee grants an average 13.9-percent increase in the salaries of over 525,000 postal employees when the bill becomes fully effective in July 1963, while the proposal recommended by the executive branch grants an average increase of 8.2 percent in the salaries of postal employees.

It should be pointed out that the scheduled rates of compensation in the final phase of the bill recommended by the committee and the administration proposal are identical in levels PFS–7 and above.

The following table shows the pay increases for postal employees, by levels, as recommended in the bill as compared to the proposal submitted to the Congress by the executive branch:

NOTE.—Additional credit for longevity steps in PFS–7 and above, as provided in H.R. 9531, accounts for the difference in increases upon conversion between the administration pay plan and H.R. 9531. Scheduled rates in the final phase of the 2 plans in PFS–7 and above are identical.

FOREIGN SERVICE PAY REFORM

Title III of the bill approved by the committee carries out the recommendations of the President with respect to pay reform in the salary schedules of the Foreign Service under the Department of State in every detail and extends comparability and alinement principles to such salary schedules.

Comparability would be brought about by linking the pay of—

FSO–4 with GS–13.
FSO–8 with GS–7.
FSS–1 with FSO–3.
FSS–10 (new) with GS–4.

The fourth rate of the class at the point of linkage is associated with the fourth rate of the corresponding Classification Act grade. A structure of regularized, slightly increasing interclass differentials provides the fourth rates of other Foreign Service officer classes. The rate for the highest class, Career Ambassador, is set at the same level as that for Chief Medical Director of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. Foreign Service Staff rates for other classes are derived from a uniform interclass differential pattern up to FSS–4, above which FSS salary levels conform with those for corresponding FSO classes. Ten FSS levels would replace the existing 22, the lower 9 of which seldom have been used.

Rate ranges for Foreign Service Staff classes would be 30 percent, with an entry rate and nine step increases, like the proposed Classification Act within-grade structure. Existing longevity increase provisions would be repealed. Except at top levels, where lesser ranges or single rates are used, 20-percent salary ranges are proposed for Foreign Service officer classes. Foreign Service officer career patterns, because of the selection-out system and other factors, do not require a wide range of salaries for a class.

Existing law permits the Secretary of State substantial discretion in the use of within-class salary rates. His present authorities would remain in effect; they would be subject to Presidential policies and rules.

REFORM OF SALARIES IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

Title IV of the bill approved by the committee carries out in detail the recommendations of the President with respect to pay reform in the salaries of physicians, dentists, nurses, and the directive staff of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. The provisions of title IV are based on the twin principles of comparability and internal alinement.

Pay comparability is brought about by linking the pay of—

Physician, Director grade (new), with GS–16.
Physician, associate grade, with GS–11.
Director, Nursing Service, with GS–15.
Nurse, junior grade, with GS–6.

Salary ranges for intermediate grades of physicians, dentists, and directive staff and most grades of nurses were established by maintaining a regularized pattern of intervals between grades similar to the pattern used for the Classification Act. Directive level salaries are based on an upward projection of these salary schedules.

Salary structures are improved by adding two new physician grades and dropping one former grade and by adding one nurse grade. The proposed Classification Act rate range, generally 30 percent, is used except at the highest levels, where lesser ranges or single rates are proposed.

Under existing law, the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs has wide discretion in determining what step rates will be established within prescribed statutory rate ranges and how the step rates will be used. His present authority would continue, but subject to the President's policy direction. Step rates within the statutory limits of the rate ranges would be set administratively, as they now are. The existing authority for 15 percent additional pay for specialists would be repealed. Proposed 30-percent rate ranges would provide an adequate spread to permit recognition of specialist qualifications.

PAY ADJUSTMENTS FOR JUDICIAL BRANCH AND LEGISLATIVE BRANCH EMPLOYEES

Sections 503 and 504 of the bill increase the compensation of officers and employees in the judicial branch and in the legislative branch as nearly as in practicable by amounts comparable, respectively, to the amounts of the increases provided under title II of the bill for the scheduled rates of compensation for classified employees under the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Such increases in compensation are to become effective in two phases in the same manner in which the rates of compensation in the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 are increased for classified employees in the executive branch of the Government.

AGRICULTURAL STABILIZATION AND CONSERVATION COUNTY COMMITTEE EMPLOYEES

Section 502 of the bill provides that the salaries of persons employed by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees shall be increased, as nearly as may be practicable, by amounts equal to the increases provided for classified employees under title II of the bill for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate pay schedules.

GENERAL PAY REFORM PROVISIONS

The bill follows the recommendations of the President in recognizing the need for establishing and maintaining pay comparability between employees in Government and those in private industry. Adoption of this principle assures equality for Federal employees with their counterparts throughout the national economy. Comparability with private enterprise salary levels provides a long needed logical and factual standard for setting Federal salaries. It includes the effects of such legimate pay considerations as cost of living, standard of living, and productivity as those factors are resolved into the going rate over bargaining tables and other salary determining processes throughout the country.

The bill recognizes that Federal employees, particularly in the upper levels, have suffered over the years by reason of failure to pay them comparable salaries to those which are paid their counterparts in private industry. Recent studies show that from grade GS–4 upward private industry salary averages consistently exceed Federal salaries. At the lower professional levels of GS–7 and GS–9, the difference is quite noticeable. For example:

National average rate in private enterprise	Classification Act rate range
	Grade	Minimum	Maximum
$6,648	GS–7	$5,355	$6,345
7,776	GS–9	6,435	7,425

At the upper professional levels, there is an even greater lag of Federal salaries:

National average rate in private enterprise	Classification Act rate range
	Grade	Minimum	Maximum
$13,152	GS–13	$10,625	$11,935
19,348	GS–15	13,730	15,030

Further evidence of this trend was furnished by the Civil Service Commission's 1960 study of salaries paid in 21 large nationwide firms for personnel, finance, research and development, law, and plant management positions with responsibilities equivalent to those of Federal positions in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. This study showed these serious disparities:

Federal Government		21 firms, major salary clusters
Grade	Salary range
GS–16	$15,255–$16,295	$20,000–$30,000
GS–17	16,530– 17,570	27,500– 37,500
GS–18	18,500	32,500– 45,000

Therefore, the committee believes the pay adjustments which have been provided in the upper levels in all of the salary schedules established under the provisions of this bill are reasonable and proper and in accord with the recommendations of the President. Even with these adjustments in a large number of cases, Federal employees in the upper levels are still below their counterparts in private industry with respect to annual compensation. By imposing a salary ceiling of $22,500 per annum in title II for classified employees, the committee believes that before final adjustments can be made in accordance with the recommendations of the President it will be necessary for the executive branch to submit to the Congress proposed revisions of the Federal Executive Pay Act of 1956.

One major reform of the Classification Act salary structure is achieved through an improved pattern of intervals between salaries at successive grades. Under the bill, pay differentials between successive grades would be brought into an improved pattern and the entry rates for most grades will be, upon full reform, about 10 percent apart. This spreading out of entry rates will relieve the compression now existing generally but especially severe at the higher grades.

Salary ranges of the grades would be improved. Most grades would have a 30-percent pay range—entry rate and nine step increases—except the top grades. Step increases would be uniformly large enough to serve their purposes as material incentives.

The present length-of-service requirements for step increases would be revised. Step increases are now granted every 52 weeks at GS–10 and below and every 78 weeks at GS–11 and above. Under the bill, the first three step increases would each be granted after 52 weeks of satisfactory performance. Thus, step-ups would be relatively frequent during the first 3 years on a job when performance normally improves rapidly. The next three steps would come at 2-year intervals, and the final three steps at 3-year intervals, where the aim is to motivate continued good performance. This revised use of step increases offers incentives over a period of 18 years. Most Classification Act employees receive promotions in grade and few work more than 18 years in a grade. At the same time, the revised use of step increases encompasses within the salary range of a grade what are now called longevity rates, thus removing unnecessary restrictions on the use of such rates.

POSTAL PAY REFORM

Some of the more progressive pay reform provisions are contained in title I of the bill which establishes new compensation schedules for postal field service employees. The provisions of this title and the construction of the new postal field service schedule are based generally on the principles of comparability between salaries of postal employees and those in allied occupations in private industry, proper internal alinement between pay levels and steps in such pay levels, and on the special career conditions in the lower levels.

To extend comparability salary levels to the postal service consistent with the general schedule under the Classification Act of 1949, PFS–20 and PFS–11 are linked with GS–17 and GS–11, respectively, through evaluation of duties, responsibilities, and qualifications required. The fourth step rates of Classification Act grades GS–17 and GS–11 were used as the fourth step rates of PFS–20 and PFS–11 respectively. The fourth step rates of other postal levels were established by application of uniform intergrade differentials for levels PFS–7 through PFS–10 and another set of uniform differentials among levels above PFS–10. With the exception of lower levels where the committee found special conditions to exist, there has been established in the bill a PFS comparability pay line at the same general level as the Classification Act pay line.

The postal field service schedule was constructed by applying within-grade pay ranges patterned along the lines of those provided in title II of the bill for the Classification Act of 1949 but substantially wider at the lower postal levels. Eleven within-grade increases spread over 21 years and adding up to a 37-percent range are provided for PFS–1 through PFS–6 where employees normally spend their entire careers in a single level. The new PFS rate ranges replace the former longevity increases as well as the regular step increases in the former pay schedule. Time intervals between step increases are 1 year each for the first seven steps and 3 years each for the remaining steps within the level.

Additional step increases may be granted by the Postmaster General under the provisions of title I to any employee for exceptional competence and the Postmaster General may appoint an individual with extra qualifications at a rate above the minimum of the level.

Other revisions in the postal compensation system guarantee a minimum two-step increase on promotion to a higher level or a three-step increase if promoted three or more levels.

The adoption of these principles recommended by the administration will enable the Postmaster General to exercise greater discretion in the best interest of the postal service in connection with personnel administration. The committee believes this flexibility is wholly desirable.

PAY ADMINISTRATION FLEXIBILITY FOR CLASSIFICATION ACT EMPLOYEES

Title II of the bill provides greater flexibility in pay administration for classified employees under the Classification Act pay schedule.

The bill includes the provision in H.R. 1010 which passed the House of Representatives on August 22, 1961. These provisions would insure employees promoted to a higher grade a salary increase equivalent to not less than two step increases in the grade from which promoted.

The Classification Act of 1949 in its present form contains no provisions for merit increases. Private enterprise relies heavily on merit increases for rewarding and encouraging its better employees. The bill provides for use of step increases, under Civil Service Commission regulations, to reward high-quality performance. No more than one such increase could be granted an employee during a year. This authority would make it possible for Federal managers to reward appropriately the better performers, whose everyday contributions to Federal programs continuously exceed the contributions of their associates.

At various times in the past, the Classification Act system has permitted within-grade merit increases. In the early years of the act, increases were permitted to employees with specified efficiency ratings. Absence of coordination among agencies—with increases depending more on the condition of an agency's appropriation than on merit—led to the present system of automatic, length-of-service increases. A limited, relatively cumbersome system of superior performance increases remained in existence but proved unsatisfactory and the authority on which it rested was repealed in 1954. The bill takes a middle ground between the two extremes that proved unsuccessful under the Classification Act of 1949 in the past.

The bill also provides for appointing individuals with extra qualifications at a rate above the minimum of a grade, or for using a higher rate when the minimum would be lower than the candidate's current salary. This authority would also be exercised under Civil Service Commission regulations. It is designed to help attract high-quality personnel to the Federal service. There are many instances in which ability to offer a few hundred dollars more may enable the Government to secure the services of a well-qualified individual.

Under present law, there is no pay method for rectifying a situation in which a Classification Act supervisor is paid less than a wage board employee under his supervision. With Classification Act salaries at comparability levels, the incidence of situations of this sort should be sharply reduced but, with the supervisor's rate based upon a national average and the subordinate's rate on a local average, some of these pay inversions may still be encountered. Accordingly, the bill would permit an agency, under Civil Service Commission regulations, to raise the rate of the supervisor in these circumstances to a rate of his grade which is above the rate paid the wage board employee under his supervision.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Title V of the bill contains a number of miscellaneous provisions relating to existing authorities to set salaries for specified numbers of positions in certain scientific activities without regard to the Classification Act of 1949.

The positions are in the Departments of Defense, Interior, Agriculture, Health, Education, and Welfare, Commerce, Post Office, the National Security Agency, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Atomic Energy Commission, Federal Aviation Agency, and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. At the present time, salaries generally are restricted to the range between $12,500 and $19,000, but a maximum of 30 positions in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now may be paid up to $21,000 a year.

Title V authorizes, in place of the present fixed dollar limitations, salaries in the range between the minimum rate of grade GS–16 and the pay of grade GS–18. Under the first phase Classification Act schedule effective in July 1962, the range would be $16,400 to $20,315. Effective in July 1963, the range would become $19,125 up to the maximum for GS–18 as limited by section 506(a). A special provision would permit immediately setting salaries for a maximum of 30 positions in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (which may now be compensated up to $21,000 annually) at not to exceed the rate for grade GS–18 which would be in effect after July 1963, under title II of the bill.

These provisions would produce much needed increases in salaries for the positions concerned, generally those of scientists engaged in advanced research and developmental studies. More important, linking the rate range for these positions to specified Classification Act grade ranges would produce automatically appropriate adjustments in the salary limits for these positions whenever the Classification Act and other statutory salary schedules are adjusted as a result of movements in national private enterprise salary levels.

COST

According to estimates submitted by the Bureau of the Budget as shown in the chart in the sixth paragraph of the "Statement" of this report, the cost resulting from the enactment of this bill during fiscal year 1963 will be approximately $892 million. When the final pay adjustments become fully effective in July 1963, there will be an added cost of about $577 million resulting in a total cost for the bill of approximately $1,469 million annually. According to the testimony of representatives of the Bureau of the Budget and the Civil Service Commission who appeared before the committee, the bill recommended by the administration would increase Government expenditures by $1,058,500,000 annually when that proposal became fully effective.

The difference of approximately $411 million between the cost of the administration's proposal and this bill occurs by reason of (1) additional coverage of this legislation as compared to the administration's proposal, (2) the bill becoming effective in two phases in 2 fiscal years rather than in three steps in 4 fiscal years, and (3) by reason of the more realistic pay adjustments which are provided for over 700,000 Federal employees in the lower pay levels who, for the most part, are now receiving less than $5,000 per annum.

The committee believes that the added cost above that which is proposed by the administration is fully justified for the foregoing reasons.

The illusion of substantially lower costs which is contended for the administration's proposal is created by reason of the fact that the cost is spread over 4 fiscal years rather than over 2 fiscal years as proposed in this legislation. In order to view the full impact of the salary reform measure recommended by the administration, it should be pointed out that according to the Bureau of the Budget—the President's salary reform plan has an annual cost of $448 million for the first full year, $818 million in the second full year and slightly in excess of $1 billion in the third full year.

The committee believes that beginning in fiscal year 1966 and thereafter there will be very little difference—if any difference—between the cost of the bill as compared to the administration's pay proposal.

In order to avoid unnecessary Federal expenditures and to reduce the cost of this bill, the committee adopted a provision contained in section 605 under which the Director of the Bureau of the Budget is authorized and directed to take whatever action is necessary to absorb the cost of the pay increases provided for in the bill. Although this is not a mandatory provision which would require the separation of any Federal employee or place any such employee on a leave-without-pay status, nevertheless, it is an affirmation of a policy which the committee believes will reduce the cost of the bill below the estimates furnished by the Bureau of the Budget.

CONCLUSION

As stated earlier in the report, the enactment of this bill would be one of the most progressive and constructive actions taken by the Congress since the establishment of the civil service system to provide improved personnel management resulting from pay reform legislation. The enactment of the bill would bring Federal statutory salaries more nearly up to levels reasonably comparable with rates paid in private industry and would establish equitable relationships among Federal pay systems.

In approving this legislation, the committee followed almost every recommendation submitted to the Congress by the President in connection with reform of Federal pay systems. The only departure relates to the lower grades. The overwhelming majority of the committee members believe that special considerations, emphasized during the hearings relating to the lower pay levels, necessitated a change in the administration's recommendations.

The structural reforms and the flexibility recommended by the administration in the statutory pay systems are preserved almost intact.

The linkage and comparability principles which were enunciated and stressed by representatives of the executive branch have not been destroyed. The linkage is preserved, except with respect to the relationship between the positions of postal clerk and carrier with positions in grade GS–5 under the Classification Act. The reports and testimony of representatives from the Civil Service Commission, Bureau of the Budget, and Post Office Department recognize the difficulty with such an arbitrary linkage by stating that additional considerations must be given the "unique character of postal occupations" and that for the most part postal employees in PFS levels 1 through 6 "normally spend their entire careers in a single level."

The extra step increase on conversion after the effective date of the bill for postal employees in the first four levels of the postal field service schedule, and for rural carriers, has been included in the bill in order to recognize these special characteristics.

In every respect, the linkage and comparability between the other statutory pay systems (the Foreign Service Act, the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, and the Classification Act) are maintained.

In recognition of the vast responsibilities of our Federal Government in these perilous times and the reliance upon our Federal employees for the safety, security, efficiency, and effectiveness of our Federal Government operations, the American people can afford no less than the most equitable treatment for all Federal employees. The cost of this legislation is a wise and prudent investment in the future of America. The tremendous sums of Federal funds which are under the direction and control of Federal employees and the fearful responsibilities which they exercise from day to day throughout the world underline the need for the enactment of this legislation.

EXPLANATION OF THE BILL BY SECTIONS

SHORT TITLE

The first section provides a short title for the proposed law—the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Title I—Postal Field Service Employees

SHORT TITLE

Section 101 provides a short title for the provisions of Title I—the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962."

EMPLOYEES UNDER THE POSTAL FIELD SERVICE SCHEDULE

Section 102 provides increases in the per annum rates of basic compensation of employees subject to the postal field service schedule by amending the schedule provided in section 3542(a) of title 39, United States Code. The amendment provides two new schedules. The first schedule will be effective from the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, until the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. The second schedule will be effective thereafter. The per annum rates which may be paid to employees under this amendment are limited by section 506(a) of the bill and may not exceed the smaller amount (currently $22,500) set forth in 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended (2 U.S.C. 31).

The new schedules replace both the annual salary steps in the present postal field service schedule and the longevity steps now provided by 39 U.S.C. 3558. The provisions of such section 3558 are repealed by section 115 of the bill. In the present schedule, there are seven steps in PFS–1 through PFS–18, three steps in PFS–19, and one step in PFS–20. In the new schedules, there are 12 steps in PFS–1 through PFS–6, 11 steps in PFS–7, 10 steps in PFS–8 through PFS–18, 7 steps in PFS–19, and 4 steps in PFS–20.

EMPLOYEES UNDER THE RURAL CARRIER SCHEDULE

Section 103(a) amends section 3543(a) of title 39, United States Code, to provide two new schedules for determining the per annum rates of basic compensation of rural carriers. The first schedule will be effective from the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, until the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. The second schedule will be effective thereafter. The new rural carrier schedules continue the present system for paying rural carriers which relates basic compensation primarily to miles of the rural route. The number of per annum rates and steps is increased to 12. The new steps replace both the seven per annum steps and the three longevity steps.

Section 103(b) amends subsection (f) of section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, which relates to allowances for rural carriers for equipment maintenance. The present allowances for routes is $3.50 per day or 10 cents per mile, whichever is greater, plus $2.50 per day for heavy duty routes.

While retaining 10 cents a mile as standard allowance, the amendment increases the minimum daily allowance of $3.50 per day to $4 for routes requiring less than 260 stops. For other routes, the allowance shall be the greater of (A) 10 cents a mile, or (B) the sum of (1) $4 per day, (2) 5 cents for each unit of 20 stops in excess of 260 a day, as determined by the Postmaster General, and (3) 5 cents a mile for each mile over 22 miles.

The use of the number of stops as a basis for computing the equipment maintenance allowance is a new feature added to the law by this amendment. The Post Office Department now uses a similar basis under administrative regulations. In order to permit the Postmaster General to determine the number of stops for each rural route, as required by the amendment, the provisions of the amendment made by section 103(b) of the bill will become effective, under section 117(3) of the bill, on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment or on or after October 1, 1962, whichever is the later date.

Section 103(c) amends section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code. The present law authorizes the payment of additional compensation to rural carriers serving heavy duty routes not exceeding 61 miles in length. The amendment authorizes the payment of additional compensation to rural carriers serving heavy duty routes not exceeding 101 miles in length. The increase in the mileage limitation will permit the payment of additional compensation on overburdened routes for which the heavy-duty compensation could not be paid because of the excess mileage.

Under existing law, the additional compensation could be paid to a rural carrier only in an amount which would not exceed "the basic salary for the maximum step in the Rural Carrier Schedule for a route sixty-one miles in length" (Public Law 86–568, sec. 103(b)). The amendment does not contain a similar limitation but permits the additional compensation to be authorized on the basis of maximum allowable time required to serve a route as determined by evaluation under the office and route time standards prescribed by the Postmaster General. When a rural carrier is given auxiliary assistance to help in the office work or on his route, it is anticipated that the Postmaster General, in determining the additional compensation for serving a heavy duty route, will give due consideration to the effect the auxiliary assistance has on the time required by the carrier to serve his route.

POSTMASTERS UNDER THE FOURTH CLASS OFFICE SCHEDULE

Section 104(a) amends section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, to provide two new schedules for determining the per annum rates of basic compensation of postmasters at post offices of the fourth class. The first schedule will be effective from the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, until the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. The new schedules continue to relate compensation to gross receipt categories and provide 12 steps to conform with the pattern established under the postal field service schedule. The new steps replace both the seven per annum steps and the three longevity steps.

Section 104(b) amends section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code. The amendment includes all the provisions now contained in such section 3544(b) and adds a new provision contained in the second sentence of the amended section 3544(b). The purpose of the new language in such second sentence is to correct an inequity in the treatment of the salary of a postmaster in a post office of the fourth class when such office is relegated to a lower gross receipts category and subsequently advanced to a higher gross receipts category. The amendment will permit restoration of such a postmaster to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category.

Under existing law, such postmaster's rate of compensation is set at the first step in the higher category which exceeds his salary in effect at the time of advancement. This general rule under existing law does not recognize the fact that a postmaster who previously served in a higher category may have advanced to a step above step 1 by reason of length of service in that category. The amendment made by section 104(b) will continue the provisions of existing law and add the authorization described above.

AUTOMATIC ADVANCEMENT BY STEP INCREASES

Section 105 amends section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, relating to advancement of postal field service employees by step increases.

The present schedule of automatic advancements provides for step increases based on 52 weeks of service in a step until step 7, the highest step in the existing schedule, is reached for postal service employees, except for substitutes whose positions are allocated to salary level PFS–5 as a distribution clerk in a railway or highway post office who could not be advanced beyond step 4. Thus, an employee entering on duty in PFS–4, step 1, would reach step 7 upon completion of six 52-week periods, or after approximately 6 years of service in that level.

Under subsection (a) of section 3552, as amended by section 105 of the bill, each employee in the postal field service will be advanced automatically to steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 on the basis of 52 weeks of service in each step and to steps 8 and above on the basis of 156 weeks of service. To reach step 7 under the new schedule, an employee entering on duty in PFS–4, step 1, would complete 6 years of service, and he would reach step 12, the highest step for his level under the new schedule, upon completion of 21 years of service.

The amendment does not continue the limitation on the advancement of substitutes assigned to road duty. It has been the practice of the Post Office Department to credit service by such a substitute in step 4, PFS–5, and, upon placement in a position not subject to the limitation, the employee would be advanced in step in the new position on the basis of such service, if otherwise proper. The removal of such limitation will permit these substitute employees who were not advanced beyond step 4 of salary level PFS–5 by reason of the limitation, to be given credit for all their service in step 4 and given the appropriate step increases at the time of conversion, in accordance with the provisions of section 108(a)(3) of the bill.

Subsection (b) of such section 3552 as amended by section 105 of the bill, provides that statutory increases in basic compensation shall not be considered an equivalent increase for purposes of determining eligibility for the automatic advancement by step increases under subsection (a) of such section 3552.

Subsection (c) of such section 3552 as added by section 105 of the bill, reenacts the provisions contained in the last sentence of existing section 3552(a) relating to the preservation of the benefits of successive step-increases for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services.

PROMOTIONS

Section 106 amends section 3559 of title 39, United States Code. The method of promotion under existing law guarantees to each postal field service schedule employee who is promoted to a higher salary level a minimum increase equivalent to the difference between step 1 of the level from which promoted and step 1 of the level immediately above the level from which promoted.

The amendment made by section 106 of the bill will guarantee to each employee who is promoted to a position in the postal field service schedule a minimum increase equivalent to two step increases of the level from which promoted. If the employee is promoted to a level more than two levels above the level of his position, he will receive a minimum increase equivalent to three step increases. In the event there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted with a rate which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee will be paid either the maximum step of the higher salary level or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.

The existing provisions of subsection (b) of such section 3559 are, in effect, repealed by this amendment. Under such provisions of existing law, regular clerks and carriers in post offices of the first or second class become eligible for promotion upon reaching the maximum step of their positions, step 7, after 6 years of service. Under the new schedules such employees will reach the maximum step in approximately 21 years. Consequently, continuation of the restriction now contained in such subsection (b) of section 3559 is not consistent with the provisions of this bill and, in effect, are repealed by the amendment contained in section 106 of the bill.

DEFINITION OF BASIC SALARY AND BASIC COMPENSATION

Section 107 amends section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, to conform the definition of the terms "basic salary" and "basic compensation" with the new meaning given to those terms by this bill. Under the amendment, each term will mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential. This definition omits all reference to longevity compensation (the provision for which is repealed by section 115).

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD FOLLOWING JULY 1, 1962

Section 108(a) provides rules for the adjustment of the rates of basic compensation of each employee in a position under the postal field service schedule or the rural carrier schedule on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

Paragraph (1) of section 108(a) provides that each employee in any of the first four levels of the postal field service schedule and each rural carrier shall be assigned to the same numerical level and advanced one step higher than the step he was in prior to the effective date of the first schedule, as applicable, provided by the amendments contained in sections 102 and 103(a) of the bill. Each employee in levels 5 through 20 of the postal field service schedule shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of the first new postal field service schedule. Any changes in level or step which otherwise occurred on the effective date of such schedules without regard to the enactment of this bill are deemed to have occurred prior to the conversions under this paragraph.

Paragraph (2) provides that, in addition to conversion under paragraph (1), each employee covered thereby shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step he had earned on or prior to the conversion provided under paragraph (1).

Paragraph (3) preserves credit toward the next automatic step-increase of credit earned by an employee prior to the effective date of the first schedule, except for an employee in any of the first four levels of the postal field service schedule or a rural carrier who is advanced from step 6 to step 7 under paragraph (1) or for an employee who was advanced under paragraph (2) for a previously earned longevity step. Employees in step 7 are not considered as having earned automatic step-increase credit, since step 7 is the highest step in the schedules in effect prior to the amendments by this bill. In order to remove any doubt on this matter, paragraph (3) applies only to employees who had not reached step 7. Also, in order to be equitable, paragraph (3) will not apply to those who are advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1). As indicated above in connection with section 105, substitutes whose positions are allocated to salary level PFS–5 as a distribution clerk in a railway or highway post office are to be given credit under such paragraph (3) for otherwise creditable service in step 4 and given the appropriate step increases at the time of conversion.

Thus, a new waiting period for the next step increase will be started on the date of conversion (1) for employees in the first four levels and rural carriers who are advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1); (2) for employees who are in step 7; and (3) for employees who are advanced under paragraph (2) by reason of one or more longevity steps.

Section 108(b) provides rules for the adjustment of the rates of basic compensation for postmasters at post offices of the fourth class under the first schedule provided by section 104(a) of the bill which goes into effect on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

Under paragraph (1), any change in receipts category or step which occurred on or before the effective date of the first schedule would be preserved and each postmaster then would be assigned to the receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of the first schedule. Under paragraph (2) each postmaster who had not reached step 7 will retain credit for step-increase purposes provided no additional step was granted under paragraph (3) of section 108(b). Paragraph (3) grants one additional step for each longevity step earned by the postmaster prior to the effective date of the first schedule—the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

Section 108(c) provides that if the existing basic compensation of any postal field service employee is greater than the rate established under the conversion rules of subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of the new schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation, or if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step of the new schedule, his existing basic compensation shall be retained.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD FOLLOWING JULY 1, 1963

Section 109 provides two rules for the adjustment of the rates of basic compensation of postal field service employees as of the first pay period following July 1, 1963. Under the rule in paragraph (1), each employee will be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had obtained prior to the effective date of the second schedule. Any changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps which would otherwise occur on the effective date of such second schedule will be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion. Under the rule in paragraph (2), if the existing basic compensation of an employee is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1), the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation, or, if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

PROTECTED RATES

Section 110 provides that rates of compensation fixed for certain employees upon reduction in grade by reason of the provisions of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased except as may be proper under sections 108(c) or 109(2) of the bill. Under such section 3560, employees who are receiving salary protection following a reduction in salary standing are entitled to the benefits of "each increase provided by law in such rate of basic salary." The salary plan involved in the new salary schedules contains basic structural changes for employees now under the various schedules.

The salaries of the employees in protected rates under such section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, will be converted under the rules specified by sections 108 and 109 but the purpose of section 110 is to nullify the requirement of section 3560 in this particular case so that the statutory increases provided by this bill will not increase the protected rates of such employees.

BASIC SALARY IN CASES OF ASSIGNMENTS OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Section 111(a) amends section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, to give the Postmaster General authority to waive the requirement contained in such section 3335(b) relating to a minimum of 30 days higher level service in each calendar year before higher level compensation may be paid. The amendment will permit the payment of the higher level compensation for those first 30 days of a calendar year. Section 3335(b) now permits the Postmaster General to assign a postal field service employee to higher level service and provides that when such employee is assigned for more than 30 days in a calendar year to the duties and responsibilities of a salary level which is higher than the salary level to which his position is assigned, the Postmaster General shall pay the higher level compensation for the period of the assignment in excess of 30 days.

The Comptroller General held on February 1, 1962, B–138999, that the language of section 3335(b) requires that a postal service employee must perform 30 days of higher level service each calendar year before he is entitled to higher level compensation for days in excess of the 30. The Post Office Department, which had been paying higher level compensation in certain assignments without regard to such 30-day requirement, suspended payment of compensation for performance of higher level service performed on and after February 17, 1962, unless the employee had completed 30 days of higher level service during the current calendar year.

Subsection (b) of section 111 of the bill will validate each payment of higher level compensation which was made prior to the date of enactment of this legislation for service performed for periods of 30 days or less in any calendar year by a postal service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of the higher salary level, and which would have been authorized had this legislation been in effect when the service was performed.

Subsection (c) of section 111, will make subsection (a) effective as of February 17, 1962, the date on which the Post Office Department discontinued the prior practice. It is intended that this provision making subsection (a) effective as of February 17, 1962, will permit the Postmaster General to pay higher level compensation subject to the provisions of subsection (d) in the case of those employees who have qualified under the Department's regulations, but who have not received the higher level compensation by reason of the order which suspended such payments as of February 17, 1962.

The provisions of subsections (d) through (g) of section 111 are the usual "housekeeping provisions" included in legislation when retroactive compensation payments are authorized by law and, in addition to employees still on the rolls, relate primarily to employees who have entered the Armed Forces, or who have retired, or to survivors of such employees.

SALARY PROTECTION REVISION

Section 112(a) amends section 3560(a)(1), of title 39, United States Code. The existing provisions of paragraph (1) of such section 3560(a) exclude employees in PFS–17, 18, 19 and 20 from the benefits of salary protection provided by such section 3560. These employees are excluded from salary protection under existing law the same as are employees in grades GS–16, 17, and 18 under the Classification Act of 1949. Inasmuch as the exception for employees in grades GS–16, 17, and 18, to the salary retention benefits are removed by the provisions of section 205 of this bill, parallel treatment is afforded by the new paragraph (1) of section 3560(a), as amended by section 112(a) of the bill, to remove the exemption for employees in PFS–17, 18, 19, and 20.

Section 112(b) amends paragraph (4) of section 3560(b) of title 39, United States Code, to provide salary protection in cases where an employee has been promoted, or advanced, to a higher salary standing within the 2-year qualifying period. This amendment will remove an inconsistency from existing law and will make salary protection available for these employees. This inconsistency was the subject of the Comptroller General decision of March 6, 1962, B–148024.

Section 112(c) amends section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, by adding a new paragraph (C) to provide a method of determining the protected salary rate in the case of employees who have been promoted, or advanced, in salary standing within the 2-year period. Under this provision the protected rate is the rate which the employee would have obtained in the lowest salary standing held by him during the 2-year period augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.

Paragraph (1) of section 112(d) provides that the amendments made by section 112 shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on, or after, the date of enactment of the bill. However, paragraph (2) validates payments made to employees prior to the effective date of this amendment which would have been authorized under section 3560 if the amendments made by this section 112 to subsections (b)(4), and (c) of such section 3560, had been in effect at the time the payments were made.

Section 112 will become effective on the date of enactment under the provisions of section 117 of the bill.

RULES FOR SPECIAL COMPENSATION

Section 113 adds a new section 3106 to title 39 of the United States Code. The new section 3106 provides two new compensation rules which will permit the Postmaster General:

(a) To grant step increases in recognition of extra competence in addition to the automatic step increases provided in 39 U.S.C. 3552 (only one such additional step increase may be granted in any 52-week period); and

(b) To appoint an employee at a salary rate above the minimum step of the level when the appointee has extra qualifications for the position, or when the minimum rate would be less than the current rate—private industry rate or Federal rate—of a well-qualified appointee.

The authority in the second rule—paragraph (b)—will provide, in effect, an exception to the provisions of 39 U.S.C. 3551(a), relating to the salary steps under the postal field service schedule to which certain persons may be assigned upon appointment.

CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Section 114(a) makes a technical amendment to the table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, by adding a new heading, "3106. Special compensation rules.", to conform with the amendment made by section 113 of the bill.

Section 114(b) deletes the heading, "3558. Longevity step increases.", in the table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, since section 3558, relating to longevity step increases, is repealed by section 115 of the bill.

REPEALS

Section 115 repeals those provisions of sections 101 through 105 of the act of July 1, 1960 (Public Law 86–568), which contain salary increases for postal field service employees. The provisions of such sections 101 through 105 are either superseded or are reenacted as permanent provisions of title 39, United States Code, by the provisions of this bill. Section 115 also repeals the provisions of section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, relating to longevity step increases.

MAXIMUM HOURS OF WORK, COMPENSATORY TIME, OVERTIME, AND HOLIDAYS FOR SUBSTITUTE EMPLOYEES

Section 116 amends section (b) of 3575 of title 39, United States Code, so that substitute employees will be subject to the provisions of sections 3571 and 3573 of title 39, United States Code, relating respectively to minimum hours of work and compensatory time, overtime, and holidays. This section will become effective on the date of enactment of the bill under the provisions of section 117 of the bill.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 117 prescribes the effective dates of the various provisions of title I.

Title II—Pay System of the Classification Act of 1949

SHORT TITLE

Section 201 provides a short title for the provisions of title II of the bill—the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962."

BASIC COMPENSATION SCHEDULES

Section 202(a) amends section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949 to provide new compensation schedules for the general schedule—compensation schedule I and compensation schedule II. The new schedules increase the rates of basic compensation of employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949. Schedule I will be effective from the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, until the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. Schedule II will be effective thereafter.

The new schedules replace both the per annum rates and the longevity rates. In the present schedules, there are seven per annum rates in GS–1 through GS–10; six per annum rates in GS–11 through GS–14; five per annum rates in GS–15 through GS–17; and one per annum rate in GS–18. In addition, there are three longevity rates in grades GS–1 through GS–15.

In the new schedules, there will be 10 per annum rates replacing the old per annum rates and the longevity rates in grades GS–1 through GS–15. Also, the new schedules provide seven per annum rates for GS–16; four per annum rates for GS–17; and one per annum rate for GS–18.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD FOLLOWING JULY 1, 1962

Section 202(b) sets forth rules for the adjustment of the rates of basic compensation of employees to whom section 202(a) applies to the new rates of basic compensation in the new compensation schedule I.

Paragraphs (1) through (6) of section 202(b) apply to each employee who is receiving basic compensation at one of the scheduled or longevity rates of a grade of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. The employee will receive a new rate of basic compensation at a rate under compensation schedule I which corresponds to the scheduled rate, or the longevity rate, which the employee held prior to the conversion. Thus, an employee in the sixth rate of grade 12 prior to conversion, would be converted under paragraph (2) to the sixth rate of the new compensation schedule I, and an employee in the third longevity rate of Grade 12 would be converted to the ninth rate of new compensation schedule I. Paragraph (5) contains a special conversion rule for those employees who are in the fifth rate of grade 17 of the general schedule, to the effect that such employees will be converted to the fourth rate of new compensation schedule I, which will be the top rate for GS–17.

Paragraph (7) of section 202(b) applies to each employee who is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the effective date of section 202, at a rate between two scheduled or two longevity rates, or at a rate between a scheduled rate and a longevity rate of a grade of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Such employee will receive a new rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates, as specified in paragraphs (1) through (5) of this subsection in effect on and after such effective date of section 202.

Paragraph (8) of section 202(b) applies to each employee who is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the effective date of section 202, at a rate in excess of the maximum longevity rate of his grade, or at a rate in excess of the maximum scheduled rate of his grade if there is no longevity rate for his grade of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Such employee shall receive the rate of the new compensation schedule I prescribed by paragraphs (1) through (5) of section 202(b) for employees at the maximum longevity rate or at the maximum scheduled rate, as the case may be, for his grade, or, if such rate is less than his existing rate, the employee shall receive the lowest rate of the new compensation schedule I for his grade which equals, or exceeds, his existing rate, and if there is no such rate he shall receive his existing rate.

Paragraph (9) of section 202(b) provides that service immediately prior to the effective date of the new compensation schedule I shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time-in-grade provisions of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended by section 203 of this bill.

Paragraph (10) of section 202(b) applies to each officer or employee who is receiving immediately prior to the effective date of section 202, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation, determined under section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, 83d Cong.), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960. Such officer or employee will receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (1) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under the savings provisions of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, referred to above, and (2) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, and (3) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and (4) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (5) the amount of the increase made by section 202 of this bill under compensation schedule I in the maximum rate of his grade. This rate will remain in effect for such officer or employee until he leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of title II of the bill or any other law. However, when the position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any later appointee thereto will be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Paragraph (10) of section 202(b) also contains a provision to the effect that, subject to the possibility that any such officer or employee may leave his position or may become entitled to aggregate compensation at a higher rate, the amount of the increase provided by section 202 is to be held and considered, for the savings purposes of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing aggregate rate of compensation of the officer or employee.

Paragraph (11) of section 202(b) applies to each employee who became subject to the Classification Act of 1949 at any time during the period beginning on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending on the date of enactment. Such employee shall have his basic compensation adjusted retroactively to the date on which he became subject to the act on the basis of the rate under compensation schedule I for that step of the appropriate grade which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade for such employee which was in effect at the time he became subject to the Classification Act of 1949.

Paragraph (12) provides that if the officer or employee on the rolls has had his rate of basic compensation established under authority of section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, at any time during the period beginning on September 1, 1954, and ending on the date of enactment of the bill, his rate shall be adjusted retroactively, as discussed below.

If his rate was established under authority of such section 803 after September 1, 1954, and prior to the effective date of section 202, such rate shall be adjusted retroactively on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the general schedule as set forth in section 202 of the bill which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the general schedule which was in effect for such officer or employee (without regard to this bill) as a result of such adjustment under section 803. This retroactive adjustment will be applicable to the period of time served by such officer or employee in a pay status under the Classification Act of 1949 in the position concerned on and after the effective date of section 202 and prior to the date of enactment of the bill.

If the rate of basic compensation of the officer or employee was established under such section 803 on or after the effective date of section 202 and prior to the date of enactment of the bill, his rate shall be adjusted retroactively, as hereinafter stated. For the period of time prior to the effective date of the establishment of his rate of basic compensation under such section 803, his rate will be adjusted on the basis of the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving during that period. For the period of time on and after the effective date of the establishment of his rate of basic compensation under such section 803, his rate shall be adjusted on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the general schedule as set forth in section 202 of the bill, which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the general schedule which was in effect for such officer or employee (without regard to this bill) as a result of such adjustment under such section 803. Such basic compensation adjusted under paragraph (12) shall be paid in accordance with such adjustment until the officer or employee leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of any provision of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. These adjustments apply to time in pay status.

Paragraph (13) provides that, if the officer or employee became subject to the Classification Act of 1949 at any time during the period beginning on September 1, 1954, and ending on the date of enactment of the bill, at a rate of basic compensation established under authority of section 803 of such act, his rate of basic compensation shall be adjusted retroactively on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the general schedule as set forth in section 202 of the bill, which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the general schedule in effect for such officer or employee (without regard to the bill) as a result of such adjustment under such section 803. This retroactive adjustment shall be applicable with respect to the period of time served by the officer or employee in a pay status under the Classification Act of 1949 in the position concerned on and after the effective date of section 202 and prior to the date of enactment of the bill. Such basic compensation so adjusted under paragraph (13) shall be paid in accordance with such adjustment until the officer or employee leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of any provision of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Paragraph (14) provides that, if the officer or employee, at any time during the period beginning on the effective date of section 202 of the bill and ending on the date of enactment of the bill, became subject to the Classification Act of 1949, at a rate of basic compensation fixed on the basis of a higher previously earned rate and above the minimum rate of the grade of the officer or employee, his rate of basic compensation shall be adjusted retroactively to the date on which he became subject to such act. Such retroactive adjustment shall be made on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the general schedule as set forth in section 202 of the bill which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the general schedule for such officer or employee which was in effect (without regard to the bill) at the time he became subject to the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of section 202.

Paragraph (15) relates to certain officers and employees who transferred from the Classification Act of 1949 to a prevailing rate schedule. Paragraph (15) provides that any such officer or employee who has been transferred either with or without his position from the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 to a prevailing rate schedule and who otherwise falls within the purview of such paragraph (15) shall be paid basic compensation at a rate equal to the rate which he would have been receiving on the date of enactment of the bill if his transfer had not occurred until the day immediately following the date of enactment of the bill, for all time in a pay status on and after the effective date of section 202 in a position subject to a prevailing rate schedule under the circumstances set forth in paragraph (15).

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD FOLLOWING JULY 1, 1963

Section 202(c) sets forth rules for the adjustment of the rates of basic compensation of those employees to whom section 202(a) applies the new rates of basic compensation in the new compensation schedule II as of the first pay period in July 1963.

Paragraph (1) of section 202(c) applies to each employee who is receiving basic compensation at one of the rates of a grade of compensation schedule I of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Such employee will receive a rate of basic compensation under compensation schedule II at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

Paragraph (2) of section 202(c) applies to each employee who is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, at a rate between two rates of a grade of compensation schedule I of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Such employee will receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates under compensation schedule II in effect on and after such date.

Paragraph (3) of section 202(c) applies to each employee receiving compensation prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade. Such employee shall receive the rate of the new compensation schedule II prescribed for employees at the maximum rate for his grade or his existing rate of basic compensation if such existing rate is higher.

Paragraph (4) of section 202(c) applies to certain employees who are receiving a saved rate of compensation pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955. An explanation of this rule may be found in connection with the similar rule under paragraph (10) above relating to conversions as of July 1962.

STEP INCREASES

Section 203 amends title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to within-grade advancements by step increases. Title VII currently provides two types of step increases: (1) periodic step increases under section 701, and (2) longevity step increases beyond the maximum rate of the grade under section 703. As amended by this bill, title VII provides for (1) periodic step increases under section 701, and (2) additional step increases to be granted in recognition of high quality performance under section 702. Longevity step increases are discontinued.

Section 701 under current law provides periodic step increases for employees below the maximum rate of a grade for each 52 calendar weeks of service if the amount of the step increase is less than $200, or for each 78 weeks of service if the employee's position is in a grade in which the step increase is $200 or more. As amended by section 203 of the bill, section 701(a) provides for periodic increases following: (1) the completion of 52 calendar weeks of service in each of the salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) 104 calendar weeks of service in each of the salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) 156 calendar weeks of service in each of the salary rates 7, 8, and 9. These periods of service apply regardless of the grade or the dollar amount of the salary increment.

The amendment authorizes the step increases subject to the following conditions: (A) that no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during the applicable period; (B) that the employee's work is of an acceptable level of competence, as determined by the head of a department—as contrasted with the wording of existing law that the employee "has a current performance rating of 'satisfactory' or better"; and (C) that the benefit of successive step increases shall be preserved under appropriate regulations for employees whose service is interrupted by service in the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

Subsection (b) of section 701, as amended by section 203, reenacts provisions similar to the provisions of existing subsection (b) of section 701, to the effect that any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation for step increase purposes.

Section 702(a) of such title VII, as amended by section 203 of the bill, authorizes additional step increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Such step increases will be in addition to those authorized under section 701, and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of section 701.

The increases to be granted under such section 702 are limited under subsection (b) to not more than one additional step increase within any period of 52 weeks.

Section 703 of title VII, as amended by section 203 of the bill, reenacts the similar provisions of existing law contained in section 705 which, in effect, are repealed by this amendment. Such new section 703 provides that title VII shall not apply to persons appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Current provisions of law contained in sections 703 and 704 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to longevity step increases, in effect are repealed by the amendment made by section 203 of the bill. Title VII currently does not have any section 702.

GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

Section 204(a) amends section 801 of the Classification Act of 1949, which now requires that all appointments shall be made at the minimum rate of the appropriate grade. Such requirement would continue to be the general rule under section 801, as amended by this section 204(a). In addition, the amendment will permit appointments at rates above the minimum of the grade, under regulations prescribed by the U.S. Civil Service Commission, as follows: (1) individuals having extra qualifications for the position concerned may be appointed at such higher rates of a grade as the Commission may authorize for this purpose; and (2) a well-qualified individual whose salary, whether paid by the Federal Government or by a non-Federal entity, is above the minimum rate of the grade to which he would be appointed, and who otherwise would decline the appointment or take a reduction in income if the Government's offer is accepted, may be appointed a rate above the minimum, but such appointment could not be made at a rate higher than the lowest rate of the appropriate grade which equals, or exceeds, an appointee's salary rate immediately prior to appointment. The authorization is permissive in both categories (1) and (2) above.

Section 204(b) amends subsection (b) of section 802 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to the rate of compensation to be received by an employee who is promoted to a higher grade.

Subsection (b) of section 802 as in effect prior to the effective date of this section provides that an employee upon promotion will receive a rate of compensation in the higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than one step-increase of the grade from which promoted. The amendment to such subsection (b) of section 802 made by section 204(b) of the bill provides that when the employee is promoted he shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of the higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which promoted. In case any such employee is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade and there is no rate in the higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of compensation, the employee will receive either the maximum rate of the higher grade or his existing rate of basic compensation if such existing rate is the higher.

In case any employee so promoted is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 upon reduction in grade, the employee's existing rate of basic compensation for the purposes of such section 802(b) shall be the basic salary which the employee would have received except for the provisions of such section 507, or his existing rate of basic compensation if such rate is the higher.

Section 204(c) amends section 802 of the Classification Act of 1949, by adding a new subsection (d).

There is no present authority for saving the basic compensation of an employee who, together with his position, is brought under the Classification Act of 1949 from some other Federal pay system (such as the wage board system), when his salary is in excess of the maximum rate of the classification grade in which his position is placed.

The new subsection (d) added to such section 802 by section 204(c) of the bill would authorize the U.S. Civil Service Commission to issue regulations to permit the retention of salaries in such instances. The amendment also provides that if such an employee is demoted to a position in a lower grade under the Classification Act of 1949 his salary will be determined under section 507 of such act—relating to saved rates for employees upon demotion from one grade to another. The new subsection (d) also provides that the employee's service in the position which was brought under the Classification Act of 1949 shall be considered, for the purposes of computing time in grade under section 507, as service under such act.

Section 204(d) amends section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, to provide that any employee in a position under such act, who regularly has the responsibility for supervision over employees whose compensation is fixed or adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities, may be paid either at the rate of his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade. The Civil Service Commission would be authorized to issue regulations for the payment of compensation under this amendment.

Existing provisions of law contained in section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to the establishment of rates above the minimum rate of a grade for certain areas or locations, are, in effect, repealed by this amendment, but new and more comprehensive provisions relating to this subject are contained in section 603 of the bill.

In order not to disturb the appointments that may have been made under section 803 as in effect prior to enactment of this legislation, this section 204(d) shall become effective on the date of enactment.

SALARY RETENTION

Section 205 amends section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 relating to the retention of salaries when an employee is demoted to a lower grade.

The amendment in paragraph (1) extends application of the provisions of section 507 to employees in all grades of the Classification Act of 1949 by omitting the language of existing law which excludes application of the benefits to employees in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. The amendment in paragraph (2) strikes out "(B) in the same grade or in the same or higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section 507 and inserts in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;". This change in language will permit salary retention not now permitted under section 507 where there may have been a series of promotions followed by a demotion or a series of demotions.

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF TOP GRADE POSITIONS UNDER THE CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

Section 206 amends section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to the limitation on the numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule, by increasing the aggregate number of such positions from 1,989 to 2,040.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 207 prescribes the dates on which the several provisions of title II shall become effective.

TITLE III—THE FOREIGN SERVICE ACT OF 1946

SHORT TITLE

Section 301 provides that title III may be cited as the "Foreign Service Salary Reform Act of 1962."

FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS

Section 302 amends the second, third, and fourth sentences of section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 to provide two increases in the per annum salary rates for career ambassador, career minister, and the eight classes of Foreign Service officers. The amendment provides for increases in two phases, the first to be effective from the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, until the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. The second phase will be in effect thereafter.

No changes are made in the existing number of the eight classes of Foreign Service officers, but class 1 will have only two salary rates in place of the existing seven; classes 2 through 7 will continue to have seven rates; and class 8 will have seven rates in place of the existing eight.

FOREIGN SERVICE STAFF OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

Section 303 amends section 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946. The amendment revises the structure of the Foreign Service Staff salary schedule and embodies certain changes comparable to those made by title II of the bill to the general schedule under the Classification Act of 1949.

Section 415(a) as amended by section 303 of the bill prescribes two new schedules, the first to be effective from the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, until the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. The second schedule will be effective thereafter.

There are at present 22 classes in the Foreign Service Staff schedule. The new schedules under the amendment provide only 10 classes and eliminate the unnecessary and seldom-used classes in the current schedule. The new 10-class schedules will provide a reasonable number of levels in relation to the duties and responsibilities which are carried out by staff personnel and, in addition, will provide a more adequate promotion ladder by reducing and consolidating, to a large extent, overlapping classes.

The schedule in existing law provides five rates for class 1 through class 4; six rates for class 5 through class 9; and seven rates for class 10 through class 22. Ten salary rates are proposed for each class. This will make possible within-class increases over a longer period of time for staff personnel in the upper class levels 1 through 9. The 10-rate salary schedules also will replace the present system of longevity rates for staff personnel contained in section 642(b) of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, which is repealed by section 305 of this bill.

Section 415(b) of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 as amended by section 303 of the bill, gives the Secretary of State authority to classify positions at levels below class 10 and to establish salary rates at lower rates than those prescribed by such section 415(a) for American employees recruited abroad who are not available or are not qualified for transfer to another post and who perform duties of a more routine nature than are generally performed at the class 10 level. This authority is necessary because of the elimination of the seldom-used classes in the current schedules below class 10.

CONVERSION

Section 304 provides the necessary rules for the conversion of Foreign Service personnel from their present class and salary rates to the class and salary rate established by the new schedules under section 302 of the bill.

Section 305 repeals subsection (b) of section 642 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, relating to longevity salary increases for Foreign Service Staff officers and employees, and makes the technical conforming changes necessary in connection with such change.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 306 provides that the provisions of title III, except as otherwise expressly provided, shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

Title IV—Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration

Section 401 amends section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code. It reduces the maximum number of Assistant Chief Medical Directors from eight to five and modifies the provisions pertaining to directors of service and chiefs of division. In lieu of these positions, a new position level of Medical Director is established. The salaries of the Chief Medical Director, the Deputy Chief Medical Director, the Assistant Chief Medical Directors, the Director of Nursing Service, the Chief Pharmacist and Chief Dietitian are appropriately adjusted in line with other increases proposed by the bill. The statutory positions of the Deputy Director of Nursing Service, Chief Physical Therapist, and Chief Occupational Therapist are eliminated. The duties of the first-named position will be filled by a nurse of the Assistant Director grade. The salaries for the positions of Chief Physical Therapist and Chief Occupational Therapist will be set in the future under the Classification Act. Appropriate salary rates and schedules to be effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after July 1, 1962, and July 1, 1963, are provided for the Chief Medical Director, the Deputy Chief Medical Director, Assistant Chief Medical Directors, Medical Directors, the Director of Nursing Service, a Chief Pharmacist, and the Chief Dietitian. Subsection (h) of section 4103 of title 38, United States Code, as amended by section 401 of the bill, reenacts present provisions relating to appointments under such section 4103, so that (1) appointments shall be for a period of 4 years subject to removal by the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs for cause, and (2) that reappointments may be made for successive like periods, except as provided in new subsection (j).

The provisions of section 5, Public Law 87–574, relating to Director, Chaplain Service, in the Veterans' Administration are set forth in subsection (j) of section 4103 as amended by such section 401 of the bill.

Section 402 amends section 4107 of title 38, United States Code. In subsection (a) of such section 4107, the former schedules entitled "Medical Service" and "Dental Service" have been combined and retitled "Physician and Dentist Schedule." The existing schedules have provided identical grades and pay scales and their continued separation serves no purpose. The junior grade of the former schedules has been eliminated and, two new grades—the director grade and executive grade—have been established. The schedule now titled "Nursing Service" has been retitled "Nurse Schedule." Two new grades—the assistant director grade and chief grade—have been established, and the former grades of assistant director and senior grade have been retitled "senior grade" and "intermediate grade," respectively. The new grade of assistant director is intended to recognize the special responsibilities assigned a few individuals in the Nursing Service and will absorb the former statutory position of Deputy Director of Nursing Service. The chief grade will be used primarily for nurses who qualify for and are assigned in positions comparable to that of a chief nurse at one of the larger hospitals.

Subsection (a) of such section 4107, as amended by section 402 of the bill, also provides increase in compensation, in two increments, for the physician and dentists schedule and for the nurse schedule, the first increment to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and the second increase to be effective in July 1963.

Subsection (b) of section 4107 of title 38 of the United States Code, as amended by section 402 of the bill, specifies the intended use of the two new grades—director and executive—in the physician and dentist schedule. It provides that no person may hold the director grade unless he is serving as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, center, or outpatient clinic (independent), and that no person may hold the executive grade unless he holds the position of chief of staff at a hospital, center, or outpatient clinic (independent), or the position of clinic director, outpatient clinic, or comparable position. The establishment of these two new grades obviates the situation in which individuals charged with the responsibility of entire hospital operations received less compensation than their subordinates.

Section 403(a) amends section 4108 of title 38, United States Code. The amendment, in effect, repeals the present provision providing for an allowance equal to 15 percent of the pay of persons rated as medical, surgical, or dental specialists, since the latitude which will be afforded within the pay range of each grade will permit appropriate recognition of specially qualified individuals.

Subsection (b) of 4107 of title 38, United States Code, now in effect, has been redesignated, without change, as section 4108 by such section 403(a) of the bill for purpose of greater clarity and as a matter of drafting convenience. The amendments made by section 403 of the bill will supersede the amendments made to section 4108 by section 3, Public Law 87–574, even though the provisions of this bill will be retroactive as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, a date prior to the date of enactment of Public Law 87–574, August 6, 1962.

Subsection (b) of section 403 is a perfecting amendment to the table of contents at the head of chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, to reflect the change in the catchline of section 4108.

Section 404 amends subsection (b) of section 4111 of title 38, United States Code, to provide that the per annum salary rate of a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary he would receive if such service as a director had been as a physician in the director grade. Except with respect to change in rate of salary, subsection (b) does not affect the allocation of any such position to any grade of the Classification Act of 1949 or the application of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual. This section will become effective on the date of enactment of this bill.

Section 405 provides that title IV, except as otherwise expressly provided, shall become effective the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

Title V—Miscellaneous Salary Provisions

Section 501 increases the salary limitations contained in certain laws for certain scientific and professional positions to accord with the salary ranges of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. In most cases, the salary range stated in the laws which are amended is $12,500 minimum and $19,000 maximum. The amendments proposed would tie the new minimum to the minimum rate of grade GS–16 and the maximum to the rate for grade GS–18 of the general schedule.

Except as provided by section 501 (f) the new rates starting in July 1962 will be $16,400 minimum and $20,315 maximum. Starting in July 1963 the new rates will be $19,125 minimum and $22,500 maximum—such maximum being fixed by reason of the ceiling limitations imposed on the Classification Act rates by section 506(a). However, under subsection 501 (f), the maximum for 30 positions of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is specifically excluded from the limitations imposed by section 506(a) and is fixed at the rate for GS–18 which will go into effect in July 1963 or $24,500.

Subsection (c) amends section 4 of the act of May 29, 1959, relating to certain scientific and professional positions in the National Security Agency. Section 4 of such 1959 act now provides that the maximum rate for such positions will be the same as authorized by 10 U.S.C. 1581(b), but has a further limitation contained in the quoted language which is omitted by the amendment made under section 502(b). This amendment will assure that the maximum salary rates for scientific and professional positions in the Department of Defense will

(a) Within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase.

(b) Appoint any officer or employee at a salary rate above the minimum step of the level when the appointee has extra qualifications for the position or the minimum rate would be less than the current salary of a well-qualified appointee.

SPECIAL CLASSES OF EMPLOYEES

§ 3111. Residence of postal transportation clerks

Clerks appointed to the Postal Transportation Service to perform duty on railway post offices shall reside at some point on the route to which they are assigned unless they are authorized by the Postmaster General to reside at some other convenient point.

§ 3112. Inspectors may administer oaths

Postal inspectors may administer oaths required or authorized by law or regulation with respect to any matter coming before them in the performance of their official duties.

§ 3113. Rural carriers to furnish equipment

Rural carriers shall furnish, for prompt handling of the mail, necessary vehicles and such other equipment as the Postmaster General requires.

§ 3114. Rural carriers not to carry merchandise

Rural carriers may not solicit business or receive orders for any person. The Postmaster General may permit them to carry merchandise for hire during their hours of duty for and at the request of patrons residing on their routes.

§ 3115. Special delivery messengers as employees or carriers

(a) A person temporarily employed to deliver special delivery mail is deemed an employee of the postal service, and is subject to the provisions of chapter 83 of title 18 to the same extent as other employees of the Department.

(b) Any person, when engaged in carrying special delivery mail under contract with the Department, or employed by the Department, is deemed a carrier or person entrusted with the mail and having custody thereof, within the meaning of sections 1701, 1708, and 2114 of title 18.

§ 3116. Uniforms and badges

(a) The Postmaster General may prescribe a uniform dress to be worn by letter carriers.

(b) The Postmaster General may not require employees in the Postal Transportation Service to wear any uniform other than cap or badge.

apply to the similar positions in the National Security Agency of the Department of Defense.

Subsection (d) amends the proviso in the first sentence of section 208(g) of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, which relates to compensation rates of certain scientific, professional, and administrative personnel in the Public Health Service to provide a minimum rate of grade GS–16 and a maximum at the rate of grade GS–18.

Subsection (e) establishes a maximum rate, equivalent to the pay of grade GS–18 for five positions of technical experts and scientists in the Department of Agriculture engaged in research and study of foot-and-mouth and other animal diseases.

Subsection (f) amends section 203(b)(2) of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 to provide that the Administrator may fix the rates for certain excepted positions at not to exceed the pay of grade GS–18 of the Classification Act of 1949. For 30 of these positions, which now may be paid up to $21,000, the Administrator may, as of the effective date of this section, pay up to the rate established for grade GS–18 which will be effective under the bill as of July 1963 without regard to the salary ceiling provided by section 506(a) for title II of the bill.

Subsection (g) amends the proviso in section 161d. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 to permit the fixing of salaries of scientific and technical personnel up to a limit of the rate for grade 18 of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949.

Subsection (h) amends section 302(f) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 to permit the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency to fix the compensation of certain positions up to a limit of the rate for grade GS–18 of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949.

Subsection (i) amends section 2 of the act of June 14, 1948, to permit the fixing of compensation for the U.S. representative and alternate on the Executive Board of the World Health Organization at one of the rates provided by section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, which is amended by section 302 of the bill. Under existing law, such representative may receive compensation at a rate not to exceed $12,000 per annum, and the alternate not to exceed $10,000 per annum.

AGRICULTURE STABILIZATION AND CONSERVATION COUNTY COMMITTEE EMPLOYEES

Section 502 provides for increases in the rates of basic compensation of persons employed by the county committees established pursuant to section 8(b) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590(h)(b)). The increases for the agriculture stabilization and county committee employees shall be in two increments and correspond, as nearly as possible, to the increases provided by title II of the bill for employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949.

EMPLOYEES IN THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

Section 503(a) provides increases in the rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in the judicial branch of the Government. The rates for these employees will be increased in two increments, the first, in July 1962, and the second, in July 1963. The increases will reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of the bill for employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949. In respect to the specific employees affected by this section, reference is made to the discussion in connection with the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, Public Law 86–568, contained on page 20 of House Report No. 1636, 86th Congress.

Section 503(b) provides two comparable increases in the compensation of secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges.

Section 503(c) amends section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code to increase the maximum limitation on the annual compensation of court reporters for district courts by two increases comparable with the increases provided in title II of this bill. The existing limitation is $7,630, which will be increased in two increments to reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of the bill and corresponding rates of compensation for employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949.

OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES IN THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Section 504(a) provides for increases in the compensation of legislative officers and employees whose rates of compensation are increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946. Section 504(a) covers each officer or employee whose aggregate (gross) rate of compensation comprises a rate of basic compensation fixed in accordance with law or resolution plus additional compensation provided by the respective applicable salary increase acts or resolutions enacted or adopted during or since 1946. Each increase in compensation provided for by section 504(a) consists of an aggregate amount determined in accordance with applicable rules set forth in section 504(d). This aggregate amount of increase in gross rate of compensation is to be payable in two equal increments. The first increment is to become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962. The second increment is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. Officers and employees covered by section 504(a) are not within the purview of section 504(b) or 504(c).

Section 504(b) provides for increases in the total annual compensation of certain officers and employees of the House of Representatives not covered by section 504(a) or 504(c).

Section 504(b) provides, in effect, that the total annual compensation of each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, but is not increased automatically, and is not permitted to be increased administratively, by any other provision of section 504, shall be increased by an aggregate amount determined in accordance with applicable rules set forth in section 504(d). This aggregate amount of increase in total annual compensation is to be payable in two equal increments. The first increment is to become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962. The second increment is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963.

Section 504(b) covers the following officers and employees of the House of Representatives:

(1) The Parliamentarian of the House of Representatives, whose total rate of per annum compensation is now prescribed by House Resolution 339, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 1 of the House of Representatives, whose total rate of per annum compensation is now prescribed by the authority of law set forth above with respect to the House Parliamentarian;

(3) The following elected officers of the House of Representatives, whose total rates of per annum compensation are now prescribed by House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(k) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568): the Clerk of the House, the Sergeant at Arms of the House, the Doorkeeper of the House, and the Postmaster of the House;

(4) The chief of staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, whose total per annum compensation is now prescribed under authority of section 302(c) of the act of October 4, 1961 (75 Stat. 793; Public Law 87–367);

(5) The legislative counsel of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed in accordance with a provision relating to the legislative counsel of the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 251; Public Law 85–75) (as modified by secs. 4(c) and 4(m) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 208 and 209; Public Law 85–462)), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(6) The coordinator of information of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under House Resolution 183, 80th Congress, section 105 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1948 (61 Stat. 377; Public Law 197, 80th Cong.), section 2(e) of the act of October 24, 1951 (65 Stat. 612; Public Law 201, 82d Cong.), section 4(c) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 176; Public Law 94, 84th Cong.), section 4(l) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(7) Two printing clerks, one for the majority caucus room and one for the minority caucus room, whose total per annum compensation is now provided for on a present incumbency basis in the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 247; Public Law 85–75), as modified by a comparable provision in each annual appropriation act for the legislative branch, the latest such provision currently being the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority

Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962 (75 Stat. 325; Public Law 87–130);

(8) Four minority employees of the House in positions referred to in House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under such resolution and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(r) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

The above list of officers and employees within the purview of section 504(b) is not necessarily all-inclusive.

It may be noted, in connection with House officers and employees in the categories covered by section 504(b), that three employees in comparable categories are granted increases in compensation under section 504(a) rather than 504(b). These employees are as follows:

(1) The Chaplain of the House of Representatives, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate prescribed by section 6 of the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 508; Public Law 242, 84th Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 2 of the House of Representatives whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate provided by House Resolution 277, 82d Congress, and section 277 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1953 (66 Stat. 478; Public Law 471, 82d Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(3) The clerk to the House Parliamentarian, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate fixed under House Resolution 486, 85th Congress, and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1959 (72 Stat. 453; Public Law 85–570), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568).

Section 504(c) increases the maximum limitations on the compensation of House folding room employees. The annual appropriation acts for the legislative branch, in making appropriations for each fiscal year for folding speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives, have provided for two kinds of limitations with respect to the payment of compensation for such folding activities. These limitations are on the gross rate payable per thousand of matter folded for the House and on the gross rate payable per hour to each person engaged in such folding activities for the House.

For example, the pertinent provision of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962 (75 Stat. 327; Public Law 87–130), which covers the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962, is as follows with respect to the House:

FOLDING DOCUMENTS

> For folding speeches and pamphlets, at a gross rate not exceeding $2.54 per thousand or for the employment of personnel at a gross rate not exceeding $1.91 per hour per person, $236,500.

Section 504(c) increases in two equal increments the limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person contained in those provisions of applicable law on the effective date of section 504 which govern the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives. The aggregate increase in each such limitation is in an amount which is the same percentage of that limitation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this bill in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of grade 6 of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, is of the rate of basic compensation for such fourth step immediately prior to the first of those increases so provided by such title II.

The aggregate amount of the increase in each such limitation is to be payable in two equal increments. The first increment is to become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962. The second increment is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963.

In effect, section 504(c) increases existing limitations in applicable law with respect to the compensation of House folding room employees. These increases in such limitations do not constitute automatic increases in the respective rates of compensation of House folding room employees but such increases will permit the appropriate adjustment of such rates in accordance with the new limitations by the exercise of administrative authority.

Section 504(c) further provides that the amount of the increase in each of the two limitations shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. An example of the manner in which this provision will operate is contained on page 29 of House Report 1636, 86th Congress.

Section 504(d) sets forth rules for determining the aggregate amount of each increase under sections 504(a) and 504(b), as applicable.

These rules, as stated in the bill, are as follows:

> (1) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation is less than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 7 of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of section 504, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this bill in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of grade 6 of such schedule is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

(2) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation of the officer or employee concerned is—

(A) equal to or greater than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 7 of such schedule as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of section 504,

but—

and if rules (3) and (4) are not applicable, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this bill in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of the applicable grade within the purview of subparagraph (A) of this rule (2) is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

(3) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation is equal to or greater than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 11, but less than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 13, of such schedule as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of section 504, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this bill in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of grade 12 of such schedule is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

(4) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation is equal to or greater than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 17 of such schedule as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of section 504, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this bill in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of such grade 17 is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

In effect, the application and operation of the rules set forth in section 504(d) provide for officers and employees in the legislative branch increases in compensation which correspond generally to the increases in compensation provided by title II of the bill for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Section 504(e) provides that all percentages determined in computing increases under section 504 shall be rounded to the nearest one-half percent. This computation requirement contained in section 504(e), together with the application and operation of the appropriate rules contained in section 504(d), and the requirement that the increases be payable in two equal increments, will operate to preserve, to the maximum extent possible, the compensation relationships of legislative officers and employees in effect prior to the application of the increases provided by section 504 of this bill.

Section 504(f) provides that the additional compensation provided by section 504 shall be considered a part of basic compensation for purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and following). Such additional compensation, therefore, will be subject to retirement deductions.

Section 504(f) is necessary to remove any inference that such deductions may not be made. Such inference might result from language contained in section 1(d) of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251(d)) to the effect that—> * * * the term "basic salary" shall not include * * * compensation given in addition to the base pay of the position as fixed by law or regulation * * *.

The aggregate rate of annual compensation of many individuals in the legislative branch consists of a basic rate, plus a series of amounts which are provided by various pay acts and resolutions and are often referred to as "additional compensation." Section 4(i) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 178; Public Law 94, 84th Cong.), which provided that amounts of "additional compensation" provided for legislative employees by section 4(a) of such act and by other pay-increase laws, restated and clarified the view that "additional compensation" of legislative employees is "base pay" for retirement purposes and, therefore, is subject to retirement deductions. Section 4(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 208; Public Law 85–426) reaffirmed this policy with respect to the additional compensation provided for officers and employees in the legislative branch by section 4 of that act. Section 117(i) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568) reaffirmed this policy with respect to the additional compensation provided for officers and employees in the legislative branch by section 117 of that act. In like manner, section 504(f) of this bill reaffirms this policy with respect to the additional compensation provided by such section 504.

Additional observations may be made with respect to the operation of section 504 of this bill.

Section 506(b) of this bill imposes a ceiling on the gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law), and on the total annual compensation, which may be paid to officers and employees in the legislative branch within the purview of section 504 of this bill. Such section 506(b) provides, in effect, that such compensation shall not exceed an amount which is $500 less than the smaller of the two amounts set forth in section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended (2 U.S.C. 31), that is, such compensation may not exceed $22,000 (an amount which is $500 less than the annual salary of a Member of Congress). This salary ceiling applies to legislative officers and employees within the purview of section 504(a) or section 504(b) of this bill.

In this connection it may be noted that an additional ceiling on the gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law) currently is applicable with respect to those legislative officers and employees within the purview of section 504(a) (but not those legislative officers and employees within the purview of sec. 504(b)) of this bill. Section 2(b) of the act of October 24, 1951 (Public Law 201, 82d Cong.), as amended by section 4(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, provides in pertinent part that—> * * * no officer or employee of the Senate or House of Representatives shall be paid with respect to any pay period basic compensation or basic compensation plus additional compensation at a rate in excess of the highest per annum rate of compensation paid under authority of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, unless expressly authorized by law * * *.

As a result of the operation of these two ceiling provisions with respect to legislative officers and employees within the purview of section 504(a) of this bill, such officers and employees will be paid per annum compensation at a gross rate of not to exceed the amount determined under 506(b) of the bill (that is, not to exceed $22,000 under the initial operation of this bill), or not to exceed the amount determined under section 2(b) of the act of October 24, 1951, set forth in pertinent part above (that is, not to exceed the highest per annum rate of compensation paid under the Classification Act of 1949, as amended—currently $18,500 under existing law and $20,315 under the initial operation of this bill), whichever ceiling amount is the smaller.

In effect, therefore, legislative officers and employees subject to section 504(a) of this bill are subject to two salary ceilings—the ceiling amount provided for by section 2(b) of the act of October 24, 1951, as amended, or the ceiling amount provided for by section 506(b) of this bill, whichever ceiling amount is the smaller amount at the time.

It should be observed that the ceiling amount provided for under section 2(b) of the act of October 24, 1951, as amended, and the ceiling amount provided for under section 506(b) of this bill are not fixed amounts which are not subject to change. Each of these amounts automatically will be increased or decreased appropriately whenever a corresponding increase or decrease occurs in the ceiling amount provided for under section 2(b) of such act of October 24, 1951, as amended, or in the ceiling amount provided for under section 506(b) of this bill, as applicable. For example, whenever an increase occurs in the highest per annum rate of compensation paid under the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the ceiling amount provided for under such section 2(b) applicable to legislative officers and employees under section 504(a) of this bill automatically will be increased appropriately. In like manner, whenever the annual salary of a Member of Congress is increased in the future, the ceiling amount provided for under section 506(b) of this bill automatically will be increased appropriately.

Also, it should be observed that legislative officers and employees within the purview of section 504(b) of this bill will be subject only to the ceiling provided for by section 506(b) of this bill—that is, subject only to a ceiling consisting of an amount which does not exceed $500 less than the salary of a Member of Congress. The initial ceiling amount under such section 506(b) is $22,000. However, as stated above, this ceiling amount automatically will be adjusted appropriately to a higher figure whenever the salaries of Members of Congress are increased.

Moreover, it should be observed that the increases provided for by section 504 (a) and (b) of this bill are amounts which are determined under the applicable rules set forth in section 504(d). These applicable rules, therefore, and the amounts of salary determined under such applicable rules will be a part of the permanent salary formulas applicable to legislative officers and employees within the purview of sections 504(a) and 504(b) of this bill. In addition, if at any time an increase or decrease in any rate of basic compensation is accomplished by appropriate administrative action, these applicable rules set forth in such section 504(d) will be effective and operative (in the same manner as other applicable portions of such permanent salary formulas) with respect to the new rate of basic compensation resulting from such increase or decrease.

AUTHORITY FOR RETROACTIVE SALARY INCREASES IN ADMINISTRATIVE RATES

Section 505 permits the granting of retroactive salary increases, which correspond to increases otherwise provided for by the bill, for those officers and employees whose rates of compensation or salary are normally set by administrative action pursuant to law. This section does not apply, however, to rates fixed in accordance with prevailing rates or practices. This section, moreover, does not affect any authority in existing law to fix compensation or salary by administrative action.

Subsection (a) of section 505 permits those rates of compensation of officers and employees of the Federal Government and the municipal government of the District of Columbia, which are fixed by administrative action pursuant to law and which are not otherwise increased by the bill, to be increased retroactively by amounts not to exceed the increases provided by the bill for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate schedule or scale of pay.

Subsection (b) of section 505 provides that nothing in section 505 shall be construed to authorize any increase in the rates of compensation of officers and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed and adjusted from time to time as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates and practices.

Subsection (c) of section 505 provides that nothing in section 505 shall affect any authority under any law pursuant to which rates of compensation may be fixed by administrative action.

SALARY CEILINGS

Section 506(a) establishes a maximum limitation on the rate of basic compensation that may be received by any employee subject to title I (relating to postal field service employees) or title II (relating to Classification Act employees) which shall not exceed the smaller of the two amounts set forth in section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended. Under this amendment, the maximum rate will be $22,500.

Section 506(b) establishes a maximum limitation on the gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law), or the total annual compensation, as the case may be, of each officer or employee in the legislative branch who may otherwise receive an increase under section 504 of the bill, which is $500 less than the smaller of the two amounts set forth in section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended. The maximum rate specified by this language currently is $22,000.

Any change by legislation in the amounts set forth in such section 601(a) would automatically change the ceiling limitation specified in subsections (a) and (b) of this section 506.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO RETROACTIVE COMPENSATION OR SALARY

Section 507(a) specifies the classes of persons entitled to receive payment of the amount of any increase in compensation or salary payable under authority of the bill for retroactive periods of service. The retroactive compensation shall be paid only in the case of an individual on an employment roll in the service of the United States (including service in the Armed Forces of the United States), or of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, on the date of enactment of the bill. The bill further provides that such retroactive compensation of salary shall be paid: (1) to an employee who retired during the retroactive period for services rendered during such period; and (2) in accordance with the act of August 3, 1950, for services rendered during the retroactive period by an employee who dies during tha period.

Section 507(b) provides that the retroactive payments of compensation under subsection (a) of this section shall not be considered as basic salary for any retirement purposes in the case of any retired or deceased individual described in subparagraphs (1) or (2) of subsection (a) of section 507 of the bill.

Section 507(c) provides that service in the Armed Forces of the United States shall include the period provided by law for the mandatory restoration of such individual to a position, in the case of individuals relieved from training and service in the Armed Forces of the United States, or discharged from hospitalization following such training and service.

Section 507(d) provides that the retroactive increases in basic compensation paid pursuant to subsection (a) of this section 507 shall not be considered compensation for purposes of the Federal Employees Group Life Insurance Act of 1954.

SAVINGS PROVISION

Section 508 is a savings provision which prohibits any rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary from being reduced by reason of the enactment of this bill.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 509 provides that except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, this title shall become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

TITLE VI—GENERAL POLICY

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF POLICY

Section 601(a) provides that the Congress hereby finds that (1) the primary purpose and function of an effective salary system for the Federal Government is the establishment and adjustment of rates of salary for services rendered by Federal employees in such a manner as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the programs of the Federal Government, to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and that (2) the successful accomplishment of such purpose and function is essential to the development and maintenance of maximum proficiency in the civilian service of the Federal Government.

Section 601(b) declares that it is the policy of the Congress and the purpose of this bill to reform the respective salary systems for the Federal Government in a manner which applies three basic principles with respect to the establishment and adjustment of Federal salaries:

(1) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions;

(2) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work; and

(3) Salary levels for the respective Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated and shall be set and adjusted in accordance with the policy and purpose of this bill.

COMMITTEE ON FEDERAL PAY

Section 602 provides that the President shall appoint a Committee on Federal Pay which shall (1) review the various statutory pay systems of the Federal Government with a view to ascertaining what changes may be necessary or desirable in the interests of efficiency, equity, and economy; (2) review the rates in effect under such systems with a view to ascertaining the adequacy thereof in comparison with pay rates in private industry for positions having comparable levels of duties and responsibilities on the basis of annual surveys of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor; and (3) report to the President the results of such reviews together with such recommendations for necessary adjustments in statutory pay schedules or other improvements in the Federal salary structure as the Committee deems desirable.

The section also requires the President to submit to the Congress on or before March 1 of each year a report summarizing the findings of the Committee together with his recommendations for such adjustments as is necessary to maintain Federal salary schedules in accord with the basic principles established by section 601.

ESTABLISHMENT OF MINIMUM COMPENSATION RATES FOR CERTAIN OCCUPATIONS IN CERTAIN AREAS

Section 603 provides that whenever the President or his designee finds that the salary rates in private enterprise for an occupation in any particular location are so substantially above the salary rates of Federal statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government in recruiting and retaining well qualified persons in positions paid under any of the four pay systems of the executive branch covered by this bill, the President, or his designee, may establish for such location higher minimum rates of basic compensation. Corresponding increases may be made in all step rates in the salary range for the applicable grade or level; however, the minimum salary rate established under this authority may not exceed the highest compensation rate prescribed by law for the grade or level involved.

Subsection (b) of section 603 provides that such rates may be revised from time to time and that such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

Subsection (c) of section 603 provides that any increase in basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, or section 3552 of title 39, United States Code.

POLICIES, RULES, AND REGULATIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

Section 604 authorizes the President to prescribe policies, rules, and standards in order to carry out the policy and purpose of this bill with respect to the several Federal salary systems covered by this bill and in order to provide adequate supervision and control by the President over the functions, duties, and regulations of the respective authorities in the executive branch in connection with the administration and operation of the four major salary systems and the provisions of this title.

ABSORPTION WITHIN APPROPRIATIONS OF COSTS OF SALARY INCREASES

Section 605 of the bill contains a provision for the absorption within the executive branch of the costs of certain salary increases provided by the bill.

Section 605(a) authorizes and directs the Director of the Bureau of the Budget to provide by regulation for the absorption from the respective applicable appropriations or funds available, by the respective departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch, to such an extent as the Director deems practicable, of the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by the bill.

Section 605(b) provides that this section shall not be construed to require the separation of any individual from the service by reduction in force or other personnel action or the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

It may be noted that section 605 will apply only to those Government agencies which are considered to be in the executive branch for all purposes.

Section 605 is similar to section 6 of H.R. 2462 of the 85th Congress, approved by the House on August 9, 1957. Reference is made to the discussion of such section 6 contained in House Report No. 929, 85th Congress.

VIEWS OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

The special message from the President relative to salary increases for Federal employees, dated February 20, 1962, and the reports of the Bureau of the Budget, dated April 11, 1962, the Postmaster General, dated April 10, 1962, and the U.S. Civil Service Commission, dated April 10, 1962, on pending salary legislation are as follows:

[H. Doc. 344, 87th Cong., 2d sess.]

Salary Increases for Federal Service Employees

Message From the President of the United States Relative to Salary Increases for Federal Service Employees

To the Congress of the United States:

The success of this Government, and thus the success of our Nation, depend in the last analysis upon the quality of our career services. The legislation enacted by the Congress, as well as the decisions made by me and the department and agency heads, must all be implemented by the career men and women in the Federal service. In foreign affairs, national defense, science and technology, and a host of other fields, they face unprecedented problems of unprecedented importance and perplexity. We are all dependent on their sense of loyalty and responsibility as well as their competence and energy; and just as they have responsibilities to the Government so does the Government have obligations to them.

We properly establish high standards for our public servants. We investigate their character and associations before considering them for employment. We hire them only after they have passed difficult examinations. We require them to abide by rigorous standards of conduct and ethics. We demand consistently high performance from them on the job. Accordingly, the salaries for the services they perform should be fixed under well-understood and objective standards, high enough to attract and retain competent personnel, sufficiently flexible to motivate initiative and industry, and comparable with the salaries received by their counterparts in private life. To pay more than this is to be unfair to the taxpayers—to pay less is to degrade the public service and endanger our national security.

Unfortunately these basic standards for Federal salary systems are not met today. Too many Federal employees are underpaid in proportion to their responsibilities. Too many receive smaller salaries than are paid by many private industries, and even by many State and local governments, for less responsible work. Too many top-grade or supervisory Federal employees are paid little more, and sometimes even less, than their subordinates. Too many key career employees are unable to afford continued public service.

Existing statutory Federal pay structures cannot be justified as sound and equitable, either internally or externally. Internally, salaries between various levels of work should be enough to provide an incentive to undertake more responsible duties and to represent, dollarwise, fair differences in work requirements. Over the years, piecemeal statutory revisions—with primary emphasis on bringing the lower pay levels abreast of changes in the cost of living—have severely compressed the spread between the top and bottom salaries. The 8.8-to-1 and 12-to-1 salary ratios between the highest and lowest Classification Act and postal field service grades existing prior to World War II have shrunk to ratios of less than 6 to 1, making it impossible to offer pay increases consistent with the added responsibilities of grade-to-grade promotion, or to offer an appropriate range of incentives within a particular grade. There is little consistency or logic in the salary differences between existing grade levels. And employees paid under a wage board system, with wages based on the prevailing rates in industry, are frequently paid more than their supervisors whose salaries are fixed by the more rigid and less logical provisions of the Classification Act.

Externally, except for employees paid under wage board systems, Federal salaries generally do not compare favorably and cannot compete successfully with private industry. Every objective survey has demonstrated that salaried Government employees at almost every work level receive less compensation, on a national average basis, than private employees performing similar work—and the greater the level of difficulty and responsibility, the greater the gap between Federal and private pay. A Federal employee beginning a professional or administrative career can look forward to a maximum salary increase of no more than 4¼ times his entrance salary, whereas his counterpart in private industry can look forward to an increase of six or seven times his beginning salary. Moreover, the Federal employee's top salary, if he stays to reach it, will be less than half that of his private enterprise counterpart.

Even State and local governments have passed the Federal Government. The head of a Federal Cabinet department receives less than the head of a New York State department—less than the average salary paid to the superintendents of schools in cities over 500,000 population. The highest paid Federal employees under the Classification Act would obtain higher salaries if they were working in the State career service in Georgia, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, or California, for example—or for the cities of St. Louis, Denver, Detroit, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Philadelphia.

The difficulty has been the lack of both an accepted objective standard for determining Federal salary levels and a consistent procedure for review and adjustment. The result has been a steady attrition of valued employees, an inability to attract many top quality college graduates and, in the long run, a waste of Federal funds—discouraging the initiative, efficiency, and dedication that accompany recognition and stature, and requiring enormous expenditures each year to recruit and train new replacements for employees who leave the service for reasons of inadequate pay. We can no longer defer the necessary corrective measures or continue the existing lack of standards; and recent studies and measurement techniques now make possible the kind of wholly new approach that commonsense requires.

A FEDERAL PAY REFORM PROGRAM

I am transmitting to the Congress with this message legislation designed to reform the major statutory salary systems of the Federal Government, benefiting all of the 1,640,000 employees throughout the world who are paid under the various Federal statutory pay plans—the Classification Act, the Postal Field Service Compensation Act, the Foreign Service Act, and the medicine and surgery salary system of the Veterans' Administration. Although flat increases for lower paid workers are included as a matter of equity, the essence of this bill's objectives is Federal pay reform, not simply a Federal pay raise. Where pay raises result from the establishment of objective pay standards, they are primarily a reflection of the extent to which Federal salaries have lagged behind the national economy.

This proposal has two principal features:

(1) It establishes a sound, objective, and continuous standard for determining proper salary levels by following the concept of comparability—reasonable comparability with prevailing private enterprise salaries for the same levels of work insofar as this is possible, as determined from painstaking statistical surveys and careful job comparisons; and

(2) It establishes realistic and appropriate salary relationships both within and among the several statutory salary systems and each of their grade levels, by following the principle of equal pay for equal work, with distinctions in pay consistent with distinctions in responsibility and performance.

COMPARABILITY

Adoption of the principle of comparability will assure equity for the Federal employee with his equals throughout the national economy—enable the Government to compete fairly with private firms for qualified personnel—and provide at last a logical and factual standard for setting Federal salaries. Reflected in this single standard are such legitimate private enterprise pay considerations as cost of living, standard of living, and productivity, to the same extent that those factors are resolved into the "going rate" over bargaining tables and other salary determining processes in private enterprise throughout the country.

The principle has a history of wide acceptance. Within the Federal Government, it has been used for 100 years: First applied to Navy yard workers, it is now applied to all Federal workers in trades and crafts, to employees of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and to work under Government contracts covered by the Walsh-Healey and Davis-Bacon Acts. Many State and local governments, as well as some other national governments (such as Canada and the United Kingdom) already rely on this principle.

It should be noted in this regard that, in marked contrast to the unfavorable situation of salaried employees, the Federal pay practices affecting over 660,000 workers in the skilled trades and crafts have functioned without serious conflict or confusion. Based on prevailing rates, and set on recommendation of wage boards, their pay has been continuously maintained at levels that are fair from the viewpoint of the Government, the taxpayer, and the employee.

I have found no more sensible standard for determining Government salaries. The Advisory Panel on Federal Salary Systems, chaired by Mr. Clarence Randall, in its recent report to me called it "not only equitable but valid and eminently desirable." The application of this principle permits the Government to meet its difficult personnel needs without paying more than is necessary or less than is equitable. It was not feasible in earlier years; but now the recently introduced annual survey of professional, administrative, technical, and clerical salaries conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics provides the objective comparative salary data needed for setting Federal pay scales. Occupational rates paid by private employers at a given work level of difficulty, responsibility, and required qualifications can be combined into a single national average private enterprise rate for work equivalent to a Classification Act Grade. These Classification Act rates in turn can be used to establish rates for the corresponding grades in the specialized salary systems of the postal field service, the Foreign Service, and the Veterans' Administration.

INTERNAL ALINEMENT

The internal alinement principle rests on two basic concepts: equal pay for equal work, and distinctions in pay consistent with distinctions in work and performance. Although these concepts are stated in the present Classification Act and are implicit in the Postal Field Service Compensation Act, the regressive and flat percentage pay adjustments of the past 17 years have gradually blotted out much of the meaning in the current pay differentials of all our salary systems.

The pay schedules I am recommending will regularize and generally enlarge the differences in salaries between successive grade levels, recognizing more appropriately the differences in responsibility involved, and providing a more uniform (not less than 10 percent) progression of salary levels between the entry rates of successive grades. This will furnish a greater incentive for employees striving to prepare themselves for higher responsibilities. At the same time, these new schedules will make more meaningful the within-grade promotions for competent performance of duties, and will provide better incentives for those who spend most of their careers within a single grade, by providing wider salary ranges (30 percent except for the top two grades) within each grade, more adequate and more numerous within-grade salary steps, and more flexible use of salary steps to recognize exceptional achievement.

Other provisions aimed at improving flexibility will (1) facilitate the adjustment of salaries to meet critical needs by competing more equally with private industry in areas or in occupations in which a shortage exists; (2) permit the assignment of positions to the upper grades of the Classification Act on the basis of duties and responsibilities, instead of arbitrarily limiting the number of such positions; and (3) create new upper grades to bring within the salary provisions of the Classification Act all those with top administrative responsibilities who are not Cabinet or sub-Cabinet officers or heads of separate agencies.

The new salary ranges would provide a 30-percent range between the entry rate and the highest rate in the grade for most salaried employees under the Classification Act and a 40-percent range for the lower levels of the postal field service. This is comparable to the private industry ranges, which vary between 30 and 50 percent for each position. The pay ranges in the lower levels of the postal field service are somewhat broader than those in the Classification Act, in recognition of the pattern of long service in such positions in the postal field service and the need for incentives for sustained performance during the entire period of service.

ANNUAL REVIEW

To maintain the comparability principle, and to assure that other features are improved with experience, the bill provides that the President shall submit an annual report to Congress on the relationship of Federal salaries to those reported by the BLS for private enterprise, recommending whatever adjustments in salary schedules, structure, and policy he finds advisable. Where adjustments are indicated, they would be accomplished by revision of the Classification Act pay scales and by linkage of the other statutory systems to the Classification Act. A systematic annual review of this kind is essential to prevent Federal salary schedules from relapsing to their present conditions.

THE UPPER GRADES

Reform of the existing pay schedules necessarily involves immediate adjustment of salaries at almost all grade levels. But both our experience in the attrition of higher salaried men and women and all objective surveys have disclosed that the gap between private industry salaries and Government salaries is the widest at the upper levels. For example: the most recent Bureau of Labor Statistics survey shows that GS–14 and GS–15 employees receive 20 percent less than those employees in private industry in comparable positions. A 1960 survey of 21 large companies by the Civil Service Commission showed even more startling disparities at higher levels. Employees in these companies performing functions comparable to those of a GS–18 received twice as high a salary as their Federal Government employed counterpart.

Yet these are the very levels in the career service in which our need for quality is most acute—in which keen judgment, experience, and competence are at a premium. It is here that we face our most difficult personnel problems. It is at these grades that we employ our top scientists, doctors, engineers, experts, and managers. Surely if so many State and city governments, as earlier cited, are willing to compete with private industry for this talent, the Federal Government, with its urgent missions to perform, can face up to this problem as well. As a practical matter, the full principle of comparability cannot be applied to the higher salary levels of Government; but I consider adequate adjustment in our top executive and professional positions to be the most vital single element of correction in this entire proposal.

This reform of top career salaries will, of course, boost the pay of many civil servants to a level above that paid to their chiefs in Cabinet, sub-Cabinet, and similar positions. I recognize, however, that the salary level of these top executives has been quite properly related in recent years with the salary level of the Congress; and, while both are, in my opinion, inadequate, it is neither customary nor appropriate to either provide such increases during current terms of office or specify congressional increases in a Presidential message. Representatives of the executive branch stand ready, however, to cooperate with the Congress in determining what executive and congressional pay scales would be appropriate following the terms of the present incumbents.

TIMING AND COST

It is important for the Federal Government to adhere to its own precepts with respect to pay adjustments in the economy as a whole. Because of the salary lag that has developed over the past 17 years, full correction of the accrued inequities in 1 year would be unwise, involving the substantial cost of more than $1 billion. This cost would come at a time when heavy budgetary demands have been placed upon us to meet great national security needs, and when the Government is urging private labor and management to exercise self-restraint to avoid the creation of inflationary pressures. Therefore, to reduce the impact in any one year on the affected $10 billion Federal payroll, where each 1-percent increase costs $100 million, the plan that I recommend provides that the full 10 percent be distributed over three annual stages, beginning prospectively on January 1, 1963. The increase scheduled to take effect next year is clearly well within the national average productivity increase (in the private sector) which has taken place since the last Federal pay increase in July of 1960.

The substantial costs necessarily involved in achieving this pay reform make it especially important that these improvements in our pay systems take absolute priority over general percentage or dollar increases of the kind we have seen in the past—increases which make little if any contribution to efficiency or economy in Government.

CONCLUSION

As I stated in my budget message, the first requirement for efficiency and economy in Government is highly competent personnel. I believe that enactment of this plan for sound salary administration is fundamental to the maintenance of a standard of excellence in the Federal service. It is my belief that this measure, if enacted, will constitute the most important revision and reform in Federal personnel legislation in more than a decade. It is the most important proposal to improve the Federal service which has been presented by this administration; and I believe it is essential if we are to achieve and maintain proficiency in the Federal Government. If our civil servants are to fulfill with skill and devotion their obligations to the Nation, the Nation must fulfill its obligations to the career service.

JOHN F. KENNEDY.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 20, 1962.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT,
BUDGET OF THE BUDGET,
Washington, D.C., April 11, 1962.

Hon. TOM MURRAY,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service,
House of Representatives, Old House Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Reference is made to your requests for reports on the bills on the enclosed list. These bills propose changes in the Classification Act, the Postal Field Service Compensation Act, the Foreign Service Act, and the Veterans' Administration, Department of Medicine and Surgery salary authority.

In a special message dated February 20, 1962, the President outlined his proposals for reform of these Federal white-collar statutory salary systems. With that message was transmitted a draft bill, which was introduced by you on February 28, 1962, as H.R. 10480, and which would place in effect the total salary reform proposed by the President. We believe that none of the bills which are the subject of this report would adequately accomplish that objective.

The President has proposed, and the administration bill follows, clearly stated and objectively applied principles of Federal salary determination that are equitable to the Government, the Government employee, and the taxpayer. The first principle is that Federal salary rates at any specific time should be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same level of work. The second principle is that there shall be equal pay for equal work, with differences in salary reflecting differences in work levels and performance. The salary levels and structures and the rules for their use proposed in the administration bill follow these principles. The provisions of the bills here reported on do not follow these principles.

For convenience, these bills have been classified into the three groups noted on the enclosed.

The bills in group A give recognition to the need to establish salary-determining principles and methodology. Some propose a qualified following of private enterprise salary rates, others propose linkage to the Consumer Price Index. However, the bills that mention private enterprise salary rates refer to regional or local rates—which overlooks the national nature of the labor market for a great many occupations and overlooks the serious technical difficulties in obtaining statistically valid private enterprise data for the thousands of localities involved—or refer to private enterprise rates as pertinent but not controlling. Most would require new machinery rather than relying on existing methods and organizations. The bills that propose linkage with Consumer Price Index changes since a base period would give no recognition to the many other economic factors that determine American salaries, nor to the serious need for structural reform in Federal salary systems. None of the bills in this group, therefore, would achieve the objectives of this administration.

The many bills listed in group B are general pay increase proposals which follow no stated principle of salary determination. The salary levels and structures that would result would be wide of the mark of the going salary rate in private enterprise, and, in our judgment, none would assure equal pay for equal work or provide salary distinctions related to work level and performance distinctions. Some appear to us to further disorganize existing salary structures. Some seek special action for selected occupations without regard for the impact on the total Federal program where such special rates would be paid, in serious conflict with the principle of equal pay for equal work. Some bills even provide pay increases for persons who are not Federal employees. No bill would provide the same type of adjustment in all the statutory systems. Most of the bills in this group provide pay raises of up to 30 percent in a few brackets. With some bills providing increases in the postal service aggregating over $750 million and others providing increases of substantially more than $1 billion in the other statutory systems, and with none following any stated standard or principle, it is plain that salary determination for this portion of the Federal payroll, which currently exceeds $10 billion, is in great need of the reform that the President has recommended.

The bills listed in group C propose such changes as revisions in statutory position descriptions, adjustments in premium pay or within-grade step rates or longevity pay, special classification of some selected occupations such as mail handlers and foremen, postal supervisors, and hearing examiners. The issues treated in the bills in this category arise as problems of the present inadequate salary structures and systems. To take these issues up individually at this time would be to continue the fragmentary treatment of selected portions of these systems that has brought about the need for the fundamental reform that the President has recommended.

In summary, the 113 bills here reported on would not accomplish the needed basic reform of Federal white-collar salary systems. The reform proposed by the President would be accomplished by enactment of H.R. 10480. A full justification statement and section analysis of that bill has been provided and printed as a committee print dated February 28, 1962, and a summary analysis fully explaining the standards, principles, and detailed provisions of the reform has also been provided and printed as a committee print dated March 1962.

Accordingly, the Bureau of the Budget recommends against favorable consideration of the bills reported hereon, and strongly endorses H.R. 10480 as in accord with the program of the President.

Sincerely yours,

PHILLIP S. HUGHES,
Assistant Director for Legislative Reference.

GROUP A—PROPOSALS EFFECTING NEW APPROACH TO PAY FIXING

H.R. 295, Mr. Baldwin, "To provide that the rates of compensation of officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949 shall hereafter be fixed and adjusted by wage boards on the basis of prevailing rates and practices."

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
Washington, D.C., April 10, 1962.

Hon. TOM MURRAY,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service,
House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in reply to your request for a report on the bill (H.R. 9531) proposing to amend the law relating to pay for postal employees.

We do not favor enactment of this bill for the reason that it is inconsistent with the President's Federal pay reform program. The first full year salary cost under sections 102 through 107 of H.R. 9531 based on estimated budgetary requirements for fiscal year 1963 is approximately $750.3 million.

No estimate of cost under the provisions of section 108 was made which provides (1) payment of substitutes at overtime rates for work in excess of 8 hours in a day, (2) compensatory time for Saturday and Sunday work, and (3) premium pay for work on holidays. Since substitutes do not work on regular schedules, it is not possible to make realistic estimates of the cost of these changes in the absence of firm data supported by field trials. It is to be noted also that premium pay for holidays would provide substitutes with a double benefit inasmuch as holiday pay is now prorated throughout the year by use of the 2,016-hour factor. To provide premium pay in addition would give double benefits which would greatly exceed the benefits of regular employees.

This Department favors the enactment of H.R. 10480, which would carry out the President's plan for reformation of all salaries in the executive branch of the Government. Title III of H.R. 10480 sets forth the proposed schedule of pay for postal field service employees.

We have been advised by the Bureau of the Budget that from the standpoint of the administration's program there is no objection to the submission of this report to the committee.

Sincerely yours,

H. W. Brawley,
Acting Postmaster General.

U.S. Civil Service Commission,
Washington, D.C., April 10, 1962.

Hon. Tom Murray,
Chairman, Post Office and Civil Service Committee,
House Office Building, Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Chairman: This is in further reply to your requests for the views of the Commission on the following bills: (1) H.R. 9651, (2) H.R. 9762, (3) H.R. 9763, (4) H.R. 9840, (5) H.R. 9952, (6) H.R. 9984, (7) H.R. 10003, (8) H.R. 10033, (9) H.R. 10139, (10) H.R. 9935, (11) H.R. 10055, and (12) H.R. 9740.

The first nine of these bills are identical in all respects. They provide increases in the General Schedule of the Classification Act and the pay schedules for the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. The cost of these proposed schedules, on an annual basis, for Federal employees is estimated at $915,500,000. In addition, the rates of compensation of employees of the Federal and District of Columbia governments which are fixed by administrative action pursuant to law (other than prevailing rate employees) and are not otherwise increased, may also be increased by amounts provided by the bill for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate schedule or scale of pay. We are unable to estimate the cost of this provision.

These bills also provide for an additional step-increase under the Classification Act when an employee completes 10 years of employment by the Federal Government or the government of the District of Columbia. Under this provision it appears that every employee paid under the Classification Act on the effective date of the amendment who had 10 years' service in any Federal agency (or the District government), in any position, under any pay system, would receive an additional step-increase regardless of when such service was completed, or how long he had served under the Classification Act. The cost of this provision is estimated at $100 million. Thus the annual cost of these bills is estimated to be at least $1,015,500,000.

These bills are retroactive to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after January 1, 1962.

Bills numbered (10) and (11), H.R. 9935 and H.R. 10055, contain the identical provisions of the bills discussed above and in addition provide that the rates of compensation of employees of the county committees, established pursuant to the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, shall be increased, as nearly as may be practicable, to the increases provided for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate schedule or scale of pay. The inclusion of pay increases for this group adds an estimated $11,475,000 to the cost of H.R. 9935 and H.R. 10055, bringing the total estimate to $1,026,975,000 on an annual basis.

Bill numbered (12), H.R. 9740, provides a flat 14 percent increase in the schedules of the Classification Act of 1949, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, and those set forth in title 38 of the United States Code for the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. Fourteen percent increases are also provided for employees of the agricultural county committees established pursuant to the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, certain employees in the judicial branch, and employees in or under the legislative branch. This bill is effective upon date of approval. The estimated cost of H.R. 9740, on an annual basis for the Federal Government (exclusive of increases for employees in the judicial and legislative branches provided in secs. 5 and 6 of the bill), is $999,300,000.

The cost of the several bills is excessive; they are solely pay increase bills which do little, if anything, to rectify the inequities within and among the major statutory pay systems. With the exception of H.R. 9740, none of the bills cover adjustments in the Foreign Service Act. Not a single one of the bills covers the postal field service. If the estimated cost, $750 million plus, of H.R. 9531 (a bill to amend the law relating to pay of postal employees) is added to the bills upon which we are reporting, the aggregate annual cost ranges to at least $1,776,975,000, a fantastic sum for pay increases which are not based upon any sound policy considerations, which make no basic improvements, resolve no administrative problems, and in fact only increase existing inequities within and among the several statutory pay systems of the Government.

The Civil Service Commission strongly objects to the enactment of these bills.

The Commission does favor and urges favorable action on H.R. 10480 which you introduced and which embraces the President's salary reform bill transmitted to the Congress with his special message of February 20, 1962.

H.R. 10480 is based on sound policy objectives:

Pay comparability with private enterprise for the same levels of work.

Future pay adjustments in consonance with this policy.

Equal pay for substantially equal work.

Pay distinctions in keeping with work and performance distinctions.

Much needed flexibility in pay administration.

Rational interrelation of the salary levels of the several Federal statutory salary systems.

The total ultimate increased salary cost of the schedules in H.R. 10480 is estimated at $1,058,500,000. It should be pointed out, however, that (1) the cost for fiscal year 1963 would be only $224 million as against $1,750 million for H.R. 9935 and H.R. 9531 combined; and (2) the bill also includes major reform and improvement in the four statutory salary systems: the Classification Act, the Postal Field Service Compensation Act, the pay schedules of the Veterans' Administration Department of Medicine and Surgery, and the Foreign Service Act.

The Bureau of the Budget advises that from the standpoint of the administration's program there is no objection to the submission of this report.

By direction of the Commission:

Sincerely yours,

JOHN W. MACY, JR., Chairman.

This report also covers H.R. 10610 which is identical to H.R. 9935 and H.R. 10055.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

In compliance with clause 3 of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, changes in existing law made by the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italic, existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

EMPLOYEES GENERALLY

§ 3103. Oath of office

Before entering upon their duties, and before receiving any salary, the Postmaster General, and all persons employed in the Department, in addition to any other oath or affirmation required by law, shall respectively take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation:

"I, do hereby solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will faithfully perform all the duties required of me and abstain from everything forbidden by the laws in relation to the establishment of post offices and post roads within the United States; and that I will honestly and truly account for and pay over any money belonging to the said United States which may come into my possession or control; and I also further swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States; so help me God."

A person authorized to administer oaths by the laws of the United States, including section 16a of title 5, or of a State or Territory, or an officer, civil or military, holding a commission under the United States may administer and certify the oath or affirmation.

§ 3104. Employees not to receive fees

An officer or employee of the Department may not receive any fee or perquisite from a patron of the Department on account of the duties performed by virtue of his appointment, except as authorized by law.

§ 3105. Detail of employees between field and department

With the consent of the employee, the Postmaster General may detail any employee, including an employee of the departmental service, between the postal field service and the departmental service to such extent as may be necessary to develop a more efficient working force and more effectively to perform the work of the Department. Each detail shall be made for a period of not more than one year and may be made without change in compensation of the employees so detailed.

In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may:

[(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes not exceeding sixty-one miles in length. He may not pay additional compensation to a carrier serving such a route in an amount which would exceed the basic salary for the maximum step in the Rural Carrier Schedule for a route sixty-one miles in length, when added to the basic salary for the maximum step in the Rural Carrier Schedule for his route. In case such a heavily patronized route is extended in length, the rural carrier assigned to the route at the time of the extension may not be reduced in pay.]

(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes not exceeding one hundred and one miles in length, such additional compensation to be authorized on the basis of maximum allowable time required to serve such route as determined by evaluation under the Office and Route Time Standards prescribed by the Postmaster General.

[(f) In addition to the compensation provided in the Rural Carrier Schedule, each rural carrier shall be paid for equipment maintenance a sum equal to—

[(1) 10 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled or

[(2) $3.50 per day, whichever is greater.

[In addition to the allowance provided by the proceeding sentence, the Postmaster General may pay such amount as he determines to be fair and reasonable, not in excess of $2.50 per day, to rural carriers entitled to additional compensation under subsection (c) of this section for servicing heavily patronized routes. Payment for equipment maintenance shall be made at the same periods and in the same manner as payments of regular compensation.]

(f) In addition to the compensation provided in this section, each rural carrier shall be paid an allowance for equipment maintenance determined as follows:

(1) For routes having less than two hundred and sixty stops, as determined by the Postmaster General, the allowance shall be $4 per day, or 10 cents a mile, whichever is the greater; and

(2) For other routes, the allowance shall be the greater of—

(A) 10 cents a mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

(B) The sum of the following:

(i) $4 a day,

(ii) 5 cents for each unit of twenty stops in excess of two hundred and sixty a day, as determined by the Postmaster General, and

(iii) 5 cents a mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled over twenty-two miles.

[§ 3552. Automatic Advancement by Step Increases

[(a) Except as to a substitute employee in the Postal Transportation Service whose position is allocated to salary level PFS–5 as a distribution clerk in a railway or highway post office, each employee whose position is allocated to the Rural Carrier Schedule, the Fourth Class Office Schedule, or the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step for his position at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of each fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service, if no equivalent increase in basic salary from any cause was received during the period of fifty-two calendar weeks. The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the Armed Forces.

[(b) Each substitute employee in the Postal Transportation Service, whose position is allocated to salary level PFS–5 as a distribution clerk in a railway or highway post office, shall be advanced in the manner prescribed for other employees under subsection (a) of this section, but may not be advanced beyond step four of salary level PFS–5.]

§ 3552. Automatic Advancement by Step Increases

(a) Each employee in the postal field service, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

(1) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

(2) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

The receipt of an equivalent increase during any of the waiting periods specified in paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection shall cause a new full waiting period to commence for further step-increases.

(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services.

[§ 3558. Longevity Step Increases

[(a) There are established for each employee longevity steps A, B, and C. For each promotion to a longevity step—

[(1) each postmaster at a post office of the fourth class shall receive an amount equal to 5 per centum of his basic salary, or $100 per annum, whichever is the lesser, and

[(2) each employee, other than a postmaster at a post office of the fourth class, shall receive $100 per annum.

In computing the percentage increase under this subsection the amount of the increase shall be rounded to the nearest dollar. A half dollar or one-half cent shall be rounded to the next highest dollar or cent, respectively.

[(b) Each employee shall be assigned to—

[(1) longevity step A at the beginning of the pay period following the completion of thirteen years of service;

[(2) longevity step B at the beginning of the pay period following the completion of eighteen years of service; and

[(3) longevity step C at the beginning of the pay period following the completion of twenty-five years of service.

[(c) (1) There shall be credited, for the purposes of subsection (b) time on the rolls—

[(A) in the postal field service or in the Post Office Department, except time on the rolls as a subsitute rural carrier;

[(B) in the custodial service of the Department of the Treasury continuous to the date of the transfer of the employee to the custodial service of the Post Office Department in accordance with Executive Order Numbered 6166, dated June 10, 1933;

[(C) as a special delivery messenger at a first class post office;

[(D) as a clerk in a third class post office for which payment is made from authorized allowances;

[(E) under the Postal Accounts Division, including time on the rolls under the former Post Office Department Division, in the General Accounting Office continuous to the date of the transfer of the employee to the Post Office Department in accordance with section 7(a) of the Post Office Department Financial Control Act of 1950; and

[(2) In determining longevity credit for the purposes of subsection (b) in the case of an employee whose continuous service in the postal field service or in the departmental service of the Post Office Department is interrupted by service with the Armed Forces or to comply with a transfer during war or national emergency as defined by the United States Civil Service Commission, time engaged in that service with the Armed Forces or on the transfer shall be credited pro rata for each week of the service. Service specified in this subsection, whether continuous or intermittent, shall be credited on the basis of one week for each whole week the employee has been on the rolls, except that credit may not be allowed for time on the rolls under a temporary appointment for one year or less unless the time on the rolls is continuous to the date of appointment to a position of unlimited duration.

[(d) Increases under this section are not equivalent increases within the meaning of section 3552. of this title.

[(e) Payment of longevity compensation may not be made by reason of clause (F) of subsection (c)(1) of this section, for any period prior to September 6, 1958.

[§ 3559. Promotions

[(a) An employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher salary level of the Postal Field Service Schedule shall be paid basic salary at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic salary by not less than the amount of difference between the entrance step of the salary level from which promoted and the entrance step of the salary level immediately above the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic salary by at least the amount of the difference, the employee shall be paid (1) the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or (2) his existing basic salary, whichever is higher.

[(b) Regular clerks and carriers in first and second class post offices are not eligible for promotion to positions of higher salary levels in their respective offices unless they are in the maximum steps of their respective salary levels. If for any reason clerks and carriers in the maximum steps are not available those clerks and carriers in the lower steps in the offices are eligible for the promotion.]

§ 3559. Promotions

An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.

§ 3560. Salary protection

(a) As used in this section, the term "salary standing" means—

(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule [(excluding salary levels PFS 17, 18, 19, and 20)],

(2) salary for the particular route (including additional compensation for forty hours and under for serving heavily patronized routes), with respect to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and

(3) gross receipts category, with respect to the Fourth-Class Office Schedule.

(b) Subject to the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, each employee—

(1) who at any time on or after July 1, 1961, is or was reduced in salary standing;

(2) who, on the effective date of such reduction in salary standing, holds or held a career appointment or a probational appointment in the postal field service;

(3) whose reduction in salary standing is not or was not caused by a demotion for personal cause, is not or was not at his own request, is not or was not a condition of his temporary promotion or temporary assignment to a higher salary standing, is not or was not a condition of his temporary appointment, and is not or was not effected in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work;

[(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with the same salary standing or with the same and higher salary standing; and]

(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and

(5) whose performance of work at all times during such period of two years is or was satisfactory;

shall be entitled, as of the effective date of such reduction in salary standing or as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this section, whichever is later, unless or until he is entitled to receive basic salary at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this section, or until the expiration of a period of two years immediately following the effective date of such reduction in salary standing or immediately following the first day of such first pay period, as applicable, to receive the rate of basic salary to which he was entitled immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing (including each increase provided by law in such rate of basic salary) so long as he continues in the postal field service without any break in service of one workday or more and is not demoted or reassigned for personal cause, at his own request, or in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work.

(c) The rate of basic salary to which such employee is entitled under subsection (b) of this section with respect to each reduction in salary standing to which this section applies shall be the lesser of the following:

(A) the amount of the existing rate of basic salary of the employee immediately prior to the reduction in salary standing (including each increase provided by law in such rate); or

(B) the amount of the rate of the salary level or salary range (including each increase provided by law in such rate) to which the employee is reduced, increased by 25 per centum[.]; or

(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.

(d) The Postmaster General is authorized to issue regulations to carry out the purposes of this section.

(e)(1) For the purposes of section 3559(a), the existing basic salary shall be the basic salary which the employee would have received except for the provisions of this section.

(2) For the purposes of section 3544(h), the basic compensation earned shall be the basic compensation which the employee would have received except for the provisions of this section.

(f) For the purposes of this section, the term "curtailment of work" does not include—

(1) reductions in class or gross receipts category of any post office, or

(2) reductions in route mileage for rural carriers.

SEC. 507. (a) Subject to the limitation contained in subsection (c) of this section, each officer or employee subject to this Act—

(1) who at any time after June 17, 1956, is or was reduced in grade from any grade of a basic compensation schedule of this Act [(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)];

(2) who, on the effective date of such reduction in grade, holds or held a career or career-conditional appointment in the competitive civil service or an appointment of equivalent tenure in the excepted service or holds or held a position outside the competitive civil service and the excepted service as an officer or employee of the Library of Congress, of the Architect of the Capitol, of the Botanic Garden, or of the municipal government of the District of Columbia;

(3) whose reduction in grade is not or was not caused by a demotion for personal cause, is not or was not at his own request, is not or was not effected in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work and, with respect to each temporary promotion occurring on or after the date of enactment of this amendment, is not a condition of his temporary promotion to a higher grade;

(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in grade, served (A) in the same department and (B) [in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;] in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted; and

(5) whose performance of work at all times during such period of two years is or was satisfactory or better than satisfactory, shall be entitled, as of the effective date of such reduction in grade or as of the first day of the first pay period which begins after the date of enactment of this amendment, whichever is later, unless or until he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act, or until the expiration of a period of two years immediately following the effective date of such reduction in grade or immediately following the first day of such first pay period, as applicable, to receive the rate of basic compensation to which he was entitled immediately prior to such reduction in grade (including each increase provided by law in such rate of basic compensation) so long as he continues in the same department without any break in service of one workday or more and is not demoted or reassigned for personal cause, at his own request, or in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work.

(b) Subject to the limitation contained in subsection (c) of this section, each officer or employee subject to this Act—

(1) who, during the period beginning July 1, 1954, and ending June 17, 1956, was reduced in grade from any grade of a basic compensation schedule of this Act (other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule);

(2) whose reduction in grade was not caused by a demotion for personal cause, was not at his own request, and was not effected in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work;

(3) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in grade, served (A) in the same department and (B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;

(4) whose performance of work at all times during such period of two years was satisfactory or better than satisfactory; and

(5) whose employment in the same department has been continuous since such reduction in grade and who, since such reduction in grade, has not been demoted or reassigned for personal cause, at his own request, or in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work, shall be entitled, as of the first day of the first pay period which begins after the date of enactment of this amendment, unless or until he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act, or until the expiration of a period of two years immediately following the first day of such first pay period, as applicable, to receive the rate of basic compensation to which he was entitled immediately prior to such reduction in grade (including each increase provided by law in such rate of basic compensation) so long as he continues in the same department without any break in service of one workday or more and is not demoted or reassigned for personal cause, at his own request, or in a reduction in force due to lack of funds or curtailment of work.

(c) The rate of basic compensation to which such officer or employee is entitled under subsection (a) or (b) of this section with respect to each reduction in grade to which this section applies shall not exceed the sum of (1) the minimum scheduled rate of the grade to which he is reduced under each such reduction in grade occurring on or after July 1, 1954 (including each increase provided by law in such rate), and (2) the difference between his rate immediately prior to the first of such reductions in grade occurring on or after July 1, 1954 (including each increase provided by law in such rate), and the minimum scheduled rate of that grade which is three grades lower than the grade from which he was reduced under the first of such reductions in grade (including each increase provided by law in such rate).

(d) The Civil Service Commission is authorized to issue regulations to carry out the purposes of this section.

TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum [scheduled] rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service [if his position is in a grade in which the step-increases are less than $200, or (2) each seventy-eight calendar weeks of service if his position is in a grade in which the step-increases are $200 or more] in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period [, except increase made pursuant to section 702 or 1002];

[(B) That he has a current performance rating of "Satisfactory" or better; and]

(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the [armed forces] Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law [after June 30, 1951,] shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

[NOTE.—Sec. 702 of the Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by sec. 305 of the Act of Sept. 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1113; Public Law 763, 83d Cong.).]

[SEC. 703. (a) Subject to subsection (b) and as a reward for long and faithful service, each department shall grant an additional step-increase (to be known as a longevity step-increase) beyond the maximum scheduled rate of the grade in which his position is placed, to each officer or employee for each three years of continuous service completed by him at such maximum rate or at a rate in excess thereof authorized by this section without increase in grade or rate of basic compensation except such increase as may be prescribed by any provision of law of general application. Officers and employees who are otherwise eligible shall receive full credit under this subsection for service at the maximum authorized salary rate specified in the Bachrach Act of May 29, 1928, as amended and supplemented, and the Reed-Jenkins Act of May 29, 1928, as amended to the same extent as if such service had been at the maximum rate of a grade of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended.

[(b)(1) No officer or employee shall be entitled to a longevity step-increase while holding a position in any grade above grade 15 of the General Schedule.

[(2) No officer or employee shall receive a longevity step-increase unless his current performance rating is "Satisfactory" or better.

[(3) No officer or employee shall receive more than one longevity step-increase for any three years of continuous service.

[(4) Each longevity step-increase shall be equal to one step-increase of the grade in which the position of the officer or employee is placed.

[(5) Not more than three successive longevity step-increases may be granted to any officer or employee.

[(6) The officer or employee shall have had, in the aggregate, not less than ten years of service in the position which he then occupies, or in positions of equivalent or higher class or grade.

[(c) When an officer or employee, receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum scheduled rate for his grade under section 604, section 1105(b), or any other provision of law, is eligible for his first longevity step-increase beyond the maximum rate of such grade he shall—

> [(1) receive total basic compensation which is equal to the basic compensation at the maximum scheduled rate for his grade plus such first longevity step-increase, or
> [(2) continue to receive compensation at such rate in excess of the maximum scheduled rate for his grade, if the compensation at such rate is higher than the total basic compensation specified in paragraph (1).

In case any such officer or employee receiving compensation under paragraph (2) is eligible for a subsequent successive longevity step-increase, he shall—

> [(A) receive the same total basic compensation which he would be entitled to receive after such subsequent longevity step-increase, if his total basic compensation had, at the time he was eligible for his first longevity step-increase, been determined under paragraph (1), or
> [(B) continue to receive compensation under paragraph (2) if such compensation is higher than the total basic compensation specified in paragraph (A).

[SEC. 704. In the case of officers and employees in grades 11 to 15, inclusive, of the General Schedule who are receiving compensation at or above the maximum scheduled rates for their respective grades on the date immediately preceding the effective date of this amendatory section, not to exceed three years of service performed immediately preceding such effective date shall be counted toward longevity step-increases under section 703. Notwithstanding subsection (b)(4) of section 703, longevity step-increases for grade 15 of the General Schedule shall be the same as those for grade 14 of the General Schedule.]

SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

SEC. [705.] 703. This title shall not apply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

TITLE VIII—GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

SEC. 801. All new appointments shall be made at the minimum rate of the appropriate grade, except that the head of any department may, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, (1) appoint individuals who have extra qualifications for the position concerned at such higher rate or rates of a grade as the Commission may authorize for this purpose, and (2) make new appointments at rates above the minimum rate of the appropriate grade when the minimum rate would be less than the salary received by a well qualified appointee immediately prior to appointment, but no appointment under this clause (2) shall be made at a rate higher than the lowest rate of the appropriate grade which equals or exceeds an appointee's salary rate immediately prior to appointment.

SEC. 802. (a) The rate of basic compensation to be received by any officer or employee to whom this Act applies shall be governed by regulations issued by the Commission in conformity with this Act when—

(1) he is transferred from a position in the legislative, judicial, or executive branch to which this Act does not apply;

(2) he is transferred from any position in the legislative, judicial, or executive branch to which this Act applies to another such position;

(3) he is demoted to a position in a lower grade;

(4) he is reinstated, reappointed, or reemployed in any position subject to this Act following service in any position in the legislative, judicial, or executive branch;

(5) his type of appointment is changed;

(6) his employment status is otherwise changed; or

(7) his position is changed from one grade to another grade.

(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than [one step-increase] two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred, who is receiving [(1) one or more longevity step-increases under section 703, or (2)] basic [compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum [scheduled] rate for his grade under [section 604, section 1105(b), or] any [other] provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least [one step-increase] two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive [(A)] (1) the maximum [scheduled] rate of such higher grade, or [(B)] (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher.

(c) Any employee in the legislative branch whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate or the Clerk of the House of Representatives, and who has completed two or more years of service as such an employee, and any Member of the Senate or House of Representatives who has completed two or more years of service as such a Member, may upon appointment to a position subject to the Classification Act of 1949 have his initial rate of compensation fixed at the minimum rate of the appropriate grade, or at any step of such grade that does not exceed the highest previous rate of compensation received by him during such service in the legislative branch.

(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.

[Sec. 803. (a) Whenever the Commission shall find (1) that a sufficient number of qualified eligibles for positions in a given class cannot be secured in one or more areas or locations at the existing minimum rate for such class, and (2) that there is a possibility that a sufficient number of such eligibles can be secured by increasing the minimum rate for such class in such areas or locations to one of the higher rates within the grade in which such class is placed, the Commission may establish such higher rate as the minimum rate for that class in each area or location concerned.

[(b) Minimum rates established under subsection (a) may be revised from time to time by the Commission. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

[(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation resulting from the establishment of minimum rates under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a).]

Sec. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.

(b) No person may hold the director grade unless he is serving as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, center, or outpatient clinic (independent). No person may hold the executive grade unless he holds the position of chief of staff at a hospital, center, or outpatient clinic (independent), or the position of clinic director, outpatient clinic, or comparable position.

[§ 4108. Specialist ratings

[(a) Within the restrictions herein imposed, the Chief Medical Director may rate any physician appointed under paragraph (1) of section 4104, or on a temporary full-time or part-time basis under section 4114(a), of this title as a medical or surgical specialist, and, upon the recommendation of the Assistant Chief Medical Director for Dentistry, may rate any doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine, appointed under paragraph (1) of section 4104, or on a temporary full-time or part-time basis under section 4114(a), of this title as a dental specialist; however, no person shall at any time hold more than one such rating.

[(b) No person may be rated as a medical, surgical, or dental specialist unless he is certified as a specialist by an American specialty Board recognized by the Administrator where such boards exist; or if no such boards exist, he has been examined and found qualified by a board appointed by the Chief Medical Director from specialists of the Department of Medicine and Surgery holding ratings in the specialty to which the candidate aspires. Whenever there are insufficient specialists, rated in the proper specialty, who are readily available to constitute such a board, the Chief Medical Director may substitute consultants with comparable qualifications employed under section 4114 of this title.

[(c) Any person, rated as a medical, surgical, or dental specialist under the provisions of this section shall retain such rating until it shall be withdrawn by the Chief Medical Director. The Chief Medical Director shall not withdraw any such rating until it shall have been determined by a board of specialists that the person holding such rating is no longer qualified in his specialty.

[(d) Any person, rated as a medical, surgical, or dental specialist under the provisions of this section, shall receive, in addition to his basic pay, an allowance equal to 15 per centum of such pay, but in no event shall the pay plus the allowance authorized by this subsection exceed $17,200 per annum.]

§ 4108. Administration

Notwithstanding any law, Executive order, or regulation, the Administrator shall prescribe by regulation the hours and conditions of employment and leaves of absence of physicians, dentists, and nurses.

§ 4111. Appointment of additional employees

(a) There shall be appointed by the Administrator under civil-service laws, rules, and regulations, such additional employees, other than those provided in section 4103, paragraph (1) of section 4104, and those specified in section 4114 of this title, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this chapter.

[(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the per annum rate of salary of each individual serving as a manager of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary which he would receive under section 4107 of this title if his service as a manager of a hospital, domiciliary, or center had been service as a physician in the medical service in the chief grade. This subsection shall not affect the allocation of any position of manager of a hospital, domiciliary, or center to any grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, except with respect to changes in rate of salary pursuant to the preceding sentence, and shall not affect the applicability of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual.]

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the per annum salary rate of each individual serving as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary which he would receive under section 4107 of this title if his service as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center had been service as a physician in the director grade. This subsection shall not affect the allocation of any position of director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center to any grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, except with respect to changes in rate of salary pursuant to the preceding sentence, and shall not affect the applicability of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual.

PART E—PROMOTION OF FOREIGN SERVICE STAFF OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

* * * * * * *

WITHIN CLASS [AND LONGEVITY] SALARY INCREASES

SEC. 642. [(a)] Under such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, any staff officer or employee whose services meet the standards required for the efficient conduct of the work of the Service shall receive an increase in salary at periodic intervals to the next higher salary rate for the class in which he is serving. Without regard to any other law the Secretary is authorized to grant any such officer or employee additional increases in salary within the salary range established for the class in which he is serving, based upon specifically meritorious service.

[(b) Under such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, any staff officer or employee who has attained the maximum salary rate prescribed by section 415 for the class in which he is serving may be granted from time to time an additional salary increase beyond the maximum salary rate for his class in recognition of longevity of proficiency in the Service. Each such salary increase shall be equal to the maximum salary rate increase of the applicable class and no person shall receive more than four such salary increases while serving in the same class.]

["(d) Any increase in basic salary granted by law on or after the effective date of this subsection shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic salary within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section."

[(c) The annual rate of basic salary of any officer or employee whose basic salary, immediately prior to the effective date of this subsection, is at a rate between two scheduled rates, or above the highest scheduled rate, in the Postal Field Service Schedule, the Rural Carrier Schedule, or the Fourth-Class Office Schedule, whichever may be applicable, is hereby increased by an amount equal to the amount of the increase made by this part in the next lower rate of the appropriate level in such schedule. As used in this subsection, the term "basic salary" has the same meaning as when used in the Postal Field Service Compensation Act of 1955.

[(d) This part shall have the same force and effect within Guam as within other possessions of the United States.]

ACT OF AUGUST 1, 1947

That (a) the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to establish and fix compensation for not more than eight scientific or professional positions in the Department of the Interior, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development functions of such department which require the services of specially qualified personnel.

(b) The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for not more than twenty scientific or professional positions in the Department of Agriculture, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development functions of such department which require the services of specially qualified personnel.

(c) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for not more than thirteen scientific or professional positions in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development functions of such department which require the services of specially qualified personnel.

(d) The Secretary of Commerce is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for not more than thirty scientific or professional positions in the Department of Commerce, of which not less than five shall be for the United States Patent Office in its examining and related activities, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development functions of such department which require the services of specially qualified personnel.

(e) The Postmaster General is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for not more than three scientific or professional positions in the Post Office Department, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development functions of such Department which require the services of specially qualified personnel.

(f) The Director of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for not more than fourteen scientific or professional positions in the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development functions of such agency which require the services of specially qualified personnel.

SEC. 2. (a) Positions created pursuant to this Act shall be included in the competitive civil service of the United States, but appointments to such positions shall be made without competitive examination upon approval of the proposed appointee's qualifications by the United States Civil Service Commission or such officers and agents as the Commission may designate for this purpose.

[(b) The rates of compensation for positions established pursuant to the provisions of this Act shall not be less than $12,500 per annum nor more than $19,000 per annum and shall be subject to the approval of the United States Civil Service Commission.]

(b) The per annum rates of compensation for positions established pursuant to the provisions of this Act shall not be less than the minimum rate of grade 16 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, nor more than the highest rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of such Act.

(c) In any case in which, subsequent to February 1, 1958, provisions are included in a general appropriation Act authorizing an agency of the Government referred to in this Act to establish and fix the compensation of scientific or professional positions similar to those authorized by this Act, the number of such positions authorized by this Act shall, unless otherwise expressly provided, be deemed to have been reduced by the number of positions authorized by the provisions of such appropriation Act.

SEC. 3. The head of each department or agency authorized to establish and fix the compensation of positions under this Act shall submit to the Congress, not later than December 31 of each year, a report setting forth the number of positions established pursuant to this Act in his department or agency during that calendar year, and the name, rate of compensation, and description of the qualifications of each incumbent, together with a statement of the functions performed by each. In any instance in which any such department or agency head may consider full public report on these items detrimental to the national security, such department or agency head is authorized to omit such items from his annual report and, in lieu thereof, to present such information in executive sessions of such committees of the Senate and House of Representatives as the presiding officers of those bodies shall designate.

SECTION 208(g) OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT

(g) The Administrator is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for, within the Public Health Service, not more than one hundred and fifty positions, of which not less than one hundred and fifteen shall be for the National Institutes of Health in the professional, scientific, and executive service, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development activities of the Public Health Service which require the services of specially qualified scientific, professional, and administrative personnel: Provided, That the rates of compensation for positions established pursuant to the provisions of this subsection shall not be less than [$12,500 per annum nor more than $19,000 per annum] the minimum rate of grade 16 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, nor more than the highest rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, and shall be subject to the approval of the Civil Service Commission. Positions created pursuant to this subsection shall be included in the classified civil service of the United States, but appointments to such positions shall be made without competitive examination upon approval of the proposed appointee's qualifications by the Civil Service Commission or such officers or agents as it may designate for this purpose.

SECTION 12 OF THE ACT OF MAY 29, 1884

SEC. 12. The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to establish research laboratories, including the acquisition of necessary land, buildings, or facilities, and also the making of research contracts under the authority contained in section 10(a) of the Bankhead-Jones Act of 1935, as amended by the Research and Marketing Act of 1946, for research and study, in the United States or elsewhere, of foot-and-mouth disease and other animal diseases which in the opinion of the Secretary constitute a threat to the livestock industry of the United States: Provided, That no live virus of foot-and-mouth disease may be introduced for any purpose into any part of the mainland of the United States except coastal islands separated therefrom by waters navigable for deep-water navigation and which shall not be connected with the mainland by any tunnel, and except that the Secretary of Agriculture may transport said virus in the original package across the mainland under adequate safeguards, and except further, that in the event of outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in this country, the Secretary of Agriculture may, at his discretion, permit said virus to be brought into the United States under adequate safeguards. To carry out the provisions of this section, the Secretary is authorized to employ technical experts or scientists without regard to the Classification Act: Provided, That the number so employed shall not exceed five and that the maximum compensation for each shall not exceed [$19,000 per annum] the highest rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as Congress may deem necessary; in addition, the Secretary is authorized to utilize, in carrying out this section, funds otherwise available for the control or eradication of such diseases.

d. appoint and fix the compensation of such officers and employees as may be necessary to carry out the functions of the Commission. Such officers and employees shall be appointed in accordance with the civil-service laws and their compensation fixed in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, except that, to the extent the Commission deems such action necessary to the discharge of its responsibilities, personnel may be employed and their compensation fixed without regard to such laws: Provided, however, That no officer or employee (except such officers and employees whose compensation is fixed by law, and scientific and technical personnel up to a limit of [($19,000)] the highest rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended) whose position would be subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, if such Act were applicable to such position, shall be paid a salary at a rate in excess of the rate payable under such Act for positions of equivalent difficulty or responsibility. The Commission shall make adequate provision for administrative review of any determination to dismiss any employee;

SECTION 1581 OF TITLE 10 OF THE UNITED STATES CODE

§ 1581. Appointment: Professional and scientific services

(a) The Secretary of Defense may establish not more than five hundred thirty civilian positions in the Department of Defense to carry out research and development relating to the national defense, military medicine, and other activities of the Department of Defense that require the services of specially qualified scientists or professional personnel.

(b) Subject to the Civil Service Commission's approval as to rates, the Secretary may fix the compensation for positions established under subsection (a). [However, the compensation may not be less than $12,500 or more than $19,000 a year.] However, the per annum compensation may not be less than the minimum rate of grade 16 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, nor more than the highest rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of such Act.

OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

(f) The Administrator is authorized, subject to the civil-service and classification laws, to select, employ, appoint, and fix the compensation of such officers, employees, attorneys, and agents as shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, and to define their authority and duties, except that the Administrator may fix the compensation for not more than twenty-three positions at rates not to exceed [$19,500 per annum] the highest rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

SECTION 2 OF THE ACT OF JUNE 14, 1948

SEC. 2. The President shall designate from time to time to attend a specified session or specified sessions of the World Health Assembly of the Organization not to exceed three delegates of the United States and such number of alternates as he may determine consistent with the rules of procedure of the World Health Assembly. One of the delegates shall be designated as the chief delegate. Whenever the United States becomes entitled to designate a person to serve on the Executive Board of the Organization, under article 24 of the constitution of the Organization, the President shall designate a representative of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and may designate not to exceed one alternate to attend sessions of the Executive Board. Such representative must be a graduate of a recognized medical school and have spent not less than three years in active practice as a physician or surgeon. [Such representative shall be entitled to receive compensation at a rate not to exceed $12,000 per annum and any such alternate shall be entitled to receive compensation at a rate not to exceed $10,000 per annum] Such representative and any such alternate shall each be entitled to receive compensation at one of the rates provided by section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, for such period or periods as the President may specify, except that no Member of the Senate or House of Representatives or officer of the United States who is thus designated shall be entitled to receive such compensation: Provided, That no person shall serve as such representative, delegate, or alternate until such person has been investigated as to loyalty and security by the Civil Service Commission.

[1] The within-class rate to which an individual is converted will be determined by the Secretary of State. These comparisons assume conversion to the numerically corresponding rate.

[2] Employees in classes 1 through 13 of the Foreign Service Staff schedule will be transferred to new classes of that schedule in accordance with provisions in the bill. Employees in class 14 or below will remain at present class and salary until other classes or rates are established by the Secretary of State.

NOTE.—Rates same as President's proposal except for effective dates.

MINORITY VIEWS ON H.R. 9531

This legislation is completely unjustified and should be disapproved.

It is a cruel hoax upon over a million and a half Federal employees because it raises their hopes beyond any reasonable expectation of fulfillment.

It is unfair to the Government because it weakens the Federal civilian salary structure with discriminatory preference for certain groups of employees.

And it is grossly unfair to the taxpayers because it would use their money to grant exorbitant pay raises to the preferred employees.

Enactment of this bill would still further distort the already confused salary structure of the Federal civil service and would compound and aggravate the inequities and contradictions built into it by earlier flat-percentage and across-the-board pay raises.

The excessive cost of the bill—nearly $1.5 billion a year beginning in 1964, the most extravagant ever approved by the committee—would be a wholly unwarranted raid on the Treasury, at the expense of the heavily overburdened taxpayers.

The bill would violate the wage-price guidelines laid down by the President upon recommendation of the Council of Economic Advisers, with far-reaching and dangerous impact on the general economy. It undoubtedly would cause a resurgence of the wage-price spiral and ignite a new inflationary trend.

In short, this bill in large part is a repetition of the "meat ax" legislative approach, adopted too often in the past, that has undermined our Federal civilian salary system to a point where it is a handicap to management instead of the vital force for efficiency and achievement it should be.

REJECTS PRINCIPLES OF SOUND PAY STRUCTURE

But the most glaring fault—the most unfortunate and damaging aspect—of this legislation is wanton waste of a golden opportunity to accomplish the greatest forward stride toward a sound, effective, and lasting Federal civilian salary system that has been presented to the Congress since enactment of the Classification Act of 1923. This opportunity was afforded in a special message sent by the President to the Congress on February 20, 1962, recommending legislation to reform the four major Federal statutory salary systems.

The President's Salary Reform Proposal

OBJECTIVES

The President in his message said—

> Salaries (of Federal employees) should be fixed under well-understood and objective standards high enough to attract and retain competent personnel, sufficiently flexible to motivate initiative and industry, and comparable with the salaries received by their counterparts in private life. To pay more than this is to be unfair to the taxpayers—to pay less is to degrade the public service and endanger our national security.
> This proposal has two principal features:
> 1. It establishes a sound, objective, and continuous standard for determining proper salary levels by following the concept of comparability—reasonable comparability with prevailing private enterprise salaries for the same levels of work insofar as this is possible, as determined from painstaking statistical surveys and careful job comparisons; and
> 2. It establishes realistic and appropriate salary relationships both within and among the several statutory salary systems and each of their grade levels, by following the principle of equal pay for equal work, with distinctions in pay consistent with distinctions in responsibility and performance.
> It is important for the Federal Government to adhere to its own precepts with respect to pay adjustments in the economy as a whole. Because of the salary lag that has developed over the past 17 years, full correction of the accrued inequities in one year would be unwise, involving the substantial cost of more than $1 billion. This cost would come at a time when heavy budgetary demands have been placed upon us to meet great national security needs, and when the Government is urging private labor and management to exercise self-restraint to avoid the creation of inflationary pressures. Therefore, to reduce the impact in any one year, the plan I recommend provides that the cost be distributed over three annual stages, beginning prospectively on January 1, 1963.
> The substantial costs necessarily involved in achieving this pay reform make it especially important that the improvements in our pay systems take absolute priority over general percentage or dollar increases of the kind we have seen in the past—increases which make little, if any, contribution to efficiency or economy in Government.

The President's proposal is contained in H.R. 10480, and was the subject of the most exhaustive and informative public hearings ever conducted by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

BACKGROUND

There have been four major, authoritative studies of the Federal civilian salary structure during the past 7 years, as well as a number of special studies of certain phases. Each such study has disclosed serious defects, inequities, and inadequacies and has demonstrated the need for corrective measures. The first three such studies [1] have fallen by the wayside for lack of congressional implementation. The President's salary reform proposal is based primarily on results of the fourth study, which was undertaken 5 years ago in the last administration and completed in the present administration.

This study is by far the most intensive, discerning, and productive study of a key Federal personnel management area undertaken since the Classification Act of 1923—if not since the Civil Service Act of 1883. Its constructive results are a tribute to the very able, diligent, and informed efforts of the eminently qualified research and advisory staff, recruited from Government departments and agencies, outstanding representatives of the business, industrial, and educational communities, and leading authorities in public administration, who conducted the study. The study, the recommendations it developed, and the President's proposal which implements those recommendations are completely nonpartisan, with the sole objective of identifying the deficiencies in our Federal salary structure, correcting the deficiencies, and preventing their recurrence.

SALARY REFORM URGENTLY NEEDED

The President's proposal is directed to the establishment and application, on a Government-wide basis, of a coordinated, equitable, and reasonably uniform Federal civilian salary system that will promote efficiency and economy in essential Government programs, will assure the taxpayers of receiving full value in service for every dollar of their money paid out in Government salaries, and will provide Federal employees rates of compensation reasonably comparable to those of their fellow workers in private enterprise whose levels of duty and responsibility are comparable. The present lack of such a sound and lasting salary system constitutes one of the most serious and dangerous weaknesses in the structure of our Federal Government.

STRONG PUBLIC AND OFFICIAL SUPPORT

The President's message was fully documented when submitted and since has been further amplified and corroborated in direct testimony by the ablest panel of authoritative witnesses ever to appear at public hearings before the committee. Statements of the Postmaster General, the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Commerce, the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, the Chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, the Under Secretary of Defense, the Under Secretary of the Treasury, the Under Secretary of Agriculture, the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, and the Deputy Under Secretary of State for Administration, among others, conclusively demonstrate the need for approval of the President's proposal.

The administration witnesses were strongly supported by independent nonpartisan public-service groups, such as the National Civil Service League—always in the forefront of moves toward better government since its original success in obtaining enactment of the Civil Service Act of 1883—the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, and the Tax Foundation, Inc. Leaders in business and private life such as Ralph J. Cordiner, chairman of the board, General Electric Co.; Marion B. Folsom, director and management adviser, Eastman Kodak Co., and former Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare; Dan A. Kimball, president, Aerojet-General Corp., and former Secretary of the Navy; L. Eugene Root, president, Lockheed Missiles & Space Co.; Clarence B. Randall, president and chairman of the board of the Inland Steel Co.; and Dr. James R. Killian, Jr., chairman of the corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, strongly endorsed the proposal and urged its early enactment.

Their views are most ably summed up in the following letter from another distinguished American—Hon. Neil Hosler McElroy, president of a great and successful business enterprise and former Secretary of Defense:

Hon. Tom Murray,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Chairman: I have followed, with deepening concern, the progress of the Federal salary reform legislation—a problem which affects the efficiency of the entire Federal system so fundamentally that I gave it close attention not only during my public service in Washington, but also before that service and since returning to private life.

Too many citizens who criticize Federal personnel for alleged lethargy, wasteful practices, and lack of vision are prone to resist the very measures which will assure greater efficiency, economy, and competence. This pending pay reform legislation is a case in point, for again a sensible pay reform seems to be tending to deteriorate into a general pay raise which would carry forward and even worsen many of the present distortions.

So disheartening a prospect prompts this letter to you. The pay reform recommendations of President Kennedy are, as you know, foursquare with those proposed by President Eisenhower, so there can be no question of partisan purpose here. In my judgment the administration recommendation before you will, if approved, reward not only our Nation as a whole, but also each individual taxpayer, through marked improvement in Federal personnel procedures and incentives.

Based on both business and governmental experience, I urge that these features be held to firmly as this legislation proceeds:

1. Comparability of pay between Federal and private business for positions requiring comparable responsibility, competence, and initiative.

2. A system of annual review to help maintain this comparability over coming years.

3. Easing of the very harmful compression in the entire Federal salary structure by a substantial upward revision of top governmental salaries.

4. Relief from the inefficiencies and self-defeating personnel compromises which result from severe limitations on supergrade positions.

5. Avoidance of any pay increase, on any level, which cannot be justified on comparability or economic grounds.

6. In all of this, avoidance of excessive cost through elimination of unneeded personnel.

I am not unaware that pressures build up in connection with legislation of this kind which tend to substitute flat general pay increases for pay reform. But to go on year after year, deferring urgently needed modernization of Federal pay and further to distort Federal pay scales by restraining the top salaries while biennially raising lower grade salaries above comparability levels, is to guarantee injury to every citizen in this country.

My congratulations to you for fighting for the sound objectives sought by the President.

I urge that you and your colleagues, in concert with the administration, continue to place your emphasis upon modernization of the pay structure instead of perpetuating existing troubles, and upon the goal of high performance by all in the Federal service, with favoritism to none.

Sincerely,

(Signed) Neil McElroy.

The breadth and the scope of experience and knowledge, the wise counsel and American "know-how," thus made available is unparalleled in the deliberations of the Congress relating to personnel management. It is to be emphasized that testimony of these leaders in Government and private enterprise is entirely without personal interest or benefit, other than a public-spirited concern with better Government and fair treatment of Government personnel. Apart and aside from the value of their acknowledged expertise, the probity and the impartiality of their testimony is beyond question. They have no ax to grind except a truly patriotic and unselfish desire for a strong and efficient Government to serve the United States. Many of them are serving, or have served, their Government at considerable personal sacrifice.

H.R. 9531 Destroys Salary Reform

Proponents of the reported bill have insisted that it will place in effect "95 percent of the President's recommended salary reform program," and committee action on the bill is largely attributable to such insistence. The plain and unvarnished truth is that such is not the fact, and the resultant misapprehensions have led to one of the most undesirable, most unfortunate, and certainly most costly measures ever approved by the committee.

The bill is a self-contradictory monstrosity which attempts to reconcile the irreconcilable—a forced marriage of the sound principles of comparability and internal alinement, on the one hand, and the very unsound contrivance of excessive and discriminatory pay rates for preferred groups of employees on the other hand. The provisions for a salary "committee" and for annual salary reviews are no more than a pretense when coupled immediately, as they are in the bill, with salary rates in the heavily populated lower levels which vitiate comparability and proper internal alinement.

The bill would shatter the keystones of the President's plan—comparability and internal alinement—by the arbitrary and groundless granting of excessive and costly salaries to the 960,000 Federal employees in the first four postal field service levels, the rural delivery service, and the first five classified grades. These rates distort salary relationships within the Government and place the salaries of nearly 60 percent of the Federal employees affected far above and beyond the salaries paid to their fellow workers in private enterprise who have comparable levels of duty and responsibility. With this radical departure from essential salary reform principles for the majority of Federal employees, other provisions of the bill which purport to aid those principles are but superficial lip service—of no value, force, or effect.

Specific Objections

POSTAL FIELD SERVICE SALARY SCHEDULE

The salary rates for the first seven levels of the postal field service schedule distort pay relationships so as to destroy the comparability and internal alinement principles which are central to the President's salary reform proposal. Such rates are based on no objective or measurable standard. They bear no discernible relationship to private enterprise salary levels. They destroy the precisely designed, uniform percentage differences between successive pay levels recommended by the President to give appropriate recognition in pay consistent with differences in the responsibility and difficulty of the respective levels of work. They are the result of arbitrary and uninformed juggling of the carefully planned salary schedule recommended by the President. Over 498,000 employees, or 95 percent of those paid under this schedule, are in these seven levels.

The postal field service salary line recommended by the President was constructed from data derived in surveys by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and from evaluation of the responsibility and difficulty of the various levels of work within the postal service. It provided a sound basis for comparability of postal field service and private enterprise salaries—through the linking principle, which equates postal field service (PFS) levels 4, 11, and 20 with grades GS–5, GS–11, and GS–17 of the Classification Act of 1949, respectively—and established realistic and appropriate salary relationships both within the postal field service schedule and between that schedule and the several other statutory salary systems. Distortion in H.R. 9531 of the proper pay line will make it most difficult, if not impossible, to give practical effect to the principles of comparability and internal alinement as stated in section 601 of the bill.

The scheduled rates for postal field service levels 1 through 7, as provided in section 102 of the bill, reflect only a desire to give a fat pay raise—without any regard to these desirable principles of salary reform laid down by the President.

This distortion of rates is compounded with respect to employees in postal field service levels 1 through 4 who are now on the rolls, as a result of the additional step increase upon conversion to the new pay schedules provided for by section 108 of the bill. The advantage to such employees will immediately create problems in connection with promotions because it will enable employees who are promoted after conversion to the new schedule to be advanced ahead of employees who already had been promoted before conversion. This result is commonly referred to as "leapfrogging," and is one of the most undesirable and discriminatory results that can be achieved by salary legislation.

To illustrate, under this bill an employee who, prior to conversion to the new schedule in the bill, had been promoted from step 7 of level 4 would have been placed in step 7 of level 5. But a junior employee in step 7 of level 4 who might be promoted after the conversion would be placed in step 8 of level 5. The unfair advantage thus gained by the junior employee under the bill would continue for the next 15 years—until the senior employee shall have reached step 12 of level 5. This kind of arbitrary and discriminatory advancement is not dictated by any justifiable requirement of conversion to the new pay schedule, and is wholly indefensible.

RURAL CARRIER SCHEDULE

According to the Post Office Department, the postal pay provisions most evidently in need of reform are those applicable to rural carriers, and this view is strongly supported by a report by the Comptroller General of the United States [2] summarizing the results of a special review by the General Accounting Office of salaries of rural carriers.

The President's salary reform proposal contained provisions to modernize the rural carriers' salary system and restore equitable salary relationships among rural carriers and between such carriers and other postal and Federal employee groups. This highly desirable reform of the rural carriers' pay system would be discarded by H.R. 9531. In its stead, the present obsolete method of fixing rural carriers' pay—primarily on the basis of miles of route—would be continued and further overliberalized by excessive increases, thus perpetuating and compounding the present inequities.

The report of the Comptroller General strongly criticizes the wide variances in hourly pay of rural carriers—with rates ranging from $1.47 to $10.22 an hour—disclosed in the General Accounting Office review and recommends that the Post Office Department propose legislation to correct the inequities. The President's salary reform plan would carry out this recommendation, but H.R. 9531 proceeds in a diametrically opposite direction.

SUBSTITUTE POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Aside from such excessive general salary increases, H.R. 9531 contains a most complex and costly provision relating to substitute postal employees. These employees comprise an auxiliary work force which is utilized to supplement the regular force during peakloads of work and to meet emergencies as the needs of the postal service dictate. They have no established work schedules or tours of duty.

Section 116 of H.R. 9531 extends to these employees the benefits of (1) the 8- within 10-hour tour, (2) compensatory time for Saturday and Sunday work in months other than December, and (3) overtime compensation for Saturday and Sunday work in December as well as for work in excess of 8 hours in a day. It is estimated that one-third of the total substitute man-years are worked during hours or on days when these benefit provisions would be operative, even though many substitutes average less than 40 hours of employment per week.

Moreover, section 116 extends to these employees the benefit of premium compensation for work on holidays. Since pay for holidays is already prorated in the established hourly wage of a substitute employee, this change will provide holiday premium pay at more than 200 percent of the hourly basic rate paid a regular employee in the same step. This would be highly discriminatory in comparison to the 100-percent premium paid to a regular employee for an hour of work on a holiday.

It is estimated that enactment of this extraordinary provision alone would add $145 million annually to the operating cost of the Post Office Department.

CLASSIFICATION ACT

The salary rates for the first five classified grades also distort pay relationships in the classified salary system so as to destroy the comparability and internal alinement principles of the President's salary reform proposal, although to a lesser extent than is the case with respect to the postal salary schedules. Thus, the classified schedule in the bill is subject to the same objections as apply to the postal schedules; the only difference is in quantity. The classified rates represent a somewhat lesser arbitrary juggling of the carefully planned internal salary alinement of the President's proposal. But, nevertheless, as to the first five grades they destroy both comparability with private enterprise salary levels and proper recognition in pay consistent with differences in the responsibility and difficulty of the respective levels of work. Over 450,000 employees, or 45 percent of all classified personnel, are in these five grades.

Aside from such distortion, the increases in the bill for the first five classified grades, when compared with the increases granted postal employees in the lower levels, present a further and startling example of the discriminatory and inequitable policies which characterize the bill throughout. For example, classified employees in grade 5 would receive an average raise of only 8.2 percent, while postal workers in level 4—whose duties and responsibilities certainly are no more exacting and, in truth, until recently were equated with a lower classified level—will be given increases ranging from 11.2 percent to 15 percent. The bill extends similar preferential treatment to postal employees, as compared with their fellow workers in the classified service, at postal field service levels 1, 2, and 3, and in the rural delivery service. The rural carrier schedule raises are even richer than those for postal field service level 4, which covers city letter carriers and most of the postal clerks.

RETROACTIVITY

Another highly objectionable feature of H.R. 9531 is the provision therein for retroactivity of the lavish pay raises. In terms of cost, the 6-month earlier effective date represents an expense to the Treasury $440 million greater for the current fiscal year than would be incurred under the President's salary reform proposal. Moreover, retroactivity pyramids the administrative problems and difficulties of installing the completely new pay systems which the bill would establish. Many salary actions—and particularly longevity advancements made after the July 1, 1962, effective date but before enactment—would have to be recalled. The multiplicity of effective dates in the bill adds still further unnecessary administrative complications. It is to be noted that these factors also would give rise to increased costs of administration which, although not susceptible of accurate determination in advance, undoubtedly would be substantial—even apart and aside from the adverse effect on efficient management due to the diversion of administrative time and effort more urgently needed elsewhere in the interest of efficient Government postal service.

Administration Strongly Opposes H.R. 9531

When inflated lower level salary scales such as those proposed in this bill first were placed before the committee, the views of the administration were requested and were submitted in a letter from the Director of the Bureau of the Budget dated July 24, 1962. The letter, which tests those salary scales against the cardinal principles of Federal salary reform recommended by the President, represents the strong and unanimous judgment of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, the Postmaster General, and the Chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission—upon whom the President has imposed full responsibility in the matter.

The letter reemphasizes and reiterates earlier administration testimony that three major features of the President's salary reform proposal are "fundamental to any acceptable Federal pay reform bill." [Emphasis supplied.]

The first of such major features is the establishment of a "clear-cut standard of comparability" with private enterprise salaries—that is, comparability in all grades and levels of the Federal statutory salary systems, not just those grades and levels covering 40 percent of the employees as provided by the reported bill.

The second such feature is a valid and reliable system for constructing and interrelating Federal salary schedules.

The third is a method for annual review and adjustment of salaries, where and to the extent appropriate, founded upon valid evidence for which effective provision was made in the President's proposal.

The reported bill fails miserably in these three tests.

It ignores and rejects comparability for 60 percent of the employees.

It further distorts, rather than improves, the internal alinement of Federal salaries and precludes a proper interrelationship between and among the various salary levels which would provide equal pay for equal work and differences in pay for substantial differences in work.

It renders nugatory the plan for annual salary review to maintain the comparability and internal alinement principles in the future, because it is founded on the false premise of pay rates for preferred employee groups which destroy those principles.

The letter from the Director of the Bureau of the Budget should be fair warning to all concerned of the prospect that this bad legislation will not become law even if enacted by the Congress.

Breaches Wage-Price Guidelines

One of the outstanding programs of the administration—conducted with the excellent cooperation and assistance of private enterprise labor and management—has been the program to arrest and control inflation through the establishment of wage-price guidelines and the voluntary maintenance of such guidelines throughout the national economy. Success of this program up to the present time is a great tribute to the unselfish and public-spirited response of both labor and management in the interest of the general welfare.

Moderate and beneficial settlements between labor and management in our critical steel, aluminum, and railroad industries—to name just a few—during the past year have had a highly desirable stabilizing effect on the economy and are widely regarded as constituting a pattern well to be followed in labor-management relations. These settlements—arrived at through the give-and-take of the bargaining table—all have been made within the framework of the wage-price guidelines recommended by the Council of Economic Advisers. Their value is priceless in fostering the reinvigorated growth in our economy which we must attain if the United States is to carry out its domestic and worldwide commitments. Public response has been enthusiastically favorable, and plainly evidences the expectation that this pattern will be followed elsewhere to the benefit of all concerned.

But the American public, as well as labor and management, also is well aware of the beneficent intervention of the Federal Government in these private enterprise affairs and it is common knowledge—without detracting at all from the good faith of the parties and their regard for the national interest—that such intervention has had a persuasive influence. What, then, would be the public reaction—what would be the feelings of labor and management who settled their private enterprise differences within the wage-price guidelines—were the Government itself to be the first to breach its own guidelines? For that is exactly what the reported bill will do. It would make a shambles of wage-price guidelines and all of the economic gains that have been founded on the guidelines. Public resentment would be matched only by loss of public confidence in the Government, and the upward wage-price spiral would bore again with renewed vigor into our economy.

Cost

The following table sets forth, in summary form, a comparison of costs of H.R. 9531 and of the President's proposal for the current fiscal year and the three following fiscal years.

Comparison of Costs for Fiscal Years 1963–66, Inclusive

Federal salary legislation—President's proposal (H.R. 10480) and reported bill (H.R. 9531)

Total											$2,367
Add: Excess cost (cumulative, 4 years) of increases for employees in the judicial branch, congressional employees, agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees, none of whom were covered by the President's proposal (excludes employees whose rates are fixed by administrative action, for whom comparable raises would be authorized by H.R. 9531, with respect to whom cost estimates are not available)											78
Total											$2,445

The immoderate cost of this legislation in and of itself is more than sufficient to warrant its disapproval. To proceed further with such a bill, which is destructive of both management needs and essential budgetary considerations, would be the height of fiscal irresponsibility.

As pointed out earlier, enactment of this legislation would superimpose the vast sum of nearly $1.5 billion—$1,469 million to be specific—on the national budget and on the taxpayers' burden beginning in the fiscal year 1964 and for every year thereafter. Such an exorbitant increase in the financial obligations of the Government is utterly insupportable—especially in the light of priority in financial commitments for our critical defense effort and other domestic and worldwide programs. While somewhat encouraging reports are available as to the state of the national economy and prospects for its betterment, neither the general economy nor the condition of the public treasury is so robust as to warrant the belief they can support "giveaway" Federal salary legislation without serious repercussions.

The President in the message submitting his salary reform proposal stressed the necessity for moderation—indeed, for extreme caution—in the consideration and adoption of measures to strengthen the Federal civilian salary system. His proposed salary reform, therefore, provided a comprehensive plan for modernization of the four major statutory salary systems so that the ultimate objective of reasonable comparability with private enterprise pay levels would be attained with a moderate, gradual, and entirely manageable impact on the budget and on the purse of the American taxpayer. The salary lines in the President's proposal were carefully constructed by testing against the fundamental wage-price stabilization guidelines recommended for private enterprise, along with the application of the principles of reasonable comparability with private enterprise salary rates and proper internal alinement.

The great value to management of the President's proposed salary system—the impetus to efficiency and greater achievement in Government programs to be gained from such a modern system—were precisely gauged to insure that they would be well worth the cost. As further assurance of this objective, the President's proposed reforms were to be placed in effect in three phases, effective January 1 of 1963 and of each of the next 2 ensuing years. This was one of the most important features of the proposal—a feature without which even those salary adjustments recommended by the President might not be justified because of the likelihood of resultant additional deficit spending. But this feature would be abandoned by H.R. 9531, along with all of the principles of salary reform which the Administration has stated are "fundamental to any acceptable Federal pay reform bill."

H.R. 9531 purports, with its inflated schedules, to arrive at "comparability" in two phases, in lieu of the three phases recommended by the President. If the principle of comparability is to be given meaningful application, the three-phase approach is a practical necessity. To attempt to accomplish such application in two years is, to all intents and purposes, to invite pressure for further tampering with the bases for constructing valid salary schedules during the next Congress—and very probably in an election year.

Conversely, the President's plan to move into pay reform in three phases is entirely consistent with the growing practice in private enterprise, as witness recent settlements by major shirt manufacturers; glass container manufacturers; associated general contractors (California) for carpenters and laborers; major meatpackers; two of the three largest automobile manufacturers; and the Atlantic and Gulf coasts shipping industry for masters, mates, and pilots. It is even more suitable for the Federal Government, in view of the ground that needs to be made up, the need for financial stability of our Government, and the generally unfavorable economic climate so far as concerns too rapid and too costly pay raises for very large numbers of employees.

All of these considerations would be set aside and ignored were H.R. 9531 to be enacted. The cost of this bill for the first 4 years would be $2.445 billion greater than the cost of the President's proposal for the same period. Moreover, for each and every fiscal year thereafter the cost would be $410 million greater than that of the President's proposal. The Government and the taxpayers simply cannot afford the luxury of such a handout and still maintain any semblance of fiscal responsibility.

Disapproval of H.R. 9531 Urged

This legislation is highly undesirable, and its disapproval by the House of Representatives is strongly urged.

Tom Murray.
Edward J. Derwinski.

SUPPLEMENTAL VIEWS OF HON. EDWARD J. DERWINSKI ON H.R. 9531

Federal salary increase controversies have become, unfortunately, a political football which haunted the Eisenhower administration and have now arisen to plague the present administration.

President Kennedy properly recommended to the Congress a long-range reform of the Federal salary system with sound proposals establishing the principle of government-private enterprise salary comparability. The administration's recommendations, ably and effectively presented to our committee by Postmaster General Day and Civil Service Commission Chairman Macy were rejected, unfortunately, by a majority of the committee.

Frankly, the measure as finally approved by the committee openly invites a Presidential veto. It is to this point that I wish to direct my personal comments. The bill as approved basically disregards the administration's recommendations and does not provide proper, long-term salary adjustments, contains glaring omissions, and extends rather than reforms basic inequities in the present Federal salary structure.

A substantial majority of our Federal employees need a pay raise. The spirit and effectiveness of Federal employees would be fundamentally improved by a sound, long-term salary increase, which would serve as an inducement for men and women to enter and remain in Federal service as a career.

Federal salary increases should be above politics. They should be developed on the basis of sound personnel practices and must be related to the condition of the Federal budget, the cost of living, and individual skills. Increases produced on a long-term basis remove constant worry and anxiety from the minds of Federal employees, thus materially improving their esprit de corps and productivity.

I must reemphasize that it is an act of total irresponsibility for the Congress to pass a bill increasing Federal salaries in such a manner as to tempt a Presidential veto. The bill before us differs in such substantial nature from administration recommendations that it actually places the President in this dilemma: either he must veto the bill, saddling his administration with the resulting political ill effects, or he must accept the measure, thus abandoning his meritorious proposals, and be forced to publicly retreat from his stated convictions.

NO PRESIDENT SHOULD BE PLACED IN SUCH A POSITION.

Therefore, it is my hope that when the bill reaches the floor of the House it can be amended to provide long-term salary increases within the basic guidelines recommended by the administration so that we can produce the long-needed overhaul and adjustment of the Federal salary structure and remove the entire issue from the realm of political considerations.

I favor long-term Federal salary reform coupled with an immediate, practical increase. A piecemeal proposal perpetuates inequities and is an injustice to all Federal employees. I hope the House will be given an opportunity to correct the action of this committee and to affirmatively act on behalf of those Federal employees needing and deserving increases.

Lest we forget, the taxpayer has a tremendous investment in long-term, effective Federal salary reform since more efficient Government service will produce a long-range saving to the taxpayers who provide Government revenues.

We, as members of the legislative branch, must meet our responsibility to Federal employees, to the taxpayer, and must cooperate with the executive branch in developing effective personnel programs which will produce maximum efficiency in the operation of the Federal Government.

EDWARD DERWINSKI.

AUTOMATIC ADVANCEMENT BY STEP INCREASES

SEC. 105. The provisions for automatic advancement by step increases contained in subsection (a) of section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code is amended to read as follows:

"AUTOMATIC ADVANCEMENT BY STEP INCREASES

"(a) Except as to a substitute employee in the Postal Transportation Service whose position is allocated to salary level PFS-5 as a distribution clerk in a railway or highway post office, each employee whose position is allocated to the Rural Carrier Schedule, the Fourth Class Office Schedule, or the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step for his position at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of each twenty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service in steps one and two, and shall be advanced successively to the next higher step for his position at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of each fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service in steps three and above. The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the Armed Forces."

CONVERSION

SEC. 106. Each employee under the Postal Field Service Schedule, the Rural Carrier Schedule, and the Fourth-Class Office Schedule shall be placed in pay steps under this Act as follows: All employees in present step 1 with less than six months of service shall be placed in the new step 1; employees in step 1 with more than six months of service shall be placed in new step 2; employees in present step 2 shall be placed in new step 3; employees in present step 3 shall be placed in new step 4; employees in present step 4 shall be placed in new step 5; and employees in present steps 5, 6, and 7 shall be placed in new step 6: Provided, That no employee shall lose his anniversary date for an automatic or longevity pay increase.

LONGEVITY STEP INCREASES

SEC. 107. Subsections (a) and (b) contained in section 3558 of title 39 of the United States Code are amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established for each employee longevity steps A, B, and C. For each longevity step to which he is entitled—

"(1) each employee, other than a postmaster at a post office of the fourth class or a rural carrier, shall receive an amount equal to one step increase for his position,

"(2) each rural carrier shall receive an amount equal to one step increase for salary level PFS 4, and

"(3) each postmaster at a post office of the fourth class shall receive an amount equal to one step increase for salary level PFS 1 or to 6 per centum of his basic salary, whichever is the lesser.

In computing the percentage increase under this subsection the amount of the increase shall be rounded to the nearest dollar. A half dollar or one-half cent shall be rounded to the next highest dollar or cent, respectively.

"(b) Each employee shall be assigned to—

"(1) longevity step A at the beginning of the pay period following the completion of ten years of service; and

"(2) longevity step B at the beginning of the pay period following the completion of thirteen years of service; and

"(3) longevity step C at the beginning of the pay period following the completion of sixteen years of service."

(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary shall be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step, the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposes of advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment.".

AUTOMATIC ADVANCEMENT BY STEP INCREASES

SEC. 105. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases.

"(a) Each employee in the postal field service, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"(1) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(2) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

The receipt of an equivalent increase during any of the waiting periods specified in paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection shall cause a new full waiting period to commence for further step-increases.

"(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

"(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services.".

PROMOTIONS

SEC. 106. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3559. Promotions.

"An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.".

CHANGES IN POSTAL DEFINITIONS

SEC. 107. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

"(5) 'basic salary' and 'basic compensation' mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.".

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER JULY 1, 1962

SEC. 108. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule or the Rural Carrier Schedule, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; and step 7 to step 8.

(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1), prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph (3) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER JULY 1, 1963

SEC. 109. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

SEC. 110. Subject to sections 108(c) and 109(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary.

BASIC SALARY IN CASES OF ASSIGNMENTS OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES

SEC. 111. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: "The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.".

(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b), if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment.

(c) The amendment made by subsection (a) of this section shall become effective as of February 17, 1962.

(d) Payments of increases in basic salary shall be made in accordance with section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a) of this section, for services rendered, in the course of an assignment referred to in such section 3335(b), in the period beginning on February 17, 1962, and ending on the date of enactment of this section, with respect to each individual who, on such date of enactment, is on any employment roll of the Federal Government or of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, as follows—

(1) to such individual for such services so rendered by him, if, on such date of enactment, he (A) is on any such employment roll, (B) is in the service of the Armed Forces of the United States, or (C) is retired under any retirement law or retirement system for civilian officers or employees in or under the Federal Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia; or

(2) to the survivor or survivors, in accordance with the Act of August 3, 1950 (Public Law 636, Eighty-first Congress), as amended (5 U.S.C. 61f-61k), of any such individual (for such services so rendered by him) who has died prior to such date of enactment if, at the time of his death, such individual was (A) on any such employment roll, (B) in the service of the Armed Forces of the United States, or (C) retired under any such retirement law or retirement system.

(e)(1) Payments of increases described in subsection (d) of this section shall not be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267) in the case of any retired or deceased individual described in subparagraph (1) or (2) of such subsection (d).

(2) Payments of increases validated by subsection (b) of this section shall be considered as basic salary for purposes of such section.

(f) For the purposes of this section, service in the Armed Forces of the United States, in the case of an individual relieved from training and service in the Armed Forces of the United States or discharged from hospitalization following such training and service, shall include the period provided by law for the mandatory restoration of such individual to a position in or under the Federal Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia.

(g) Increases in basic salary authorized to be paid by subsection (d) of this section shall not be held or considered to be annual compensation for the purposes of the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act of 1954, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2091-2103).

SALARY PROTECTION REVISION

SEC. 112. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,"

(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and".

(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting "; or" in lieu of such period, and

(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.".

(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date of enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

RULES FOR SPECIAL COMPENSATION

SEC. 113. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106, as follows:

"§ 3106. Special compensation rules.

"In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may:

"(a) Within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase.

"(b) Appoint any officer or employee at a salary rate above the minimum step of the level when the appointee has extra qualifications for the position or the minimum rate would be less than the current salary of a well-qualified appointee.".

CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

SEC. 114. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding

"3106. Special compensation rules."

immediately following

"3105. Detail of employees between field and department.".

(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting

"3558. Longevity step increases."

REPEALS

SEC. 115. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296; Public Law 86–568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed.

EXEMPTIONS

SEC. 116. Section 3575(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "to substitute employees and".

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 117. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective as follows:

(1) This section and sections 112 (salary protection revision), 113 (special compensation rules), 114 (conforming amendment), and 116 (exemptions) shall become effective on the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Sections 101 (short title), 102 (Postal Field Service Schedules), 103(a) (Rural Carrier Schedules), 104 (Fourth Class Office Schedules), 105 (step-increases), 106 (promotions), 107 (definition changes), 108 (conversion rules for July 1, 1962, postal field service salary increases), 110 (relationship of salary retention to salary increases), and 115 (repeals) shall become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

(3) Section 103 (b) and (c) (equipment maintenance allowances and other compensation for rural carriers) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act or on or after October 1, 1962, whichever is the later date.

(4) Section 109 (conversion rules for July 1, 1963, postal field service salary increases) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963.

(5) Section 111 (basic salary in cases of assignments of postal field service employees) shall become effective as of February 17, 1962.

(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (9) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after July 1, 1962, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of a grade below grade 11 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such date.

(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such date.

third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such date.

(4) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of grade 16 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of such grade in effect on and after such date.

of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the fourth rate of such grade in effect on and after such date.

(6) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, at the rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate of such grade in effect on and after such date.

graphs (1) through (5) of this subsection for employees at the maximum longevity rate or at the maximum scheduled rate, as the case may be, for his grade, or (B) if such rate is less than his existing rate, (i) the lowest rate of the new schedule for his grade which equals or exceeds his existing rate, or (ii) if there is no such rate, his existing rate.

(9) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such date, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

(10) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

(11) If the officer or employee, at any time during the period beginning on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending on the date of enactment of this Act, became subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, his rate of basic compensation shall be adjusted retroactively to the date on which he became subject to such Act, on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the General Schedule contained in this section which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the General Schedule for such officer or employee which was in effect (without regard to this Act) at the time he became subject to the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect immediately prior to the first day of such first pay period.

(12) If the officer or employee on the rolls has had his rate of basic compensation established, under authority of section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (68 Stat. 1106; 5 U.S.C. 1133), at any time during the period beginning on September 1, 1954, and ending on the date of enactment of this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be adjusted retroactively in accordance with one or more of the following provisions of this paragraph (12), as applicable—

(A) if his rate of basic compensation was established under authority of such section 803 after September 1, 1954, and prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, such rate shall be adjusted retroactively, for the period of time served by him in a pay status under the Classification Act of 1949 in the position concerned on and after such first day of such first pay period and prior to the date of enactment of this Act, on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the General Schedule contained in this section which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the General Schedule which was in effect for such officer or employee, without regard to this Act, as a result of such adjustment under such section 803; and

(B) if his rate of basic compensation was established under authority of such section 803 on or after such first day of such first pay period and prior to the date of enactment of this Act, such rate shall be adjusted retroactively for the period of time served by him in a pay status under the Classification Act of 1949 in the position concerned on and after such first day of such first pay period and prior to such date of enactment, as follows—

(i) for the period of time prior to the effective date of the establishment of his rate of basic compensation under such section 803, on the basis of the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving during such period, and

(ii) for the period of time on and after the effective date of the establishment of his rate of basic compensation under such section 803, on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the General Schedule contained in this section which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the General Schedule which was in effect for such officer or employee, without regard to this Act, as a result of such adjustment under such section 803, and such basic compensation adjusted under subparagraphs (A) and (B)(ii) of this paragraph (12) shall be paid in accordance with such subparagraphs until—

(a) he leaves such position, or

(b) he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of any provision of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(13) If the officer or employee became subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, at any time during the period beginning on September 1, 1954, and ending on the date of enactment of this Act, at a rate of basic compensation which was established under authority of section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (68 Stat. 1106; 5 U.S.C. 1133), his rate of basic compensation shall be adjusted retroactively, for the period of time served by him in a pay status under the Classification Act of 1949 in the position concerned on and after the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and prior to the date of enactment of this Act, on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the General Schedule contained in this section which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the General Schedule which was in effect for such officer or employee, without regard to this Act, as a result of such adjustment under such section 803, and such basic compensation shall be paid in accordance with this paragraph (13) until—

(A) he leaves his position, or

(B) he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of any provision of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(14) If the officer or employee, at any time during the period beginning on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending on the date of enactment of this Act, became subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, at a rate of basic compensation which was fixed on the basis of a higher previously earned rate and which is above the minimum rate of the grade of such officer or employee, his rate of basic compensation shall be adjusted retroactively to the date on which he became subject to such Act, on the basis of the rate for that step of the appropriate grade of the General Schedule contained in this section which corresponds numerically to the step of the grade of the General Schedule for such officer or employee which was in effect (without regard to this Act) at the time he became subject to the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect immediately prior to such first day of such first pay period.

(15) Each officer or employee—

(A)(i) who, with his position has been transferred under authority of the Classification Act of 1949, at any time during the period beginning on the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending on the date of enactment of this Act, from the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 to a prevailing rate schedule, or (ii) who, at any time during such period, transferred from a position subject to the Classification Act of 1949 to a position subject to a prevailing rate schedule,

(B) who, at all times subsequent to such transfer, was in the service of the United States (including the Armed Forces of the United States) or of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, without break in such service of more than thirty consecutive calendar days and, in the case of an individual relieved from training and service in the Armed Forces of the United States or discharged from hospitalization following such training and service, without break in service in excess of the period provided by law for the mandatory restoration of such individual to a position in or under the Federal Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia,

(C) who, on such date of enactment, is being compensated under a prevailing rate schedule, and

(D) whose rate of basic compensation on such date of enactment is less than the rate to which he would have been entitled on such date if such transfer had not occurred (unless he is receiving such lesser rate by reason of an adverse personnel action resulting from his own fault), shall be paid basic compensation at a rate equal to the rate which he would have been receiving on such date of enactment if such transfer had not occurred until the day immediately following such date of enactment, for all time in a pay status on and after such first day of such first pay period in a position subject to a prevailing rate schedule under the circumstances prescribed in this subsection, until—

(a) he leaves the position which he holds on such date of enactment, or

(b) he is entitled to receive basic compensation at a higher rate under a prevailing rate schedule; but when such position becomes vacant, the rate of basic compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with prevailing rate schedules .

(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after July 1, 1963, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, at one of the rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

STEP-INCREASES

SEC. 203. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

"SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

"(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

"SEC. 703. This title shall not apply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

SEC. 204. (a) Section 801 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1131), relating to new appointments, is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 801. All new appointments shall be made at the minimum rate of the appropriate grade, except that the head of any department may, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, (1) appoint individuals who have extra qualifications for the position concerned at such higher rate or rates of a grade as the Commission may authorize for this purpose, and (2) make new appointments at rates above the minimum rate of the appropriate grade when the minimum rate would be less than the salary received by a well qualified appointee immediately prior to appointment, but no appointment under this clause (2) shall be made at a rate higher than the lowest rate of the appropriate grade which equals or exceeds an appointee's salary rate immediately prior to appointment.".

(b) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher.".

(c) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

"(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.".

(d) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.".

SALARY RETENTION

SEC. 205. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

(1) by striking out "(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

(2) by striking out "(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;".

TOP GRADE POSITIONS UNDER CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SEC. 206. Section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, is amended by striking out the words "(not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine)" and substituting in lieu thereof "(not to exceed an aggregate of two thousand and forty)".

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 207. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective as follows:

(1) This section and sections 203 (step-increases),

204 (a) and (d) (general compensation rules), 205 (salary retention), and 206 (top grade positions under Classification Act of 1949) shall become effective on the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Sections 201 (short title), 202 (basic compensation schedules), and 204 (b) and (c) (general compensation rules) shall become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

CHIEF MEDICAL DIRECTOR AND OTHER OFFICERS

SEC. 401. Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 4103. Appointments and compensation.

"(a) The Office of the Chief Medical Director shall consist of the Chief Medical Director, one Deputy Chief Medical Director, not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated by the Chief Medical Director to suit the needs of the Department, and such other personnel and employees as may be authorized by this chapter.

"(b) The Chief Medical Director shall be the Chief of the Department of Medicine and Surgery and shall be directly responsible to the Administrator for the operations of the Department. He shall be a qualified doctor of medicine, appointed by the Administrator. During the period of his service as such, the Chief Medical Director shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"July 1, 1962, a salary of $23,000 a year;

"July 1, 1963, a salary of $28,000 a year.

"(c) The Deputy Chief Medical Director shall be the principal assistant to the Chief Medical Director. He shall be a qualified doctor of medicine, appointed by the Administrator. During the period of his service as such, the Deputy Chief Medical Director shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"July 1, 1962, a salary of $22,245 a year;

"July 1, 1963, a salary of $27,290 a year.

"(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"July 1, 1962, a salary of $20,315 a year;

"July 1, 1963, a salary of $24,500 a year.

"One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"July 1, 1962, a salary of $18,960 minimum to $20,180 maximum a year;

AGRICULTURAL STABILIZATION AND CONSERVATION COUNTY COMMITTEE EMPLOYEES

SEC. 502. The rates of compensation of persons employed by the county committees established pursuant to section 8(b) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590h(b)) shall be increased by amounts equal, as nearly as may be practicable, to the increases provided by title II of this Act for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate schedule or scale of pay.

EMPLOYEES IN THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

SEC. 503. (a) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in or under the judicial branch of the Government whose rates of compensation are fixed by or pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision a of section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. 102(a)(2)), section 3656 of title 18 of the United States Code, the third sentence of section 603, section 604(a)(5), sections 672 to 675, inclusive, of title 28 of the United States Code, or section 107(a)(6) of the Act of July 31, 1956, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2206 (a)(6)), are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this Act in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(b) The limitations provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this Act in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this Act in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EMPLOYEES IN THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

SEC. 504. (a) The gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law) in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section of each officer or employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be increased by an aggregate amount determined in the manner provided by this section, which shall be payable in two equal increments, the first such increment to be effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and the second such increment to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963.

(b) The total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section of each officer or employee of the House of Representatives whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section (except subsection (d)), shall be increased by an aggregate amount determined in the manner provided by this section, which shall be payable in two equal increments, the first such increment to be effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and the second such increment to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963.

(c) Each of the limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives shall be increased by an aggregate amount which is the same percentage of such limitation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this Act in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of grade 6 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases. The aggregate amount of the increase in each such limitation shall be made effective in two equal increments, the first such increment to be effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962, and the second such increment to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after July 1, 1963. The amount of each increase under this subsection shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

(d) The respective aggregate amounts of the increases provided for by subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall be determined in accordance with the following rules, as applicable:

(1) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation is less than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 7 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this Act in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of grade 6 of such schedule is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

(2) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation of the officer or employee concerned is—

(A) equal to or greater than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 7 of such schedule as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section, but—

(B) is less than the minimum scheduled rate of the next higher grade of such schedule immediately prior to such date, and if paragraphs (3) and (4) of this subsection are not applicable, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this Act in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of the applicable grade within the purview of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

*(3) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation is equal to or greater than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 11, but less than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 13, of such schedule as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this Act in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of grade 12 of such schedule is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

(4) If the gross rate of compensation or the total annual compensation is equal to or greater than the minimum scheduled rate of grade 17 of such schedule as in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section, the aggregate amount of the increases in such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation shall be an amount which is the same percentage of such gross rate of compensation or such total annual compensation as that percentage which the aggregate amount of the increases provided by title II of this Act in the rate of basic compensation for the fourth step of such grade 17 is of the rate of basic compensation for such step immediately prior to the first of such increases.

(e) All percentages determined under this section shall be rounded to the nearest one-half percent.

(f) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following).

ADMINISTRATIVE RATES

SEC. 505. (a) Notwithstanding section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), the rates of compensation of officers and employees of the Federal Government and of the municipal government of the District of Columbia whose rates of compensation are fixed by administrative action pursuant to law and are not otherwise increased by this Act are hereby authorized to be increased, by amounts not to exceed the increases, and effective on the dates, provided by this Act for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate schedule or scale of pay.

(b) Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to authorize any increase in the rates of compensation of officers and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed and adjusted from time to time as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates or practices.

(c) Nothing contained in this section shall affect the authority contained in any law pursuant to which rates of compensation may be fixed by administrative action.

SALARY CEILINGS

SEC. 506. (a) Notwithstanding any provision of this Act the rate of basic compensation of each officer or employee subject to title I or II of this Act shall not exceed the smaller of the two amounts set forth in section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended (2 U.S.C. 31).

(b) Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, the gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law), or the total annual compensation, as the case may be, of each officer or employee in the legislative branch subject to section 504 of this Act shall not exceed $500 less than the smaller of the two amounts set forth in section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended (2 U.S.C. 31).

PROVISIONS RELATING TO RETROACTIVE COMPENSATION OR SALARY

SEC. 507. (a) Retroactive compensation or salary shall be paid by reason of this Act only in the case of an individual who, on the date of enactment of this Act, is on any employment roll of the Federal Government or of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, as follows—

(1) to such individual if, on such date of enactment, he (A) is on any such employment roll, (B) is in the service of the Armed Forces of the United States, or (C) is retired under any retirement law or retirement system for civilian officers or employees in or under the Federal Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia; or

(2) to the survivor or survivors, in accordance with the Act of August 3, 1950 (Public Law 636, Eighty-first Congress), as amended (5 U.S.C. 61f–61k), of any such individual who has died prior to such date of enactment if, at the time of his death, such individual was (A) on any such employment roll, (B) in the service of the Armed Forces of the United States, or (C) retired under any such retirement law or retirement system.

(b) Payments of increases pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall not be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267) or other retirement law or retirement system in the case of any retired or deceased individual described in subparagraph (1) or (2) of such subsection (a).

(c) For the purposes of this section, service in the Armed Forces of the United States, in the case of an individual relieved from training and service in the Armed Forces of the United States or discharged from hospitalization following such training and service, shall include the period provided by law for the mandatory restoration of such individual to a position in or under the Federal Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia.

(d) Increases in basic salary paid pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall not be held or considered to be annual compensation for the purposes of the Federal Employees'

Group Life Insurance Act of 1954, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2091–2103).

SAVINGS PROVISION

SEC. 508. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 509. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, this title shall become effective as of the first day of the first pay period which began on or after July 1, 1962.

TITLE VI—GENERAL POLICY

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 601. (a) The Congress hereby finds that—

(1) the primary purpose and function of an effective salary system for the Federal Government is the establishment and adjustment of rates of salary, for services rendered by Federal employees, in such manner as—

(A) to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the programs of the Federal Government, and

(B) to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer; and

(2) the successful accomplishment of such purpose and function is essential to the development and maintenance of maximum proficiency in the civilian service of the Federal Government.

(b) It is, therefore, hereby declared to be the policy of the Congress and the purpose of this Act to reform the respective salary systems for the Federal Government in a manner which applies the following basic principles with respect to the establishment and adjustment of Federal salaries:

(1) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions.

(2) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

(3) Salary levels for the respective Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated and shall be set and adjusted in accordance with the policy and purpose of this Act.

COMMITTEE ON FEDERAL PAY

SEC. 602. (a) The President shall appoint a Committee on Federal Pay which shall consist of not more than seven members including one representative of the Bureau of the Budget, one representative of the United States Civil Service Commission, one or more representatives of employee organizations, one or more representatives of the public, and such other members as the President may deem advisable. The President shall designate one of the members as Chairman of the Committee.

(b) Members of the Committee who are otherwise employed by the Government shall serve without additional compensation but shall be reimbursed for travel, subsistence, and other necessary expenses incurred by them in the performance of their duties as such members. Members of the Committee who are not otherwise employed by the Government shall each be paid $100 per diem when engaged in the performance of their duties as such members, and shall be reimbursed for travel, subsistence, and other necessary expenses incurred by them in the performance of such duties.

(c) The head of any Government agency represented on the Committee is authorized to furnish the Committee with such office space, services, and supplies as may be appropriate to enable the Committee to perform its functions.

(d) In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 601 and to insure that Federal statutory pay rates are maintained at levels in accord with the principles set forth in such section—

(1) the Committee appointed under this section shall—

(A) review the various statutory pay systems of the Government with a view to ascertaining what changes therein are necessary or desirable in the interests of efficiency, equity, and economy;

(B) review the rates in effect under such systems with a view to ascertaining the adequacy thereof in comparison with pay rates in private industry for positions having comparable levels of duties and responsibilities, as shown by relevant data provided by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor or other data available to the Committee in accord with the principles set forth in section 601; and

(C) report to the President the results of such reviews together with such recommendations for necessary adjustments in statutory pay schedules or other improvements in the Federal salary structure as it deems desirable;

(2) the President shall submit to the Congress, on or before March 1 of each year, a report summarizing the findings of such Committee together with his recommendations for such adjustments as are necessary to maintain Federal salary schedules in accord with the basic principles established by section 601.

ESTABLISHMENT OF MINIMUM COMPENSATION RATES FOR CERTAIN OCCUPATIONS IN CERTAIN AREAS

SEC. 603. (a) Whenever the President or such agency or agencies as he may designate shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under—

(1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b)),

(2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service,

(3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or

(4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), the President or such agency or agencies as he may designate may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level, but in no case shall any minimum compensation rate so established exceed the highest compensation rate prescribed by law for the grade or level.

(b) Rates of basic compensation established under subsection (a) may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121(a)), and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

POLICIES, RULES, AND REGULATIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

SEC. 604. (a) The President is authorized to prescribe such policies, rules, and standards, not inconsistent with the provisions of law specified in this section, as he deems appropriate, in order to carry out the policy and purpose of this Act with respect to the several Federal salary systems covered by such provisions of law and in order to provide adequate supervision and control by the President over the functions, duties, and regulations of the respective authorities in the executive branch in connection with the administration and operation of such salary systems under such provisions of law, as follows:

(1) the provisions of this title;

(2) the Classification Act of 1949, as amended;

(3) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service;

(4) the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended;

(5) the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration.

(b) Such policies, rules, and standards of the President may provide for—

(1) the preparation and reporting to the President of the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates;

(2) the obtaining and reporting to the President of the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison and on other salary matters;

(3) the review of, and the reporting to the President on, the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures contained in the respective provisions of law specified in subsection (a) of this section;

(4) the review of the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupations and local areas;

(5) the granting, under authority provided by law, of step-increases in recognition of extra competence;

(6) the appointment, under authority provided by law, of personnel at salary rates above the minimum;

(7) the establishment of a proper relationship of the supervisory salary rates paid under one salary system to the salary rates of subordinates paid under another salary system; and

(8) such other matters as the President deems appropriate.

ABSORPTION OF COSTS

SEC. 605. (a) The Director of the Bureau of the Budget is authorized and directed to provide by regulation for the absorption, from the respective applicable appropriations or funds available, by the respective departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch, to such extent as the Director deems practicable, of the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act.

(b) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill to provide for improvement in the statutory salary systems of the Federal Government; to adopt and apply the principle of Government-private enterprise salary comparability; and for other purposes."

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

OCTOBER 3, 1962.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. MURRAY, from the committee of conference, submitted the following

CONFERENCE REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 7927]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

That this Act may be cited as the "Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1962".

PART I—POSTAL SERVICE

TITLE I—POSTAL RATES

COMMUNIST POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

SEC. 305. (a) Chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"§ 4008. Communist political propaganda

"(a) Mail matter, except sealed letters, which originates or which is printed or otherwise prepared in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to rules and regulations to be promulgated by him to be 'communist political propaganda', shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the United States domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received and will be delivered only upon the addressee's request, except that such detention shall not be required in the case of any matter which is furnished pursuant to subscription or which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee. If no request for delivery is made by the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed sixty days, the matter detained shall be disposed of as the Postmaster General directs.

"(b) For the purposes of this section, the term 'communist political propaganda' means political propaganda, as defined in section 1(j) of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended (22 U.S.C. 611(j)), issued by or on behalf of any country with respect to which there is in effect a suspension or withdrawal of tariff concessions pursuant to section 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or any country from which any type of foreign assistance is withheld pursuant to section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

"(c) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable with respect to (1) matter addressed to any United States Government agency, or any public library, or to any college, university, graduate school, or scientific or professional institution for advanced studies, or any official thereof, or (2) material whether or not 'communist political propaganda' addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal cultural international agreement under which the United States Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in any country described in subsection (b)."

(b) The table of contents of chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"4008. Communist political propaganda."

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 306. Except as otherwise provided, the foregoing provisions of this part shall become effective on January 7, 1963.

NOTICE WITH RESPECT TO OBSCENE MATTER DISTRIBUTED BY MAIL AND DETENTION THEREOF

SEC. 307. In order to alert the recipients of mail and the general public to the fact that large quantities of obscene, lewd, lascivious, and indecent matter are being introduced into this country from abroad and disseminated in the United States by means of the United States mails, the Postmaster General shall publicize such fact (1) by appropriate notices posted in post offices, and (2) by notifying recipients of mail, whenever he deems it appropriate in order to carry out the purposes of this section, that the United States mails may contain such obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter. Any person may file a written request with his local post office to detain obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter addressed to him, and the Postmaster General shall detain and dispose of such matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 501. This part may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 502. The Congress hereby declares that, whereas the functions of a Federal salary system are to fix salary rates for the services rendered by Federal employees so as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the Government's programs and to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and whereas fulfillment of these functions is essential to the development and maintanance of maximum proficiency in the civilian services of Government, then, accordingly, Federal salary fixing shall be based upon the principles that—

(a) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and

(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

Salary levels for the several Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated, and salary levels shall be set and henceforth adjusted in accordance with the above principles.

IMPLEMENTATION OF POLICY

SEC. 503. In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 502, the President: (1) shall direct such agency or agencies, as he deems appropriate, to prepare and submit to him annually a report which compares the rates of salary fixed by statute for Federal employees with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work in private enterprise as determined on the basis of appropriate annual surveys conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and, after seeking the views of such employee organizations as he deems appropriate and in such manner as he may provide, (2) shall report annually to the Congress (a) this comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and (b) such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structures, and compensation policy, as he deems advisable.

SEC. 504. (a) Whenever the President shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under (1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), (2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, (3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or (4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), he may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level: Provided, That in no case shall any minimum salary rate so established exceed the seventh salary rate prescribed by law for the grade or level. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency or agencies as he may designate.

(b) Within the limitations specified in subsection (a), rates of basic compensation established under such subsection may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

SEC. 505. The functions, duties, and regulations of the departments and the Civil Service Commission with respect to this title, the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, and the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38 of the United States Code relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration, shall be subject to such policies and rules as the President may issue. Among other things, the President's policies and rules mny provide for—

(1) preparing and reporting to him the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates,

(2) obtaining and reporting to him the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison, and on other salary matters,

(3) reviewing and reporting to him on the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures for the Federal programs to which they apply,

(4) reviewing the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupation and local areas, and

(5) providing step-increases in recognition of high quality performance and providing for properly relating supervisory salary rates paid under one system to those of subordinates paid under another system.

TITLE II—PAY SYSTEM OF THE CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 601. This title may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962".

(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (10) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first or second longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8; the first longevity step to step 9; and the second longevity step to step 10.

on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(5) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

(6) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period, which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of grade 16 or grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(10) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such day, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

(11) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after the date of enactment of this Act, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at one of the rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and the amount of the initial increase provided by this section, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

STEP-INCREASES

SEC. 603. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

"SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates, 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

"(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

"SEC. 703. This title shall not aply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

SEC. 604. (a) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to reach as follows:

"(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher."

(b) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

"(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is later demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.".

(c) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act, who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.".

SALARY RETENTION

SEC. 605. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

(1) by striking out "(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

(2) by striking out "(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;".

TOP GRADE POSITIONS UNDER CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SEC. 606. (a) Section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, is amended by striking out "not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine" and substituting in lieu thereof "not to exceed an aggregate of twenty-four hundred, in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades".

(b) Section 505(j) of such Act is amended by inserting after the word "positions" the following: "(in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades)".

(c) Section 505 of such Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsections:

"(k) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of ten positions of Warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).

"(l) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of eight positions of Member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b)."

CONFORMING CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

SEC. 607. (a) The following provisions of law are hereby repealed:

(1) Section 104 of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 234; 5 U.S.C. 592(d)), authorizing grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 for the position of Budget Officer of the Department of Commerce so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(2) Section 206 of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 360; 5 U.S.C. 483–2), authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the position of Director, Division of Budget and Finance, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(3) The second paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provisions" in title III of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 364, 10 U.S.C. 1335, note), authorizing the Chief of Engineers to place the position of Chief of the Programs Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Engineers for Civil Works, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(4) Section 24(d) of the Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 62, 42 U.S.C. 2521(d)), authorizing five positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 for agencies performing functions under that Act.

(5) The fourth sentence of section 3(a) of the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1120; 16 U.S.C. 742b(a)), relating to the annual salary of the Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife in the Department of the Interior, which reads: "He shall receive compensation at the same rate as that provided for grade GS–18.".

(6) That part of section 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 200; 7 U.S.C. 1857), relating to the annual salary of an agricultural surplus disposal administrator in the Department of Agriculture, which reads: ", at a salary rate of not exceeding $15,000 per annum,".

(7) Section 1102 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (63 Stat. 971; 5 U.S.C. 1073), relating to the submission of reports with respect to the rates of compensation under, and the administration of, such Act.

(b) The second proviso of the paragraph under the heading "FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM" and under the subheading "SALARIES AND EXPENSES, BUREAU OF PRISONS" in title II (the Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956) of the Departments of State and Justice, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 273; Public Law 133, Eighty-fourth Congress; 5 U.S.C. 298a) is amended by striking out "three positions" and inserting in lieu thereof "one position".

SEC. 608. (a) Each position specifically referred to in, or covered by, any repeal made by section 607(a) of this title shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, in accordance with the provisions of such Act.

(b) Positions in grade 16, 17, or 18, as the case may be, of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, immediately prior to the effective date of this section, shall remain, on and after such effective date, in their respective grades, until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect on and after such effective date.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 609. (a) The changes in existing law made by this title shall not affect any position existing immediately prior to the effective date of any such changes in existing law, the compensation attached to such position, and any incumbent thereof, his appointment thereto, and his entitlement to receive the compensation attached thereto, until appropriate action is taken in accordance with this title.

(b) The incumbent of each such position immediately prior to the effective date of this title shall continue to receive the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving immediately prior to such effective date until he leaves such position or until he is entitled to receive compensation at a higher rate in accordance with law. When such incumbent leaves such position, the rate of basic compensation of each subsequent appointee to such position shall be determined in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 610. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

TITLE III—POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYEES

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 701. This title may be cited as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962".

POSTAL FIELD SERVICE SCHEDULES

SEC. 702. Subsection (a) of section 3542 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules for positions in the postal field service which shall be known as the Postal Field Service Schedules and for which the symbol shall be 'PFS'. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Except as provided in sections 3543 and 3544 of this title, basic compensation shall be paid to all employees in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes."

(c) The first sentence of section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: "In addition to the compensation provided in the Rural Carrier Schedule, each rural carrier shall be paid for equipment maintenance a sum equal to—

"(1) 12 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

"(2) $4.20 per day, whichever is greater."

(d) Section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding thereto new subsections (i) and (j) as follows:

"(i) Each person serving as a substitute of record on the effective date of this subsection shall be placed in step 2 of the Rural Carrier Schedule and he shall be advanced by step-increases, on the basis of time on the rolls prior to the effective date, in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552, except that no such person shall be so advanced to a step higher than the step to which a regular carrier with the same length of service would have advanced prior to such effective date. Thereafter, he shall be advanced by step-increases, pursuant to the provisions of sections 3552 and 3553 of this title. On and after the effective date of this subsection, each substitute rural carrier shall be paid the daily rate, based on the step attained by him, for the route on which service is performed.

"(j) Each temporary rural carrier who, on the effective date of this subsection, is serving on a vacant route pending the appointment of a regular rural carrier shall be placed in step 2 and shall be advanced by step-increases on the basis of any prior substitute or temporary rural carrier service in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552."

FOURTH CLASS OFFICE SCHEDULES

SEC. 704. (a) Section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules which shall be known as the Fourth Class Office Schedules, and for which the symbol shall be 'FOS', for postmasters in post offices of the fourth class. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Each such schedule is based upon the gross postal receipts as contained in returns of the post office for the calendar year immediately preceding. Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary may be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposesof advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment."

SEC. 705. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases

"(a)(1) Each employee in levels 1 through 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, each employee subject to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and each employee subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(B) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(2) Each employee in the postal field service in level 7 or above of the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, and 4—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service;

"(B) To steps 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and four calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(C) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(3) The receipt of an equivalent increase during any of the waiting periods specified in this subsection shall cause a new full waiting period to commence for further step-increases.

"(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law on or after the date of enactment of the Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962, to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

"(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services."

SEC. 706. Section 3554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3554. Compensation of certain temporary employees

"Temporary employees hired for a continuous period of one year or less for a position in the postal field service shall be paid basic compensation at the entrance step of the position to which they are appointed.".

SEC. 707. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3559. Promotions

"An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the rate for the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.".

SEC. 708. Subsection (a)(4) of section 6402 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) delivery and collection service may not be established or extended under a star route contract on a rural route except when such rural route does not meet the minimum standards established by the Postmaster General, and becomes vacant, and".

SEC. 709. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

"(5) 'basic salary' and 'basic compensation' mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.".

SEC. 710. Subsection 3541(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by (a) inserting in paragraph (3) thereof, after "rural carriers," the phrase "(other than substitute rural carriers,)" and (b) adding a new paragraph (5) as follows:

"(5) To compute the daily rate of basic compensation for substitute rural carriers, the annual rate of compensation shall be divided by 304.".

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER THE DATE OF ENACTMENT OF THIS ACT

SEC. 711. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to Postal Field Service Schedule I or Rural Carrier Schedule I, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees (except employees subject to section 3543(j) of title 39, United States Code) in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph.

(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1) prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a), and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule I on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER JANUARY 1, 1964

SEC. 712. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule II, Rural Carrier Schedule II, or Fourth Class Office Schedule II, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

SEC. 713. Subject to sections 711(c) and 712(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary.

BASIC SALARY IN CASES OF ASSIGNMENTS OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES

SEC. 714. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: "The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.".

(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b), if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment. Payments of increases validated by this subsection shall be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267).

SALARY PROTECTION REVISION

SEC. 715. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,".

(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and".

(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting "; or" in lieu of such period, and

(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.".

(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date of enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

RULES FOR SPECIAL COMPENSATION

SEC. 716. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106 as follows:

"§ 3106. Special compensation rules

"In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may, within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase."

PERSONNEL REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 717. (a) Section 3301 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3301. Personnel requirements

"The Postmaster General shall determine the personnel requirements of the postal field service, and fix the number of supervisors and other employees in that service, except that there may not be at any one time more than one assistant postmaster employed at any post office or a total of 70 employees assigned to salary levels 18, 19, and 20 in the postal field service."

(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word "Provided," the following: "That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950, shall not be chargeable to this limitation: And provided further,".

CONFORMING AMENDMENT

SEC. 718. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after the heading entitled "EMPLOYEES GENERALLY", the following:

"3106. Special compensation rules".

(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting "3558. Longevity step-increases".

REPEALS

SEC. 719. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296, Public Law 86–568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 720. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, except that section 712 (conversion rules for second postal field service salary increases) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 801. (a) Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended by striking out the words "not to exceed eight Assistant Chief Medical Directors" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated to suit the needs of the Department,".

(b) Such section is further amended by striking out subsections (d) to (i), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid a salary of $20,000 a year.

"One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid a salary of $18,500 minimum to $19,500 maximum a year.

"(f) The Director of Nursing Service shall be a qualified registered nurse, appointed by the Administrator, and shall be responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operation of the Nursing Service. During the period of service as such, the Director of Nursing Service shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(g) The Administrator may appoint a chief pharmacist and a chief dietitian. During the period of his service as such, the chief pharmacist and the chief dietitian shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(h) Except as provided in subsection (j), any appointment under this section shall be for a period of four years but persons so appointed shall be subject to removal by the Administrator for cause.

"(i) Reappointments may be made for successive like periods.

"(j) The Administrator may designate a member of the Chaplain Service of the Veterans' Administration as Director, Chaplain Service, for a period of two years, subject to removal by the Administrator for cause. During the period that any such member serves as Director, Chaplain Service, he shall be paid a salary, as determined by the Administrator, within the minimum and maximum salary limitations prescribed for grade GS–15 positions by the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Redesignations under this subsection may be made for successive like periods. An individual designated as Director, Chaplain Service, shall at the end of his period of service as Director revert to the position, grade, and status which he held immediately prior to being designated Director, Chaplain Service, and all service as Director, Chaplain Service, shall be creditable as service in the former position."

PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, AND NURSES

SEC. 802. Section 4107 of such title 38 relating to the minimum and maximum rates of annual salary of certain physicians, dentists, and nurses of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration is amended to read as follows:

"§ 4107. Grades and pay scales

"(a)(1) Effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, the grades and per annum full-pay ranges for positions provided in paragraph (1) of section 4104 of this title shall be as follows:

"PHYSICIAN AND DENTIST SCHEDULE

SEC. 1003. (a) The last paragraph of section 508 of title 28 of the United States Code is amended to read as follows:

"Assistant United States attorneys and attorneys appointed under section 503 of this title—not more than $17,500."

(b) The rates of basic compensation of assistant United States attorneys whose basic salaries are fixed by section 508 of title 28, United States Code, shall be increased by 7½ per centum effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

EMPLOYEES IN THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

SEC. 1004. (a) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in or under the judicial branch of the Government whose rates of compensation are fixed by or pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision a of section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. 102(a)(2)), section

3656 of title 18 of the United States Code, the third sentence of section 603, section 604(a)(5), or section 672 to 675, inclusive, of title 28 of the United States Code, or section 107(a)(6) of the Act of July 31, 1956, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2206 (a)(6)), are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(b) The limitations provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EMPLOYEES IN THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

SEC. 1005. (a) Each officer and employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be paid additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of his gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law).

(b) The basic compensation of each employee in the office of a Senator is hereby adjusted, effective on October 16, 1962, to the lowest multiple of $60 which will provide a gross rate of compensation not less than the gross rate such employee was receiving immediately prior thereto, except that the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of any employee if on or before the fifteenth day following the date of enactment of this Act the Senator by whom such employee is employed notifies the disbursing office of the Senate in writing that he does not wish such provisions to apply to such employee. In any case in which, at the expiration of the time within which a Senator may give notice under this subsection, such Senator is deceased such notice shall be deemed to have been given.

(c) Notwithstanding the provision referred to in subsection (d), the rates of gross compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (except the Presiding Officer of the Senate), the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate, the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the Senior Counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate are hereby increased by 7 per centum.

(d) The paragraph imposing limitations on basic and gross compensation of officers and employees of the Senate appearing under the heading "SENATE" in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568), is amended to read as follows:

"No officer or employee whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of $8,880 per annum, or gross compensation at a rate in excess of $18,880 per annum, unless expressly authorized by law."

(e) The limitation on gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the Senate is hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. The provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall not apply to employees whose compensation is subject to such limitation.

(f) Each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of the rate of his total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section.

(g) The limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives are hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of each such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

(h) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following).

(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by this section, and no increase provided by this section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

(j) Insofar as the provisions of this section apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962.

SAVING PROVISION

SEC. 1006. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

ABSORPTION OF COSTS

SEC. 1007. (a) The departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions.

(b) No request for additional or supplemental appropriations to meet the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act shall be transmitted to the Congress unless it is accompanied by a certification of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget that the amounts requested are necessary to provide for the continued execution of essential functions of the department, agency, or corporation concerned.

(c) Pursuant to the objective of this section, heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignation, retirement, or death and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions.

(d) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1008. Except as otherwise expressly provided, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

CEILING PROVISION

SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

SEC. 1101. (a) The annuity of each person who, on the effective date of this section, is receiving or entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity.

(b) The annuity of each person who receives or is entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund commencing during the period which begins on the day following the effective date of this section and ends five years after such date, shall be increased in accordance with the following table:

If the annuity commences between—	The annuity shall be increased by—
January 2, 1963, and December 31, 1963	4 per centum
January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1964	3 per centum
January 1, 1965, and December 31, 1965	2 per centum
January 1, 1966, and December 31, 1966	1 per centum

(c) In lieu of any other increase provided by this section, the annuity of a survivor of a retired employee or Member of Congress who received an increase under this section shall be increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which the annuity of such employee or Member was so increased.

(d) No increase provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

(e) The limitation reading "or (3) the sum necessary to increase such annuity, exclusive of annuity purchased by voluntary contributions under the second paragraph of section 10 of this Act, to $2,160" contained in section 8(c)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended by the Acts of July 16, 1952 (66 Stat. 722; Public Law 555, Eighty-second Congress), and August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1043; Public Law 747, Eighty-third Congress), shall not be effective on or after the effective date of this section.

(f) The limitation contained in the next to the last sentence of section 8(d)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, as enacted by the Act of August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 692; Public Law 369, Eighty-fourth Congress), shall not be effective on and after the effective date of this section.

(g) The increases provided by this section shall take effect on the effective date of this section, except that any increase under subsection (b) or (c) shall take effect on the beginning date of the annuity.

(h) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.

Sec. 1102. (a) Section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

> "(t) The term 'price index' shall mean the annual average over a calendar year of the Consumer Price Index (all items—United States city average) published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics."

(b) Such Act is further amended by redesignating section 18 as 19, and by inserting after section 17 the following new section:

"COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

"Sec. 18. (a) After January 1, 1964, and after each succeeding January 1, the Commission shall determine the per centum change in the price index from the later of 1962 or the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. On the basis of such Commission determination, the following adjustments shall be made:

> "(1) Effective April 1, 1964, if the change in the price index from 1962 to 1963 shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2, 1963, shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.
> "(2) Effective April 1 of any year other than 1964 after the price index change shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2 of the preceding year shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(b) Eligibility for an annuity increase under this section shall be governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable from the fund as of the effective date of an increase, except as follows:

> "(1) Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commenced the day after the annuitant's death, shall be increased as provided in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) if the commencing date of annuity to the annuitant was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

"(2) Effective from its commencing date, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10 (d)), which annuity commences the day after the annuitant's death and after the effective date of the first increase under this section, shall be increased by the total per centum increase the annuitant was receiving under this section at death.

"(3) For purposes of computing an annuity which commences after the effective date of the first increase under this section to a child under section 10(d), the items $600, $720, $1,800, and $2,160 appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section, and, in case of a deceased annuitant, the items 40 per centum and 50 per centum appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section to the annuitant at death. Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply as if such first increase were in effect with respect to computation of a child's annuity under section 10(d) which commenced between January 2 of the year preceding the first increase and the effective date of the first increase.

"(c) No increase in annuity provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"(d) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar."

SEC. 1103. (a) Section 9(g) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The annuity as hereinbefore provided (excluding any increase because of retirement under section 7) for any married employee or Member retiring under this Act, or any portion of such annuity designated in writing for purposes of section 10(a)(1), shall be reduced by 2½ per centum of so much thereof as does not exceed $3,600 and by 10 per centum of so much thereof as exceeds $3,600, unless the employee or Member notifies the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in section 10(a)(1)."

(b) Section 10(a)(1) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(1) If an employee or Member dies after having retired under any provision of this Act and is survived by a wife or husband to whom the employee or Member was married at the time of retirement, such wife or husband shall be paid an annuity equal to 55 per centum of an annuity computed as provided in subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 9, as may apply with respect to the annuitant, or of such portion thereof as may have been designated in writing for such purpose by the employee or Member at the time of retirement, unless the employee or Member has notified the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive such annuity."

(c) Section 10(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(d) Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(e) Section 10(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: "or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have attained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim."

(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: "The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, age (2) his becoming capable of self-support after eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one."

Sec. 1104. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the benefits made payable under the Civil Service Retirement Act by reason of the enactment of this part shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund.

Sec. 1105. Section 1101 of this part shall take effect on January 1, 1963. The amendments made by section 1103 (except subsection (f)) shall not apply in the case of employees or Members retired or otherwise separated prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and the rights of such persons and their survivors shall continue in the same manner and to the same extent as if these amendments had not been enacted.

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT OF THE MANAGERS ON THE PART OF THE HOUSE

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) entitled "An act to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes," submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The committee of conference recommends that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for both the text of the House bill and the text provided by the Senate amendment and that the Senate agree to the same.

The text of the House bill related only to postal rates.

The Senate amendment to the House text consisted of three parts.

Part I of the Senate amendment, consisting of three titles, related to postal rates. Title I of part I covered postal rate increases. Title II of part I contained amendments to the postal policy provisions of the postal laws. Title III of part I contained certain miscellaneous amendments to the postal laws.

Part II of the Senate amendment, consisting of six titles, related to Federal salary reform. Title I of part II contained a statement of policy with respect to Federal salary reform. Title II of part II contained provisions revising the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Title III of part II revised the compensation schedules of title 39, United States Code, and contained certain related provisions, with respect to postal field service employees. Title IV of part II of the Senate amendment contained salary increases for physicians, dentists, and nurses, and other personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. Title V of part II revised the salary rates for personnel in the Foreign Service under the Department of State prescribed by the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended. Title VI of part II contains certain miscellaneous salary provisions which, in effect, revise the compensation rates for the following groups of employees: (1) certain scientific and professional employees; (2) agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees; (3) assistant U.S. attorneys; (4) employees in the judicial branch; (5) employees in the legislative branch.

Part III of the Senate amendment contained provisions making adjustments in annuities under the Civil Service Retirement Act, as amended.

The conference substitute, with the exceptions to be noted, is in general the same as the Senate amendment. Except for technical and minor drafting changes, the differences between the text of the House bill and the conference substitute are discussed below.

Summary of Major Provisions of Conference Substitute

INCREASED POSTAL REVENUE

Postal revenue will be increased by $600.3 million per annum when all of the postal rate adjustments provided by part I of the conference substitute are placed in effect. Such increased revenue and the public service policy provisions of the conference substitute will—when adjustment in rates and conditions of mailability of fourth-class mail for which the Postmaster General has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission (as required by law) shall be approved—eliminate the postal deficit.

Such increased postal revenue provided by part I of the conference substitute is approximately $20 million less than the aggregate annual increased postal revenue of $620 million which would have been provided by the postal rate adjustment bill recommended to the House of Representatives by the Postmaster General and presented for consideration by the chairman of the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service on January 23, 1962.

A table comparing present and proposed postal rates follows:

[3] Consists of total loss on free and reduced rate mail, additional public service on in-county mail, and the amount deemed attributable to third- and fourth-class post offices and rural and star routes.

[4] When number of copies mailed for delivery outside the county is fewer than 5,000, the minimum per copy is ½ cent.

On magazines containing less than 5 percent advertising the minimum charge per copy is 0.55 of a cent during 1963, 0.65 of a cent during 1964, and 0.75 of a cent thereafter.

SALARY INCREASES

Part II of the conference substitute places in effect major provisions of the Federal statutory salary reform proposal submitted to the Congress by the President earlier in the current session. The essential requirements of comparability of Federal and private enterprise salary rates, internal alinement of Federal salary schedules, and annual review and adjustment of salaries recommended by the President are provided by part II of the conference substitute. The chief differences between such part of the conference substitute and the President's recommendations are (1) salary adjustments under the conference substitute are in two phases, spaced 15 months apart, instead of three annual phases as recommended by the President, and (2) the three highest grades of the Classification Act of 1949 and the three highest levels of the postal field service schedule receive only one upward adjustment, leaving the final determination of the appropriate salaries for such grades and levels for consideration in the next Congress.

The conference substitute also provides comparable salary adjustments for employees in the judicial branch, agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees, congressional employees, and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed by administrative action. This is in conformity with the policy adopted by the Congress in all recent salary increase legislation.

The conference substitute provides salary increases which, when all are in effect, will average 11.2 percent for postal field service employees and 9.6 percent for classified employees and certain others.

COST OF SALARY INCREASES

The annual cost of the salary reform provisions of the conference substitute will be $1.049 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964, when the salary adjustments provided for therein become fully effective. The salary reform legislation recommended by the President would have cost $1.054 billion a year beginning in the calendar year 1965. The annual cost of Federal civilian salary reform provisions contained in H.R. 9531, as reported favorably by the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service but not acted upon by the House, would have been $1.469 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964—a difference of $420 million savings under the conference substitute.

CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT ANNUITIES

Part III of the conference substitute—

1. Provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the civil service retirement fund which commenced on or before that date.
2. Applies the increase on a graduated reduction basis to all annuities which commence in the 4-year period following January 1, 1963, in keeping with the practice followed in the last previous enactment of this kind.
3. Provides that the proper proportion of the increase granted an annuitant will accrue to his survivors.
4. Excludes from the increase annuity amounts purchased by voluntary contributions.

90190—62——4

5. Removes the ceilings on increases imposed by certain previous enactments.

6. Provides for future adjustments in the event the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics increases not less than 3 percent.

7. Raises from $2,400 to $3,600 the portion of annuity to which the reduction of 2½ percent applies when electing survivorship benefits.

8. Increases the ratio of survivorship benefits from 50 to 55 percent.

9. Reverses present procedure by providing that in the future survivorship benefits will be automatic unless an adverse election is made.

10. Extends the right of membership benefits for children to the end of any school year in which a child attains the age of 21 years so long as the child pursues full-time studies in a school, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. This change is in keeping with provisions of veterans' benefit laws.

Differences Between the Text of the House Bill and the Conference Substitute

PART I.—POSTAL SERVICE

TITLE I.—POSTAL RATES

Both the House bill and part I of the conference substitute provide increases in postal rates and certain changes in the public service features of postal policy under chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

First-Class Mail

Section 3 of the House bill and section 101 of the conference substitute both provide for increases in the rate on first-class letter mail from 4 to 5 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, in the rate on drop letters from 3 to 4 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, and in the rate on each post card and each postal card from 3 to 4 cents.

Airmail

The amendments made by section 4 of the House bill increase the postage rates on airmail letters from 7 cents to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 cents to 6 cents. The existing requirement of minimum first-class ounce rates for air parcel post first-class matter is retained, but the existing minimum rate of 3 cents an ounce on such matter is eliminated.

Section 102 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on airmail letters from 7 to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof, and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 to 6 cents.

In keeping with the increase of 8 cents on airmail weighing 8 ounces, the first pound rate for air parcel post (other than first-class matter) is increased 8 cents. Air parcel post rates for first-class matter will be the regular 8-cents-an-ounce rate for each of the first 8 ounces, and the regular first-class letter rate of 5 cents an ounce for each ounce or fraction thereof over 8 ounces, but in no case less than the air parcel post rate for other matter.

Second-Class Mail Within County of Publication

Section 5 of the House bill removes the requirement, in connection with free-in-county mail, that publications must be printed in the county in which published.

Section 103 of the conference substitute eliminates free-in-county mailings and extends to all such within-county mailings for calendar years 1963 and 1964 the existing 1 cent per pound and one-eighth cent minimum charge now applicable to certain categories of within-county mailings. At the start of calendar year 1965, the pound rate would be increased to 1 and one-fourth cents. The minimum charge per piece would remain at one-eighth cent. Existing per-copy rates applicable to publications issued less frequently or more frequently than once a week when mailed for delivery by letter carrier at the office of mailing are left unchanged.

Second-Class Mail Beyond County of Publication

Section 6 of the House bill imposes a piece rate charge of one-half cent effective July 1, 1962, and a piece rate charge of 1 cent effective July 1, 1963, to be paid in addition to existing pound rates.

Section 104(a) of the conference substitute increases second-class pound rates and the minimum charge per piece of publications for delivery outside the county of publication except that the current minimum charge of one-half cent per copy is not changed in the case of publications mailing less than 5,000 copies per issue outside the county of publication. The increase in pound rates on the nonadvertising portion is in three annual increments of 4 percent each year. The increase in pound rates on the advertising portion is in three annual increments of 0.4 cent each. The schedule provides increases after 3 years of 40 percent in zones 1 and 2; 30 percent in zone 3; 20 percent in zone 4; 15 percent in zone 5; and 12 percent in zone 6. The existing rates of 12 cents and 14 cents in zones 7 and 8, respectively, are not changed.

Any issue of a publication the advertising portion of which does not exceed 5 per centum of the entire issue will pay .55 of a cent per piece when mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964, .65 of a cent per piece when mailed during calendar year 1964, and .75 of a cent per piece when mailed after December 31, 1964.

Subsection (a) except as noted above also increases the minimum charge on the above publications in annual increments over a 3-year period from one-half cent to six-tenths of a cent, eight-tenths of a cent, and 1 cent respectively.

Subsection (a) also fixes the postage rate on classroom publications at 60 percent of the regular rate. The rate applicable to the total content of publications of qualified nonprofit organizations (advertising and nonadvertising portions alike) is maintained at 1 cent per pound less than the pound rate applicable to the nonadvertising portion of regular publications. This produces a rate for these publications of less than 50 percent of the pound rates described above and the minimum per piece rate is retained at the present one-eighth cent.

Subsection (b) of section 104 extends the nonprofit rate to publications of official State highway agencies which meet all requirements for second-class entry and which contain no advertising. However, only one such publication in any State could be mailed at this rate.

Also, the nonprofit rate is extended to associations of rural electric cooperatives.

Subsection (c) repeals existing law to the extent necessary to give effect to the changes in rates discussed above.

Second-Class Transient Mail

Section 105 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on the first 2 ounces of transient mail from 2 to 4 cents.

The House bill has no comparable provision relating to transient mail.

Controlled Circulation Publications

Section 8 of the House bill increases the rate to be paid by controlled circulation publications from 12 cents a pound to 14 cents a pound.

Section 106 of the conference substitute increases the pound rate on controlled circulation publications from 12 to 12½ cents the first year, to 13 cents the second year, and to 13½ cents thereafter.

Third-Class Mail

Section 9 of the House bill provides increases in rates for third-class mail as follows:

(1) The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof to 4 cents.

(2) The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants) is increased from 16 to 21 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants is increased from 10 to 18 cents except in the case of mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations which remains at 10 cents. The minimum rate per piece for other than qualified nonprofit organizations is increased from 2½ cents to 3½ cents.

(3) The minimum rate on pieces of odd size is increased from 3½ cents to 4½ cents.

Section 107 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in rates for third-class mail:

(1) The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof and 1½ cents on each additional ounce or fraction thereof to 4 and 2 cents, respectively.

(2) The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants) is increased from 16 to 18 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants is increased from 10 to 12 cents. The minimum rate per piece in either instance is increased in three annual increments—first to 5⅝ cents, a year later to 2⅞ cents, and a year following that to 2⅞ cents.

Section 107 continues in effect the present minimum per piece charge on bulk third-class mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations and provides that the pound rates for such mailings shall be 50 percent of the regular pound rates for bulk third-class mailings as embodied in the conference agreement.

In addition to the foregoing, this section raises the fee for a third-class bulk mailing permit from $20 to $30 and increases the minimum weight requirement from 20 to 50 pounds. This should have been adjusted in 1958 when the weight for third-class mail was increased from 8 to 16 ounces. One of the requirements for the bulk third-class pound rates is that such mail be in quantities of 20 pounds or of not less than 200 pieces. When the weight limit was 8 ounces a minimum of 40 such pieces was necessary, but when the weight limit was raised to 16 ounces only 20 such pieces was necessary to comply with the minimum weight limit. This is entirely too small a number of pieces to justify the bulk pound rate. Thus, in the future, to obtain the bulk third-class rate, it will be necessary to mail a minimum of 50 pounds or 200 pieces.

Fourth-Class Mail

Section 108 of the conference substitute restores to the States of Alaska and Hawaii the benefits of certain provisions relating to the maximum size and weight of fourth-class parcels mailed at or for delivery at first-class post offices which they enjoyed prior to their admission as States. Under these provisions, such parcels could be as large as 100 inches in length and girth combined and could weigh as much as 70 pounds. These are the maximums which are already applicable generally to parcels mailed at or for delivery at second-, third-, and fourth-class post offices or rural and star routes, and to parcels mailed at or for delivery at Army, Air Force, or Fleet Post Offices. The conditions which led to the original extension of these maximums to Alaska and Hawaii while in territorial status have not been altered by statehood and those maximums should be restored.

Section 109.—This section provides an increase in fourth-class postage rates on books, films, and similar educational materials from 9 cents for the first pound to 9½ cents during the first year and to 10 cents thereafter. The existing rate of 5 cents on each additional percent will continue without change.

The postage rates on fourth-class library materials would remain at 4 cents on the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The House bill contains no provisions similar to sections 108 or 109 of the conference substitute.

Fees for Second-Class Entry and Registration

The House bill made no change in fees for second-class mail.

Section 110 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in second-class mailing fees:

	Existing fee	Proposed fee
Circulation:
Not over 2,000	$25	$30
2,000 to 5,000	50	60
Over 5,000	100	120
Reentry	10	15
Additional entry	10	[1] 15 [2] 50
News agent	20	25

[2] Zones 3 to 8.

Permit Fees for Mailing Without Stamps

Section 111 of the conference substitute increases from $10 to $15 the permit fee for mailing without stamps.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Fixing of Fees by Postmaster General

Section 112 of the conference substitute gives the Postmaster General the authority to adjust second-class entry and registration fees and permit fees for mailing with printed postage indicia in the future.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Keys and Other Small Articles

Section 113 of the conference substitute increases from 5 cents for each 2 ounces to 6 cents for each 2 ounces the postage rate on keys and other small articles mailed without the prepayment of postage. The House bill contains no such provisions.

Method of Determining Gross Receipts

Section 11 of the House bill and section 114 of the conference substitute both provide that increased revenues derived from the rate increases shall be excluded in determining compensation and allowances of postmasters and other employees and classes of post offices.

This is similar to the provision contained in the 1958 Postal Increase Act.

Qualifications of Postmasters

Section 115 of the conference substitute requires the Civil Service Commission, in evaluating the qualifications of applicants for positions of postmaster, to give appropriate consideration to experience in the postal field service.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

TITLE II—POSTAL POLICY

Section 2 of the House bill revises and strengthens the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees originally enacted as the Postal Policy Act of 1958 and now contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

Subsection (a) clarifies and strengthens the language of such policy with respect to the determination of postal expenses attributable to the performance of public service by the Postal Establishment.

Subsection (b) makes several important changes in the existing provisions of law with respect to identification of public services rendered by the Postal Establishment and the determination of the costs of such public services which shall be excluded from postal expenses for purposes of fixing postal rates and fees.

The first such change (sec. 2(b) (1) and (2)) provides that "the estimated calculated loss" from operation of third- and fourth-class post offices, star routes, and rural routes shall be held and considered to be an item of public service rendered by the Postal Establishment.

Under present law, the "loss" on star routes and third- and fourth-class post offices is designated as an item of public service.

The second such change (sec. 2(b)(3)) supplies a needed clear definition of the terms "loss" and "total loss" as applied to revenues and expenses of the public service items specified in the law—a definition which was not included in the Postal Policy Act of 1958. This definitive language, coupled with the remaining provisions of section 2 of the bill, will provide standards and guidelines which are necessary for the Postmaster General to determine the amount of public service charges to be excluded from postal expenses each year for purposes of considering the need for adjustments in postal rates and fees.

The amendment made by section 2(c) requires the Postmaster General, on or before February 1 of each year beginning with the year 1962, to report to the Congress the amount by which costs of the public service items set forth in the postal policy provisions exceed revenues from such public service items and specifies, further, that the amount so determined and reported shall be excluded from the total cost of postal operations for purposes of adjustment of postal rates and fees. The last sentence of the amendment requires that the amount so determined and reported (and thus excluded from total operating costs for rate and fee purposes) shall be not less than 7½ percent of the total current budget of the Post Office Department.

The amendment made by section 2(d) is a technical amendment which conforms the table of contents of the appropriate chapter of title 39, United States Code, with the amendments made by the remainder of section 2 of the bill.

Section 201 of the conference substitute makes changes necessary to clarify and strengthen the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code. Further, certain technical changes are made necessary by the elimination of free-in-county mailing under section 104. This section resolves a problem of long standing by providing a formula for use in determining the amount that shall be considered public service costs in the operation of star and rural routes and third- and fourth-class post offices. The conference substitute provides that 10 percent of the gross cost of the operation of third-class post offices and the star route system, and 20 percent of the gross cost of the operation of fourth-class post offices and rural routes shall be attributable to public service.

TITLE III—MISCELLANEOUS

Eligibility of Certain Organizations for Second-Class Entry

Section 301 of the conference substitute adds publications of State industrial development agencies and public or nonprofit elementary and secondary schools to the list of those entitled to second-class entry without the necessity of having a bona fide list of regular subscribers.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Educational Materials

Section 10 of the House bill makes certain technical changes in the preferential educational and library material rate listings to reflect the substantive changes made by Public Law 86–644, approved July 14, 1960. The subsection also supplies corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39, United States Code, which extends the preferential library materials rates to scientific or matematical kits, instruments, and devices, and catalogs and guides or scripts relating to their use. The existing preferential rates of 9 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 5 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof on educational materials and 4 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 1 cent a pound for each additional pound or fraction thereof on library materials are retained.

Section 302 of the conference substitute provides corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39 relating to the inclusion of guides, scripts, and catalogs with scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, or devices and sound recordings.

The conference substitute adds looseleaf pages, and binders therefor, consisting of medical information for distribution to doctors, hospitals, medical schools, and medical students to the educational materials category.

Reading Matter and Other Materials for Blind Persons

Section 303 of the conference substitute revises sections 4653 and 4654 of title 39, United States Code, which relate to the mailing of reading and other materials for the use of blind persons. The changes made in these sections are designed to accomplish the following:

(1) Existing law permits the free mailing to blind persons of books with raised type and recordings. This section would add books printed in sightsaving size type to this category. It would also make clear that the term "recordings" includes sound tapes.

(2) Under present law public libraries and public institutions for the blind may mail free of postage books being loaned to blind persons. This section extends this privilege to any nonprofit organizations which lends books to the blind.

(3) Extends the same free mailing treatment to reading materials mailed to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons as when sent directly to the blind persons.

(4) Existing law permits magazines furnished to blind persons at cost to be mailed at the rate of 1 cent a pound. This section extends that rate to other reading materials furnished to blind persons at cost. It also makes it applicable where the materials are sent to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons.

(5) Under present law sound reproduction devices owned by the United States which have been loaned to blind persons may be returned by those persons for repair at a postage rate of 1 cent a pound. The Postmaster General has authority to extend this rate to reproducers owned by States, public libraries, nonprofit agencies, and blind persons themselves. This section would eliminate the 1-cent-a-pound charge and permit free mailing of these devices. It also authorizes the Postmaster General, in his discretion, to extend free mailing privilege to the sending by State agencies, public libraries, private nonprofit agencies for the blind, and blind persons themselves, of paper, records, tapes, and other materials owned by them for use by the recipients for the production of reading matter in raised characters or sight saving size type, or in the form of recordings, for the use of blind persons. The House bill has no similar provision.

Repeals and Technical Amendments

Section 9(c) of the House bill and section 304 of the conference substitute repeal section 3 of the act of October 30, 1956 (Public Law 86–56). Also, paragraph (3) of the conference substitute repeals the following substantive provisions of law:

(1) Section 4361 of title 39, which authorizes publishers to mail proofs of advertisements at second-class zone rates applicable to advertising portions.

(2) Section 4652 of title 39, which permits public mailing of the Congressional Record from the District of Columbia at the rate of 1 cent per copy.

Communist Political Propaganda

Section 12 of the House-passed bill contains a provision which would amend section 505 of title 39, United States Code (international postal arrangements) for the purpose of excluding Communist political propaganda from the U.S. mails.

This section in the House bill also contains provisions designed to accomplish this purpose with respect to mail originating within the United States as well as mail originating outside the United States. Under these provisions mail matter determined by the Attorney General to be Communist political propaganda which is financed or sponsored by a Communist-controlled government is nonmailable within the United States, except as fourth-class mail.

During extensive hearings on section 12 of H.R. 7927, widely divergent views were expressed as to the need for such a provision and the form any such provision should take. Following extended deliberations in executive session, the committee has agreed upon what it considers to be an appropriate substitute which meets many of the objections expressed during the hearings, and which is designed to provide a workable solution to the problem of Communist political propaganda arriving for distribution in the United States.

Section 305 of the conference substitute consist of a modification of S. 2740, introduced by Senator Bush on January 25, 1962, which would have had the effect of reinstating the program of screening Communist political propaganda substantially as that program was conducted prior to March 17, 1961.

Section 305 of the conference substitute provides for a program under which, with certain exceptions, Communist political propaganda coming into the United States from foreign countries would be intercepted and would be delivered only upon the request of the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed 60 days.

Section 305 specifically provides that mail matter, except sealed letters, originating in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be Communist political propaganda, shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the U.S. domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received. Such detention would not be required in the case of any matter which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee.

Exempted would be matter addressed to Government agencies, to libraries, or to colleges, universities, graduate schools, scientific or professional institutions for advanced studies, or any individual connected therewith. Likewise, material addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal international agreement under which the U.S. Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in a Communist country, would be exempted.

In order to furnish guidelines to the Secretary of the Treasury as to what constitutes Communist political propaganda, the entire definition of political propaganda contained in the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1948 is incorporated by reference and related to matter issued by or on behalf of any country from which tariff concessions have been withdrawn under section 5 of the Trade Agreement Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or which is denied assistance under section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Effective Date

Section 13 of the House bill provides an effective date of July 1, 1962. Section 306 of the conference substitute provides that, except as otherwise provided, the provisions of Part I—Postal Service shall become effective January 7, 1963.

Obscene Matter Distributed by Mail

The House bill has no provisions on this subject.

Section 307 of the conference substitute authorizes the Postmaster General to detain and dispose of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

Part II of the conference substitute relates to Federal salary reform.

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

Title I of part II contains a statement of Federal salary policy.

Section 501 provides that part II may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 502 sets forth the policy of the Congress that pay of Federal civilian personnel shall be established upon the principles of equal pay for substantially equal work with pay distinctions maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and that Federal salaries shall be comparable with salaries in private enterprise for the same levels of work.

Section 503, pertaining to the implementation of the above policy, provides that the President shall have prepared and submitted to him an annual report comparing salary rates paid to Federal employees with rates paid for the same levels of work in private industry as determined through annual surveys of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. After seeking the views of employee organizations the President shall make an annual report to the Congress containing the comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structure, and compensation policy as he deems advisable.

In further implementation of the stated salary policy, section 504 provides that whenever the President or his designee finds that the salary rates in private enterprise for an occupation in any particular location are so substantially above the salary rates of Federal statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government in recruiting and retaining well-qualified persons in positions under the pay systems of the executive branch covered by the conference substitute, the President, or his designee, may establish for such location higher minimum rates of basic compensation. Corresponding increases may be made in all step rates in the salary range for the applicable grade or level; however, the minimum salary rate established under this authority may not exceed the seventh compensation rate prescribed by law for the grade or level involved. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency as he may designate.

Section 504 also provides that such rates may be revised from time to time and that such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

Section 504 further provides that any increase in basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, or section 3552 of title 39, United States Code.

Policies, Rules, and Regulations of the President

Section 505 further implements the salary policy by authorizing the President to prescribe policies, rules, and standards in order to carry out the policy and purpose of the conference substitute with respect to the several Federal salary systems covered by the conference substitute and in order to provide adequate supervision and control by the President over the functions, duties, and regulations of the respective authorities in the executive branch in connection with the administration and operation of the four major salary systems and the provisions of this title.

Title II—Pay System of the Classification Act of 1949

Title II of part II of the conference substitute pertains to the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Section 601 provides that title II may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962."

Section 602 contains the compensation schedules for the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and the salary conversion rules for the two phases of the salary adjustment plan which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment (first phase) and on January 1, 1964 (second phase).

Section 602(a) prescribes the compensation schedules. The schedule contains 10 regular steps in lieu of 7 scheduled and 3 longevity rates currently provided for GS–1 through GS–10; 9 rates for

GS–11 through GS–14 in lieu of 6 scheduled and 3 longevity rates; 8 rates for GS–15 in lieu of 5 scheduled and 3 longevities; and 5 rates for GS–16 and GS–17 in lieu of the 5 rates currently provided by the Classification Act. Grade GS–18 continues to have a single rate. Because the number of regular step rates is increased, the current provisions for longevity step increases in title VII of the Classification Act of 1949 are no longer needed and are repealed in subsequent sections of the conference substitute.

Section 602(b) specifies the rules adjusting existing pay rates to the rates of the new schedules. Employees generally are to retain the same relative place within the new grade range as they had within their former grade range.

Paragraph (10) of section 602(b) provides that service immediately preceding the effective date shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended by the conference substitute.

Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) applies to each officer or employee who is receiving immediately prior to the effective date of section 602, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation, determined under section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, 83d Cong.), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960. Such officer or employee will receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (1) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under the savings provisions of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, referred to above, and (2) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, and (3) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and (4) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (5) the amount of the increase made by section 602 under compensation schedule I in the maximum rate of his grade. This rate will remain in effect for such officer or employee until he leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of the amendment or any other law. However, when the position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any later appointee thereto will be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) also contains a provision to the effect that, subject to the possibility that any such officer or employee may leave his position or may become entitled to aggregate compensation at a higher rate, the amount of the increase provided by section 602 is to be held and considered, for the savings purposes of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing aggregate rate of compensation of the officer or employee.

Step Increases

Section 603 amends title VII, "Step Increases" of the Classification Act of 1949. Title VII currently provides two types of step increases: (1) Periodic step increases under section 701, and (2) longevity step increases beyond the scheduled maximum rate of the grade under section 703. As amended by the conference substitute, title VII provides for (1) periodic step increases, and (2) additional step increases to be granted in recognition of high quality performance.

Section 701 now provides periodic step increases, for employees below the maximum rate of the grade, for each 52 calendar weeks of service if the amount of the step increase is less than $200, or 78 weeks of service if the employee's position is in a grade in which the step increase is $200 or more. As amended, section 701(a) provides for periodic increases at all grades following the completion of (1) 52 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, (2) 104 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, and (3) each 156 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9.

Paragraphs (A) and (C) of section 701(a) which relate to eligibility for step increases are in existing law. Paragraph (B) requires, as a prerequisite to within-grade advancement, that the employee's work is of an acceptable level of competence in contrast with the present wording that the employee has a current performance rating of "satisfactory" or better.

Subsection (b) of the revised section 701 is present law.

The new section 702 of the Classification Act of 1949 in the conference substitute authorizes, in subsection (a), additional step increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Such additional step increases could be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Civil Service Commission and, under subsection (b), would be limited to not more than one within any period of 52 weeks.

Current provisions of sections 703 and 704 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to longevity step increases, are no longer needed since these steps have been included in the regular rate range for the respective grades. The provisions are therefore repealed. Section 703 of the amended title VII which is already in existing law (as sec. 705) provides that title VII shall not apply to persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Title VII currently does not have a section 702.

General Compensation Rules

Section 604(a) revises section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949 to provide that when an employee is promoted to a position in a higher grade he shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of the higher grade which exceeds his existing rate by not less than two step increases of the grade from which promoted. This subsection also specifies the action to be taken if there is no rate in the higher grade two step increases above the employee's existing rate, or if he is receiving a rate saved under section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 on reduction in grade. Existing law provides only a one-step increase upon promotion or transfer to a higher grade. A similar proposal is included in H.R. 1010 which passed the House of Representatives on August 22, 1961.

Section 604(b) adds a new subsection (d) to section 802 of the Classification Act of 1949. There is no present authority for saving the basic compensation of an employee who, together with his position, is brought under the Classification Act from some other Federal pay system (such as the wage board system), if his salary rate is in excess of the maximum rate of the classification grade in which his position is placed. The new subsection would authorize the Civil Service Commission to issue regulations to permit the retention of salary in such instances. It includes special provision applicable in case of subsequent demotion in grade.

Section 604(c) substitutes a new section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949. Because of the more comprehensive provisions in section 504 of title I, part II, of the conference substitute, the present provisions of section 803, authorizing advanced entrance rates of the grades for appointments in shortage occupations, are unnecessary and therefore are being deleted. Section 803, as amended, provides that under regulations of the Civil Service Commission, any employee under the Classification Act who regularly has responsibility for supervision, including technical supervision, over wage board employees may be paid a rate for his grade above the highest rate paid to any such prevailing rate employee.

Salary Retention

Section 605 amends section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 which provides for the retention of salary when an employee is demoted to a lower grade. The amendment in paragraph (1) extends application of the provisions of section 507 to employees in all grades of the Classification Act of 1949 by omitting the language of existing law which excludes application of the benefits to employees in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. The amendment in paragraph (2) strikes out "B in the same grade or in the same or higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section 507 and inserts in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;". This change in language will permit salary retention not now permitted under section 507 where there may have been a series of promotions followed by a demotion or a series of demotions.

Section 606 amends section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949. Subsection (a) increases from 1,989 to 2,400 the limitation on the number of positions the Civil Service Commission, under section 505(b) of the Classification Act, may authorize to be placed in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule, and excludes from this limitation engineering research and development positions and positions in the physical sciences, natural sciences, and medicine. Subsection (b) excludes these same types of positions from the number of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 now authorized for the Department of Defense in section 505(j) of the Classification Act.

Section 606(c) authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of 10 positions of warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the general schedule. This increases by four the number of such positions which may be assigned to GS–16. This subsection also authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of eight positions of member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the general schedule. Presently only one such position is in grade GS–17 and the other seven are in grade GS–16.

Section 607 repeals certain provisions of law authorizing (1) incumbency allocations to top Classification Act grades, and (2) certain positions to be placed in top grades of the act or to have an equivalent salary.

Section 608(a) provides that each position covered by a repeal provision in section 607 shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the general schedule of the Classification Act, in accordance with the provisions of that act.

Section 608(b) provides that positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule immediately prior to the effective date shall remain in such grades until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act.

Savings Provision

Section 609 contains the usual salary savings provisions.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 610 provides that except as otherwise expressly provided the provisions of title II of part II shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment.

TITLE III—POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYEES

Section 701 cites this title as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962."

Employees Under the Postal Field Service Schedule

Section 702 provides two postal field service schedules. Schedule I would be effective the first pay period after enactment and schedule II, the first pay period after January 1, 1964. The salary schedules for the postal field service follow the pattern established for other statutory pay systems in that they are based on the principle of industry comparability for levels of work.

The structure of the proposed schedules is generally similar to that of the Classification Act of 1949. It replaces both annual salary steps in the present PFS schedule and longevity rates which is accomplished by the addition of step increases to the PFS schedule.

Employees Under the Rural Carrier Schedule

Section 703(a) establishes two new schedules for determining rural carrier pay, the first effective on the first pay period after enactment and the second on the first pay period after January 1, 1964. It also combines the present salary steps and longevity steps into a single 12-step schedule.

Pay rates for the RCS schedule were determined by adding the amount of increase provided for PFS–4, step 7, to the present step 7 rate for the 42-mile route, and adjusting other rates for that route to the corresponding rates for PFS–4.

Section 703(b) amends section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, which authorizes payment of additional compensation to rural carriers on heavily patronized routes, by eliminating the existing provision permitting such payment only if the route does not exceed 61 miles in length, as well as the provision limiting the additional compensation to an amount which when added to the basic salary for the maximum step for the route would equal the basic salary for the maximum step for a 61-mile route.

Section 703(c) amends section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, to increase the equipment maintenance allowance for rural carriers from 10 cents to 12 cents a mile or from $3.50 to $4.20 a day, whichever is greater.

Section 703(c) changes the method of compensating substitute rural carriers. Under the present system these carriers are paid at the rate of the carrier in whose absence they are serving. Under the new provisions, substitute carriers will be paid on the basis of their own service in the same manner as regular carriers.

Postmasters Under the Fourth-Class Office Schedule

Section 704 amends section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, the code to provide two new compensation schedules for postmasters in fourth-class post offices, one effective the first pay period after enactment and the other effective the first pay period after January 1, 1964.

The proposed schedules continue to relate compensation to receipts categories. The first schedule provides an increase of 10 percent above current salary rates. The second schedule adds another 5 percent or a total of 15 percent over existing rates. Subsection (b) extends to postmasters of the third- and fourth-class salary restoration rights now enjoyed by other postal employees.

Automatic Advancement by Step Increases

Section 705 amends 39 U.S.C. 3552, which relates to advancement of employees by step increases.

Under subsection (a), 39 U.S.C. 3552, the schedule of advancement is established. The present schedule of advancement provides for increases based on 52 weeks of service in a step until the highest step in the level is reached. In levels PFS–1 through PFS–6 this form of advancement is continued for the first six increases; the next five increases are attained after a 156-week waiting period for each. In all levels above PFS–6, under the new schedule, the employee will be advanced to steps 2, 3, and 4, on the basis of 52 weeks of service in each step, to steps 5, 6, and 7, on the basis of 104 weeks of service, and to steps 8 and above, on the basis of 156 weeks of service. The conference substitute does not continue the limitation on the advancement of substitutes assigned to road duty. It has been the practice of the Post Office Department to credit service by such a substitute in step 4, PFS–5, and, upon placement in a position not subject to the limitation, the employee would be advanced in step in the new position on the basis of such service, if otherwise proper. The removal of such limitation will permit these substitute employees who were not advanced beyond step 4 of salary level PFS–5 by reason of the limitation, to be given credit for all their service in step 4 and given the appropriate step increases at the time of conversion.

Subsection (b), 39 U.S.C 3552, codifies and makes permanent a provision of law common to salary increase legislation affecting postal employees. In effect, it provides that statutory increases in basic compensation are not equivalent increases for purposes of determining eligibility for advancement under subsection (a).

Subsection (c), 39 U.S.C. 3552, reenacts the last sentence of 39 U.S.C. 3552 (a) as a separate subsection.

The current provisions of 39 U.S.C. 3552(b) are, in effect, repealed by this amendment. Under present service conditions, withholding of advancement by step increases from substitutes in PFS–5 assigned to road duty cannot be justified.

Temporary Employees

Section 706 amends 39 U.S.C. 3554 by deleting the phrase "under the postal field service schedule" and inserting in its place the phrase "in the postal field service." The purpose of this change is to permit the payment of compensation to temporary rural carriers serving under limited appointments in the same manner as to other postal field service employees. In effect, this change will continue the present method of compensation of these carriers.

Promotions

Section 707 amends 39 U.S.C. 3559 in its entirety. The present method of promotion guarantees to each employees a minimum increase equivalent to the difference between step 1 of the level from which promoted and step 1 of the level immediately above. The new provision will guarantee to each employee promoted to a higher level a minimum increase equivalent to two step increases of the level from which promoted; if the employee is promoted to a level more than two levels above the level of his position, he will receive a minimum increase equivalent to three step increases.

Rural Routes

The purpose of section 708 is to remove the limitation on the present authority of the Postmaster General with respect to the establishment or extension of star routes in areas previously served by rural routes. Under present law such substitution may not be made if a qualified rural carrier can be obtained. This change will permit the Postmaster General to exercise administrative discretion in the selection of the more efficient or economical service.

Miscellaneous Provisions

The new salary plan abolishes longevity steps and provides for recognition of long service through addition of within-grade steps. Therefore, the distinction made in sections 3101(5) and 3101(6) of title 39, between basic salary and basic compensation, is no longer valid and section 709 eliminates this distinction.

Section 710 amends 39 U.S.C. 3541 to provide a method for determining the daily rate of compensation of substitute rural carriers. By using a factor of 304, the number of days of service on a rural route in a year, holiday pay is prorated throughout the year against the actual service of the substitute rural carrier. In this respect, pay treatment of these employees will be consistent with that afforded other substitute employees.

Conversion Rules

Section 711 provides the rules for the conversion of existing salaries to the new pay schedules which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment. The conversion method generally will place each employee in the numerical step which he attains immediately prior to the effective date of the new pay plan, plus an additional numerical step for each longevity step attained immediately prior to conversion.

Credit is preserved toward the next within-grade or automatic step increase earned by employees prior to conversion if they were not given an additional step increase by reason of longevity steps attained prior to conversion. Such credit will be applied toward fulfillment of the requirements of the new advancement schedule. No credit earned toward longevity steps will be carried over. No employee's salary will be reduced on conversion.

In addition, to provide a greater salary increase for present employees, each employee in levels PFS–1 through PFS–4 or under the rural carrier schedule will be advanced one extra step on conversion.

Section 712 provides for the conversion of employees to the schedules to become effective in January 1964 according to the numerical step attained immediately prior to the date of conversion. Where existing compensation exceeds the rate for the numerical step, the existing compensation is retained if conversion cannot be made to a scheduled step.

Section 713 amends section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, as added by section 201 of the act of September 21, 1961 (75 Stat. 569, Public Law 87–270), which provides, among other things, that employees in protected rates will be given statutory increases applicable to the salary standing from which reduced. The purpose of section 713 is to make clear that, inasmuch as the new salary plan involves basic structural changes for employees now under the PFS, RCS, and FOS schedules, this particular feature of 39 U.S.C. 3560 cannot be given application at the time of conversion to the new schedules. Salaries of employees in protected rates as of the date of conversion will be converted under sections 711 and 712 of the conference substitute, as appropriate.

Basic Salary in Cases of Assignments of Postal Employees

Section 714 amends section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, so as to clarify the intent of Congress with respect to the authority of the Postmaster General to authorize higher level compensation. This amendment is required to remove objections of the Comptroller General, as stated in his decision of February 1, 1962 (B–138999), to the Department's application of the present statutory provision and to validate payments that have been made.

Salary Protection

Section 715 extends existing salary protection provisions to all levels of the postal field service schedule and clarifies their application to certain situations.

Section 716 contains a new compensation rule which will permit the Postmaster General to make exceptions to the schedule of automatic advancement provided in 39 U.S.C. 3552 in recognition of exceptional competence. This provision will require implementation by regulations to be issued by the Postmaster General.

Top grade positions and Whitten Amendment

Section 717 removes PFS–17 from the controlled position group and grants the postal field service a 10-percent exemption under the Whitten amendment.

Section 718 contains two conforming changes to the table of contents of title 39, United States Code.

Repeals

Section 719 repeals those provisions of Public Law 86–568 which contained salary increases for postal field service employees, effective July 9, 1960. It also repeals 39 U.S.C. 3558, which provides for the present system of longevity compensation; the new pay schedules supersede the longevity system in its entirety.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 720 specifies the effective dates of the various sections in title III.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

Title IV relates to physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration who are subject to a separate pay system prescribed by chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code. The revisions made by this title not only take into account the Bureau of Labor Statistics findings but also reflect the results of extensive studies of the Veterans' Administration concerning the need for a modernization of the entire grade and salary structure of the Department of Medicine and Surgery to recognize the numerous organizational and functional changes which have taken place in the Department since its inception in 1946.

In recognition of the nature of their occupations and the variability of assignments in a clinical setting, the grade and salary of physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery are determined on the basis of an individual's qualifications and professional attainment. Notwithstanding this fact, comparison of the qualification and skill requirements for like occupations under the Classification Act corroborate extension to the Department of Medicine and Surgery schedules in the manner indicated in the conference substitute bill of the salary scale proposed for the Classification Act system. Appropriate differentiation in pay between recognized skill levels as well as executive and managerial levels is maintained. Internal relationships of pay between the D.M. & S. system and the Classification Act system are also continued.

Section 801 amends section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code. It reduces the maximum number of Assistant Chief Medical Directors from eight to five and modifies the provisions pertaining to directors of service and chiefs of division. In lieu of these positions, a new position level of Medical Director is established. The salaries of the Assistant Chief Medical Directors, the Director of Nursing Service, the Chief Pharmacist, and Chief Dietitian are appropriately adjusted in line with other increases proposed by the conference substitute. The statutory positions of the Deputy Director of Nursing Service, Chief Physical Therapist, and Chief Occupational Therapist are eliminated. The duties of the first-named position will be filled by a nurse of the Assistant Director grade. The salaries for the positions of Chief Physical Therapist and Chief Occupational Therapist will be set in the future under the Classification Act of 1949.

Section 802 amends section 4107 of title 38, United States Code. In subsection (a) of section 4107, the former schedules entitled "Medical Service" and "Dental Service" have been combined and retitled "Physician and Dentist Schedule." The existing schedules have provided identical grades and pay scales and their continued separation serves no purpose. The junior grade of the former schedules has been eliminated, and two new grades—the director grade and executive grade—have been established. The schedule now titled "Nursing Service" has been retitled "Nurse Schedule." Two new grades—the assistant director grade and chief grade—have been established, and the former grades of assistant director and senior grade have been retitled "Senior grade" and "Intermediate grade," respectively.

The amendment also provides the pay scales for the physician and dentist schedule and the nurse schedule to be effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

The amendment of section 4107 of title 38 of the United States Code specifies the intended use of the two new grades—director and executive—in the physician and dentist schedule.

Section 803, which amends section 4108 of title 38 of the United States Code, repeals the present provision providing for an allowance equal to 15 percent of the pay of persons rated as medical, surgical, or dental specialists under the provisions of that section, since the latitude which will be afforded within the pay range of each grade will permit appropriate recognition of specially qualified individuals. The current subsection (b) of 4107 of title 38, without change, has been redesignated as section 4108 for purpose of greater clarity and as a matter of drafting convenience.

Subsection (b) of section 803 is a perfecting amendment to the table of contents at the head of chapter 73 of title 38, to reflect the change in the catchline of section 4108.

Section 804 amends section 4111(b) of title 38 to provide that the per annum salary rate of a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary he would receive if such service as a director had been as a physician in the director grade. Except with respect to change in rate of salary, the subsection does not affect the allocation of any such position to any grade of the Classification Act or the application of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual.

Section 805 provides that title IV shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment except as otherwise expressly provided.

TITLE V—THE FOREIGN SERVICE ACT OF 1946

Section 901 provides that title V may be cited as the "Foreign Service Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 902 amends section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by adjusting upward the per annum salary rates for the eight classes of Foreign Service officers. No change is made in the number of classes and, with the exception of class I, which has two salary rates, the general pattern of seven rates for each class is continued. As in other sections of this title, the schedules of per annum salary rates, provided by this section, are to be effective in two phases at the beginning of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 903 amends section 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by revising the structure of the Foreign Service Staff salary schedule and embodying certain changes directly comparable to those made in the revision of the Classification Act of 1949.

There are at present 22 classes in the Foreign Service Staff schedule. The proposed schedule of 10 classes would eliminate the unnecessary and seldom-used classes in the current schedule. Since custodial, maintenance, and the most routine clerical functions are performed almost exclusively by alien employees at Foreign Service posts, there is little need for U.S. citizen employees at the levle of duties represented by classes 14 through 22. Since classes 14 through 22 are to be abolished, it will be necessary to give the Secretary the authority contained in proposed section 415(b) in order that persons in such classes may continue to be employed at appropriate rates. The new section 415(b) would give the Department all needed flexibility in this respect, should it be desirable in unusual circumstances, to employ American personnel at lower rates for duties less difficult than those of FSS–10. Within the proposed Foreign Service Staff salary schedule, 10 salary rates are proposed for the lower 6 classes, and 9 for the upper 4. This conforms with Classification Act of 1949 salary ranges proposed at similar salary levels. Section 903 prescribes two schedules of per annum salaries for staff officers and employees to be effective the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 904 provides for the conversion of Foreign Service personnel from their present salary rates to those established by the conference substitute.

Section 905 repeals section 642(b) of the Foreign Service Act relating to longevity step increases for Foreign Service staff officers and employees and makes minor conforming changes in the heading and identification of the section in the Foreign Service Act. Since the new Foreign Service staff schedule provides 9 or 10 rates for within-class increases, this section is no longer needed.

Section 906 provides that, except as otherwise expressly provided, title V shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

TITLE VI—MISCELLANEOUS SALARY PROVISIONS

Section 1001 increases the salary limitations for certain scientific, professional, and other positions to accord with the salary ranges of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. In most cases the salary range stated in the laws which are amended has a $19,000 maximum. The amendments proposed would tie the maximum to grade 18 of the general schedule.

Subsection (a) of section 1001 revises the salary range in section 2(b) of Public Law 313, 80th Congress, as amended, from $12,500–$19,000, to a range from the minimum salary of grade GS–16 to the highest rate of grade GS–18, and authorizes eight such positions in the Library of Congress.

Subsection (b) amends section 1581(b) of title 10 of the United States Code, relating to certain scientific or professional positions in the Department of Defense, to provide a minimum rate for such positions as the minimum rate of GS–16 and a maximum rate equivalent to GS–18 pay.

Subsection (c) extends the new range to positions now paid at $12,500 to $19,000 in the National Security Agency.

Subsection (d) amends the proviso in the first sentence of section 208(g) of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, which relates to compensation rates of certain scientific, professional, and administrative personnel in the Public Health Service to provide a minimum rate of grade GS–16 and a maximum at the pay of grade GS–18.

Subsection (e) establishes a maximum rate, equivalent to the pay of grade GS–18 for five positions of technical experts in the Department of Agriculture engaged in research in foot-and-mouth and other animal diseases.

Subsection (f) amends section 203(b)(2) of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 to provide that the Administrator may fix the rates for certain excepted positions at not to exceed the pay of grade GS–18 of the Classification Act of 1949. Thirty of these positions may continue to be paid up to $21,000.

Subsection (g) amends the proviso in section 161(d) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, to permit the fixing of salaries of scientific and technical personnel up to a limit of the pay of grade GS–18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. The present limit is $19,000.

Subsection (h) substitutes the GS–18 rate in place of $19,500 as the top salary for 23 positions in the Federal Aviation Agency.

Subsection (i) authorizes use of Foreign Service salary rates for paying the U.S. representatives and alternate on the Executive Board of the World Health Organization in place of present maximum salaries of $12,000 and $10,000.

Subsection (j) sets the GS–18 rate as the maximum salary for certain positions established under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, not authorized to be paid up to $1,000 more than the rate of GS–18.

Subsection (k) fixes the GS–18 salary as the maximum rate for certain positions under the Foreign Assistance Act which may now be paid up to $19,000 a year.

Subsection (l) fixes the GS–18 salary rate as the top salary for certain Peace Corps positions now paying up to $19,000 a year.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee Employees

Section 1002 extends to agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees the salary increases provided by the conference substitute for corresponding Classification Act of 1949 salary levels.

Assistant U.S. Attorneys

Section 1003 raises from $15,000 to $17,500 the maximum amount which can be paid to assistant U.S. attorneys and provides for an increase of 7½ percent in their existing rates of compensation.

Employees in the Judicial Branch

Section 1004 authorizes, for employees of the judicial branch, salary increases corresponding to those proposed in the statutory salary systems in the executive branch.

Officers and Employees in the Legislative Branch

Section 1005(a) provides an increase of 7 percent to officers and employees in or under the legislative branch.

Subsection (b) provides for the automatic adjustment, effective October 16, 1962, of the compensation of employees in the office of a Senator to the rate nearest that being received by such employees immediately preceding such effective date unless the disbursing office of the Senate is notified to the contrary within 15 days after the date of enactment. Such notice, when given, would give effect to the increase.

Subsection (c) provides an increase of 7 percent in the rates of basic compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (not including the presiding officer) the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the legislative counsel and senior counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the official reporters of debates of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate, except that no such salary may be raised to an amount above $21,500.

Subsection (d) increases the limitation fixed by law on the compensation of employees of the Senate by the amount necessary to pay the additional compensation provided by the conference substitute bill.

Subsection (e) provides that the provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to employees engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets whose compensation is subject to the new limitation.

Subsection (f) covers elected officers of the House of Representatives (other than Members) and certain other officers of the House of Representatives who are not covered by other provisions of the conference substitute bill. Subsection (f) covers the following officers and employees of the House of Representatives:

(1) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 1 of the House of Representatives, whose total rate of per annum compensation is now prescribed by House Resolution 339, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), and section 117(g) of the Federal

Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The following elected officers of the House of Representatives, whose total rates of per annum compensation are now prescribed by House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(k) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304: Public Law 86–568); the Clerk of the House, the Sergeant at Arms of the House, the Doorkeeper of the House, and the Postmaster of the House;

(3) The chief of staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, whose total per annum compensation is now prescribed under authority of section 302(c) of the act of October 4, 1961 (75 Stat. 793; Public Law 87–367);

(4) The legislative counsel of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed in accordance with a provision relating to the legislative counsel of the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 251; Public Law 85–75) (as modified by secs. 4(c) and 4(m) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 208 and 209; Public Law 85–462)), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(5) The coordinator of information of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under House Resolution 183, 80th Congress, section 105 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1948 (61 Stat. 377; Public Law 197, 80th Cong.), section 2(e) of the act of October 24, 1951 (65 Stat. 612; Public Law 201, 82d Cong.), section 4(c) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 176; Public Law 94, 84th Cong.), section 4(l) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(6) Two printing clerks, one for the majority caucus room and one for the minority caucus room, whose total per annum compensation is now provided for on a present incumbency basis in the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 247; Public Law 85–75), as modified by a comparable provision in each annual appropriation act for the legislative branch, the latest such provision currently being the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962 75 Stat. 325; Public Law 87–130);

(7) Four minority employees of the House in positions referred to in House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under such resolution and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(r) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

The above list of officers and employees within the purview of subsection (f) is not necessarily all-inclusive.

It may be noted, in connection with House officers and employees in the categories covered by subsection (f), that three employees in comparable categories are granted increases in compensation under section 1005(a) rather than subsection (f). These employees are as follows:

(1) The Chaplain of the House of Representatives, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate prescribed by section 6 of the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 508; Public Law 242, 84th Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 2 of the House of Representatives whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate provided by House Resolution 277, 82d Congress, and section 277 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1953 (66 Stat. 478; Public Law 471, 82d Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(3) The clerk to the House Parliamentarian, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of per annum basic rate fixed under House Resolution 486, 85th Congress, and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1959 (72 Stat. 453; Public Law 85–570), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568).

Subsection (g) increases the limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person payable to employees of the House of Representatives engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets by an amount equal to the increases granted to legislative employees under the conference substitute.

Subsection (h) makes clear that the increases provided by section 1005 are to be considered part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Subsection (i) provides that notwithstanding any other provision of section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by such section, and no increase provided by such section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

Subsection (j) provides that, insofar as the provisions of section 1005 apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962. The purpose of subsection (j) is to insure that officers and employees in the legislative branch will receive pay increases at approximately the same time as other officers and employees covered by the conference substitute.

Saving Provision

Section 1006 provides, in effect, that no provision of the conference substitute shall operate to reduce any rate of salary, pay, or compensation of any officer or employee covered by the conference substitute.

Absorption of Costs

Under section 1007, the departments and agencies are directed to provide for absorption of the costs of salary increases from available funds of the executive departments, but this section is not to be considered to require any employee to be separated from the service or placed in a leave-without-pay status.

Effective Dates

Section 1008 provides that title VI, except as otherwise expressly provided, is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

Ceiling Provisions

Section 1009 makes it clear that, except as provided in section 1005, this act will not cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III.—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES UNDER CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT ACT

The House bill contained no provisions such as are contained in the conference substitute under Part III, Adjustment of Annuities.

An explanation of part III of the conference substitute is set forth below.

Section 1101(a) provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the fund which commenced on or before that date.

Subsection (b) extends this initial increase on a graduated percentage basis to all annuities which commence in the 5-year period following January 1, 1963, in accordance with the following schedule:

Annuities commencing between—	Are increased from commencing date by—
Jan. 2, and Dec. 31, 1963	4 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1964	3 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1965	2 percent.
Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1966	1 percent.

Subsection (c) provides that the percentage increase granted a retiree under subsection (a) or (b) will apply to the annuity subsequently granted his survivor.

Subsection (d) excludes from the 1963 increase annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsections (e) and (f) remove the ceilings on increases to retirees imposed by the 1952 and 1955 annuity increase laws. Under the annuity increase act of July 16, 1952, as amended by the act of August 31, 1954, no retiree's annuity (exclusive of that purchased by voluntary contributions) could be raised beyond $2,160. The act of August 11, 1955, similarly provided that no regular annuity could be increased under its terms beyond $4,104. These increase ceilings are repealed and made no longer effective on and after January 1, 1963. Each retiree affected by one or both of these ceilings who is still on the annuity rolls will be entitled to have his annuity rate reestablished as of January 1, 1963, as though these ceilings had never existed. This reestablished rate, plus a 5-percent 1963 increase, will be payable from and after January 1, 1963.

Subsection (g) states effective date provisions for increases.

Subsection (h) provides that monthly annuity rates after adjustment will be fixed to the nearest dollar.

Section 1102(a) adds a new subsection to section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act to define the term "price index" as the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Subsection (b) renumbers present section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act as section 19 and inserts a new section 18. New section 18 embodies an automatic annuity adjustment plan.

The new section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act provides for future adjustment of annuities as follows:

Subsection (a) directs the Civil Service Commission to annually determine, after January 1, 1964, and each succeeding January 1, the percentage change in living costs from 1962 or from the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. Depending on the price index change, adjustment actions ensue.

Subsection (a)(1) provides that if the price index change from 1962 to 1963 equals a rise of at least 3 percent, an increase will be allowable, effective April 1, 1964. All annuities which began before January 2, 1963, will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (a)(2) provides for automatic increases in annuities effective April 1 of any later year after the percentage change in the price index has equaled a rise of at least 3 percent. All annuities payable from the fund as of April 1 which commenced earlier than January 2 of the preceding year will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (b) states the general rule that eligibility for an increase is governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable as of the appropriate April 1 effective date, but with these exceptions to the rule:

Under subsection (b)(1), a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor) on the roll as of the first cost-of-living increase, whose annuity started the date after the retiree's death, will receive the initial increase provided the retiree's commencing date of annuity was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

Under subsection (b)(2), the annuity of a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor), which starts the day after the retiree's death and after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase will be increased from commencing date by whatever percentage increase the retiree was receiving at death.

Under subsection (b)(3), a special method is provided for increasing annuities of child survivors under the current act. These annuities are unique in that they are not the product of years of service times percentage of average salary. The child's rate is the lesser of (i) a set percent of average salary or (ii) a dollar amount which cannot reflect living cost salary increments. Thus, for these annuities, the cost-of-living annuity adjustment must be built into the benefit formula. The following provisions are made for child-survivor annuities which commence after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase:

Existing formula		Increase provided—proposed increase
Spouse surviving	No spouse surviving
40 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	50 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent granted after commencing date of retired parent's annuity. Inapplicable to children of employee, because his average salary includes living cost adjustments which pass on to children.
$1,800 divided by number of children.	$1,160 divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.
$600	$720	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.

Provision is made for applying these formula changes to any child's annuity which commenced in the 15-month period before the effective date of the first increase as if such initial increase had been in effect. Resulting rate adjustments would start on the effective date of the initial cost-of-living increase.

Subsection (c) excludes from cost-of-living increases annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsection (d) provides that monthly annuity rates after cost-of-living increase will be fixed at the nearest dollar.

Section 1103 amends sections 1(j), 9(g), and 10(a)(1) of the Retirement Act to revise and liberalize provisions for children survivors and election of reduced annuity with benefit to widow or widower.

The present section 9(g) of the act permits a married person retiring for any reason to irrevocably elect, in lieu of single life annuity, a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, the choice to be made at time of retirement. The retiring individual may designate all or any portion of the single life annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) as the base for annuity to spouse. To partially support the added survivor protection the retiring individual accepts, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $2,400 and by 10 percent of any amount over $2,400 designated as the base for survivor annuity. Under the present section 10(a)(1), the named spouse becomes entitled to 50 percent of this base amount as widow's or widower's annuity, starting the day after the retiree's death and continuing until remarriage or death.

Under the conference substitute, section 9(g) of the act is amended to accord the retiring married employee a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, unless he affirmatively elects to receive in lieu thereof the single life annuity. In the absence of the life annuity election, the total annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) or such lesser portion as may be designated at time of retirement will be used as the base for annuity to spouse, and the individual will receive, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $3,600 and by 10 percent of any amount over $3,600 which serves as the base for annuity to spouse. Section 10(a)(1) of the act is amended to accord the named spouse 55 percent of the amount used for the survivor base as widow's or widower's annuity, which would start the day after the retiree's death and continue until remarriage or death.

Subsections (c), (d), and (e) similarly amend subsections (b), (c), and (e) of section 10 of the act to uniformly accord a named survivor or a spouse survivor 55 percent, instead of 50 percent, of the annuity in respect to the deceased former employee or member.

Under existing law survivorship benefits paid to a child cease when the child attains the age of 18, marries, or dies except that such benefits may continue past the age of 18 if the child is incapable of self-support due to a disability incurred before attaining the age of 18.

Subsection (f) of section 1103 of the conference substitute amends section 1(j) of the Retirement Act. The substitute retains all present termination provisions but adds the further exception that benefits may continue to the end of the school year in which the child attains the age of 21 only so long as the child pursues a full-time course of study in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution.

This change in the Civil Service Retirement Act is in keeping with veterans' benefit laws which provide for the continuance of benefits between the ages of 18 and 21 to unmarried children while taking an approved course of instruction.

Section 1104 provides that benefits made payable under the Retirement Act by enactment of the conference substitute shall be paid from the retirement fund. This is necessary because of the restriction contained in the paragraph headed "Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund" in section 1 of title I of the act of August 30, 1958.

Section 1105 specifies January 1, 1963, as the effective date for section 1101 and provides that amendments made by section 1103, except subsection (F), will not apply to employees or members retired or otherwise separated prior to date of enactment.

TOM MURRAY,
JAMES H. MORRISON,
ROBERT J. CORBETT,
Managers on the Part of the House.

The addition of the above subsection to the Trading With the Enemy Act has been prompted by complaints made by Mr. Ernest K. Halbach, now deceased, the principal stockholder of General Dyestuff Corp., that a settlement he had entered into of his lawsuit for the return of his vested stock was consummated through coercion and duress exerted against him.

General Dyestuff Corp. was incorporated in 1925 and has been a selling agent for dyestuffs produced by I. G. Farben. All the stock in General Dyestuff Corp. has since its incorporation been subject to an option agreement whereby the optionholder could redeem any of the shares of stock at the option price of $100 per share plus a dividend of 6 percent from the date of the last declaration of dividends. From 1926 until 1933 I. G. Farben itself held the option to purchase the stock. From 1933 until 1938 the option was held by Marion Co., an Illinois corporation, whose own shares of stock were in turn held under option to Ed. Greutert & Cie, of Switzerland, a private banking firm owned and controlled by I. G. Farben. From 1938 to 1939 the option on the General Dyestuff Corp. stock was held by Chemnyco, Inc., a Farben service agency in the United States. In 1939, when the Farben-controlled American I. G. Corp. changed its name to General Aniline & Film Corp., Chemnyco, Inc., renounced its option, thus giving up without any consideration a right to buy $2,500,000 worth of stock for $600,000. D. A. Schmitz, the brother of the head of I. G. Farben, sold his majority stock interest in General Dyestuff Corp., as did two other smaller stockholders, to the corporation itself. The sale was made at the option price of $100 per share, notwithstanding its book value of $460 per share. This stock was resold by the corporation immediately to Halbach, Duisberg, and a few other employees of General Dyestuff Corp. at the price of $100. A new option agreement was signed by Halbach, Duisberg, and all other stockholders giving to General Dyestuff Corp. itself the same option as had always existed with the predecessor optionholders. In 1940 and 1941 two stock dividends were declared, each for 50 percent. As a result, Mr. Halbach's holdings, for example, increased from 2,100 shares to 4,725 shares.

All the stock of General Dyestuff Corp. was vested by the Alien Property Custodian on June 30, 1942, by vesting order No. 33 on the finding and determination that the stock was the property of foreign nationals. Each of the stockholders filed a claim for the return of the seized stock, and most of them—including Mr. Halbach and Dr. Duisberg—instituted lawsuits under section 9(a) of the Trading With the Enemy Act. Dr. Duisberg's lawsuit was dismissed for lack of prosecution, and such dismissal was upheld by the appellate courts. Mr. Halbach and the other stockholders, except Dr. St. George, were represented by the New York City law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, and settlement negotiations were entered into. It was agreed between Mr. Halbach and the other stockholders and the Department of Justice attorneys that their claims would be settled by the payment to each of them of the option price, namely $100 per share plus 6 percent dividends since the last payment of dividends. These negotiations were consummated and payment was made in 1945. Inasmuch as 3 years had elapsed since the last payment of dividends, each of these stockholders—except Dr. St. George and Dr. Duisberg—received $118 per share. Mr. Halbach, for example, received for his 4,725 shares the sum of $557,550. He had paid for these shares $210,000.

From 1942 to 1950 Mr. Halbach remained on the payroll of General Dyestuff Corp. During that period of time he received as salary, bonuses, and salary adjustments the total sum of $558,600. Mr. Halbach retired in August 1950, at which time he was entitled to receive only $257 per month under the company's employee retirement plan and an additional $45 a month under social security. The board of General Dyestuff Corp. resolved, however, to make a voluntary monthly payment to him sufficient to bring him a total retirement pay of $1,500 per month.

In 1951, after his retirement, Mr. Halbach sought to obtain through private legislation and by a suit to vacate the judgment entered after the settlement in 1945 the reopening of his claim for the proceeds of the sale of his vested stock on grounds that the settlement had been entered into by reason of the exertion of coercion and duress against him. His motion to vacate the judgment was fully heard in the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey at which evidence and depositions were taken, and his motion to vacate the judgment was denied on the basis that there had been a complete failure to prove duress.

The Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit upheld the judgment of the lower court after appeal to it, and the Supreme Court of the United States denied certiorari. The issue of duress has been fully litigated. Moreover, the retention of Mr. Halbach as a high-salaried employee of General Dyestuff Corp. after the vesting of all the stock in the corporation, including Halbach's, and the generous treatment of his retirement annuity do not bespeak the duress alleged. Another important factor showing the absence of duress is the settlement that Dr. Duisberg agreed upon some 15 years after the Halbach settlement. Duisberg, the second largest stockholder of General Dyestuff Corp., was the only stockholder of that company with whom the Department of Justice had not settled. He was finally successful in obtaining a House resolution referring his claim against the United States to the Court of Claims for report on the legal and equitable nature of his claim, notwithstanding previous litigation, the statute of limitations, or res judicata. Dr. Duisberg accepted a settlement in 1961 on precisely the same formula as had been offered to Halbach and the other stockholders, namely, the option price of $100 per share plus dividends at 6 percent from 1942 to 1953, when General Dyestuff Corp. ceased to exist as an independent entity.

The stock of General Dyestuff Corp. had been seized notwithstanding its ownership by citizens of the United States because it was believed that the beneficial owner of the stock was I. G. Farben of Germany. The option agreements, the close association of the officers and directors of General Dyestuff Corp., with the personnel of I. G. Farben by blood relationship or economic dependence, and the sole concern of the corporation itself with Farben products, make this clear. After 1939 Mr. Halbach and General Dyestuff Corp., cooperated with I.G. Farben to distribute Farben products to South American companies in evasion of the British blockade. Testimony concerning these activities was presented to the Kilgore committee in December 1945 and is embodied in "Elimination of German Resources for War," hearings before a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, June 1945 to March 1946.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Speaker, while I have strongly supported this legislation, it has long been my hope that the eligibility requirement for consideration of claims could be extended beyond the definition contained in the bill as it originally passed the House. It was my hope that the claims of those who are citizens of the United States at the time of the enactment of this legislation might also be in order, as well as the claims of those who were American citizens at the time the original loss or injury was actually sustained. I supported amendments to H.R. 7283 to that end which were offered at the time the bill was originally considered; unfortunately these amendments did not prevail.

I was therefore delighted when the Senate adopted certain amendments that did liberalize the bill in this very direction, and I was hopeful that the conference committee would accept the Senate amendments.

I am indeed sorry, Mr. Speaker, that the conference report now before us does not retain the Senate wording on this point. I sincerely regret that the House conferees were unwilling to accept the Senate position.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, in spite of this disappointment I shall not vote against the conference report because I believe this legislation is too important to jeopardize in this way at this late date in this session. At least we are making some progress. At least the version finally adopted by the conference committee makes some progress over the original House wording, even though it is not as strong as the Senate wording and not as extensive in its direct coverage of proper and legitimate claimants as I would have wished.

Mr. Speaker, the statement of the managers on the part of the House makes it clear that in the event there remains a balance in the war claims fund, after the payment in full of claims provided under the bill, consideration would be given to legislation providing for payment to these categories of persons.

And the statement goes on to say:

The committee of conference recommends that the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission should proceed to make an estimate of the amount of claims that would be involved in these amendments.

This at least, Mr. Speaker, is a step in the right direction. Hence I shall not oppose the conference report. I hope the Commission will move swiftly to carry out the recommendations of the conference committee. And I am hopeful, too, that the funds available under this program will indeed make it possible to satisfy the claims of those many fine persons who are still technically excluded, but who now at least, are in direct line for relief in line with the provisions of this conference report.

Mr. RYAN of New York. Mr. Speaker, I wish to comment on one deeply disappointing aspect of the conference report on H.R. 7283. The Senate has receded from amendment No. 5, a provision which I believe would have been consistent with our general philosophy of citizenship. This provision would have compensated those citizens who were citizens at the time of pasage of this bill but were not citizens at the time they lost their property.

At the time this bill was before us I fought for such an amendment. I felt then, and still feel, that it is inconsistent with our traditions to treat some citizens different from others. This is nothing more or less than the creation of two classes of citizenship. Such a concept is wholly inconsistent with American jurisprudence.

The conference report attempts to mitigate the error by suggesting that, after all claims are paid under this bill, those citizens, who are now citizens but not when they lost their property, might be compensated. The fact of the matter is, however, that there are over 34,000 claimants for war loss compensation; and the War Claims Commission has estimated that there will not be enough to pay all claims eligible under this bill. I regret that the Conference Committee did not include all citizens.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND

Mr. MACK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have permission to extend their remarks on the conference report, and that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL] may extend his remarks following mine before action was taken on the report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

ADJUSTING POSTAL RATES, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Mr. MURRAY submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 2525)

[To accompany H.R. 7927]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"That this Act may be cited as the 'Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1962'.

"Communist political propaganda

"SEC. 305. (a) Chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"'§ 4008. Communist political propaganda

"'(a) Mail matter, except sealed letters, which originates or which is printed or otherwise prepared in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to rules and regulations to be promulgated by him to be "communist political propaganda", shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the United States domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received and will be delivered only upon the addressee's request, except that such detention shall not be required in the case of any matter which is furnished pursuant to subscription or which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee. If no request for delivery is made by the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed sixty days, the matter detained shall be disposed of as the Postmaster General directs.

"'(b) For the purposes of this section, the term "communist political propaganda" means political propaganda, as defined in section 1(j) of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended (22 U.S.C. 611(j)), issued by or on behalf of any country with respect to which there is in effect a suspension or withdrawal of tariff concessions pursuant to section 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or any country from which any type of foreign assistance is withheld pursuant to section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

"'(c) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable with respect to (1) matter addressed to any United States Government agency, or any public library, or to any college, university, graduate school, or scientific or professional institution for advanced studies, or any official thereof, or (2) material whether or not "communist political propaganda" addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal cultural international agreement under which the United States Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in any country described in subsection (b).'

"(b) The table of contents of chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"'4008. Communist political propaganda.'

"Effective date

"SEC. 306. Except as otherwise provided, the foregoing provisions of this part shall become effective on January 7, 1963.

"Notice with respect to obscene matter distributed by mail and detention thereof

"SEC. 307. In order to alert the recipients of mail and the general public to the fact that large quantities of obsence, lewd, lascivious, and indecent matter are being introduced into this country from abroad and disseminated in the United States by means of the United States mails, the Postmaster General shall publicize such fact (1) by appropriate notices posted in post offices, and (2) by notifying recipients of mail, whenever he deems it appropriate in order to carry out the purposes of this section, that the United States mails may contain such obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter. Any person may file a written request with his local post office to detain obsence, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter addressed to him, and the Postmaster General shall detain and dispose of such matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obsence, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

"PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

"Title I—General Policy

"Short title

"SEC. 501. This part may be cited as the 'Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962'.

"Declaration of policy

"SEC. 502. The Congress hereby declares that, whereas the functions of a Federal salary system are to fix salary rates for the services rendered by Federal employees so as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the Government's programs and to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and whereas fulfillment of these functions is essential to the development and maintenance of maximum proficiency in the civilian services of Government, then, accordingly, Federal salary fixing shall be based upon the principles that—

"(a) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and

"(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

Salary levels for the several Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated, and salary levels shall be set and henceforth adjusted in accordance with the above principles.

"IMPLEMENTATION OF POLICY

"SEC. 503. In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 502, the President: (1) shall direct such agency or agencies, as he deems appropriate, to prepare and submit to him annually a report which compares the rates of salary fixed by statute for Federal employees with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work in private enterprise as determined on the basis of appropriate annual surveys conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and, after seeking the views of such employee organizations as he deems appropriate and in such manner as he may provide, (2) shall report annually to the Congress (a) this comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and (b) such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structures, and compensation policy, as he deems advisable.

"SEC. 504. (a) Whenever the President shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under (1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113 (b)), (2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, (3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or (4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), he may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level: Provided, That in no case shall any minimum salary rate so established exceed the seventh salary rate prescribed by law for the grade or level. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency or agencies as he may designate.

"(b) Within the limitations specified in subsection (a), rates of basic compensation established under such subsection may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

"(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an 'equivalent increase' in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

"SEC. 505. The functions, duties, and regulations of the departments and the Civil Service Commission with respect to this title, the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, and the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38 of the United States Code relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration, shall be subject to such policies and rules as the President may issue. Among other things, the President's policies and rules may provide for—

"(1) preparing and reporting to him the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates,

"(2) obtaining and reporting to him the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison, and on other salary matters,

"(3) reviewing and reporting to him on the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures for the Federal programs to which they apply,

"(4) reviewing the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupation and local areas, and

"(5) providing step-increases in recognition of high quality performance and providing for properly relating supervisory salary rates paid under one system to those of subordinates paid under another system.

"Title II—Pay System of the Classification Act of 1949

"Short title

"SEC. 601. This title may be cited as the 'Classification Act Amendments of 1962'.

"Basic compensation schedules

"SEC. 602. (a) Section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (74 Stat. 298; 5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), is amended to read as follows:

"'(b) The compensation schedules for the General Schedule shall be as follows:

"(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (10) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

"(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first or second longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8; the first longevity step to step 9; and the second longevity step to step 10.

"(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the third longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive basic compensation at the highest rate of the appropriate grade plus an amount equal to the value of the maximum within grade increment provided for that grade in effect on and after such day.

"(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate, of grade 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

"(4) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

"(5) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

"(6) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period, which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of grade 16 or grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

"(7) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

"(8) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate between two scheduled or two longevity rates, or between a scheduled and a longevity rate, of a grade of the General Schedule, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates, as specified in paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection, in effect on and after such day.

"(9) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate in excess of the maximum longevity rate for his grade, or in excess of the maximum scheduled rate for his grade if there is no longevity rate for his grade, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule, in effect on and after such day, prescribed by paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection for employees at the maximum longevity rate or at the maximum scheduled rate, as the case may be, for his grade, or (B) if such rate is less than his existing rate, (i) the lowest rate of the new schedule for his grade which equals or exceeds his existing rate or (ii) if there is no such rate, his existing rate.

"(10) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such day, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

"(11) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after the date of enactment of this Act, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

"(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964, as follows:

"(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at one of the rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

"(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate between two rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates in effect on and after such date.

of basic compensation if such existing rate is higher.

"(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and the amount of the initial increase provided by this section, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

"Step-increases

"SEC. 603. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"'TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

"'SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

"'(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"'(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"'(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"'(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"'SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"'(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

"'SEC. 703. This title shall not apply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.'

"General compensation rules

"SEC. 604. (a) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to read as follows:

"'(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher.'

"(b) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

"'(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is later demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.'.

"(c) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

"'SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act, who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.'.

"Salary retention

"SEC. 605. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

"(1) by striking out '(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)' in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

"(2) by striking out '(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;' in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof '(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;'.

"Top grade positions under classification act of 1949

"SEC. 606. (a) Section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, is amended by striking out 'not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine' and substituting in lieu thereof 'not to exceed an aggregate of twenty-four hundred, in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades'.

"(b) Section 505(j) of such Act is amended by inserting after the word 'positions' the following: '(in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades)'.

"(c) Section 505 of such Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsections:

"'(k) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of ten positions of Warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).

"'(l) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of eight positions of Member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).'

"Conforming changes in existing law

"SEC. 607. (a) The following provisions of law are hereby repealed:

"(1) Section 104 of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 234; 5 U.S.C. 592(d)), authorizing grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 for the position of Budget Officer of the Department of Commerce so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

"(2) Section 206 of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 360; 5 U.S.C. 483–2), authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the position of Director, Division of Budget and Finance, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

"(3) The second paragraph under the heading 'Administrative Provisions' in title III of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 364; 10 U.S.C. 1335, note), authorizing the Chief of Engineers to place the position of Chief of the Programs Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Engineers for Civil Works, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

"(4) Section 24(d) of the Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 62; 42 U.S.C. 2521(d)), authorizing five positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 for agencies performing functions under that Act.

"(5) The fourth sentence of section 3(a) of the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1120; 16 U.S.C. 7426(a)), relating to the annual salary of the Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife in the Department of the Interior, which reads: 'He shall receive compensation at the same rate as that provided for grade GS–18.'.

"(6) That part of section 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 200; 7 U.S.C. 1857), relating to the annual salary of an agricultural surplus disposal administrator in the Department of Agriculture, which reads: ', at a salary rate of not exceeding $15,000 per annum,'.

"(7) Section 1102 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (63 Stat. 971; 5 U.S.C. 1073), relating to the submission of reports with respect to the rates of compensation under, and the administration of, such Act.

"(b) The second proviso of the paragraph under the heading 'FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM' and under the subheading 'SALARIES AND EXPENSES, BUREAU OF PRISONS' in title II (the Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956) of the Departments of State and Justice, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 273; Public Law 133, Eighty-fourth Congress; 5 U.S.C. 298a) is amended by striking out 'three positions' and inserting in lieu thereof 'one position'.

"SEC. 608. (a) Each position specifically referred to in, or covered by, any repeal made by section 607(a) of this title shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, in accordance with the provisions of such Act.

"(b) Positions in grade 16, 17, or 18, as the case may be, of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, immediately prior to the effective date of this section, shall remain, on and after such effective date, in their respective grades, until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect on and after such effective date.

"SEC. 609. (a) The changes in existing law made by this title shall not affect any position existing immediately prior to the effective date of any such changes in existing law, the compensation attached to such position, and any incumbent thereof, his appointment thereto, and his entitlement to receive the compensation attached thereto, until appropriate action is taken in accordance with this title.

"(b) The incumbent of each such position immediately prior to the effective date of this title shall continue to receive the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving immediately prior to such effective date until he leaves such position or until he is entitled to receive compensation at a higher rate in accordance with law. When such incumbent leaves such position, the rate of basic compensation of each subsequent appointee to such position shall be determined in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"Effective dates

"SEC. 610. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

"Title III—Postal Field Service Employees

"Short title

"SEC. 701. This title may be cited as the 'Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962'.

"Postal Field Service Schedules

"SEC. 702. Subsection (a) of section 3542 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(a) There are established basic compensation schedules for positions in the postal field service which shall be known as the Postal Field Service Schedules and for which the symbol shall be "PFS". Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Except as provided in sections 3543 and 3544 of this title, basic compensation shall be paid to all employees in accordance with these schedules.

"(b) Section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes.'

"(c) The first sentence of section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: 'In addition to the compensation provided in the Rural Carrier Schedule, each rural carrier shall be paid for equipment maintenance a sum equal to—

"'(1) 12 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

"'(2) $4.20 per day, whichever is greater.'

"(d) Section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding thereto new subsections (i) and (j) as follows:

"'(i) Each person serving as a substitute of record on the effective date of this subsection shall be placed in step 2 of the Rural Carrier Schedule and he shall be advanced by step-increases, on the basis of time on the rolls prior to the effective date, in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552, except that no such person shall be so advanced to a step higher than the step to which a regular carrier with the same length of service would have advanced prior to such effective date. Thereafter, he shall be advanced by step-increases, pursuant to the provisions of sections 3552 and 3553 of this title. On and after the effective date of this subsection, each substitute rural carrier shall be paid the daily rate, based on the step attained by him, for the route on which service is performed.

"'(j) Each temporary rural carrier who, on the effective date of this subsection, is serving on a vacant route pending the appointment of a regular rural carrier shall be placed in step 2 and shall be advanced by step-increases on the basis of any prior substitute or temporary rural carrier service in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552.'

"Fourth Class Office Schedules

"SEC. 704. (a) Section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(a) There are established basic compensation schedules which shall be known as the Fourth Class Office Schedules, and for which the symbol shall be "FOS", for postmasters in post offices of the fourth class. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Each such schedule is based upon the gross postal receipts as contained in returns of the post office for the calendar year immediately preceding. Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with these schedules.

"(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary may be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposes of advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment.'

"SEC. 705. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases

"'(a)(1) Each employee in levels 1 through 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, each employee subject to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and each employee subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step as follows:

"'(A) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"'(B) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"'(2) Each employee in the postal field service in level 7 or above of the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"'(A) To steps 2, 3, and 4—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service;

"'(B) To steps 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and four calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"'(C) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"'(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law on or after the date of enactment of the Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962, to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

"'(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services.'

"SEC. 706. Section 3554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3554. Compensation of certain temporary employees

"'Temporary employees hired for a continuous period of one year or less for a position in the postal field service shall be paid basic compensation at the entrance step of the position to which they are appointed.'.

"SEC. 707. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3559. Promotions

"'An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the rate for the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.'

"SEC. 708. Subsection (a)(4) of section 6402 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(4) delivery and collection service may not be established or extended under a star route contract on a rural route except when such rural route does not meet the minimum standards established by the Postmaster General, and becomes vacant; and'.

"SEC. 709. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

"'(5) "basic salary" and "basic compensation" mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.'.

"SEC. 710. Subsection 3541(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by (a) inserting in paragraph (3) thereof, after 'rural carriers,' the phrase '(other than substitute rural carriers),' and (b) adding a new paragraph (5) as follows:

"'(5) To compute the daily rate of basic compensation for substitute rural carriers, the annual rate of compensation shall be divided by 304.'.

"Conversion as of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this act

"SEC. 711. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to Postal Field Service Schedule I or Rural Carrier Schedule I, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

"(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees (except employees subject to section 3543(j) of title 39, United States Code) in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7, step 7 to step 8. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph.

"(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

"(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1) prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a), and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

"(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule I on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

"(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

"(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

"(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

"(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

"Conversion as of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964

"SEC. 712. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule II, Rural Carrier Schedule II, or Fourth Class Office Schedule II, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

"(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

"(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

"SEC. 713. Subject to sections 711(c) and 712(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary.

"Basic salary in cases of assignments of postal employees

"SEC. 714. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: 'The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.'.

"(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b), if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment. Payments of increases validated by this subsection shall be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267).

"Salary protection revision

"SEC. 715. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,'.

"(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and'.

"(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

"(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting '; or' in lieu of such period, and

"(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"'(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.'.

"(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

"(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date ef enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

"Rules for special compensation

"SEC. 716. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106 as follows:

"'§ 3106. Special compensation rules

"'In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may, within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase.'

"Personnel requirements

"SEC. 717. (a) Section 3301 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3301. Personnel requirements

"'The Postmaster General shall determine the personnel requirements of the postal field service, and fix the number of supervisors and other employees in that service, except that there may not be at any one time more than one assistant postmaster employed at any post office or a total of 70 employees assigned to salary levels 18, 19, and 20 in the postal field service.'

"(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word 'Provided,' the following: 'That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950, shall not be chargeable to this limitation: And provided further,'.

"Conforming amendment

"SEC. 718. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after the heading entitled 'EMPLOYEES GENERALLY', the following:

"'3106. Special compensation rules'.

"(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting '3558. Longevity step-increases'.

"Repeals

"SEC. 719. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296, Public Law 86–568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed.

"Title IV—Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration

"SEC. 801. (a) Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended by striking out the words 'not to exceed eight Assistant Chief Medical Directors' in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words 'not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated to suit the needs of the Department,'.

"(b) Such section is further amended by striking out subsections (d) to (i), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"'(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid a salary of $20,000 a year.

"'One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"'(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid a salary of $18,500 minimum to $19,500 maximum a year.

"'(f) The Director of Nursing Service shall be a qualified registered nurse, appointed by the Administrator, and shall be responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operation of the Nursing Service. During the period of service as such, the Director of Nursing Service shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"'The date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"'January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"SEC. 1004. (a) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in or under the judicial branch of the Government whose rates of compensation are fixed by or pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision a of section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. 102(a)(2)), section 3656 of title 18 of the United States Code, the third sentence of section 603, section 604(a)(5), or section 672 to 675, inclusive, of title 28 of the United States Code, or section 107(a)(6) of the Act of July 31, 1956, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2206 (a)(6)), are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"(b) The limitations provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"Employees in the legislative branch

"SEC. 1005. (a) Each officer and employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be paid additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of his gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law).

"(b) The basic compensation of each employee in the office of a Senator is hereby adjusted, effective on October 16, 1962, to the lowest multiple of $60 which will provide a gross rate of compensation not less than the gross rate such employee was receiving immediately prior thereto, except that the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of any employee if on or before the fifteenth day following the date of enactment of this Act the Senator by whom such employee is employed notifies the disbursing office of the Senate in writing that he does not wish such provisions to apply to such employee. In any case in which, at the expiration of the time within which a Senator may give notice under this subsection, such Senator is deceased such notice shall be deemed to have been given.

"(c) Notwithstanding the provision referred to in subsection (d), the rates of gross compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (except the Presiding Officer of the Senate), the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate, the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the Senior Counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate are hereby increased by 7 per centum.

"(d) The paragraph imposing limitations on basic and gross compensation of officers and employees of the Senate appearing under the heading 'SENATE' in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568), is amended to read as follows:

" 'No officer or employee whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of $8,880 per annum, or gross compensation at a rate in excess of $18,880 per annum, unless expressly authorized by law.'

"(e) The limitation on gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the Senate is hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. The provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall not apply to employees whose compensation is subject to such limitation.

"(f) Each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of the rate of his total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section.

"(g) The limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives are hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of each such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

"(h) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following).

"(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by this section, and no increase provided by this section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

"(j) Insofar as the provisions of this section apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962.

"Saving provision

"SEC. 1006. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

"Absorption of costs

"SEC. 1007. (a) The departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions.

"(b) No request for additional or supplemental appropriations to meet the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act shall be transmitted to the Congress unless it is accompanied by a certication of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget that the amounts requested are necessary to provide for the continued execution of essential functions of the department, agency, or corporation concerned.

"(c) Pursuant to the objective of this section, heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignation, retirement, or death and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions.

"(d) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

"Effective date

"SEC. 1008. Except as otherwise expressly provided, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

"Ceiling provision

"SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

"PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

"SEC. 1101. (a) The annuity of each person who, on the effective date of this section, is receiving or entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity.

"(b) The annuity of each person who receives or is entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund commencing during the period which begins on the day following the effective date of this section and ends five years after such date, shall be increased in accordance with the following table:

"If the annuity commences between—	The annuity shall be increased by—
January 2, 1963, and December 31, 1963	4 per centum
January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1964	3 per centum
January 1, 1965, and December 31, 1965	2 per centum
January 1, 1966, and December 31, 1966	1 per centum

"(c) In lieu of any other increase provided by this section, the annuity of a survivor of a retired employee or Member of Congress who received an increase under this section shall be increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which the annuity of such employee or Member was so increased.

"(d) No increase provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"(e) The limitation reading 'or (3) the sum necessary to increase such annuity, exclusive of annuity purchased by voluntary contributions under the second paragraph of section 10 of this Act, to $2,160' contained in section 8(c)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended by the Acts of July 16, 1952 (66 Stat. 722; Public Law 555, Eighty-second Congress), and August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1043; Public Law 747, Eighty-third Congress), shall not be effective on or after the effective date of this section.

"(f) The limitation contained in the next to the last sentence of section 8(d)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, as enacted by the Act of August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 692; Public Law 369, Eighty-fourth Congress), shall not be effective on and after the effective date of this section.

"(g) The increases provided by this section shall take effect on the effective date of this section, except that any increase under subsection (b) or (c) shall take effect on the beginning date of the annuity.

"(h) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.

"SEC. 1102. (a) Section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

" '(t) The term "price index"' shall mean the annual average over a calendar year of the Consumer Price Index (all items—United States city average) published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.'

"(b) Such Act is further amended by redesignating section 18 as 19, and by inserting after section 17 the following new section:

" 'Cost-of-living adjustment of annuities

" 'SEC. 18. (a) After January 1, 1964, and after each succeeding January 1, the Commission shall determine the per centum change in the price index from the later of 1962 or the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. On the basis of such Commission determination, the following adjustments shall be made:

" '(1) Effective April 1, 1964, if the change in the price index from 1962 to 1963 shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2, 1963, shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

" '(2) Effective April 1 of any year other than 1964 after the price index change shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2 of the preceding year shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

" '(b) Eligibility for an annuity increase under this section shall be governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable from the fund as of the effective date of an increase, except as follows:

" '(1) Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commenced the day after the annuitant's death, shall be increased as provided in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) if the commencing date of annuity to the annuitant was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

" '(2) Effective from its commencing date, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commences the day after the annuitant's death and after the effective date of the first increase under this section, shall be increased by the total per centum increase the annuitant was receiving under this section at death.

" '(3) For purposes of computing an annuity which commences after the effective date of the first increase under this section to a child under section 10(d), the items $600, $720, $1,800, and $2,160 appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section, and, in case of a deceased annuitant, the items 40 per centum and 50 per centum appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section to the annuitant at death. Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply as if such first increase were in effect with respect to computation of a child's annuity under section 10(d) which commenced between January 2 of the year preceding the first increase and the effective date of the first increase.

"'(c) No increase in annuity provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"'(d) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.'

"SEC. 1103. (a) Section 9(g) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended to read as follows:

"'(g) The annuity as hereinbefore provided (excluding any increase because of retirement under section 7) for any married employee or Member retiring under this Act, or any portion of such annuity designated in writing for purposes of section 10(a)(1), shall be reduced by 2½ per centum of so much thereof as does not exceed $3,600 and by 10 per centum of so much thereof as exceeds $3,600, unless the employee or Member notifies the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in section 10(a)(1).'

"(b) Section 10(a)(1) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"'(1) If an employee or Member dies after having retired under any provision of this Act and is survived by a wife or husband to whom the employee or Member was married at the time of retirement, such wife or husband shall be paid an annuity equal to 55 per centum of an annuity computed as provided in subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 9, as may apply with respect to the annuitant, or of such portion thereof as may have been designated in writing for such purpose by the employee or Member at the time of retirement, unless the employee or Member has notified the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive such annuity.'

"(c) Section 10(b) of such Act is amended by striking out '50 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '55 per centum'.

"(d) Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking out '50 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '55 per centum'.

"(e) Section 10(e) of such Act is amended by striking out '50 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '55 per centum'.

"(f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: 'or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have attained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim.'

"(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: 'The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, (2) his becoming capable of self-support after age eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one.'

"SEC. 1104. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the benefits made payable under the Civil Service Retirement Act by reason of the enactment of this part shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund.

"SEC. 1105. Section 1101 of this part shall take effect on January 1, 1963. The amendments made by section 1103 (except subsection (b)) shall not apply in the case of employees or Members retired or otherwise separated prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and the rights of such persons and their survivors shall continue in the same manner and to the same extent as if these amendments had not been enacted."

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) entitled "An act to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes," submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The committee of conference recommends that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for both the text of the House bill and the text provided by the Senate amendment and that the Senate agree to the same.

The text of the House bill related only to postal rates.

The Senate amendment to the House text consisted of three parts.

Part I of the Senate amendment, consisting of three titles, related to postal rates. Title I of part I covered postal rate increases. Title II of part I contained amendments to the postal policy provisions of the postal laws. Title III of part I contained certain miscellaneous amendments to the postal laws.

Part II of the Senate amendment, consisting of six titles, related to Federal salary reform. Title I of part II contained a statement of policy with respect to Federal salary reform. Title II of part II contained provisions revising the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Title III of part II revised the compensation schedules of title 39, United States Code, and contained certain related provisions, with respect to postal field service employees. Title IV of part II of the Senate amendment contained salary increases for physicians, dentists, and nurses, and other personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. Title V of part II revised the salary rates for personnel in the Foreign Service under the Department of State prescribed by the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended. Title VI of part II contains certain miscellaneous salary provisions which, in effect, revise the compensation rates for the following groups of employees: (1) certain scientific and professional employees; (2) agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees; (3) assistant U.S. attorneys; (4) employees in the judicial branch; (5) employees in the legislative branch.

Part III of the Senate amendment contained provisions making adjustments in annuities under the Civil Service Retirement Act, as amended.

The conference substitute, with the exceptions to be noted, is in general the same as the Senate amendment. Except for technical and minor drafting changes, the differences between the text of the House bill and the conference substitute are discussed below.

A summary of the major provisions of the conference substitute follow.

SUMMARY OF MAJOR PROVISIONS OF CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

Increased postal revenue

Postal revenue will be increased by $600.3 million per annum when all of the postal rate adjustments provided by part I of the conference substitute are placed in effect. Such increased revenue and the public service policy provisions of the conference substitute will—when adjustment in rates and conditions of mailability of fourth-class mail for which the Postmaster General has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission (as required by law) shall be approved—eliminate the postal deficit.

Such increased postal revenue provided by part I of the conference substitute is approximately $20 million less than the aggregate annual increased postal revenue of $620 million which would have been provided by the postal rate adjustment bill recommended to the House of Representatives by the Postmaster General and presented for consideration by the chairman of the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service on January 23, 1962.

A table comparing present and proposed postal rates follows:

Salary increases

Part II of the conference substitute places in effect major provisions of the Federal statutory salary reform proposal submitted to the Congress by the President earlier in the current session. The essential requirements of comparability of Federal and private enterprise salary rates, internal alinement of Federal salary schedules, and annual review and adjustment of salaries recommended by the President are provided by part II of the conference substitute. The chief differences between such part of the conference substitute and the President's recommendations are (1) salary adjustments under the conference substitute are in two phases, spaced 15 months apart, instead of three annual phases as recommended by the President, and (2) the three highest grades of the Classification Act of 1949 and the three highest levels of the postal field service schedule receive only one upward adjustment, leaving the final determination of the appropriate salaries for such grades and levels for consideration in the next Congress.

The conference substitute also provides comparable salary adjustments for employees in the judicial branch, agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees, congressional employees, and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed by administrative action. This is in conformity with the policy adopted by the Congress in all recent salary increase legislation.

The conference substitute provides salary increases which, when all are in effect, will average 11.2 percent for postal field service employees and 9.6 percent for classified employees and certain others.

Cost of salary increases

The annual cost of the salary reform provisions of the conference substitute will be $1.049 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964, when the salary adjustments provided for therein become fully effective. The salary reform legislation recommended by the President would have cost $1.054 billion a year beginning in the calendar year 1965. The annual cost of Federal civilian salary reform provisions contained in H.R. 9531, as reported favorably by the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service but not acted upon by the House, would have been $1.469 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964—a difference of $420 million savings under the conference substitute.

Civil service retirement annuities

Part III of the conference substitute—

1. Provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the civil service retirement fund which commenced on or before that date.

2. Applies the increase on a graduated reduction basis to all annuities which commence in the 4-year period following January 1, 1963, in keeping with the practice followed in the last previous enactment of this kind.

3. Provides that the proper proportion of the increase granted an annuitant will accrue to his survivors.

4. Excludes from the increase annuity amounts purchased by voluntary contributions.

5. Removes the ceilings on increases imposed by certain previous enactments.

6. Provides for future adjustments in the event the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics increases not less than 3 percent.

7. Raises from $2,400 to $3,600 the portion of annuity to which the reduction of 2½ percent applies when electing survivorship benefits.

8. Increases the ratio of survivorship benefits from 50 to 55 percent.

9. Reverses present procedure by providing that in the future survivorship benefits will be automatic unless an adverse election is made.

10. Extends the right of survivorship benefits for children to the end of any school year in which a child attains the age of 21 years so long as the child pursues full-time studies in a school, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. This change is in keeping with provisions of veterans' benefit laws.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE TEXT OF THE HOUSE BILL AND THE CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

PART I—POSTAL SERVICE

Postal rates

Both the House bill and part I of the conference substitute provide increases in postal rates and certain changes in the public service features of postal policy under chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

First-class mail

Section 3 of the House bill and section 101 of the conference substitute both provide for increases in the rate on first-class letter mail from 4 to 5 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, in the rate on drop letters from 3 to 4 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, and in the rate on each post card and each postal card from 3 to 4 cents.

Airmail

The amendments made by section 4 of the House bill increase the postage rates on airmail letters from 7 cents to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 cents to 6 cents. The existing requirement of minimum first-class ounce rates for air parcel post first-class matter is retained, but the existing minimum rate of 3 cents an ounce on such matter is eliminated.

Section 102 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on airmail letters from 7 to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof, and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 to 6 cents.

In keeping with the increase of 8 cents on airmail weighing 8 ounces, the first pound rate for air parcel post (other than first-class matter) is increased 8 cents. Air parcel post rates for first-class matter will be the regular 8-cent-an-ounce rate for each of the first 8 ounces, and the regular first-class letter rate of 5 cents an ounce for each ounce or fraction thereof over 8 ounces, but in no case less than the air parcel post rate for other matter.

Second-class mail within county of publication

Section 5 of the House bill removes the requirement, in connection with free-in-county mail, that publications must be printed in the county in which published.

Section 103 of the conference substitute eliminates free-in-county mailings, and extends to all such within-county mailings for calendar years 1963 and 1964 the existing 1 cent per pound and one-eighth cent minimum charge now applicable to certain categories of within-county mailings. At the start of calendar year 1965, the pound rate would be increased to 1¼ cents. The minimum charge per piece would remain at one-eighth cent. Existing per-copy rates applicable to publications issued less frequently or more frequently than once a week when mailed for delivery by letter carrier at the office of mailing are left unchanged.

Second-class mail beyond county of publication

Section 6 of the House bill imposes a piece rate charge of one-half cent effective July 1, 1962, and a piece rate charge of 1 cent effective July 1, 1963, to be paid in addition to existing pound rates.

Section 104(a) of the conference substitute increases second-class pound rates and the minimum charge per piece of publications for delivery outside the county of publication except that the current minimum charge of one-half cent per copy is not changed in the case of publications mailing less than 5,000 copies per issue outside the county of publication. The increase in pound rates on the nonadvertising portion is in three annual increments of 4 percent each year. The increase in pound rates on the nonadvertising portion is in three annual increments of 4 percent each year. The increase in pound rates on the advertising portion is in three annual increments of 0.4 cent each. The schedule provides increases after 3 years of 40 percent in zones 1 and 2; 30 percent in zone 3; 20 percent in zone 4; 15 percent in zone 5; and 12 percent in zone 6. The existing rates of 12 cents and 14 cents in zones 7 and 8, respectively, are not changed.

Any issue of a publication the advertising portion of which does not exceed 5 per centum of the entire issue will pay 0.55 of a cent per piece when mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964, 0.65 of a cent per piece when mailed during calendar year 1964, and 0.75 of a cent per piece when mailed after December 31, 1964.

Subsection (a) except as noted above also increases the minimum charge on the above publications in annual increments over a 3-year period from one-half cent to six-tenths of a cent, eight-tenths of a cent, and 1 cent, respectively.

Subsection (a) also fixes the postage rate on classroom publications at 60 percent of the regular rate. The rate applicable to the total content of publications of qualified nonprofit organizations (advertising and nonadvertising portions alike) is maintained at 1 cent per pound less than the pound rate applicable to the nonadvertising portion of regular publications. This produces a rate for these publications of less than 50 percent of the pound rates described above and the minimum per piece rate is retained at the present one-eighth of 1 cent.

Subsection (b) of section 104 extends the nonprofit rate to publications of official State highway agencies which meet all requirements for second-class entry and which contain no advertising. However, only one such publication in any State could be mailed at this rate. Also, the nonprofit rate is extended to associations of rural electric cooperatives.

Subsection (c) repeals existing law to the extent necessary to give effect to the changes in rates discussed above.

Second-class transient mail

Section 105 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on the first 2 ounces of transient mail from 2 to 4 cents.

The House bill has no comparable provision relating to transient mail.

Controlled circulation publications

Section 8 of the House bill increases the rate to be paid by controlled circulation publications from 12 cents a pound to 14 cents a pound.

Section 106 of the conference substitute increases the pound rate on controlled circulation publications from 12 to 12½ cents the first year, to 13 cents the second year, and to 13½ cents thereafter.

Third-class mail

Section 9 of the House bill provides increases in rates for third-class mail as follows:

1. The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof to 4 cents.

2. The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants) is increased from 16 to 21 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants is increased from 10 to 18 cents except in the case of mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations which remains at 10 cents. The minimum rate per piece for other than qualified nonprofit organizations is increased from 2½ cents to 3½ cents.

3. The minimum rate on pieces of odd size is increased from 3½ cents to 4½ cents.

Section 107 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in rates for third-class mail.

1. The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof and 1½ cents on each additional ounce or fraction thereof to 4 and 2 cents, respectively.

2. The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants) is increased from 16 to 18 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants is increased from 10 to 12 cents. The minimum rate per piece in either instance is increased in three annual increments—first to 2⅝ cents, a year later to 2¾ cents, and a year following that to 2⅞ cents.

Section 107 continues in effect the present minimum per piece charge on bulk third-class mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations and provides that the pound rates for such mailings shall be 50 per centum of the regular pound rates for bulk third-class mailings as embodied in the conference agreement.

In addition to the foregoing, this section raises the fee for a third-class bulk mailing permit from $20 to $30 and increases the minimum weight requirement from 20 to 50 pounds. This should have been adjusted in 1958 when the weight for third-class mail was increased from 8 to 16 ounces. One of the requirements for the bulk third-class pound rates is that such mail be in quantities of 20 pounds or of not less than 200 pieces. When the weight limit was 8 ounces a minimum of 40 such pieces was necessary, but when the weight limit was raised to 16 ounces only 20 such pieces was necessary to comply with the minimum weight limit. This is entirely too small a number of pieces to justify the bulk pound rate. Thus, in the future, to obtain the bulk third-class rate, it will be necessary to mail a minimum of 50 pounds or 200 pieces.

Fourth-class mail

Section 108 of the conference substitute restores to the States of Alaska and Hawaii the benefits of certain provisions relating to the maximum size and weight of fourth-class parcels mailed at or for delivery at first-class post offices which they enjoyed prior to their admission as States. Under these provisions, such parcels could be as large as 100 inches in length and girth combined and could weigh as much as 70 pounds. These are the maximums which are already applicable generally to parcels mailed at or for delivery at second-, third-, and fourth-class post offices or rural and star routes, and to parcels mailed at or for delivery at Army, Air Force, or Fleet Post Offices. The conditions which led to the original extension of these maximums to Alaska and Hawaii while in territorial status have not been altered by statehood and those maximums should be restored.

Section 109.—This section provides an increase in fourth-class postage rates on books, films, and similar educational materials from 9 cents for the first pound to 9½ cents during the first year and to 10 cents thereafter. The existing rate of 5 cents on each additional percent will continue without change.

The postage rates on fourth-class library materials would remain at 4 cents on the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The House bill contained no provisions comparable to section 108 or 109 of the conference substitute.

Fees for second-class entry and registration

The House bill made no change in fees for second-class mail.

Section 110 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in second-class mailing fees:

	Existing fee	Proposed fee
Circulation:
Not over 2,000	$25	$30
2,000 to 5,000	50	60
Over 5,000	100	120
Reentry	10	15
Additional entry	10	[1] 15 / [2] 50
News agent	20	25

[2] Zones 3 to 8.

Permit fees for mailing without stamps

Section 111 of the conference substitute increases from $10 to $15 the permit fee for mailing without stamps.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Fixing of fees by Postmaster General

Section 112 of the conference substitute gives the Postmaster General the authority to adjust second-class entry and registration fees and permit fees for mailing with printed postage indicia in the future.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Keys and other small articles

Section 113 of the conference substitute increases from 5 cents for each 2 ounces to 6 cents for each 2 ounces the postage rate on keys and other small articles mailed without the prepayment of postage. The House bill contains no such provisions.

Method of determining gross receipts

Section 11 of the House bill and section 114 of the conference substitute both provide that increased revenues derived from the rate increases shall be excluded in determining compensation and allowances of postmasters and other employees and classes of post offices.

This is similar to the provision contained in the 1958 Postal Increase Act.

Qualifications of postmasters

Section 115 of the conference substitute requires the Civil Service Commission, in evaluating the qualifications of applicants for positions of postmaster, to give appropriate consideration to experience in the postal field service.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

TITLE II—POSTAL POLICY

Section 2 of the House bill revises and strengthens the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees originally enacted as the Postal Policy Act of 1958 and now contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

Subsection (a) clarifies and strengthens the language of such policy with respect to the determination of postal expenses attributable to the performance of public service by the Postal Establishment.

Subsection (b) makes several important changes in the existing provisions of law with respect to identification of public services rendered by the Postal Establishment and the determination of the costs of such public services which shall be excluded from postal expenses for purposes of fixing postal rates and fees.

The first such change (sec. 2(b) (1) and (2)) provides that "the estimated calculated loss" from operation of third- and fourth-class post offices, star routes, and rural routes shall be held and considered to be an item of public service rendered by the Postal Establishment. Under present law, the "loss" on star routes and third- and fourth-class post offices is designated as an item of public service.

The second such change (sec. 2(b)(3)) supplies a needed clear definition of the terms "loss" and "total loss" as applied to revenues and expenses of the public service items specified in the law—a definition which was not included in the Postal Policy Act of 1958. This definitive language, coupled with the remaining provisions of section 2 of the bill, will provide standards and guidelines which are necessary for the Postmaster General to determine the amount of public service charges to be excluded from postal expenses each year for purposes of considering the need for adjustments in postal rates and fees.

The amendment made by section 2(c) requires the Postmaster General, on or before February 1 of each year beginning with the year 1962, to report to the Congress the amount by which costs of the public service items set forth in the postal policy provisions exceed revenues from such public service items and specifies, further, that the amount so determined and reported shall be excluded from the total cost of postal operations for purposes of adjustment of postal rates and fees. The last sentence of the amendment requires that the amount so determined and reported (and thus excluded from total operating costs for rate and fee purposes) shall be not less than 7½ percent of the total current budget of the Post Office Department.

The amendment made by section 2(d) is a technical amendment which conforms the table of contents of the appropriate chapter of title 39, United States Code, with the amendments made by the remainder of section 2 of the bill.

Section 201 of the conference substitute makes changes necessary to clarify and strengthen the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code. Further, certain technical changes are made necessary by the elimination of free-in-county mailing under section 104. This section resolves a problem of long standing by providing a formula for use in determining the amount that shall be considered public service costs in the operation of star and rural routes and third- and fourth-class post offices. The conference substitute provides that 10 percent of the gross cost of the operation of third-class post offices and the star route system, and 20 percent of the gross cost of the operation of fourth-class post offices and rural routes shall be attributable to public service.

TITLE III—MISCELLANEOUS

Eligibility of certain organizations for second-class entry

Section 301 of the conference substitute adds publications of State industrial development agencies and public or nonprofit elementary and secondary schools to the list of those entitled to second-class entry without the necessity of having a bona fide list of regular subscribers.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Educational materials

Section 10 of the House bill makes certain technical changes in the preferential educational and library material rate listings to reflect the substantive changes made by Public Law 86-644, approved July 14, 1960. The subsection also supplies corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39, United States Code, which extends the preferential library materials rates to scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, and devices, and catalogs and guides or scripts relating to their use. The existing preferential rates of 9 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 5 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof on educational materials and 4 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 1 cent a pound for each additional pound or fraction thereof on library materials are retained.

Section 302 of the conference substitute provides corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39 relating to the inclusion of guides, scripts, and catalogs with scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, or devices and sound recordings.

The conference substitute adds looseleaf pages, and binders therefor, consisting of medical information for distribution to doctors, hospitals, medical schools, and medical students to the educational materials category.

Reading matter and other materials for blind persons

Section 303 of the conference substitute revises sections 4653 and 4654 of title 39, United States Code, which relate to the mailing of reading and other materials for the use of blind persons. The changes made in these sections are designed to accomplish the following:

1. Existing law permits the free mailing to blind persons of books with raised type and recordings. This section would add books printed in sightsaving size type to this category. It would also make clear that the term "recordings" includes sound tapes.

2. Under present law public libraries and public institutions for the blind may mail free of postage books being loaned to blind persons. This section extends this privilege to any nonprofit organizations which lends books to the blind.

3. Extends the same free mailing treatment to reading materials mailed to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons as when sent directly to the blind persons.

4. Existing law permits magazines furnished to blind persons at cost to be mailed at the rate of 1 cent a pound. This section extends that rate to other reading materials furnished to blind persons at cost. It also makes it applicable where the materials are sent to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons.

5. Under present law sound reproduction devices owned by the United States which have been loaned to blind persons may be returned by those persons for repair at a postage rate of 1 cent a pound. The Postmaster General has authority to extend this rate to reproducers owned by States, public libraries, nonprofit agencies, and blind persons themselves. This section would eliminate the 1-cent-a-pound charge and permit free mailing of these devices. It also authorizes the Postmaster General, in his discretion, to extend free mailing privilege to the sending by State agencies, public libraries, private nonprofit agencies for the blind, and blind persons themselves, of paper, records, tapes, and other materials owned by them for use by the recipients for the production of reading matter in raised characters or sight saving size type, or in the form of recordings, for the use of blind persons. The House bill has no similar provision.

Repeals and technical amendments

Section 9(c) of the House bill and section 304 of the conference substitute repeal section 3 of the act of October 30, 1951 (Public Law 86–56). Also, paragraph (3) of the conference substitute repeals the following substantive provisions of law:

(1) Section 4361 of title 39, which authorizes publishers to mail proofs of advertisements at second-class zone rates applicable to advertising portions.

(2) Section 4652 of title 39, which permits public mailing of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD from the District of Columbia at the rate of 1 cent per copy.

Communist political propaganda

Section 12 of the House-passed bill contains a provision which would amend section 505 of title 39, United States Code (international postal arrangements) for the purpose of excluding Communist political propaganda from the U.S. mails.

This section in the House bill also contains provisions designed to accomplish this purpose with respect to mail originating within the United States as well as mail originating outside the United States. Under these provisions mail matter determined by the Attorney General to be Communist political propaganda which is financed or sponsored by a Communist-controlled government is nonmailable within the United States, except as fourth-class mail.

During extensive hearings on section 12 of H.R. 7927, widely divergent views were expressed as to the need for such a provision and the form any such provision should take. Following extended deliberations in executive session, the committee has agreed upon what it considers to be an appropriate substitute which meets many of the objections expressed during the hearings, and which is designed to provide a workable solution to the problem of Communist political propaganda arriving for distribution in the United States.

Section 305 of the conference substitute consists of a modification of S. 2740, introduced by Senator BUSH on January 25, 1962, which would have had the effect of reinstating the program of screening Communist political propaganda substantially as that program was conducted prior to March 17, 1961.

Section 305 of the conference substitute provides for a program under which, with certain exceptions, Communist political propaganda coming into the United States from foreign countries would be intercepted and would be delivered only upon the request of the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed 60 days.

Section 305 specifically provides that mail matter, except sealed letters, originating in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be Communist political propaganda shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the U.S. domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received. Such detention would not be required in the case of any matter which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee.

Exempted would be matter addressed to Government agencies, to libraries, or to colleges, universities, graduate schools, scientific or professional institutions for advanced studies, or any individual connected therewith. Likewise, material addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal international agreement under which the U.S. Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in a Communist country, would be exempted.

In order to furnish guidelines to the Secretary of the Treasury as to what constitutes Communist political propaganda, the entire definition of political propaganda contained in the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1948 is incorporated by reference and related to matter issued by or on behalf of any country from which tariff concessions have been withdrawn under section 5 of the Trade Agreement Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or which is denied assistance under section 620 (f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Effective date

Section 13 of the House bill provides an effective date of July 1, 1962. Section 306 of the conference substitute provides that, except as otherwise provided, the provisions of Part I—Postal Service shall become effective January 7, 1963.

Obscene matter distributed by mail

The House bill has no provisions on this subject.

Section 307 of the conference substitute authorizes the Postmaster General to detain and dispose of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

Part II of the conference substitute relates to Federal salary reform.

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

Title I of part II contains a statement of Federal salary policy.

Section 501 provides that part II may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 502 sets forth the policy of the Congress that pay of Federal civilian personnel shall be established upon the principles of equal pay for substantially equal work with pay distinctions maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and that Federal salaries shall be comparable with salaries in private enterprise for the same levels of work

Section 503, pertaining to the implementation of the above policy, provides that the President shall have prepared and submitted to him an annual report comparing salary rates paid to Federal employees with rates paid for the same levels of work in private industry as determined through annual surveys of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. After seeking the views of employee organizations the President shall make an annual report to the Congress containing the comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary srtucture, and compensation policy as he deems advisable.

In further implementation of the stated salary policy, section 504 provides that whenever the President or his designee finds that the salary rates in private enterprise for an occupation in any particular location are so substantially above the salary rates of Federal statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government in recruiting and retaining well qualified persons in positions under the pay systems of the executive branch covered by the conference substitute, the President, or his designee, may establish for such location higher minimum rates of basic compensation. Corresponding increases may be made in all step rates in the salary range for the applicable grade or level; however, the minimum salary rate established under this authority may not exceed the seventh compensation rate prescribed by law for the grade or level involved. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency as he may designate.

Section 504 also provides that such rates may be revised from time to time and that such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

Section 504 further provides that any increase in basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701 (a) of the Classification Act of 1949, or section 3552 of title 39, United States Code.

Policies, rules, and regulations of the President

Section 505 further implements the salary policy by authorizing the President to prescribe policies, rules, and standards in order to carry out the policy and purpose of the conference substitute with respect to the several Federal salary systems covered by the conference substitute and in order to provide adequate supervision and control by the President over the functions, duties, and regulations of the respective authorities in the executive branch in connection with the administration and operation of the four major salary systems and the provisions of this title.

TITLE II—PAY SYSTEM OF THE CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

Title II of part II of the conference substitute pertains to the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Section 601 provides that title II may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962."

Section 602 contains the compensation schedules for the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and the salary conversion rules for the two phases of the salary adjustment plan which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment (first phase) and on January 1, 1964 (second phase).

Section 602 (a) prescribes the compensation schedules. The schedule contains 10 regular steps in lieu of 7 scheduled and 3 longevity rates currently provided for GS–1 through GS–10; 9 rates for GS–11 through GS–14 in lieu of 6 scheduled and 3 longevity rates; 8 rates for GS–15 in lieu of 5 scheduled and 3 longevities; and 5 rates for GS–16 and GS–17 in lieu of the 5 rates currently provided by the Classification Act. Grade GS–18 continues to have a single rate. Because the number of regular step rates is increased, the current provisions for longevity step increases in title VII of the Classification Act of 1949 are no longer needed and are repealed in subsequent sections of the conference substitute.

Section 602 (b) specifies the rules adjusting existing pay rates to the rates of the new schedules. Employees generally are to retain the same relative place within the new grade range as they had within their former grade range.

Paragraph (10) of section 602 (b) provides that service immediately preceding the effective date shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of section 701 (a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended by the conference substitute.

Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) applies to each officer or employee who is receiving immediately prior to the effective date of section 602, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation, determined under section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, 83d Cong.), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960. Such officer or employee will receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (1) his existing agregate rate of compensation determined under the savings provisions of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, referred to above, and (2) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, and (3) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and (4) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (5) the amount of the increase made by section 602 under compensation schedule I in the maximum rate of his grade. This rate will remain in effect for such officer or employee until he leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of the amendment or any other law. However, when the position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any later appointee thereto will be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) also contains a provision to the effect that, subject to the possibility that any such officer or employee may leave his position or may become entitled to aggregate compensation at a higher rate, the amount of the increase provided by section 602 is to be held and considered, for the savings purposes of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing aggregate rate of compensation of the officer or employee.

Step increases

Section 603 amends title VII, "Steps increases" of the Classification Act of 1949. Title VII currently provides two types of step increases: (1) Periodic step increases under section 701, and (2) longevity step increases beyond the scheduled maximum rate of the grade under section 703. As amended the conference substitute, title VII provides for (1) periodic step increases, and (2) additional step increases to be granted in recognition of high quality performance.

Section 701 now provides periodic step increases, for employees below the maximum rate of the grade, for each 52 calendar weeks of service if the amount of the step increases is less than $200, or 78 weeks of service if the employee's position is in a grade in which the step increase is $200 or more. As amended, section 701(a) provides for periodic increases at all grades following the completion of (1) 52 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, (2) 104 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, and (3) each 156 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9.

Paragraphs (A) and (C) of section 701(a) which relate to eligibility for step increases are in existing law. Paragraph (B) requires, as a prerequisite to within-grade advancement, that the employee's work is of an acceptable level of competence in contrast with the present wording that the employee has a current performance rating of "satisfactory" or better.

Subsection (b) of the revised section 701 is present law.

The new section 702 of the Classification Act of 1949 in the conference substitute authorizes, in subsection (a), additional step increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Such additional step increases could be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Civil Service Commission and under subsection (b), would be limited to not more than one within any period of 52 weeks.

Current provisions of sections 703 and 704 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to longevity step increases, are no longer needed since these steps have been included in the regular rate range for the respective grades. The provisions are therefore repealed. Section 703 of the amended title VII which is already in existing law (as section 705) provides that title VII shall not apply to persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Title VII currently does not have a section 702.

General compensation rules

Section 604(a) revises section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949 to provide that when an employee is promoted to a position in a higher grade he shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of the higher grade which exceeds his existing rate by not less than two step increases of the grade from which promoted. This subsection also specifies the action to be taken if there is no rate in the higher grade two step increases above the employee's existing rate, or if he is receiving a rate saved under section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 on reduction in grade. Existing law provides only a one-step increase upon promotion or transfer to a higher grade. A similar proposal is included in H.R. 1010 which passed the House of Representatives on August 22, 1961.

Section 604(b) adds a new subsection (d) to section 802 of the Classification Act of 1949. There is no present authority for saving the basic compensation of an employee who, together with his position, is brought under the Classification Act from some other Federal pay system (such as the wage board system), if his salary rate is in excess of the maximum rate of the classification grade in which his position is placed. The new subsection would authorize the Civil Service Commission to issue regulations to permit the retention of salary in such instances. It includes special provisions applicable in case of subsequent demotion in grade.

Section 604(c) substitutes a new section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949. Because of the more comprehensive provisions in section 504 of title I, part II, of the conference substitute, the present provisions of section 803, authorizing advanced entrance rates of the grades for appointments in shortage occupations, are unnecessary and therefore are being deleted. Section 803, as amended, provides that under regulations of the Civil Service Commission, any employee under the Classification Act who regularly has responsibility for supervision, including technical supervision, over wage board employees may be paid a rate for his grade above the highest rate paid to any such prevailing rate employee.

Salary retention

Section 605 amends section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 which provides for the retention of salary when an employee is demoted to a lower grade. The amendment in paragraph (1) extends application of the provisions of section 507 to employees in all grades of the Classification Act of 1949 by omitting the language of existing law which excludes application of the benefits to employees in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. The amendment in paragraph (2) strikes out "B in the same grade or in the same or higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section 507 and inserts in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;". This change in language will permit salary retention not now permitted under section 507 where there may have been a series of promotions followed by a demotion or a series of demotions.

Increase in number of top grade positions under the Classification Act of 1949

Section 606 amends section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949. Subsection (a) increases from 1,989 to 2,400 the limitation on the number of positions the Civil Service Commission, under section 505(b) of the Classification Act, may authorize to be placed in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule, and excludes from this limitation engineering research and development positions and positions in the physical sciences, natural sciences, and medicine. Subsection (b) excludes these same types of positions from the number of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 now authorized for the Department of Defense in section 505(j) of the Classification Act.

Section 606(c) authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of 10 positions of warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the general schedule. This increases by four the number of such positions which may be assigned to GS–16. This subsection also authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of eight positions of member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the general schedule. Presently only one such position is in grade GS–17 and the other seven are in grade GS–16.

Section 607 repeals certain provisions of law authorizing (1) incumbency allocations to top Classification Act grades, and (2) certain positions to be placed in top grades of the act or to have an equivalent salary.

Section 608(a) provides that each position covered by a repeal provision in section 607 shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the general schedule of the Classification Act, in accordance with the provisions of that act.

Section 608(b) provides that positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule immediately prior to the effective date shall remain in such grades until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act.

SAVINGS PROVISION

Section 609 contains the usual salary savings provisions.

Effective dates

Section 610 provides that except as otherwise expressly provided the provisions of title II of part II shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment.

TITLE III—POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYED

Section 701 cites this title as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962."

Employees under the postal field service schedule

Section 702 provides two postal field service schedules. Schedule I would be effective the first pay period after enactment and schedule II, the first pay period after January 1, 1964. The salary schedules for the postal field service follow the pattern established for other statutory pay systems in that they are based on the principle of industry comparability for levels of work.

The structure of the proposed schedules is generally similar to that of the Classification Act of 1949. It replaces both annual salary steps in the present PFS schedule and longevity rates which is accomplished by the addition of step increases to the PFS schedule.

Employees under the rural carrier schedule

Section 703(a) establishes two new schedules for determining rural carrier pay, the first effective on the first pay period after enactment and the second on the first pay period after January 1, 1964. It also combines the present salary steps and longevity steps into a single 12-step schedule.

Pay rates for the RCS schedule were determined by adding the amount of increase provided for PFS–4, step 7, to the present step 7 rate for the 42-mile route, and adjusting other rates for that route to the corresponding rates for PFS–4.

Section 703(b) amends section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, which authorizes payment of additional compensation to rural carriers on heavily patronized routes, by eliminating the existing provision permitting such payment only if the route does not exceed 61 miles in length, as well as the provision limiting the additional compensation to an amount which when added to the basic salary for the maximum step for the route would equal the basic salary for the maximum step for a 61-mile route.

Section 703(c) amends section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, to increase the equipment maintenance allowance for rural carriers from 10 cents to 12 cents a mile or from $3.50 to $4.20 a day, whichever is greater.

Section 703(c) changes the method of compensating substitute rural carriers. Under the present system these carriers are paid at the rate of the carrier in whose absence they are serving. Under the new provisions, substitute carriers will be paid on the basis of their own service in the same manner as regular carriers.

Postmasters under the fourth-class office schedule

Section 704 amends section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, the code to provide two new compensation schedules for postmasters in fourth-class post offices, one effective the first pay period after enactment and the other effective the first pay period after January 1, 1964.

The proposed schedules continue to relate compensation to receipts categories. The first schedule provides an increase of 10 percent above current salary rates. The second schedule adds another 5 percent or a total of 15 percent over existing rates. Subsection (b) extends to postmasters of the third- and fourth-class salary restoration rights now enjoyed by other postal employees.

Automatic advancement by step increases

Section 705 amends 39 U.S.C. 3552, which relates to advancement of employees by step increases.

Under subsection (a), 39 U.S.C. 3552, the schedule of advancement is established. The present schedule of advancement provides for increases based on 52 weeks of service in a step until the highest step in the level is reached. In levels PFS–1 through PFS–6 this form of advancement is continued for the first six increases; the next five increases are attained after a 156-week waiting period for each. In all levels above PFS–6, under the new schedule, the employee will be advanced to steps 2, 3, and 4, on the basis of 52 weeks of service in each step, to steps 5, 6, and 7, on the basis of 104 weeks of service, and to steps 8 and above, on the basis of 156 weeks of service. The conference substitute does not continue the limitation on the advancement of substitutes assigned to road duty. It has been the practice of the Post Office Department to credit service by such a substitute in step 4, PFS–5, and, upon placement in a position not subject to the limitation, the employee would be advanced in step in the new position on the basis of such service, if otherwise proper. The removal of such limitation will permit these substitute employees who were not advanced beyond step 4 of salary level PFS–5 by reason of the limitation, to be given credit for all their service in step 4 and given the appropriate step increases at the time of conversion.

Subsection (b), 39 U.S.C. 3552, codifies and makes permanent a provision of law common to salary increase legislation affecting postal employees. In effect, it provides that statutory increases in basic compensation are not equivalent increases for purposes of determining eligibility for advancement under subsection (a).

Subsection (c), 39 U.S.C. 3552, reenacts the last sentence of 39 U.S.C. 3552(a) as a separate subsection.

The current provisions of 39 U.S.C. 3552(b) are, in effect, repealed by this amendment. Under present service conditions, withholding of advancement by step increases from substitutes in PFS–5 assigned to road duty cannot be justified.

Temporary employees

Section 706 amends 39 U.S.C. 3554 by deleting the phrase "under the postal field service schedule" and inserting in its place the phrase "in the postal field service." The purpose of this change is to permit the payment of compensation to temporary rural carriers serving under limited appointments in the same manner as to other postal field service employees. In effect, this change will continue the present method of compensation of these carriers.

Promotions

Section 707 amends 39 U.S.C. 3559 in its entirety. The present method of promotion guarantees to each employee a minimum increase equivalent to the difference between step 1 of the level from which promoted and step 1 of the level immediately above. The new provision will guarantee to each employee promoted to a higher level a minimum increase equivalent to two step increases of the level from which promoted; if the employee is promoted to a level more than two levels above the level of his position, he will receive a minimum increase equivalent to three step increases.

Rural routes

The purpose of section 708 is to remove the limitation on the present authority of the Postmaster General with respect to the establishment or extension of star routes in areas previously served by rural routes. Under present law such substitution may not be made if a qualified rural carrier can be obtained. This change will permit the Postmaster General to exercise administrative discretion in the selection of the more efficient or economical service.

Miscellaneous provisions

The new salary plan abolishes longevity steps and provides for recognition of long service through addition of within-grade steps. Therefore, the distinction made in sections 3101(5) and 3101(6) of title 39, between basic salary and basic compensation, is no longer valid and section 709 eliminates this distinction.

Section 710 amends 39 U.S.C. 3541 to provide a method for determining the daily rate of compensation of substitute rural carriers. By using a factor of 304, the number of days of service on a rural route in a year, holiday pay is prorated throughout the year against the actual service of the substitute rural carrier. In this respect, pay treatment of these employees will be consistent with that afforded other substitute employees.

Conversion rules

Section 711 provides the rules for the conversion of existing salaries to the new pay schedules which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment. The conversion method generally will place each employee in the numerical step which he attains immediately prior to the effective date of the new pay plan, plus an additional numerical step for each longevity step attained immediately prior to conversion.

Credit is preserved toward the next within-grade or automatic step increase earned by employees prior to conversion if they were not given an additional step increase by reason of longevity steps attained prior to conversion. Such credit will be applied toward fulfillment of the requirements of the new advancement schedule. No credit earned toward longevity steps will be carried over. No employee's salary will be reduced on conversion.

In addition, to provide a greater salary increase for present employees, each employee in levels PFS–1 through PFS–4 or under the rural carrier schedule will be advanced one extra step on conversion.

Section 712 provides for the conversion of employees to the schedules to become effective in January 1964 according to the numerical step attained immediately prior to the date of conversion. Where existing compensation exceeds the rate for the numerical step, the existing compensation is retained if conversion cannot be made, to a scheduled step.

Section 713 amends section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, as added by section 201 of the act of September 21, 1961 (75 Stat. 569, Public Law 87–270), which provides, among other things, that employees in protected rates will be given statutory increases applicable to the salary standing from which reduced. The purpose of section 713 is to make clear that, inasmuch as the new salary plan involves basic structural changes for employees now under the PFS, RCS, and FOS schedules, this particular feature of 39 U.S.C. 3560 cannot be given application at the time of conversion to the new schedules. Salaries of employees in protected rates as of the date of conversion will be converted under sections 711 and 712 of the conference substitute, as appropriate.

Basic salary in cases of assignments of postal employees

Section 714 amends section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, so as to clarify the intent of Congress with respect to the authority of the Postmaster General to authorize higher level compensation. This amendment is required to remove objections of the Comptroller General, as stated in his decision of February 1, 1962 (B–138999), to the Department's application of the present statutory provision and to validate payments that have been made.

Salary protection

Section 715 extends existing salary protection provisions to all levels of the postal field service schedule and clarifies their application to certain situations.

Section 716 contains a new compensation rule which will permit the Postmaster General to make exceptions to the schedule of automatic advancement provided in 39 U.S.C. 3552 in recognition of exceptional competence. This provision will require implementation by regulations to be issued by the Postmaster General.

Top grade positions and Whitten amendment

Section 717 removes PFS–17 from the controlled position group and grants the postal field service a 10-percent exemption under the Whitten amendment.

Section 718 contains two conforming changes to the table of contents of title 39, United States Code.

Repeals

Section 719 repeals those provisions of Public Law 86–568 which contained salary increases for postal field service employees, effective July 9, 1960. It also repeals 39 U.S.C. 3558, which provides for the present system of longevity compensation; the new pay schedules supersede the longevity system in its entirety.

Effective dates

Section 720 specifies the effective dates of the various sections in title III.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

Title IV relates to physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration who are subject to a separate pay system prescribed by chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code. The revisions made by this title not only take into account the Bureau of Labor Statistics findings but also reflect the results of extensive studies of the Veterans' Administration concerning the need for a modernization of the entire grade and salary structure of the Department of Medicine and Surgery to recognize the numerous organizational and functional changes which have taken place in the Department since its inception in 1946.

In recognition of the nature of their occupations and the variability of assignments in a clinical setting, the grade and salary of physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery are determined on the basis of an individual's qualifications and professional attainment. Notwithstanding this fact, comparison of the qualification and skill requirements for like occupations under the Classification Act corroborate extension to the Department of Medicine and Surgery schedules in the manner indicated in the conference substitute bill of the salary scale proposed for the Classification Act system. Appropriate differentiation in pay between recognized skill levels as well as executive and managerial levels is maintained. Internal relationships of pay between the D.M. & S. system and the Classification Act system are also continued.

Section 801 amends section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code. It reduces the maximum number of Assistant Chief Medical Directors from eight to five and modifies the provisions pertaining to directors of service and chiefs of division. In lieu of these positions, a new position level of Medical Director is established. The salaries of the Assistant Chief Medical Directors, the Director of Nursing Service, the Chief Pharmacist, and Chief Dietitian are appropriately adjusted in line with other increases proposed by the conference substitute. The statutory positions of the Deputy Director of Nursing Service, Chief Physical Therapist, and Chief Occupational Therapist are eliminated. The duties of the first-named position will be filled by a nurse of the Assistant Director grade. The salaries for the positions of Chief Physical Therapist and Chief Occupational Therapist will be set in the future under the Classification Act of 1949.

Section 802 amends section 4107 of title 38, United States Code. In subsection (a) of section 4107, the former schedules entitled "Medical Service" and "Dental Service" have been combined and retitled "Physician and Dentist Schedule." The existing schedules have provided identical grades and pay scales and their continued separation serves no purpose. The junior grade of the former schedules has been eliminated and, two new grades—the director grade and executive grade—have been established. The schedule now titled "Nursing Service" has been retitled "Nurse Schedule." Two new grades—the assistant director grade and chief grade—have been established, and the former grades of assistant director and senior grade have been retitled "senior grade" and "intermediate grade," respectively.

The amendment also provides the pay scales for the physician and dentist schedule and the nurse schedule to be effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

The amendment of section 4107 of title 38 of the United States Code specifies the intended use of the two new grades—director and executive—in the physician and dentist schedule.

Section 803, which amends section 4108 of title 38 of the United States Code, repeals the present provision providing for an allowance equal to 15 percent of the pay of persons rated as medical, surgical, or dental specialists under the provisions of that section, since the latitude which will be afforded within the pay range of each grade will permit appropriate recognition of specially qualified individuals. The current subsection (b) of 4107 of title 38, without change, has been redesignated as section 4108 for purpose of greater clarity and as a matter of drafting convenience.

Subsection (b) of section 803 is a perfecting amendment to the table of contents at the head of chapter 73 of title 38, to reflect the change in the catchline of section 4108.

Section 804 amends section 4111(b) of title 38 to provide that the per annum salary rate of a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary he would receive if such service as a director had been as a physician in the director grade. Except with respect to change in rate of salary, the subsection does not affect the allocation of any such position to any grade of the Classification Act or the application of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual.

Section 805 provides that title IV shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment except as otherwise expressly provided.

TITLE V—THE FOREIGN SERVICE ACT OF 1946

Section 901 provides that title V may be cited as the "Foreign Service Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 902 amends section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by adjusting upward the per annum salary rates for the eight classes of Foreign Service officers. No change is made in the number of classes and, with the exception of class I, which has two salary rates, the general pattern of seven rates for each class is continued. As in other sections of this title, the schedules of per annum salary rates, provided by this section, are to be effective in two phases at the beginning of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 903 amends section 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by revising the structure of the Foreign Service staff salary schedule and embodying certain changes directly comparable to those made in the revision of the Classification Act of 1949.

There are at present 22 classes in the Foreign Service staff schedule. The proposed schedule of 10 classes would eliminate the unnecessary and seldom-used classes in the current schedule. Since custodial, maintenance, and the most routine clerical functions are performed almost exclusively by alien employees at Foreign Service posts, there is little need for U.S. citizen employees at the level of duties represented by classes 14 through 22. Since classes 14 through 22 are to be abolished, it will be necessary to give the Secretary the authority contained in proposed section 415(b) in order that persons in such classes may continue to be employed at appropriate rates. The new section 415(b) would give the Department all needed flexibility in this respect, should it be desirable in unusual circumstances, to employ American personnel at lower rates for duties less difficult than those of FSS–10. Within the proposed Foreign Service staff salary schedule, 10 salary rates are proposed for the lower 6 classes, and 9 for the upper 4. This conforms with Classification Act of 1949 salary ranges proposed at similar salary levels. Section 903 prescribes two schedules of per annum salaries for staff officers and employees to be effective the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 904 provides for the conversion of Foreign Service personnel from their present salary rates to those established by the conference substitute.

Section 905 repeals section 642(b) of the Foreign Service Act relating to longevity step increases for Foreign Service staff officers and employees and makes minor conforming changes in the heading and identification of the section in the Foreign Service Act. Since the new Foreign Service staff schedule provides 9 or 10 rates for within-class increases, this section is no longer needed.

Section 906 provides that, except as otherwise expressly provided, title V shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

TITLE VI—MISCELLANEOUS SALARY PROVISIONS

Section 1001 increases the salary limitations for certain scientific, professional, and other positions to accord with the salary ranges of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. In most cases the salary range stated in the laws which are amended has a $19,000 maximum. The amendments proposed would tie the maximum to grade 18 of the general schedule.

Subsection (a) of section 1001 revises the salary range in section 2(b) of Public Law 313, 80th Congress, as amended, from $12,500–$19,000, to a range from the minimum salary of grade GS–16 to the highest rate of grade GS–18, and authorizes eight such positions in the Library of Congress.

Subsection (b) amends section 1581(b) of title 10 of the United States Code, relating to certain scientific or professional positions in the Department of Defense, to provide a minimum rate for such positions as the minimum rate of GS–16 and a maximum rate equivalent to GS–18 pay.

Subsection (c) extends the new range to positions now paid at $12,500 to $19,000 in the National Security Agency.

Subsection (d) amends the proviso in the first sentence of section 208(g) of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, which relates to compensation rates of certain scientific, professional, and administrative personnel in the Public Health Service to provide a minimum rate of grade GS–16 and a maximum at the pay of grade GS–18.

Subsection (e) establishes a maximum rate, equivalent to the pay of grade GS–18 for five positions of technical experts in the Department of Agriculture engaged in research in foot-and-mouth and other animal diseases.

Subsection (f) amends section 203(b)(2) of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 to provide that the Administrator may fix the rates for certain excepted positions at not to exceed the pay of grade GS–18 of the Classification Act of 1949. Thirty of these positions may continue to be paid up to $21,000.

Subsection (g) amends the proviso in section 161(d) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, to permit the fixing of salaries of scientific and technical personnel up to a limit of the pay of grade GS–18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. The present limit is $19,000.

Subsection (h) substitutes the GS–18 rate in place of $19,500 as the top salary for 23 positions in the Federal Aviation Agency.

Subsection (i) authorizes use of Foreign Service salary rates for paying the U.S. representative and alternate on the Executive Board of the World Health Organization in place of present maximum salaries of $12,000 and $10,000.

Subsection (j) sets the GS–18 rate as the maximum salary for certain positions established under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, now authorized to be paid up to $1,000 more than the rate of GS–18.

Subsection (k) fixes the GS–18 salary as the maximum rate for certain positions under the Foreign Assistance Act which may now be paid up to $19,000 a year.

Subsection (l) fixes the GS–18 salary rate as the top salary for certain Peace Corps positions now paying up to $19,000 a year.

Agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees

Section 1002 extends to agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees the salary increases provided by the conference substitute for corresponding Classification Act of 1949 salary levels.

Assistant U.S. attorneys

Section 1003 raises from $15,000 to $17,500 the maximum amount which can be paid to assistant U.S. attorneys and provides for an increase of 7½ percent in their existing rates of compensation.

Employees in the judicial branch

Section 1004 authorizes, for employees of the judicial branch, salary increases corresponding to those proposed in the statutory salary systems in the executive branch.

Officers and employees in the legislative branch

Section 1005(a) provides an increase of 7 percent to officers and employees in or under the legislative branch.

Subsection (b) provides for the automatic adjustment, effective October 16, 1962, of the compensation of employees in the office of a Senator to the rate nearest that being received by such employees immediately preceding such effective date unless the disbursing office of the Senate is notified to the contrary within 15 days after the date of enactment. Such notice, when given, would give effect to the increase.

Subsection (c) provides an increase of 7 percent in the rates of basic compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (not including the Presiding Officer) the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the legislative counsel and senior counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Senate, except that no such salary may be raised to an amount above $21,500.

Subsection (d) increases the limitation fixed by law on the compensation of employees of the Senate by the amount necessary to pay the additional compensation provided by the conference substitute.

Subsection (e) provides that the provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to employees engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets whose compensation is subject to the new limitation.

Subsection (f) covers elected officers of the House of Representatives (other than Members) and certain other officers of the House of Representatives who are not covered by other provisions of the conference substitute. Subsection (f) covers the following officers and employees of the House of Representatives:

1. The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 1 of the House of Representatives, whose total rate of per annum compensation is now prescribed by House Resolution 339, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

2. The following elected officers of the House of Representatives, whose total rates of per annum compensation are now prescribed by House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(k) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568): the Clerk of the House, the Sergeant at Arms of the House, the Doorkeeper of the House, and the Postmaster of the House.

3. The chief of staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, whose total per annum compensation is now prescribed under authority of section 302(c) of the act of October 4, 1961 (75 Stat. 793; Public Law 87–367).

4. The legislative counsel of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed in accordance with a provision relating to the legislative counsel of the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 251; Public Law 85–75) (as modified by secs. 4(c) and 4(m) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 208 and 209; Public Law 85–462)), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

5. The coordinator of information of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under House Resolution 183, 80th Congress, section 105 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1948 (61 Stat. 377; Public Law 197, 80th Cong.), section 2(e) of the act of October 24, 1951 (65 Stat. 612; Public Law 201, 82d Cong.), section 4(c) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 176; Public Law 94, 84th Cong.), section 4(l) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

6. Two printing clerks, one for the majority caucus room and one for the minority caucus room, whose total per annum compensation is now provided for on a present incumbency basis in the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 247; Public Law 85–75), as modified by a comparable provision in each annual appropriation act for the legislative branch, the latest such provision currently being the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962 (75 Stat. 325; Public Law 87–130).

7. Four minority employees of the House in positions referred to in House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under such resolution and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(r) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

The above list of officers and employees within the purview of subsection (f) is not necessarily all-inclusive.

It may be noted, in connection with House officers and employees in the categories covered by subsection (f), that three employees in comparable categories are granted increases in compensation under section 1005(a) rather than subsection (f). These employees are as follows:

1. The Chaplain of the House of Representatives, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate prescribed by section 6 of the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 508; Public Law 242, 84th Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568).

2. The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 2 of the House of Representatives whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate provided by House Resolution 277, 82d Congress, and section 277 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1953 (66 Stat. 478; Public Law 471, 82d Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86-568).

3. The clerk to the House Parliamentarian, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of per annum basic rate fixed under House Resolution 486, 85th Congress, and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1959 (72 Stat. 453; Public Law 85-570), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86-568).

Subsection (g) increases the limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person payable to employees of the House of Representatives engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets by an amount equal to the increases granted to legislative employees under the conference substitute.

Subsection (h) makes clear that the increases provided by section 1005 are to be considered part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Subsection (i) provides that notwithstanding any other provision of section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by such section, and no increase provided by such section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

Subsection (j) provides that, insofar as the provisions of section 1005 apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962. The purpose of subsection (j) is to insure that officers and employees in the legislative branch will receive pay increases at approximately the same time as other officers and employees covered by the conference substitute.

Saving provision

Section 1006 provides, in effect, that no provision of the conference substitute shall operate to reduce any rate of salary, pay, or compensation of any officer or employee covered by the conference substitute.

Absorption of costs

Under section 1007, the departments and agencies are directed to provide for absorption of the costs of salary increases from available funds of the executive departments, but this section is not to be considered to require any employee to be separated from the service or placed in a leave-without-pay status.

Effective dates

Section 1008 provides that title VI, except as otherwise expressly provided, is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

Ceiling provisions

Section 1009 makes it clear that, except as provided in section 1005, this act will not cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES UNDER CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT ACT

The House bill contained no provisions such as are contained in the conference substitute under Part III, Adjustment of Annuities.

An explanation of Part III of the conference substitute is set forth below.

Section 1101 (a) provides a 5 percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the fund which commenced on or before that date.

Subsection (b) extends this initial increase on a graduated percentage basis to all annuities which commence in the 5-year period following January 1, 1963, in accordance with the following schedule:

Are increased from commencing date by—
Annuities commencing between—
Jan. 2 and Dec. 31, 1963	4 percent
Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1964	3 percent
Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1965	2 percent
Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1966	1 percent

Subsection (c) provides that the percentage increase granted a retiree under subsection (a) or (b) will apply to the annuity subsequently granted his survivor.

Subsection (d) excludes from the 1963 increase annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsections (e) and (f) remove the ceilings on increases to retirees imposed by the 1952 and 1955 annuity increase laws. Under the annuity increase act of July 16, 1952, as amended by the act of August 31, 1954, no retiree's annuity (exclusive of that purchased by voluntary contributions) could be raised beyond $2,160. The act of August 11, 1955, similarly provided that no regular annuity could be increased under its terms beyond $4,104. These increase ceilings are repealed and made no longer effective on and after January 1, 1963. Each retiree affected by one or both of these ceilings who is still on the annuity rolls will be entitled to have his annuity rate reestablished as of January 1, 1963, as though these ceilings had never existed. This reestablished rate, plus a 5-percent 1963 increase, will be payable from and after January 1, 1963.

Subsection (g) states effective date provisions for increases.

Subsection (h) provides that monthly annuity rates after adjustment will be fixed to the nearest dollar.

Section 1102(a) adds a new subsection to section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act to define the term "price index" as the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Subsection (b) renumbers present section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act as section 19 and inserts a new section 18. New section 18 embodies an automatic annuity adjustment plan.

The new section 18 of the Retirement Act provides for future adjustment of annuities as follows:

Subsection (a) directs the Civil Service Commission to annually determine, after January 1, 1964, and each succeeding January 1, the percentage change in living costs from 1962 or from the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. Depending on the price index change, adjustment actions ensue.

Subsection (a)(1) provides that if the price index change from 1962 to 1963 equals a rise of at least 3 percent, an increase will be allowable, effective April 1, 1964. All annuities which began before January 2, 1963, will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (a)(2) provides for automatic increases in annuities effective April 1 of any later year after the percentage change in the price index has equaled a rise of at least 3 percent. All annuities payable from the fund as of April 1 which commenced earlier than January 2 of the preceding year will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (b) states the general rule that eligibility for an increase is governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable as of the appropriate April 1 effective date, but with these exceptions to the rule:

Under subsection (b)(1), a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor) on the roll as of the first cost-of-living increase, whose annuity started the date after the retiree's death, will receive the initial increase provided the retiree's commencing date of annuity was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

Under subsection (b)(2), the annuity of a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor), which starts the day after the retiree's death and after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase will be increased from commencing date by whatever percentage increase the retiree was receiving at death.

Under subsection (b)(3), a special method is provided for increasing annuities of child survivors under the current act. These annuities are unique in that they are not the product of years of service times percentage of average salary. The child's rate is the lesser of (i) a set percent of average salary or (ii) a dollar amount which cannot reflect living cost salary increments. Thus, for these annuities, the cost-of-living annuity adjustment must be built into the benefit formula. The following provisions are made for child-survivor annuities which commence after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase:

Existing formula		Increase provided—proposed increase
Spouse surviving	No spouse surviving
40 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	50 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent granted after commencing date of retired parent's annuity. Inapplicable to children of employee, because his average salary includes living cost adjustments which pass on to children.
$1,800 divided by number of children.	$1,160 divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.
$600	$720	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.

Provision is made for applying these formula changes to any child's annuity which commenced in the 15-month period before the effective date of the first increase as if such initial increase had been in effect. Resulting rate adjustments would start on the effective date of the initial cost-of-living increase.

Subsection (c) excludes from cost-of-living increases annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsection (d) provides that monthly annuity rates after cost-of-living increase will be fixed at the nearest dollar.

Section 1103 amends sections 1(j), 9(g), and 10(a)(1) of the Retirement Act to revise and liberalize provisions for children survivors and election of reduced annuity with benefit to widow or widower.

The present section 9(g) of the act permits a married person retiring for any reason to irrevocably elect, in lieu of single life annuity, a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, the choice to be made at time of retirement. The retiring individual may designate all or any porton of the single life annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) as the base for annuity to spouse. To partially support the added survivor protection the retiring individual accepts, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $2,400 and by 10 percent of any amount over $2,400 designated as the base for survivor annuity. Under the present section 10(a)(1), the named spouse becomes entitled to 50 percent of this base amount as widow's or widower's annuity, starting the day after the retiree's death and continuing until remarriage or death.

Under the conference substitute, section 9(g) of the act is amended to accord the retiring married employee a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, unless he affirmatively elects to receive in lieu thereof the single life annuity. In the absence of the life annuity election, the total annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) or such lesser portion as may be designated at time of retirement will be used as the base for annuity to spouse, and the individual will receive, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $3,600 and by 10 percent of any amount over $3,600 which serves as the base for annuity to spouse. Section 10(a)(1) of the act is amended to accord the named spouse 55 percent of the amount used for the survivor base as widow's or widower's annuity, which would start the day after the retiree's death and continue until remarriage or death.

Subsections (c), (d), and (e) similarly amend subsections (b), (c), and (e) of section 10 of the act to uniformly accord a named survivor or a spouse survivor 55 percent, instead of 50 percent, of the annuity in respect to the deceased former employee or Member.

Under existing law survivorship benefits paid to a child cease when the child attains the age of 18, marries, or dies except that such benefits may continue past the age of 18 if the child is incapable of self-support due to a disability incurred before attaining the age of 18.

Subsection (f) of section 1103 of the conference substitute amends section 1(j) of the Retirement Act. The substitute retains all present termination provisions but adds the further exception that benefits may continue to the end of the school year in which the child attains the age of 21 only so long as the child pursues a full-time course of study in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution.

This change in the Civil Service Retirement Act is in keeping with veterans' benefit laws which provide for the continuance of benefits between the ages of 18 and 21 to unmarried children while taking an approved course of instruction.

Section 1104 provides that benefits made payable under the Retirement Act by enactment of the conference substitute shall be paid from the retirement fund. This is necessary because of the restriction contained in the paragraph headed "Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund" in section 1 of title I of the act of August 28, 1958.

Section 1105 specifies January 1, 1963, as the effective date for section 1101 and provides that amendments made by section 1103, except subsection (f) will not apply to employees or members retired or otherwise separated prior to date of enactment.

TOM MURRAY,
JAMES H. MORRISON,
ROBERT J. CORBETT,
Managers on the Part of the House.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. MEADER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. FORD] may be permitted to extend his remarks during debate on the supplemental appropriation bill at that point in the discussion where the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. FORD], asked unanimous consent to speak for 5 additional minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM FOR TOMORROW AND THE BALANCE OF THE WEEK

(Mr. BARRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BARRY. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the majority leader the program for tomorrow and the balance of the week?

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, first of all, if the gentleman will yield for this purpose, we are hoping to clear everything that is ready tomorrow, and for that reason I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today it adjourn to meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object——

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I have consulted with the minority leader on this matter.

Mr. GROSS. That may be true.

Mr. BARRY. I can say it is true. I was here when the majority leader spoke to the minority leader.

Mr. GROSS. I do not question that part of it. But how much longer do we go on this evening?

Mr. ALBERT. We have finished the legislative business for the evening.

Mr. GROSS. There is some limit to endurance if this is going to be the order every day. I may say to the gentleman I do not mind taking one more whirl at it early tomorrow morning, but I remember all too well the days, weeks, and even months that we did all too little in this Congress earlier this year when we might have saved this endurance contest now. This is what I protest.

Mr. ALBERT. We did not have the kind of program we have today.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield further, the Ways and Means Committee will call up five bills by unanimous consent. These bills are as follows:

H.R. 3985, import duty on certain bread.

H.R. 9414, imported electron microscopes to be subject to regular customs duty.

H.R. 12030, statistical studies.

H.R. 12109, certain grasses, duty-free entry of.

H.R. 12470, child care deduction for deserted wives.

In addition to that, the following bills will be called up, with Senate amendments, and agree to the Senate amendments:

H.R. 5260, coconut oil.

H.R. 5700, contract carriers.

H.R. 8952, constructive sale price rule.

Following that H.R. 11970 conference report on Trade Expansion Act of 1962.

H.R. 12648, conference report on agriculture appropriation bill.

H.R. 7927, conference report on Postage Revision Act of 1961.

S. 1552, conference report on antitrust laws regarding drugs.

Then following that, the bill S. 1123, Child Labor Provisions, Fair Labor Standards Act, will be considered, with 1 hour general debate.

Then following that, H.R. 11665, conference report, on the School Lunch Act.

I will advise the gentleman that I am not prepared to announce the program for the following day. We will program conference reports and other matters as they come up.

Mr. BARRY. I thank the gentleman.

THE INDICTMENT OF EICHMANN BY ISRAEL FOR MASS MURDER

(Mr. LANE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, at the installation ceremonies conducted by the Chelsea Zionist District of Massachusetts, held at the Shurtleff Street Synagogue in Chelsea, on Sunday, February 12, 1961, it was my honor to be the principal speaker. I took for my subject the Eichmann case, and as you know, Mr. Speaker, Adolph Eichmann was one of the major Nazi criminals who were responsible for the murder of over 6 million Jewish civilians, men, women, and children.

The address that I delivered at the installation is as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Mr. President, at the very outset let me applaud the outgoing administration and congratulate the incoming officers for work well done and for confidence well placed. The Chelsea Zionist district has long been active in supporting the cause of Israel and urging its support by others. That its efforts have been rewarded is obvious. That its continued efforts are necessary is certain.

In 1947, on a very grim occasion, I visited this wonderful city of Chelsea. I was your speaker at the high school auditorium. The occasion was a welcome-home and a well-done to a brave Chelsea lad who was wounded by a pistol shot while resisting a boarding party from a British gunboat that intercepted a vessel running displaced Jews into Palestine past the British blockade. His name was William Millman, and he was a member of that gallant crew bringing a precious cargo of human souls to Palestine.

I told you then, in those horrible days, when the land of Israel was barried to the children of Israel, not to be dismayed, there will be a State of Israel. There was.

I told you that President Truman will speedily recognize that State. He did.

I also told you that the State of Israel will be readily admitted to the United Nations. It was.

I did not then, as I do not now, lay any claim to powers of prophecy. My predictions of things to come was based solely on thing that went before. I knew then, as I know now, that a people who refused to perish through 2,000 years of travail and exile and the indescribable horrors of Hitler will not perish; that the spirit of faith and devotion to the moral principles of their forefathers, having been so tired, must eventually serve the purpose for which it was being tested.

I can now proudly state that my reasoning was correct. What I anticipated would happen, did happen. I also knew that a State of Israel will be a shining light in the gloomy world that followed World War II, because I knew it would be a democratic government in an area that was ruled by despots, backward and illiterate, and this bring light where light was badly needed.

I am not disappointed. The State of Israel, founded on those virtues of liberty, equality, and faith, democratic and free, is not only an outpost for democratic institutions but is an example for all new nations, now appearing, to consider and emulate. The State of Israel is the strongest rebuff the reactionary, enslaving, soul-crushing doctrines of communism have so far received. It is no wonder that Russia wants to see Israel obliterated because the forces of darkness must always flee before the power of light.

Let the new nations of the world compare. Compare a new state, founded on democratic principles, the State of Israel, with other states weighted down under the despotism of communism. I ask, where do you find greater freedom of expression, thought and soul; greater opportunity for spiritual expression, cultural development, and economic progress—in the democratically governed State of Israel or in Communist dominated Hungary, Poland, Rumania, and even Russia itself.

By example alone, the State of Israel has demonstrated the simple and eternal truth that he who lives by the sword shall perish by the sword and that it is not by might and not by strength but by spirit that man endures.

Therefore, when U.S. marine shipping was barred from the international Suez Canal because of having been used in trade with Israel; when foreign powers dared to dictate to us and classify our citizens and insist on which of our citizens they will allow in their countries and which they will not, and we submitted; when they professed to be peace loving yet refused to sit down and discuss peace terms with Israel, the nation which defeated them; when they asserted a serious refugee problem but did nothing to help their own for admittedly political reasons; when they caused our Navy Department to insert cancellation clauses in all its contracts with its suppliers whose supply ships are blacklisted by the United Arab Republic; and, when in the face of all this, the State Department permitted the U.S. Executive Director of the World Bank to vote for a $56 million loan to the United Arab Republic for widening the Suez Canal, I brought this to the attention of Congress on February 4, 1960.

I informed Congress that this affront to the United States, this insult to our people, to our principles, and to our professed sense of morality, was induced only because our Government, at that time, resorted to the use of platitudes and the comfort of temporary expediency for positive action. True facts and moral realities were swept under the rug.

I warned the administration that the pile of sweepings was so great that the administration itself would trip over it. The recent election proved how correct I was. I said that the debris must be cleaned out without delay or else in the eyes of the nations of the world we shall be considered not only weak in arms and technology but also in enforcing moral issues. You who have heard or read the inaugural address of President Kennedy know that you can expect the debris to be cleaned out without much delay.

A few weeks from today, a great and wonderful event will take place in Jerusalem.

Just as thousands of years ago there was brought down from Mount Sinai and given to the children of Israel a new moral code for all men to heed and use as a guide for civilized living (we call it the Ten Commandments), so in a few weeks, in Jerusalem, the State of Israel will open the eyes of the world to the realization that there can be no exceptions to the commandment "Thou shall not kill." I refer to the Eichmann case.

Rarely, since the framing of our Constitution and the writing of the Declaration of Independence has the concept of natural law been raised, as it will be raised in the coming trial of Adolph Eichmann.

As a lawyer, lawmaker, and human being, the issues of jurisdiction and venue greatly interest me. We are aware of the accusations against Eichmann, his apprehension, his delivery to the State of Israel and the diplomatic hauling and pulling that ensued.

There are many pros and cons offered relative to the trial of Eichmann in Israel. The arguments range all the way from those induced by anger to those advanced by thinkers, philosophers, and would-be philosophers and some not worthy of classifying.

During the course of argument the State of Israel will be the target of hate mongers, Communists, and assorted cranks.

There will also be true students of jurisprudence, dispassionate thinkers and analyts who will dissent from what I am about to say by reason of their sincere beliefs. For such I have sincerest respect because our common purpose is to see justice done. We may merely differ as to the means of accomplishing that purpose.

I make no brief for the State of Israel, it certainly needs none from me. I advance no arguments for the prosecution for it will certainly prove its competence without my assistance. My remarks are intended to let the Israel Government know that there are non-Jews who can find nothing wrong, morally or legally, in bringing before the bar of justice an accused who, if those who oppose my views were to prevail, would never be brought to trial. Eichmann would never have been brought to trial because no government went to seek him out. In fact there is a question whether or not he was given shelter from apprehension. Except for those who spent 15 years searching for him no individual or private group went to search for him. Now, however, the cry is over the right to try him.

Let us proceed to ask a few questions and offer a few answers.

The crime of murder is represensible. The sanctity of human life must never be violated. These are premises and assumptions to which all will agree. Now why do we agree to these simple assertions? Because there is a law on the books? Because the state will punish for such crime? Is that why we agree? Let us look closer. Assume there were no laws against murder or punishment for murder on the books, would the crime be less reprehensible? The answer of course is "No."

Therefore, whence comes this knowledge that murder is wrong, even without a law on the books saying so? It comes from the existence in man of a capacity to know some things with certainty, a God-given endowment. Such origin of law is commonly referred to as natural law and because of it we can assert certain truths such as described in the Declaration of Independence that all men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights among which are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

There are some legal philosophers who do not subscribe to that school of thought. They hold that the real source of law springs from reason alone and not from any divine source. Parenthetically, may I ask, whence comes reason?

However, it is not my purpose to give a dissertation on legal philosophy. It is my purpose to state my view, with the concept of natural law always in mind, dealing as we are with a case where there are no precedents, because never have there been similar facts and situations.

The question is asked whether the Eichmann trial, held in Israel, will contribute to the growth of international law and justice. The answer is comparatively simple. Where is the international tribunal to try this man? The international court of justice has no jurisdiction over the trial of individuals. The Nuremburg tribunal is no longer in existence. At best it was an imperfect court because in the words of Justice Robert H. Jackson, "We cannot await a perfect international tribunal or legislature." Down through the years there is still no perfect international tribunal for handling cases such as Eichmann; there are no officers of the law, policemen if you prefer, to ferret out other Eichmanns and bring them before the court. What court is there to handle this case? Another imperfect international tribunal? Eichmann will be safer before an Israeli court which is determined to do impartial justice, and stand forever on its record, rather than before a temporary body convened to dispose of him and then disband.

It is argued that he should be returned to the scene of his crime on the general principle of law that a man is entitled to be tried where his offense is charged to have been committed. The short answer is that the crime charged against Eichmann is murder, not of an individual as an individual, but of individuals as belonging to a common foe, the Jew. Viewed in that light I see no difference in bringing Eichmann to stand trial in the land of the foe than it was to return Ezra Pound to the United States to stand trial in this country for acts of treason committed overseas in Germany, except possibly the fact that Ezra Pound was a U.S. citizen.

It is argued that when a crime is committed it is not against the individual who suffered the wrong, but against the community. To that I agree, and that is why I assert that the community of Jews against whom the crime was committed is now in Israel, and there is where Eichmann should be tried.

It is argued that Eichmann is charged with crimes against the Jewish people. How else should he be charged? In this State a criminal charge is the Commonwealth against defendant; in some States it is the State against defendant; in other States it is people against defendant. This is no great issue, because in law it is always substance and intent that is important rather than form.

I shall refrain from offering the amendment, but I request the Bureau of the Budget to consider the introduction of such an item into the proposed budget for next year.

Second, Mr. President, I had printed an amendment with respect to increasing the sum allowed by the committee for the informational media guarantee fund from $1 million to $1.5 million. I am satisfied that such an amendment probably would not carry. I am satisfied also that the committee will approach these discussions in conference with the other body with the utmost fairness.

I made a speech this morning in which I pointed out that the big problem in the USIA was that it was altogether too narrowly confined in what we were asking for and in its general design. I said, and I repeat, that I thought powerful Uncle Sam had a pipsqueak voice because we were not asking for all that was needed to do the job commensurate with $50 billion for defense and about $5 billion for foreign aid.

But that problem will not be corrected by what I might or might not be able to do on these small amounts. Therefore, I have decided to leave that question to the conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment. If there be no further amendment to be proposed, the question is on the engrossment of the amendments and the third reading of the bill.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill (H.R. 12580) was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. McCLELLAN. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the bill was passed be reconsidered.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCLELLAN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments and request a conference with the House of Representatives thereon, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. McCLELLAN, Mr. ELLENDER, Mr. HAYDEN, Mr. HOLLAND, Mr. FULBRIGHT, Mr. MANSFIELD, Mrs. SMITH of Maine, Mr. SALTONSTALL, Mr. MUNDT, and Mr. HRUSKA, conferees on the part of the Senate.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be read for the information of the Senate.

The legislative clerk read the report.

(For conference report, see House proceedings of today.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I am delighted to report that the House conferees accepted the Senate bill without major change.

The Senate agreed to a small additional increase on the advertising portion of second class publications subject to zone rates. The additional increase agreed to amounts to two-tenths of 1 cent per pound in zone 1 through 6 to be effective in the final stage of the rate adjustment.

Another change agreed to by the Senate conferees would exempt mail of the third class by nonprofit organizations from the increase called for in the Senate bill.

These changes somewhat offset each other insofar as total additional revenue is concerned. Thus, the additional revenue produced by the bill will remain slightly above $600 million per year when all provisions become fully effective.

The conference was conducted in a most congenial atmosphere. I commend the conferees on the part of the House—Chairman TOM MURRAY, JAMES MORRISON and ROBERT CORBETT—for their attitude and diligence in this connection. Also, I wish to express my appreciation to the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY] and the Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON] for the tremendous help they were in bringing this matter to a successful conclusion.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. YARBOROUGH. I commend the distinguished Senator from South Carolina for his leadership on the bill and for the work which he, as chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, has performed on various proposed legislation for 18 months.

We now have rolled into one bill a measure to adjust postage rates and another measure to adjust the salaries of Federal classified employees, postal employees, and legislative employees, and to raise by 5 percent the annuities paid to retired Federal employees.

The bill is a good and fair bill. To adjust salaries exactly among 1,600,000 Federal employees is an almost impossible task. In any group we would find someone who could say, "I did not receive my fair share."

The subject is exceedingly complicated. The distinguished chairman heard representatives of publishing companies. He heard representatives of the Federal employees. He heard representatives of the Government. I have never seen a chairman preside with more patience at hearings that took place month after month. The Civil Service Commission experts sat in at the committee meetings. The Senate staff worked with the committee. The Post Office Department had its experts present. All of them worked for many months on the bill in an attempt to bring justice to each employee and justice to the users of the mails, and to report as fair a bill as could be written.

It might be said that the bill is fair to one but is unfair to someone else. Scaling the complicated tables of pay with the complicated charges for postal services was a very difficult problem. It would require a superhuman person to say that the bill provides exact justice to everyone.

I compliment the staff that worked so many months with the committee. I commend the patience of the committee chairman and the other members of the committee who worked with him in bringing to the Senate such a just bill.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Texas for his remarks. I point out to Senators that the House did not pass any pay-raise bill. The House of Representatives did not cross a "t" or dot an "i" that had not already been crossed or dotted as passed by the Senate.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, all is well that ends well. Although the raise in pay is not what the postal workers and the Government employees thought they should have received, the increase given is certainly an earnest of the good faith of the Congress to try to do justice for them.

Even more significant is the fact that the workers were very disquieted about joining the pay raise bill with a bill that would raise postal rates. We should congratulate the committee chairman for having carried off that procedure successfully. There was disquietude about it and great worry. Many of us were besieged to bring about a separation of both parts of the bill. The chairman of the committee asked us to go along with his proposal as the way to do it. We did.

The chairman is entitled to the credit that is due for having successfully carried off something which was difficult, and about which many had grave disquiet.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I thank the Senator from New York for his remarks. Before we decided to take that action I took the matter up with the White House. I was told that in view of the lateness of the season, it was thought best that the two measures be combined. The administration agreed with the proposal, and the two measures were considered together.

Mr. JAVITS. I thank the Senator.

Mr. BUSH. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. BUSH. While the committee was considering the postal rate measure, I believe some of the companies which manufacture metered mail equipment solicited the interest of the committee in the matter of rounding out the rates for third-class mail to the nearest mill rate. This is very important to the manufacturers of the metered mail machines, which account for more than half of the mailing that is done in respect to this class of mail. It would not only be a severe handicap to those companies, but also to the users of the metered mail machines, if this were not done. I should like to ask the Senator what the committee's attitude was in this connection, and what I can tell those people.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I am glad to report to the Senator from Connecticut that that subject was not taken up in the committee, nor was it taken up by the members of the committee, even before the bill was passed in the Senate, and we found ourselves in the position of agreeing between the House and the Senate. For the Senator's further information, representatives of the companies came to see me and discussed the subject with me after the conferees were appointed. I am glad to report to the Senator the further fact that they returned later and said they had arrived at an adjustment with the administration so that they could live under the bill.

Mr. BUSH. In other words, the administration and the Post Office Department have given assurance that administrative action can solve this problem. Is that correct?

Mr. JOHNSTON. They can solve the problem to such an extent that it will not cause too much inconvenience to the manufacturers of the machine.

Mr. BUSH. I thank the Senator for that assurance. It is very helpful to the people who have such an interest in the subject. I ask unanimous consent that the schedule showing what they think is necessary in connection with rounding the rate out to the nearest mill be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Proposed fractional postal bulk rates rounded to nearest whole mill

[One-half mill and above being taken as 1 mill, and values less than one-half mill being dropped]

FRACTIONS

Regular:	Nonprofit
2⅝ cents	1 5/16 cents
2¾ cents	1⅜ cents
2⅞ cents	1 7/16 cents

MILLS

2.6 cents	1.3 cents
2.8 cents	1.4 cents
2.9 cents	1.4 cents

The above proposals do not represent any substantial changes in rates. For example, in the third year the ultimate third-class bulk rate would be only 0.87 percent above the fractional rate proposed. On 200 pieces of mail (the minimum required for bulk use), the added amount is 5 cents—$5.80 for postage as opposed to $5.75. This advances at the rate of only 25 cents (for each $28.75 of postage), for each thousand pieces.

In the first year, there would be a slight reduction in the regular rate—0.95 percent; the second year it would advance by 1.8 percent; then the ultimate rate 0.87 percent, as shown above, but in all cases the change is so slight as to be negligible. This same pattern would be followed in the nonprofit rates, except that in the third year the 1.4 cents would represent a reduction of 2.6 percent.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. JAVITS. I wanted to be sure that I understood that the conference report carries in it the provision with respect to the youthful survivors, 18 to 21 years of age, and that they will be able to continue their studies under that survivor provision.

Mr. JOHNSTON. The House accepted that provision.

Mr. JAVITS. I am grateful to the chairman. It is a reform that has been long overdue.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Very little money is involved. It is an equitable way of handling the problem. It involves students going to school, up to 21 years of age, and some even older, where the families pay more than half, and they are able to deduct that amount from their income tax. We thought it was only the right thing to do.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I join my colleagues in the Senate in commending the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON] and our other Senate colleagues for the work they did in conference on the postal bill. In my opinion, postal rate increases have no place in the bill. I did my best to try to have the postal rate and postal pay sections separated. I voted for the bill as it passed in the Senate and went to conference. I thought that the features of the bill that provided for long overdue pay increases to Federal employees outweighed the postal rate disadvantages of the bill.

However, even in the debate on the conference report, for which I shall vote, there ought to be legislative history made this afternoon, for future reference to the effect that it is not the intention on the part of the chairman of the committee, as he has told me in our other debate on the subject, to make the tying together of the postal rates and postal pay a precedent in any way. Am I correct in that position?

Mr. JOHNSTON. The Senator is entirely correct. I believe that when employees are justified in having their pay increased, they should have an increase, regardless of whether the postal revenue is enough to give them the raise. I feel the same way about postal employees as I do about any other employees of the Government.

Mr. MORSE. Passage of the bill and the adoption of the conference report relating to the bill, which includes both postal rate increases and pay increases, will nevertheless be argued by some persons in the future as a precedent. I am hopeful that the colloquy between the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and conference committee and the senior Senator from Oregon on the subject of tying the two together will be helpful in the future in rebutting the argument of those who might claim that here was a connection, and that it should be considered a precedent.

We all know that in the determination of legislative intent, whether it is before a governmental agency or before a court, what the chairman of the committee says has great weight with the tribunal that passes judgment on the issue of congressional intent. Therefore, I am pleased to participate in the making of this legislative history at this time.

I will vote for the conference report, as I voted for the bill. I again congratulate the Senator from South Carolina and his colleagues in the conference for doing a remarkably good job with what at best was a rather bad situation because of the fact that both postal rates and pay raises were considered in the same bill. We have helped the RECORD with this colloquy.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I am in accord with the Senator from Oregon. I should like to call one further fact to the attention of the Senator from Oregon. If he will check the RECORD he will see that the House had not allowed any pay increases in its bill. I am not being critical of the House, but I believe some of the figures in the bill frightened them. At any rate, the House had not passed a pay-raise bill. Consequently, we had to tie the pay provision to a bill already in the Senate in order to get any pay increases for Government employees. Only in this manner were we able to obtain pay increases.

I do not want anyone to think that I agree with the fact that we ought to have sufficient money in the Post Office Department, in the form of postal revenue, to offset whatever increases are necessary to give postal employees a pay raise.

We must remember that that money does not go into a separate fund; it goes into the general fund, and is then paid out to the Department. There is no connection whatever between pay increases and rate increases.

Mr. MORSE. I thank the Senator very much. I understood the parliamentary situation completely. The Senator from South Carolina explained it to me in detail when the bill was before the Senate. He was confronted with the situation that if we were to get any pay increases for our employees, it was necessary to do it by way of the route that the Senator traveled. I understood that. That is why, as I have said, I voted for the bill, because I thought the important thing was to assist Government employees who were involved in the pay section of the bill.

Mr. CARLSON. Mr. President, as a member of the conference between the House and Senate on the postal and classified pay and postal rate bill, I support the conference report. I sincerely hope it will be unanimously adopted by this body. It has been my privilege to serve on the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service for many years. I do not believe a piece of proposed legislation has ever been prepared by our committee and reported to the Senate which had more thorough study and received more research than the bill which was reported to the Senate last week.

After having attended many conferences between the Senate and the House, I believe I can say that this was the finest conference which representatives of the Senate ever had with the House. I believe that the chairman of our committee will fully agree with me as to that.

I am pleased that we could return to the Senate with a bill which provides increases in pay for Federal employees generally. I am pleased also that it was possible to provide a postal rate increase which I believe is satisfactory. The committee did much work on the bill during the many weeks of hearings. I know of no bill that has had as much study as has this bill.

I am pleased that it was possible for us to include a provision for increased benefits and payments for Federal retired workers. These two phases with respect to retired workers were accepted without change.

There were some changes in the postal provisions of the bill, but not many. One with which I am pleased, which was made yesterday, provides for the elimination of profits from the third-class rate. This takes care of veterans' organizations, churches, and philanthropic organizations. Previously, the second-class section, dealing with nonprofit groups, was taken care of on the floor of the Senate.

The bill will raise substantial money for the Post Office Department. However, no doubt we shall be confronted with a similar situation within another year or two. I hope that at the next session we can have the benefit of a study made by a commission, and that substantial funds will be made available to it, so that it will make a thorough study of the operations of this Department. It is becoming one of the largest agencies of the Government, second only to the Department of Defense. This Department spends billions of dollars, and has many thousands of employees.

Such a study definitely should be made for the benefit of Congress, so we shall not be confronted with another request for a postal rate increase without having that study before us. I think we have reached about the top of the postal rates which our people should be required to pay; and I hope very much that the study will be made next year.

Mr. President, at this time I wish to pay a tribute to the distinguished chairman of the committee and to the other members of the committee who worked so diligently on the bill. I think it is a high point in legislation dealing with postal rates and pay. Certainly the members of the staff also are entitled to much credit for the fine bill which has been brought before the Senate. I am pleased to support it.

Mr. FONG. Mr. President, as a member of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee I would like to compliment the Senate conferees, the senior Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], the junior Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY], and the senior Senator from Kansas [Mr. CARLSON] on their accomplishments upon meeting with the House conferees on H.R. 7927. I note that the conference report on this bill does not substantially change the bill as passed by this body on September 27, 1962.

The people of the State of Hawaii will be particularly pleased that the conferees saw fit to keep an amendment I made to H.R. 7927 which restores the weight and size limitation of parcel post matter moving between, Hawaii, Alaska, and their sister States.

For 3 years the individuals and business establishments of the States of Hawaii and Alaska have carried a burden imposed by an arbitrary postal ruling. The Post Office Department recognized this and consequently concurred in my amendment. The people of Hawaii are grateful to the Senate for their consideration in this matter.

Mr. President, I voted for this bill when it came out of committee. Although I do not agree with every provision it contains I feel it is an excellent piece of legislation, and am pleased to have had the opportunity to assist in its production. I urge that the Senate vote its passage as now reported by the able Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee chairman [Mr. JOHNSTON].

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DODD in the chair). The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the report was agreed to be reconsidered.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I move to lay on the table the motion to reconsider.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Bartlett, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House insisted upon its amendment to the bill (S. 3389) to promote the foreign commerce of the United States through the use of mobile trade fairs, disagreed to by the Senate; agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. BONNER, Mr. DOWNING, Mr. CASEY, Mr. MAILLIARD, and Mr. PELLY were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

INVESTMENT BY CERTAIN BANKS IN CORPORATIONS PROVIDING CLERICAL SERVICES

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 2071, House bill 8874, to authorize certain banks to invest in corporations whose purpose is to provide clerical services for them, and for other purposes.

I make this request because of the fact that agreement has been reached, as I understand, among the Senators involved, in regard to a satisfactory amendment which will be offered, I believe, by the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. PROXMIRE].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill (H.R. 8874) to authorize certain banks to invest in corporations whose purpose is to provide clerical services for them, and for other purposes.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask that the time available for consideration of the amendment be limited to 10 minutes—5 minutes to be under the control of the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. PROXMIRE] and 5 minutes to be under the control of the Senator from Virginia [Mr. ROBERTSON].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I should like to have some time on this measure, too.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Certainly.

UNITED STATES, BRITISH, AND FRENCH RIGHTS IN BERLIN

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, on behalf of myself and the very distinguished Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE], I submit, and send to the desk, a concurrent resolution, and request its appropriate reference.

The resolution concerns the posture of the United States in regard to Berlin, and is in precisely the same terms as House Concurrent Resolution 570, which was reported today by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House.

The purpose of the resolution, which I shall read to the Senate, is to make clear that our attention is not being diverted by the situation in Cuba, and that we equate, in terms of importance to the United States, the position in Berlin with the position in Cuba. This resolution is, in substance, along the same lines as the resolution on Cuba which was well nigh unanimously adopted by both the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The concurrent resolution will be received, printed, and appropriately referred.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 97) was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, as follows:

Whereas the primary purpose of the United States in its relations with all other nations is and has been to develop and sustain a just and enduring peace for all; and

Whereas it is the purpose of the United States to encourage and support the establishment of a free, unified, and democratic Germany; and

Whereas in connection with the termination of hostilities in World War II the United States, the United Kingdom, France, and the Soviet Union freely entered into binding agreements under which the four powers have the right to remain in Berlin, with the right of ingress and egress, until the conclusion of a final settlement with the Government of Germany; and

Whereas no such final settlement has been concluded by the four powers and the aforementioned agreements continue in force: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress—

(a) that the continued exercise of United States, British, and French rights in Berlin constitutes a fundamental political and moral purpose;

(b) that the United States would regard as intolerable any violation by the Soviet Union directly or through others of those rights in Berlin, including the right of ingress and egress;

(c) that the United States is determined to prevent by whatever means may be necessary, including the use of arms, any violation of those rights by the Soviet Union directly or through others, and to fulfill our commitment to the people of Berlin with respect to their resolve for freedom.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I am honored to be joined in the sponsorship of the resolution by the distinguished Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE].

I believe it most important that the Soviet Union understand that what we say about Cuba, we mean equally about Berlin, and that we will not be diverted from our purpose by either.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, this concurrent resolution is most important, because in my judgment it is a corollary of the Cuban resolution.

Furthermore, as chairman of the Subcommittee on Latin-American Affairs, I am very much concerned about some propaganda which is being circulated. In my judgment, it is unfair to the President and to all the people of the United States. It is to the effect that, in some way, somehow, Berlin may be on the bargaining table vis-a-vis action taken in connection with Cuba.

About 10 days ago, I spoke briefly on this subject on the floor of the Senate. My remarks were based upon briefings which I had received from responsible officials of the administration. In those briefings, I was assured that there would be no basis for any bargain or trade in regard to Berlin vis-a-vis Cuba.

Nevertheless, the rumors to which I have referred have begun to circulate.

Therefore, Mr. President, we owe it to the President to adopt this concurrent resolution, in order to strengthen his hand and to make clear that we have no intention to enter into any trade with Khrushchev in regard to Berlin and Cuba; that the same principle of freedom is at stake in both Berlin and Cuba; and that we do not barter freedom; we protect freedom.

Adoption of the concurrent resolution will accomplish two things: First, it will make very clear our answer to the rumor propaganda being circulated; second, it will show the world that we are behind the President in his determination to protect freedom in Berlin.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Oregon for his support.

RACE RELATIONS AND DISCRIMINATION IN MISSISSIPPI

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. President, today the Wall Street Journal has given us a very instructive analysis in regard to the very serious situation in Mississippi. I think every Senator can read with great profit the article the Wall Street Journal has published. It is entitled "Moderates Speak Up—200 Top Mississippians Seek To Bar Defiance of Courts in Future."

The article is a report on a meeting of 200 Mississippi businessmen who are deeply disquieted by what the defiance of law and the ensuing riots mean to the people of Mississippi and to the businesses in Mississippi. Of course, these businessmen are strongly opposed to such a situation. Mr. President, not only is this the voice of reason of the citizens of Mississippi, with all their pride in their great State; it is also the voice of reason of all citizens of the United States.

I ask unanimous consent that the article be printed in full at this point in the RECORD, in connection with my remarks.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Wall Street Journal, Oct. 3, 1962]

MODERATES SPEAK UP—200 TOP MISSISSIPPIANS SEEK TO BAR DEFIANCE OF COURTS IN FUTURE—BUSINESSMEN STRIVE TO CURB FURTHER VIOLENCE, EXERT PRESSURE ON LOCAL OFFICIALS—AN EYE ON STATE'S ECONOMY

(By Neil Maxwell)

JACKSON, MISS.—At 12:45 p.m. yesterday a meeting broke up in the Crown Room of the King Edward Hotel here. Out poured nearly 200 of the most prominent citizens of Mississippi.

This meeting may affect the future of race relations in Mississippi more than all the strife and disorder reported in headlines the world over since Negro James Meredith arrived at the University of Mississippi campus Sunday. The subject discussed by the group: How to prevent further bloodshed in Mississippi.

Not one political official was invited to this gathering of business and professional leaders from all parts of the State. The meeting marked the first time any sizable group of prominent whites in Mississippi have committed themselves to work publicly for law and order and, in effect, for an end to defiance of the Federal courts, no matter how unpalatable any breaching of Mississippi's rigid segregation might be to them.

In a statement signed by every man at the meeting, the group urged "all our mayors and local public officials in every town, city, and county to advocate forthrightly and immediately the maintenance of law and order."

These white leaders' stand might not seem a bold step in most States, but in Mississippi it is extraordinary. With responsible business and professional elements keeping quiet until now, the public stage has been occupied by extreme and highly vocal segregation leaders and their political allies. Thus Gov. Ross Barnett a week ago was publicly threatening to arrest and jail Federal officials. And no influential voice of moderation was heard in reply here.

[In New York, a leading integrationist group prepared to wage economic warfare against Mississippi. The Congress of Racial Equality said it would threaten boycotts against manufacturers locating new plants in the State, and would challenge in court the State's right to Federal tax exemption on its bonds.]

MODERATE SPEAKS UP

One of the first calming statements from a prominent Mississipian came Monday morning. W. H. "Billy" Mounger, a rising young Jackson businessman who heads Lamar Life Insurance Co. and a radio and television station, went on the air to plead for an end to violence.

"I am not in conflict with the Governor's purpose of trying to test the legal and sovereign rights of our State," Mr. Mounger declared. "But I think it should be done legally, not by violence. And the Governor is the only man who can stop the violence." The executive also urged obedience to Federal laws.

Without exception, it appears, responsible Mississippians were dismayed by the bloody mob scenes in Oxford, home of the university. "Everyone is shocked and sick over the rioting at Oxford," says one Jackson executive.

At least some businessmen in Mississippi believe incendiary statements by Governor Barnett made the violence inevitable. And they fear now that violence has been loosed, it may spread. "When they're frustrated by the troops at Ole Miss, some extremists are apt to turn elsewhere in the State," says a Mississippi attorney. "Some crackpot is apt to try to bomb a Negro school."

BANKERS, LAWYERS PRESENT

Among the prime movers who met here yesterday to figure out ways to prevent such violence were persons whose names carry considerable weight in Mississippi. They included Nat Rogers, president of Deposit Guaranty Bank & Trust Co., the State's biggest bank; R. M. Hearin, president of the First National Bank of Jackson; R. D. "Bob" Morrow, a former State treasurer, and a trio of influential lawyers—Chester Curtis, of Clarksdale; William Barbour, of Yazoo City; and Frank Everette, of Vicksburg.

These men and others at the meeting are powerful in Mississippi. Politicians turn to them for support and advice. Even before yesterday's gathering, they had been pressuring Governor Barnett to adopt a more moderate tone. On Monday a Jackson man who attended yesterday's meeting confided to a friend: "We finally got Ross to issue a statement, though it's not as strong as we wanted." He referred to the Governor's public plea to all outsiders to "go home" and to Mississippians "to remain in your homes."

The business and professional leaders say they intend to try to act as a calming influence in their communities. "We're trying to get businessmen to urge their employees to stay in their hometowns and keep calm," explains one of them. "We'll try to pour oil on troubled waters. We won't blame anyone for what's past. We just want to bind up our wounds and prevent any more violence."

WENT ALONG WITH BARNETT

Why weren't these moderates heard from earlier?

One businessman claims most business elements had gone along with the Governor because they understood he planned only to exhaust every legal defense. "The Governor and his aids gave assurances, accepted in good faith, that no violence would occur," he says. But by last Thursday some business leaders realized violence was in the offing. "By then," this businessman insists, "it was too late for any leader of stature to stand up and say frankly 'this thing is leading us down the road to violence.' "

Whatever the wisdom of their course before the riots broke out, many Mississippi businessmen now appear determined to play a more active and open role in State affairs. Declares W. P. "Pat" McMullan, chairman of Deposit Guaranty Bank: "We think this thing is going to bring forth a leadership from the business community we've never had before in Mississippi."

Businessmen here stoutly maintain the racial troubles won't have any serious impact on business. "It's just one incident, and if it ends there it won't be detrimental," says C. B. Ryan, president of Storkline, Inc., a Jackson producer of TV cabinets and other wood products. But he adds: "If the violence doesn't stop, nobody can tell what the result will be." He reports there is no sign of tension in his plant, where half the 1,800 workers are Negroes. Whites and Negroes will continue to cooperate on the job, he believes, because they know anything that would disturb the company's operations could cost their jobs.

WOOING INDUSTRY

In recent years Mississippi has been wooing new industry with considerable success. Last year alone the State attracted 83 new businesses which provided 7,018 new jobs and represented $155 million in capital investment.

It might be assumed that this drive for industry would be hampered by the events

HIGHLIGHTS: Senate passed USDA appropriation continuation measure for fiscal year 1963. Both Houses agreed to conference report on foreign trade bill. House insisted on amendments in disagreement on agricultural appropriation bill. Senate agreed to conference report on pay bill. Sen. Russell objected to consideration of supplemental appropriation bill. Senate passed roads bill. Sen. Morse commended Secretary Freeman's speech on forestry. Senate passed public works authorization bill. Senate received International Coffee Agreement. House passed bill for holding World Food Congress. Rep. Wilson, Ind., commended ASC committeemen. House agreed to conference report on school lunch fund apportionment bill. Sen. Mansfield and Rep. Cooley reviewed legislative accomplishments in farm legislation.

SENATE

1. AGRICULTURAL APPROPRIATIONS. Passed without amendment S. J. Res. 234, an appropriation continuation measure for this Department authorizing appropriations for fiscal year 1963 for "projects or activities which were conducted in the fiscal year 1962 by the Department of Agriculture, including the corporations therein, and the Farm Credit Administration, at a rate for operations not in excess of the current rate (amount appropriated or authorized to be expended in the fiscal year 1962) or the rate provided for in the budget estimate (amount estimated to be appropriated or estimated to be expended in the fiscal year 1963) whichever is lower, except that the 1963 Agricultural Conservation Program shall not exceed $250,000,000." Sen. Russell stated,

"I think it is prudent that the Senate pass the continuing resolution at this time, in the eventuality that it is impossible for the conferees to reach agreement on the regular appropriation bill." This measure had been reported by the Appropriations Committee earlier in the day (S. Rept. 2277). pp. 21014-5

2. FOREIGN TRADE. Both Houses agreed to the conference report on H. R. 11970, the foreign trade bill (by a vote of 256 to 91 in the House; no record vote in theSenate) (pp. 20997-21008, 21097-125). This bill will now be sent to the President. The conferees agreed to an amendment requiring the President to impose duties or other import restrictions on the products of any foreign country establishing and maintaining foreign import restrictions against U.S. agricultural products, notwithstanding any provision of any trade agreement under the bill and to the extent he deems necessary and appropriate, in order to prevent the establishment or obtain the removal of foreign import restrictions and to provide access of U. S. agricultural products to the markets of such foreign country. Also, agreed to an amendment of the Senate providing that Sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act and import restrictions imposed thereunder shall be unaffected by this bill.

3. PERSONNEL. Agreed to the second conference report on H. R. 9727, the Federal pay and postal-rate increase bill, after the bill had been returned to conference earlier for further consideration (pp. 21017-20, 21053). The conferees struck out a provision in the bill which would have provided that retirement increases for retired employees could be paid out of the civil service retirement fund notwithstanding the provisions of Public Law 85-844.

Passed without amendment S. 3459, to authorize the appointment of one additional Secretary of State. p. 21057

The Post Office and Civil Service Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) H. R. 5698, to extend the apportionment requirement of the Civil Service Act to temporary summer employment. p. D939

4. SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS. Sen. Russell objected to the second reading of H. R. 13290, the supplemental appropriation bill for 1963, thus delaying consideration of the bill for one day (p. 20956). The Appropriations Committee voted to report this bill earlier in the day (p. D939).

5. PUBLIC WORKS. Passed with amendments H. R. 13273, the public works authorization bill for rivers and harbors and flood control projects (pp. 20958-996). Senate conferees were appointed (p. 20996). Agreed to an amendment by Sen. Hartke providing for the establishment of a Wabash Basin Interagency Water Resources Commission (pp. 20992-3). Consideration of a similar bill S. 3773 was indefinitely postponed (p. 20996).

6. ROADS. Passed with amendments H. R. 12135, the roads authorization bill for 1964 and 1965 (pp. 21011-4, 21016-7, 21020-3). Both Houses appointed conferees (pp. 21023, 21183). This bill includes authorizations for forest highways of $33 million for fiscal years 1964 and 1965, and for forest development roads and trails of an additional $20 million for fiscal year 1963 to bring the total authorization for that year to $60 million, $70 million for 1964, and $85 million for 1965 (as compared to the present level of $40 million).

7. FORESTRY. Sen. Morse inserted and commended Secretary Freeman's speech on the national forestry program before the Membership Conference of the Western Pine Association. pp. 21084-7

26. DRUGS. By a vote of 347 to 0, agreed to the conference report on S. 1552, the proposed Drug Industry Act of 1962. This bill will now be sent to the President. pp. 21133-6

27. CENSUS. Passed without amendment S. 3631, to amend title 13, U.S.C., to preserve the confidential nature of copies of reports filed with the Bureau of the Census on a confidential basis. This bill will now be sent to the President. A similar bill, H. R. 10569, was tabled. p. 21149

28. TARIFFS. Passed as reported H. R. 12109, to amend the Tariff Act of 1930 to permit certain natural grasses and other natural materials to be imported free of duty. pp. 21152-3

Passed as reported H. R. 3985, to provide for the imposition of a duty on imports of certain bread and for the removal of such duty under certain conditions. pp. 21153-4

29. COCONUT OILS. Concurred in the Senate amendments to H. R. 5260, to suspend for 3 more years (until June 30, 1966) the processing tax on the first domestic processing of coconut oil, palm oil, palm kernel oil, and certain derivatives of such oils. This bill will now be sent to the President. pp. 21154-5

30. TRANSPORTATION. Conferees were appointed on H. R. 5700, to permit the Secretary of the Treasury to designate any contract carrier, authorized to act as such by any agency of the U. S., as a carrier of bonded merchandise for the final release of which from customs custody a permit has not been issued. Senate conferees have not yet been appointed. p. 21155

31. FARM LABOR. Began debate on S. 1123, to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act so as to permit a child to be employed in agricultural work outside of school hours if he is employed by his parents on the home farm or if he is 14 years of age or over, and to authorize the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations barring particularly hazardous employment for children up to the age of 16. pp. 21157-61, 21162-83

Agreed to the following amendments:

By Rep. O'Hara, to make the provisions of the bill effective July 1, 1963, instead of July 1, 1962. p. 21170

By Rep. Martin, Nebr., to restrict the authority of the Secretary of Labor in determining hazardous employment for children under 16 to that of operation of power-driven machinery or the use of dangerous substances. pp. 21170-2

By Rep. Green, as amended by an amendment by Rep. Goodell, to provide that a child may be employed on a farm to which he commutes daily from his permanent residence and has the written consent of his parents or guardian, or the latter are also employed on the same farm. pp. 21175-9

By Rep. Fountain, by a vote of 124 to 96, to provide that nothing in the Fair Labor Standards Act shall be construed as invalidating any provision of State law which would be valid in the absence of such act, unless there is a direct and positive conflict between the act and State law. pp. 21179-82

32. PAY BILL. The Speaker pro tempore sustained a point of order by Rep. Gross against the conference report on the Federal pay and postal-rate increase bill, H. R. 7927, and conferees were appointed for a further conference (pp. 21142-3). The amended conference report (see item 3) was received (pp. 21192-215).

33. LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM. Rep. Albert announced that the conference report on H. R. 7927, the pay bill, and the conference report on H. R. 12900, the public works appropriation bill for 1963, will be considered on Fri. pp. 21217-8

NOTE: Not all of the House proceedings were printed in the Congressional Record of October 4. The remaining proceedings of the House will be printed in the next issue of the Record.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

OCTOBER 4, 1962.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. MURRAY, from the committee of conference, submitted the following

CONFERENCE REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 7927]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

That this Act may be cited as the "Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1962".

PART I—POSTAL SERVICE

TITLE I—POSTAL RATES

FIRST-CLASS MAIL

SEC. 101. Section 4253(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words "four" and "three" wherever appearing in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "five" and "four", respectively.

REPEALS AND TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

SEC. 304. (a) The following provisions of law are repealed:

(1) The third proviso in section 3 of the Act of October 30, 1951, as amended by the Act of June 23, 1959 (73 Stat. 89; Public Law 86–56);

(2) Sections 204(d), 204(e)(1), and 204(e)(2) of the Postal Rate Revision and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1948, as amended by the Act of July 14, 1960 (74 Stat. 479; Public Law 86–644);

(3) Sections 4361 and 4652 of title 39, United States Code.

(b) Section 4359(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "4358, 4361, and 4362" and inserting in lieu thereof "4358 and 4362".

(c) Section 4451(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out "(a)(2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(a)(3)".

COMMUNIST POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

SEC. 305. (a) Chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"§ 4008. Communist political propaganda

"(a) Mail matter, except sealed letters, which originates or which is printed or otherwise prepared in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to rules and regulations to be promulgated by him to be 'communist political propaganda', shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the United States domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received and will be delivered only upon the addressee's request, except that such detention shall not be required in the case of any matter which is furnished pursuant to subscription or which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee. If no request for delivery is made by the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed sixty days, the matter detained shall be disposed of as the Postmaster General directs.

"(b) For the purposes of this section, the term 'communist political propaganda' means political propaganda, as defined in section 1(j) of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended (22 U.S.C. 611(j)), issued by or on behalf of any country with respect to which there is in effect a suspension or withdrawal of tariff concessions pursuant to section 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or any country from which any type of foreign assistance is withheld pursuant to section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

"(c) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable with respect to (1) matter addressed to any United States Government agency, or any public library, or to any college, university, graduate school, or scientific or professional institution for advanced studies, or any official thereof, or (2) material whether or not 'communist political propaganda' addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal cultural international agreement under which the United States Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in any country described in subsection (b)."

(b) The table of contents of chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"4008. Communist political propaganda."

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 306. Except as otherwise provided, the foregoing provisions of this part shall become effective on January 7, 1963.

NOTICE WITH RESPECT TO OBSCENE MATTER DISTRIBUTED BY MAIL AND DETENTION THEREOF

SEC. 307. In order to alert the recipients of mail and the general public to the fact that large quantities of obscene, lewd, lascivious, and indecent matter are being introduced into this country from abroad and disseminated in the United States by means of the United States mails, the Postmaster General shall publicize such fact (1) by appropriate notices posted in post offices, and (2) by notifying recipients of mail, whenever he deems it appropriate in order to carry out the purposes of this section, that the United States mails may contain such obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter. Any person may file a written request with his local post office to detain obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter addressed to him, and the Postmaster General shall detain and dispose of such matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 501. This part may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 502. The Congress hereby declares that, whereas the functions of a Federal salary system are to fix salary rates for the services rendered by Federal employees so as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the Government's programs and to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and whereas fulfillment of these functions is essential to the development and maintanance of maximum proficiency in the civilian services of Government, then, accordingly, Federal salary fixing shall be based upon the principles that—

(a) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and

(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

Salary levels for the several Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated, and salary levels shall be set and henceforth adjusted in accordance with the above principles.

IMPLEMENTATION OF POLICY

SEC. 503. In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 502, the President: (1) shall direct such agency or agencies, as he deems appropriate, to prepare and submit to him annually a report which compares the rates of salary fixed by statute for Federal employees with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work in private enterprise as determined on the basis of appropriate annual surveys conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and, after seeking the views of such employee organizations as he deems appropriate and in such manner as he may provide, (2) shall report annually to the Congress (a) this comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and (b) such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structures, and compensation policy, as he deems advisable.

SEC. 504. (a) Whenever the President shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under (1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), (2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, (3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or (4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), he may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level: Provided, That in no case shall any minimum salary rate so established exceed the seventh salary rate prescribed by law for the grade or level. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency or agencies as he may designate.

(b) Within the limitations specified in subsection (a), rates of basic compensation established under such subsection may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

SEC. 505. The functions, duties, and regulations of the departments and the Civil Service Commission with respect to this title, the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, and the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38 of the United States Code relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration, shall be subject to such policies and rules as the President may issue. Among other things, the President's policies and rules mny provide for—

(1) preparing and reporting to him the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates,

(2) obtaining and reporting to him the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison, and on other salary matters,

(3) reviewing and reporting to him on the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures for the Federal programs to which they apply,

(4) reviewing the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupation and local areas, and

(5) providing step-increases in recognition of high quality performance and providing for properly relating supervisory salary rates paid under one system to those of subordinates paid under another system.

TITLE II—PAY SYSTEM OF THE CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 601. This title may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962".

BASIC COMPENSATION SCHEDULES

SEC. 602. (a) Section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (74 Stat. 298; 5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The compensation schedules for the General Schedule shall be as follows:

(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (10) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first or second longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8; the first longevity step to step 9; and the second longevity step to step 10.

(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the third longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive basic compensation at the highest rate of the appropriate grade plus an amount equal to the value of the maximum within grade increment provided for that grade in effect on and after such day.

(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate, of grade 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(4) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(5) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

(6) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period, which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of grade 16 or grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

(7) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

(8) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate between two scheduled or two longevity rates, or between a scheduled and a longevity rate, of a grade of the General Schedule, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates, as specified in paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection, in effect on and after such day.

(9) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate in excess of the maximum longevity rate for his grade, or in excess of the maximum scheduled rate for his grade if there is no longevity rate for his grade, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule, in effect on and after such day, prescribed by paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection for employees at the maximum longevity rate or at the maximum scheduled rate, as the case may be, for his grade, or (B) if such rate is less than his existing rate, (i) the lowest rate of the new schedule or his grade which equals or exceeds his existing rate or (ii) if there is no such rate, his existing rate.

(10) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such day, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

(11) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after the date of enactment of this Act, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at one of the rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate between two rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates in effect on and after such date.

(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade, as in effect on and after such date, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule prescribed for employees at the maximum rate for his grade, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation if such existing rate is higher.

(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and the amount of the initial increase provided by this section, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

STEP-INCREASES

SEC. 603. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

"SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates, 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

"(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

"SEC. 703. This title shall not aply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

SEC. 604. (a) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to reach as follows:

"(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher."

(b) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

"(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is later demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.".

(c) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act, who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.".

SALARY RETENTION

SEC. 605. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

(1) by striking out "(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

(2) by striking out "(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;".

TOP GRADE POSITIONS UNDER CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SEC. 606. (a) Section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, is amended by striking out "not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine" and substituting in lieu thereof "not to exceed an aggregate of twenty-four hundred, in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades".

(b) Section 505(j) of such Act is amended by inserting after the word "positions" the following: "(in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades)".

(c) Section 505 of such Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsections:

"(k) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of ten positions of Warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).

"(l) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of eight positions of Member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b)."

CONFORMING CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

SEC. 607. (a) The following provisions of law are hereby repealed:

(1) Section 104 of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 234; 5 U.S.C. 592(d)), authorizing grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 for the position of Budget Officer of the Department of Commerce so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(2) Section 206 of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 360; 5 U.S.C. 483–2), authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the position of Director, Division of Budget and Finance, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(3) The second paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provisions" in title III of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 364, 10 U.S.C. 1335, note), authorizing the Chief of Engineers to place the position of Chief of the Programs Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Engineers for Civil Works, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

(4) Section 24(d) of the Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 62, 42 U.S.C. 2521(d)), authorizing five positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 for agencies performing functions under that Act.

(5) The fourth sentence of section 3(a) of the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1120; 16 U.S.C. 742b(a)), relating to the annual salary of the Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife in the Department of the Interior, which reads: "He shall receive compensation at the same rate as that provided for grade GS–18.".

(6) That part of section 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 200; 7 U.S.C. 1857), relating to the annual salary of an agricultural surplus disposal administrator in the Department of Agriculture, which reads: ", at a salary rate of not exceeding $15,000 per annum,".

(7) Section 1102 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (63 Stat. 971; 5 U.S.C. 1073), relating to the submission of reports with respect to the rates of compensation under, and the administration of, such Act.

(b) The second proviso of the paragraph under the heading "FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM" and under the subheading "SALARIES AND EXPENSES, BUREAU OF PRISONS" in title II (the Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956) of the Departments of State and Justice, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 273; Public Law 133, Eighty-fourth Congress; 5 U.S.C. 298a) is amended by striking out "three positions" and inserting in lieu thereof "one position".

SEC. 608. (a) Each position specifically referred to in, or covered by, any repeal made by section 607(a) of this title shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, in accordance with the provisions of such Act.

(b) Positions in grade 16, 17, or 18, as the case may be, of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, immediately prior to the effective date of this section, shall remain, on and after such effective date, in their respective grades, until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect on and after such effective date.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 609. (a) The changes in existing law made by this title shall not affect any position existing immediately prior to the effective date of any such changes in existing law, the compensation attached to such position, and any incumbent thereof, his appointment thereto, and his entitlement to receive the compensation attached thereto, until appropriate action is taken in accordance with this title.

(b) The incumbent of each such position immediately prior to the effective date of this title shall continue to receive the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving immediately prior to such effective date until he leaves such position or until he is entitled to receive compensation at a higher rate in accordance with law. When such incumbent leaves such position, the rate of basic compensation of each subsequent appointee to such position shall be determined in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 610. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

TITLE III—POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYEES

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 701. This title may be cited as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962".

POSTAL FIELD SERVICE SCHEDULES

SEC. 702. Subsection (a) of section 3542 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules for positions in the postal field service which shall be known as the Postal Field Service Schedules and for which the symbol shall be 'PFS'. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Except as provided in sections 3543 and 3544 of this title, basic compensation shall be paid to all employees in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes."

(c) The first sentence of section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: "In addition to the compensation provided in the Rural Carrier Schedule, each rural carrier shall be paid for equipment maintenance a sum equal to—

"(1) 12 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

"(2) $4.20 per day, whichever is greater."

(d) Section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding thereto new subsections (i) and (j) as follows:

"(i) Each person serving as a substitute of record on the effective date of this subsection shall be placed in step 2 of the Rural Carrier Schedule and he shall be advanced by step-increases, on the basis of time on the rolls prior to the effective date, in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552, except that no such person shall be so advanced to a step higher than the step to which a regular carrier with the same length of service would have advanced prior to such effective date. Thereafter, he shall be advanced by step-increases, pursuant to the provisions of sections 3552 and 3553 of this title. On and after the effective date of this subsection, each substitute rural carrier shall be paid the daily rate, based on the step attained by him, for the route on which service is performed.

"(j) Each temporary rural carrier who, on the effective date of this subsection, is serving on a vacant route pending the appointment of a regular rural carrier shall be placed in step 2 and shall be advanced by step-increases on the basis of any prior substitute or temporary rural carrier service in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552."

FOURTH CLASS OFFICE SCHEDULES

SEC. 704. (a) Section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules which shall be known as the Fourth Class Office Schedules, and for which the symbol shall be 'FOS', for postmasters in post offices of the fourth class. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Each such schedule is based upon the gross postal receipts as contained in returns of the post office for the calendar year immediately preceding. Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary may be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposesof advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment."

SEC. 705. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases

"(a)(1) Each employee in levels 1 through 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, each employee subject to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and each employee subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(B) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(2) Each employee in the postal field service in level 7 or above of the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, and 4—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service;

"(B) To steps 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and four calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(C) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(3) The receipt of an equivalent increase during any of the waiting periods specified in this subsection shall cause a new full waiting period to commence for further step-increases.

"(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law on or after the date of enactment of the Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962, to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section.

"(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services."

SEC. 706. Section 3554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3554. Compensation of certain temporary employees

"Temporary employees hired for a continuous period of one year or less for a position in the postal field service shall be paid basic compensation at the entrance step of the position to which they are appointed.".

SEC. 707. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3559. Promotions

"An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the rate for the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.".

SEC. 708. Subsection (a)(4) of section 6402 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

> "(4) delivery and collection service may not be established or extended under a star route contract on a rural route except when such rural route does not meet the minimum standards established by the Postmaster General, and becomes vacant, and".

SEC. 709. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

> "(5) 'basic salary' and 'basic compensation' mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.".

SEC. 710. Subsection 3541(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by (a) inserting in paragraph (3) thereof, after "rural carriers," the phrase "(other than substitute rural carriers,)" and (b) adding a new paragraph (5) as follows:

> "(5) To compute the daily rate of basic compensation for substitute rural carriers, the annual rate of compensation shall be divided by 304.".

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER THE DATE OF ENACTMENT OF THIS ACT

SEC. 711. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to Postal Field Service Schedule I or Rural Carrier Schedule I, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

> (1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees (except employees subject to section 3543(j) of title 39, United States Code) in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph.

(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1) prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a), and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule I on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER JANUARY 1, 1964

SEC. 712. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule II, Rural Carrier Schedule II, or Fourth Class Office Schedule II, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

SEC. 713. Subject to sections 711(c) and 712(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary.

BASIC SALARY IN CASES OF ASSIGNMENTS OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES

SEC. 714. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: "The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.".

(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b), if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment. Payments of increases validated by this subsection shall be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267).

SALARY PROTECTION REVISION

SEC. 715. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,".

(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and".

(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting "; or" in lieu of such period, and

(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.".

(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date of enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

RULES FOR SPECIAL COMPENSATION

SEC. 716. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106 as follows:

"§ 3106. Special compensation rules

"In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may, within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase."

PERSONNEL REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 717. (a) Section 3301 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3301. Personnel requirements

"The Postmaster General shall determine the personnel requirements of the postal field service, and fix the number of supervisors and other employees in that service, except that there may not be at any one time more than one assistant postmaster employed at any post office or a total of 70 employees assigned to salary levels 18, 19, and 20 in the postal field service."

(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word "Provided," the following: "That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950, shall not be chargeable to this limitation: And provided further,".

CONFORMING AMENDMENT

SEC. 718. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after the heading entitled "EMPLOYEES GENERALLY", the following:

"3106. Special compensation rules".

(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting "3558. Longevity step-increases".

REPEALS

SEC. 719. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296, Public Law 86–568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 720. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, except that section 712 (conversion rules for second postal field service salary increases) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 801. (a) Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended by striking out the words "not to exceed eight Assistant Chief Medical Directors" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated to suit the needs of the Department,".

(b) Such section is further amended by striking out subsections (d) to (i), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid a salary of $20,000 a year.

"One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid a salary of $18,500 minimum to $19,500 maximum a year.

"(f) The Director of Nursing Service shall be a qualified registered nurse, appointed by the Administrator, and shall be responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operation of the Nursing Service. During the period of service as such, the Director of Nursing Service shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(g) The Administrator may appoint a chief pharmacist and a chief dietitian. During the period of his service as such, the chief pharmacist and the chief dietitian shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(h) Except as provided in subsection (j), any appointment under this section shall be for a period of four years but persons so appointed shall be subject to removal by the Administrator for cause.

"(i) Reappointments may be made for successive like periods.

"(j) The Administrator may designate a member of the Chaplain Service of the Veterans' Administration as Director, Chaplain Service, for a period of two years, subject to removal by the Administrator for cause. During the period that any such member serves as Director, Chaplain Service, he shall be paid a salary, as determined by the Administrator, within the minimum and maximum salary limitations prescribed for grade GS–15 positions by the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Redesignations under this subsection may be made for successive like periods. An individual designated as Director, Chaplain Service, shall at the end of his period of service as Director revert to the position, grade, and status which he held immediately prior to being designated Director, Chaplain Service, and all service as Director, Chaplain Service, shall be creditable as service in the former position."

PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, AND NURSES

SEC. 802. Section 4107 of such title 38 relating to the minimum and maximum rates of annual salary of certain physicians, dentists, and nurses of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration is amended to read as follows:

"§ 4107. Grades and pay scales

"(a)(1) Effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, the grades and per annum full-pay ranges for positions provided in paragraph (1) of section 4104 of this title shall be as follows:

"Associate grade, $6,090 minimum to $7,890 maximum.
"Junior grade, $5,235 minimum to $6,810 maximum.

"(b) No person may hold the director grade unless he is serving as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, center, or outpatient clinic (independent). No person may hold the executive grade unless he holds the position of chief of staff at a hospital, center, or outpatient clinic (independent), or the position of clinic director at an outpatient clinic, or comparable position."

SEC. 803. (a) Section 4108 of such title 38 which formerly prescribed the maximum amount of pay and allowances for medical, surgical, or dental specialists of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration is amended, effective on the date of enactment of this Act, to read as follows:

"§ 4108. Administration

"Notwithstanding any law, Executive order, or regulation, the Administrator shall prescribe by regulation the hours and conditions of employment and leaves of absence of physicians, dentists, and nurses.".

(b) The table of contents of chapter 73 of such title 38 is amended by striking out

"4108. Specialist ratings."

and inserting in lieu thereof.

"4108. Administration."

DIRECTORS OF HOSPITALS, DOMICILIARIES, AND CENTERS

SEC. 804. Section 4111(b) of such title 38, relating to the annual salary of certain individuals serving as director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center, is amended, effective on the date of enactment of this Act, to read as follows:

"(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the per annum salary rate of each individual serving as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary which he would receive under section 4107 of this title if his service as a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center had been service as a physician in the director grade. This subsection shall not affect the allocation of any position of director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center to any grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, except with respect to changes in rate of salary pursuant to the preceding sentence, and shall not affect the applicability of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual."

SEC. 805. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

AGRICULTURAL STABILIZATION AND CONSERVATION COUNTY COMMITTEE EMPLOYEES

SEC. 1002. The rates of compensation of persons employed by the county committees established pursuant to section 8(b) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590h(b)) shall be increased by amounts equal, as nearly as may be practicable, to the increases provided by title II of this part for corresponding rates of compensation in the appropriate schedule or scale of pay.

ASSISTANT UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS

SEC. 1003. (a) The last paragraph of section 508 of title 28 of the United States Code is amended to read as follows:

"Assistant United States attorneys and attorneys appointed under section 503 of this title—not more than $17,500."

(b) The rates of basic compensation of assistant United States attorneys whose basic salaries are fixed by section 508 of title 28, United States Code, shall be increased by 7½ per centum effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

EMPLOYEES IN THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

SEC. 1004. (a) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in or under the judicial branch of the Government whose rates of compensation are fixed by or pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision a of section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. 102(a)(2)), section

3656 of title 18 of the United States Code, the third sentence of section 603, section 604(a)(5), or section 672 to 675, inclusive, of title 28 of the United States Code, or section 107(a)(6) of the Act of July 31, 1956, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2206 (a)(6)), are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(b) The limitations provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

EMPLOYEES IN THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

SEC. 1005. (a) Each officer and employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be paid additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of his gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law).

(b) The basic compensation of each employee in the office of a Senator is hereby adjusted, effective on October 16, 1962, to the lowest multiple of $60 which will provide a gross rate of compensation not less than the gross rate such employee was receiving immediately prior thereto, except that the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of any employee if on or before the fifteenth day following the date of enactment of this Act the Senator by whom such employee is employed notifies the disbursing office of the Senate in writing that he does not wish such provisions to apply to such employee. In any case in which, at the expiration of the time within which a Senator may give notice under this subsection, such Senator is deceased such notice shall be deemed to have been given.

(c) Notwithstanding the provision referred to in subsection (d), the rates of gross compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (except the Presiding Officer of the Senate), the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate, the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the Senior Counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate are hereby increased by 7 per centum.

(d) The paragraph imposing limitations on basic and gross compensation of officers and employees of the Senate appearing under the heading "SENATE" in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568), is amended to read as follows:

"No officer or employee whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of $8,880 per annum, or gross compensation at a rate in excess of $18,880 per annum, unless expressly authorized by law."

(e) The limitation on gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the Senate is hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. The provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall not apply to employees whose compensation is subject to such limitation.

(f) Each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of the rate of his total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section.

(g) The limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives are hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of each such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

(h) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following).

(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by this section, and no increase provided by this section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

(j) Insofar as the provisions of this section apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962.

SAVING PROVISION

SEC. 1006. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

ABSORPTION OF COSTS

SEC. 1007. (a) The departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions.

(b) No request for additional or supplemental appropriations to meet the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act shall be transmitted to the Congress unless it is accompanied by a certification of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget that the amounts requested are necessary to provide for the continued execution of essential functions of the department, agency, or corporation concerned.

(c) Pursuant to the objective of this section, heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignation, retirement, or death and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions.

(d) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1008. Except as otherwise expressly provided, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

CEILING PROVISION

SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

SEC. 1101. (a) The annuity of each person who, on the effective date of this section, is receiving or entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity.

(b) The annuity of each person who receives or is entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund commencing during the period which begins on the day following the effective date of this section and ends five years after such date, shall be increased in accordance with the following table:

If the annuity commences between—	The annuity shall be increased by—
January 2, 1963, and December 31, 1963	4 per centum
January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1964	3 per centum
January 1, 1965, and December 31, 1965	2 per centum
January 1, 1966, and December 31, 1966	1 per centum

(c) In lieu of any other increase provided by this section, the annuity of a survivor of a retired employee or Member of Congress who received an increase under this section shall be increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which the annuity of such employee or Member was so increased.

(d) No increase provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

(e) The limitation reading "or (3) the sum necessary to increase such annuity, exclusive of annuity purchased by voluntary contributions under the second paragraph of section 10 of this Act, to $2,160" contained in section 8(c)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended by the Acts of July 16, 1952 (66 Stat. 722; Public Law 555, Eighty-second Congress), and August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1043; Public Law 747, Eighty-third Congress), shall not be effective on or after the effective date of this section.

(f) The limitation contained in the next to the last sentence of section 8(d)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, as enacted by the Act of August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 692; Public Law 369, Eighty-fourth Congress), shall not be effective on and after the effective date of this section.

(g) The increases provided by this section shall take effect on the effective date of this section, except that any increase under subsection (b) or (c) shall take effect on the beginning date of the annuity.

(h) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.

Sec. 1102. (a) Section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(t) The term 'price index' shall mean the annual average over a calendar year of the Consumer Price Index (all items—United States city average) published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics."

(b) Such Act is further amended by redesignating section 18 as 19, and by inserting after section 17 the following new section:

"COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

"Sec. 18. (a) After January 1, 1964, and after each succeeding January 1, the Commission shall determine the per centum change in the price index from the later of 1962 or the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. On the basis of such Commission determination, the following adjustments shall be made:

"(1) Effective April 1, 1964, if the change in the price index from 1962 to 1963 shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2, 1963, shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(2) Effective April 1 of any year other than 1964 after the price index change shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2 of the preceding year shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(b) Eligibility for an annuity increase under this section shall be governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable from the fund as of the effective date of an increase, except as follows:

"(1) Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commenced the day after the annuitant's death, shall be increased as provided in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) if the commencing date of annuity to the annuitant was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

"(2) Effective from its commencing date, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10 (d)), which annuity commences the day after the annuitant's death and after the effective date of the first increase under this section, shall be increased by the total per centum increase the annuitant was receiving under this section at death.

"(3) For purposes of computing an annuity which commences after the effective date of the first increase under this section to a child under section 10(d), the items $600, $720, $1,800, and $2,160 appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section, and, in case of a deceased annuitant, the items 40 per centum and 50 per centum appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section to the annuitant at death. Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply as if such first increase were in effect with respect to computation of a child's annuity under section 10(d) which commenced between January 2 of the year preceding the first increase and the effective date of the first increase.

"(c) No increase in annuity provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"(d) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar."

SEC. 1103. (a) Section 9(g) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The annuity as hereinbefore provided (excluding any increase because of retirement under section 7) for any married employee or Member retiring under this Act, or any portion of such annuity designated in writing for purposes of section 10(a)(1), shall be reduced by 2½ per centum of so much thereof as does not exceed $3,600 and by 10 per centum of so much thereof as exceeds $3,600, unless the employee or Member notifies the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in section 10(a)(1)."

(b) Section 10(a)(1) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(1) If an employee or Member dies after having retired under any provision of this Act and is survived by a wife or husband to whom the employee or Member was married at the time of retirement, such wife or husband shall be paid an annuity equal to 55 per centum of an annuity computed as provided in subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 9, as may apply with respect to the annuitant, or of such portion thereof as may have been designated in writing for such purpose by the employee or Member at the time of retirement, unless the employee or Member has notified the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive such annuity."

(c) Section 10(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(d) Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(e) Section 10(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: "or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have attained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim."

(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: "The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, age (2) his becoming capable of self-support after eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one."

SEC. 1104. Section 1101 of this part shall take effect on January 1, 1963. The amendments made by section 1103 (except subsection (f)) shall not apply in the case of employees or Members retired or otherwise separated prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and the rights of such persons and their survivors shall continue in the same manner and to the same extent as if these amendments had not been enacted.

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT OF THE MANAGERS ON THE PART OF THE HOUSE

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) entitled "An act to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes," submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The committee of conference recommends that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for both the text of the House bill and the text provided by the Senate amendment and that the Senate agree to the same.

The text of the House bill related only to postal rates.

The Senate amendment to the House text consisted of three parts.

Part I of the Senate amendment, consisting of three titles, related to postal rates. Title I of part I covered postal rate increases. Title II of part I contained amendments to the postal policy provisions of the postal laws. Title III of part I contained certain miscellaneous amendments to the postal laws.

Part II of the Senate amendment, consisting of six titles, related to Federal salary reform. Title I of part II contained a statement of policy with respect to Federal salary reform. Title II of part II contained provisions revising the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Title III of part II revised the compensation schedules of title 39, United States Code, and contained certain related provisions, with respect to postal field service employees. Title IV of part II of the Senate amendment contained salary increases for physicians, dentists, and nurses, and other personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. Title V of part II revised the salary rates for personnel in the Foreign Service under the Department of State prescribed by the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended. Title VI of part II contains certain miscellaneous salary provisions which, in effect, revise the compensation rates for the following groups of employees: (1) certain scientific and professional employees; (2) agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees; (3) assistant U.S. attorneys; (4) employees in the judicial branch; (5) employees in the legislative branch.

Part III of the Senate amendment contained provisions making adjustments in annuities under the Civil Service Retirement Act, as amended.

The conference substitute, with the exceptions to be noted, is in general the same as the Senate amendment. Except for technical and minor drafting changes, the differences between the text of the House bill and the conference substitute are discussed below.

Summary of Major Provisions of Conference Substitute

INCREASED POSTAL REVENUE

Postal revenue will be increased by $600.3 million per annum when all of the postal rate adjustments provided by part I of the conference substitute are placed in effect. Such increased revenue and the public service policy provisions of the conference substitute will—when adjustment in rates and conditions of mailability of fourth-class mail for which the Postmaster General has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission (as required by law) shall be approved—eliminate the postal deficit.

Such increased postal revenue provided by part I of the conference substitute is approximately $20 million less than the aggregate annual increased postal revenue of $620 million which would have been provided by the postal rate adjustment bill recommended to the House of Representatives by the Postmaster General and presented for consideration by the chairman of the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service on January 23, 1962.

A table comparing present and proposed postal rates follows:

[2] Present parcel post schedule plus 8 cents per piece. First-class matter above 8 ounces, 64 cents for first 8 ounces plus 5 cents for each additional ounce or the published parcel post rate if higher.

[3] Consists of total loss on free and reduced rate mail, additional public service on in-county mail, and the amount deemed attributable to third- and fourth-class post offices and rural and star routes.

[4] When number of copies mailed for delivery outside the county is fewer than 5,000, the minimum per copy is ½ cent.

On magazines containing less than 5 percent advertising the minimum charge per copy is 0.55 of a cent during 1963, 0.65 of a cent during 1964, and 0.75 of a cent thereafter.

SALARY INCREASES

Part II of the conference substitute places in effect major provisions of the Federal statutory salary reform proposal submitted to the Congress by the President earlier in the current session. The essential requirements of comparability of Federal and private enterprise salary rates, internal alinement of Federal salary schedules, and annual review and adjustment of salaries recommended by the President are provided by part II of the conference substitute. The chief differences between such part of the conference substitute and the President's recommendations are (1) salary adjustments under the conference substitute are in two phases, spaced 15 months apart, instead of three annual phases as recommended by the President, and (2) the three highest grades of the Classification Act of 1949 and the three highest levels of the postal field service schedule receive only one upward adjustment, leaving the final determination of the appropriate salaries for such grades and levels for consideration in the next Congress.

The conference substitute also provides comparable salary adjustments for employees in the judicial branch, agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees, congressional employees, and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed by administrative action. This is in conformity with the policy adopted by the Congress in all recent salary increase legislation.

The conference substitute provides salary increases which, when all are in effect, will average 11.2 percent for postal field service employees and 9.6 percent for classified employees and certain others.

COST OF SALARY INCREASES

The annual cost of the salary reform provisions of the conference substitute will be $1.049 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964, when the salary adjustments provided for therein become fully effective. The salary reform legislation recommended by the President would have cost $1.054 billion a year beginning in the calendar year 1965. The annual cost of Federal civilian salary reform provisions contained in H.R. 9531, as reported favorably by the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service but not acted upon by the House, would have been $1.469 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964—a difference of $420 million savings under the conference substitute.

CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT ANNUITIES

Part III of the conference substitute—

1. Provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the civil service retirement fund which commenced on or before that date.
2. Applies the increase on a graduated reduction basis to all annuities which commence in the 4-year period following January 1, 1963, in keeping with the practice followed in the last previous enactment of this kind.
3. Provides that the proper proportion of the increase granted an annuitant will accrue to his survivors.
4. Excludes from the increase annuity amounts purchased by voluntary contributions.

5. Removes the ceilings on increases imposed by certain previous enactments.

6. Provides for future adjustments in the event the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics increases not less than 3 percent.

7. Raises from $2,400 to $3,600 the portion of annuity to which the reduction of 2½ percent applies when electing survivorship benefits.

8. Increases the ratio of survivorship benefits from 50 to 55 percent.

9. Reverses present procedure by providing that in the future survivorship benefits will be automatic unless an adverse election is made.

10. Extends the right of membership benefits for children to the end of any school year in which a child attains the age of 21 years so long as the child pursues full-time studies in a school, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. This change is in keeping with provisions of veterans' benefit laws.

Differences Between the Text of the House Bill and the Conference Substitute

PART I.—POSTAL SERVICE

TITLE I.—POSTAL RATES

Both the House bill and part I of the conference substitute provide increases in postal rates and certain changes in the public service features of postal policy under chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

First-Class Mail

Section 3 of the House bill and section 101 of the conference substitute both provide for increases in the rate on first-class letter mail from 4 to 5 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, in the rate on drop letters from 3 to 4 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, and in the rate on each post card and each postal card from 3 to 4 cents.

Airmail

The amendments made by section 4 of the House bill increase the postage rates on airmail letters from 7 cents to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 cents to 6 cents. The existing requirement of minimum first-class ounce rates for air parcel post first-class matter is retained, but the existing minimum rate of 3 cents an ounce on such matter is eliminated.

Section 102 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on airmail letters from 7 to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof, and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 to 6 cents.

In keeping with the increase of 8 cents on airmail weighing 8 ounces, the first pound rate for air parcel post (other than first-class matter) is increased 8 cents. Air parcel post rates for first-class matter will be the regular 8-cents-an-ounce rate for each of the first 8 ounces, and the regular first-class letter rate of 5 cents an ounce for each ounce or fraction thereof over 8 ounces, but in no case less than the air parcel post rate for other matter.

Second-Class Mail Within County of Publication

Section 5 of the House bill removes the requirement, in connection with free-in-county mail, that publications must be printed in the county in which published.

Section 103 of the conference substitute eliminates free-in-county mailings and extends to all such within-county mailings for calendar years 1963 and 1964 the existing 1 cent per pound and one-eighth cent minimum charge now applicable to certain categories of within-county mailings. At the start of calendar year 1965, the pound rate would be increased to 1 and one-fourth cents. The minimum charge per piece would remain at one-eighth cent. Existing per-copy rates applicable to publications issued less frequently or more frequently than once a week when mailed for delivery by letter carrier at the office of mailing are left unchanged.

Second-Class Mail Beyond County of Publication

Section 6 of the House bill imposes a piece rate charge of one-half cent effective July 1, 1962, and a piece rate charge of 1 cent effective July 1, 1963, to be paid in addition to existing pound rates.

Section 104(a) of the conference substitute increases second-class pound rates and the minimum charge per piece of publications for delivery outside the county of publication except that the current minimum charge of one-half cent per copy is not changed in the case of publications mailing less than 5,000 copies per issue outside the county of publication. The increase in pound rates on the nonadvertising portion is in three annual increments of 4 percent each year. The increase in pound rates on the advertising portion is in three annual increments of 0.4 cent each. The schedule provides increases after 3 years of 40 percent in zones 1 and 2; 30 percent in zone 3; 20 percent in zone 4; 15 percent in zone 5; and 12 percent in zone 6. The existing rates of 12 cents and 14 cents in zones 7 and 8, respectively, are not changed.

Any issue of a publication the advertising portion of which does not exceed 5 per centum of the entire issue will pay .55 of a cent per piece when mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964, .65 of a cent per piece when mailed during calendar year 1964, and .75 of a cent per piece when mailed after December 31, 1964.

Subsection (a) except as noted above also increases the minimum charge on the above publications in annual increments over a 3-year period from one-half cent to six-tenths of a cent, eight-tenths of a cent, and 1 cent respectively.

Subsection (a) also fixes the postage rate on classroom publications at 60 percent of the regular rate. The rate applicable to the total content of publications of qualified nonprofit organizations (advertising and nonadvertising portions alike) is maintained at 1 cent per pound less than the pound rate applicable to the nonadvertising portion of regular publications. This produces a rate for these publications of less than 50 percent of the pound rates described above and the minimum per piece rate is retained at the present one-eighth cent.

Subsection (b) of section 104 extends the nonprofit rate to publications of official State highway agencies which meet all requirements for second-class entry and which contain no advertising. However, only one such publication in any State could be mailed at this rate.

Also, the nonprofit rate is extended to associations of rural electric cooperatives.

Subsection (c) repeals existing law to the extent necessary to give effect to the changes in rates discussed above.

Second-Class Transient Mail

Section 105 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on the first 2 ounces of transient mail from 2 to 4 cents.

The House bill has no comparable provision relating to transient mail.

Controlled Circulation Publications

Section 8 of the House bill increases the rate to be paid by controlled circulation publications from 12 cents a pound to 14 cents a pound.

Section 106 of the conference substitute increases the pound rate on controlled circulation publications from 12 to 12½ cents the first year, to 13 cents the second year, and to 13½ cents thereafter.

Third-Class Mail

Section 9 of the House bill provides increases in rates for third-class mail as follows:

(1) The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof to 4 cents.

(2) The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants) is increased from 16 to 21 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants is increased from 10 to 18 cents except in the case of mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations which remains at 10 cents. The minimum rate per piece for other than qualified nonprofit organizations is increased from 2½ cents to 3½ cents.

(3) The minimum rate on pieces of odd size is increased from 3½ cents to 4½ cents.

Section 107 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in rates for third-class mail:

(1) The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof and 1½ cents on each additional ounce or fraction thereof to 4 and 2 cents, respectively.

(2) The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants) is increased from 16 to 18 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants is increased from 10 to 12 cents. The minimum rate per piece in either instance is increased in three annual increments—first to 5⅝ cents, a year later to 2⅞ cents, and a year following that to 2⅞ cents.

Section 107 continues in effect the present minimum per piece charge on bulk third-class mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations and provides that the pound rates for such mailings shall be 50 percent of the regular pound rates for bulk third-class mailings as embodied in the conference agreement.

In addition to the foregoing, this section raises the fee for a third-class bulk mailing permit from $20 to $30 and increases the minimum weight requirement from 20 to 50 pounds. This should have been adjusted in 1958 when the weight for third-class mail was increased from 8 to 16 ounces. One of the requirements for the bulk third-class pound rates is that such mail be in quantities of 20 pounds or of not less than 200 pieces. When the weight limit was 8 ounces a minimum of 40 such pieces was necessary, but when the weight limit was raised to 16 ounces only 20 such pieces was necessary to comply with the minimum weight limit. This is entirely too small a number of pieces to justify the bulk pound rate. Thus, in the future, to obtain the bulk third-class rate, it will be necessary to mail a minimum of 50 pounds or 200 pieces.

Fourth-Class Mail

Section 108 of the conference substitute restores to the States of Alaska and Hawaii the benefits of certain provisions relating to the maximum size and weight of fourth-class parcels mailed at or for delivery at first-class post offices which they enjoyed prior to their admission as States. Under these provisions, such parcels could be as large as 100 inches in length and girth combined and could weigh as much as 70 pounds. These are the maximums which are already applicable generally to parcels mailed at or for delivery at second-, third-, and fourth-class post offices or rural and star routes, and to parcels mailed at or for delivery at Army, Air Force, or Fleet Post Offices. The conditions which led to the original extension of these maximums to Alaska and Hawaii while in territorial status have not been altered by statehood and those maximums should be restored.

Section 109.—This section provides an increase in fourth-class postage rates on books, films, and similar educational materials from 9 cents for the first pound to 9½ cents during the first year and to 10 cents thereafter. The existing rate of 5 cents on each additional percent will continue without change.

The postage rates on fourth-class library materials would remain at 4 cents on the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The House bill contains no provisions similar to sections 108 or 109 of the conference substitute.

Fees for Second-Class Entry and Registration

The House bill made no change in fees for second-class mail.

Section 110 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in second-class mailing fees:

	Existing fee	Proposed fee
Circulation:
Not over 2,000	$25	$30
2,000 to 5,000	50	60
Over 5,000	100	120
Reentry	10	15
Additional entry	10	[1] 15 [2] 50
News agent	20	25

[2] Zones 3 to 8.

Permit Fees for Mailing Without Stamps

Section 111 of the conference substitute increases from $10 to $15 the permit fee for mailing without stamps.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Fixing of Fees by Postmaster General

Section 112 of the conference substitute gives the Postmaster General the authority to adjust second-class entry and registration fees and permit fees for mailing with printed postage indicia in the future.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Keys and Other Small Articles

Section 113 of the conference substitute increases from 5 cents for each 2 ounces to 6 cents for each 2 ounces the postage rate on keys and other small articles mailed without the prepayment of postage. The House bill contains no such provisions.

Method of Determining Gross Receipts

Section 11 of the House bill and section 114 of the conference substitute both provide that increased revenues derived from the rate increases shall be excluded in determining compensation and allowances of postmasters and other employees and classes of post offices.

This is similar to the provision contained in the 1958 Postal Increase Act.

Qualifications of Postmasters

Section 115 of the conference substitute requires the Civil Service Commission, in evaluating the qualifications of applicants for positions of postmaster, to give appropriate consideration to experience in the postal field service.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

TITLE II—POSTAL POLICY

Section 2 of the House bill revises and strengthens the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees originally enacted as the Postal Policy Act of 1958 and now contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

Subsection (a) clarifies and strengthens the language of such policy with respect to the determination of postal expenses attributable to the performance of public service by the Postal Establishment.

Subsection (b) makes several important changes in the existing provisions of law with respect to identification of public services rendered by the Postal Establishment and the determination of the costs of such public services which shall be excluded from postal expenses for purposes of fixing postal rates and fees.

The first such change (sec. 2(b) (1) and (2)) provides that "the estimated calculated loss" from operation of third- and fourth-class post offices, star routes, and rural routes shall be held and considered to be an item of public service rendered by the Postal Establishment.

Under present law, the "loss" on star routes and third- and fourth-class post offices is designated as an item of public service.

The second such change (sec. 2(b)(3)) supplies a needed clear definition of the terms "loss" and "total loss" as applied to revenues and expenses of the public service items specified in the law—a definition which was not included in the Postal Policy Act of 1958. This definitive language, coupled with the remaining provisions of section 2 of the bill, will provide standards and guidelines which are necessary for the Postmaster General to determine the amount of public service charges to be excluded from postal expenses each year for purposes of considering the need for adjustments in postal rates and fees.

The amendment made by section 2(c) requires the Postmaster General, on or before February 1 of each year beginning with the year 1962, to report to the Congress the amount by which costs of the public service items set forth in the postal policy provisions exceed revenues from such public service items and specifies, further, that the amount so determined and reported shall be excluded from the total cost of postal operations for purposes of adjustment of postal rates and fees. The last sentence of the amendment requires that the amount so determined and reported (and thus excluded from total operating costs for rate and fee purposes) shall be not less than 7½ percent of the total current budget of the Post Office Department.

The amendment made by section 2(d) is a technical amendment which conforms the table of contents of the appropriate chapter of title 39, United States Code, with the amendments made by the remainder of section 2 of the bill.

Section 201 of the conference substitute makes changes necessary to clarify and strengthen the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code. Further, certain technical changes are made necessary by the elimination of free-in-county mailing under section 104. This section resolves a problem of long standing by providing a formula for use in determining the amount that shall be considered public service costs in the operation of star and rural routes and third- and fourth-class post offices. The conference substitute provides that 10 percent of the gross cost of the operation of third-class post offices and the star route system, and 20 percent of the gross cost of the operation of fourth-class post offices and rural routes shall be attributable to public service.

TITLE III—MISCELLANEOUS

Eligibility of Certain Organizations for Second-Class Entry

Section 301 of the conference substitute adds publications of State industrial development agencies and public or nonprofit elementary and secondary schools to the list of those entitled to second-class entry without the necessity of having a bona fide list of regular subscribers.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Educational Materials

Section 10 of the House bill makes certain technical changes in the preferential educational and library material rate listings to reflect the substantive changes made by Public Law 86–644, approved July 14, 1960. The subsection also supplies corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39, United States Code, which extends the preferential library materials rates to scientific or matematical kits, instruments, and devices, and catalogs and guides or scripts relating to their use. The existing preferential rates of 9 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 5 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof on educational materials and 4 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 1 cent a pound for each additional pound or fraction thereof on library materials are retained.

Section 302 of the conference substitute provides corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39 relating to the inclusion of guides, scripts, and catalogs with scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, or devices and sound recordings.

The conference substitute adds looseleaf pages, and binders therefor, consisting of medical information for distribution to doctors, hospitals, medical schools, and medical students to the educational materials category.

Reading Matter and Other Materials for Blind Persons

Section 303 of the conference substitute revises sections 4653 and 4654 of title 39, United States Code, which relate to the mailing of reading and other materials for the use of blind persons. The changes made in these sections are designed to accomplish the following:

(1) Existing law permits the free mailing to blind persons of books with raised type and recordings. This section would add books printed in sightsaving size type to this category. It would also make clear that the term "recordings" includes sound tapes.

(2) Under present law public libraries and public institutions for the blind may mail free of postage books being loaned to blind persons. This section extends this privilege to any nonprofit organizations which lends books to the blind.

(3) Extends the same free mailing treatment to reading materials mailed to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons as when sent directly to the blind persons.

(4) Existing law permits magazines furnished to blind persons at cost to be mailed at the rate of 1 cent a pound. This section extends that rate to other reading materials furnished to blind persons at cost. It also makes it applicable where the materials are sent to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons.

(5) Under present law sound reproduction devices owned by the United States which have been loaned to blind persons may be returned by those persons for repair at a postage rate of 1 cent a pound. The Postmaster General has authority to extend this rate to reproducers owned by States, public libraries, nonprofit agencies, and blind persons themselves. This section would eliminate the 1-cent-a-pound charge and permit free mailing of these devices. It also authorizes the Postmaster General, in his discretion, to extend free mailing privilege to the sending by State agencies, public libraries, private nonprofit agencies for the blind, and blind persons themselves, of paper, records, tapes, and other materials owned by them for use by the recipients for the production of reading matter in raised characters or sight saving size type, or in the form of recordings, for the use of blind persons. The House bill has no similar provision.

Repeals and Technical Amendments

Section 9(c) of the House bill and section 304 of the conference substitute repeal section 3 of the act of October 30, 1956 (Public Law 86–56). Also, paragraph (3) of the conference substitute repeals the following substantive provisions of law:

(1) Section 4361 of title 39, which authorizes publishers to mail proofs of advertisements at second-class zone rates applicable to advertising portions.

(2) Section 4652 of title 39, which permits public mailing of the Congressional Record from the District of Columbia at the rate of 1 cent per copy.

Communist Political Propaganda

Section 12 of the House-passed bill contains a provision which would amend section 505 of title 39, United States Code (international postal arrangements) for the purpose of excluding Communist political propaganda from the U.S. mails.

This section in the House bill also contains provisions designed to accomplish this purpose with respect to mail originating within the United States as well as mail originating outside the United States. Under these provisions mail matter determined by the Attorney General to be Communist political propaganda which is financed or sponsored by a Communist-controlled government is nonmailable within the United States, except as fourth-class mail.

During extensive hearings on section 12 of H.R. 7927, widely divergent views were expressed as to the need for such a provision and the form any such provision should take. Following extended deliberations in executive session, the committee has agreed upon what it considers to be an appropriate substitute which meets many of the objections expressed during the hearings, and which is designed to provide a workable solution to the problem of Communist political propaganda arriving for distribution in the United States.

Section 305 of the conference substitute consist of a modification of S. 2740, introduced by Senator Bush on January 25, 1962, which would have had the effect of reinstating the program of screening Communist political propaganda substantially as that program was conducted prior to March 17, 1961.

Section 305 of the conference substitute provides for a program under which, with certain exceptions, Communist political propaganda coming into the United States from foreign countries would be intercepted and would be delivered only upon the request of the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed 60 days.

Section 305 specifically provides that mail matter, except sealed letters, originating in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be Communist political propaganda, shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the U.S. domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received. Such detention would not be required in the case of any matter which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee.

Exempted would be matter addressed to Government agencies, to libraries, or to colleges, universities, graduate schools, scientific or professional institutions for advanced studies, or any individual connected therewith. Likewise, material addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal international agreement under which the U.S. Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in a Communist country, would be exempted.

In order to furnish guidelines to the Secretary of the Treasury as to what constitutes Communist political propaganda, the entire definition of political propaganda contained in the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1948 is incorporated by reference and related to matter issued by or on behalf of any country from which tariff concessions have been withdrawn under section 5 of the Trade Agreement Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or which is denied assistance under section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Effective Date

Section 13 of the House bill provides an effective date of July 1, 1962. Section 306 of the conference substitute provides that, except as otherwise provided, the provisions of Part I—Postal Service shall become effective January 7, 1963.

Obscene Matter Distributed by Mail

The House bill has no provisions on this subject.

Section 307 of the conference substitute authorizes the Postmaster General to detain and dispose of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

Part II of the conference substitute relates to Federal salary reform.

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

Title I of part II contains a statement of Federal salary policy.

Section 501 provides that part II may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 502 sets forth the policy of the Congress that pay of Federal civilian personnel shall be established upon the principles of equal pay for substantially equal work with pay distinctions maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and that Federal salaries shall be comparable with salaries in private enterprise for the same levels of work.

Section 503, pertaining to the implementation of the above policy, provides that the President shall have prepared and submitted to him an annual report comparing salary rates paid to Federal employees with rates paid for the same levels of work in private industry as determined through annual surveys of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. After seeking the views of employee organizations the President shall make an annual report to the Congress containing the comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structure, and compensation policy as he deems advisable.

In further implementation of the stated salary policy, section 504 provides that whenever the President or his designee finds that the salary rates in private enterprise for an occupation in any particular location are so substantially above the salary rates of Federal statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government in recruiting and retaining well-qualified persons in positions under the pay systems of the executive branch covered by the conference substitute, the President, or his designee, may establish for such location higher minimum rates of basic compensation. Corresponding increases may be made in all step rates in the salary range for the applicable grade or level; however, the minimum salary rate established under this authority may not exceed the seventh compensation rate prescribed by law for the grade or level involved. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency as he may designate.

Section 504 also provides that such rates may be revised from time to time and that such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

Section 504 further provides that any increase in basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, or section 3552 of title 39, United States Code.

Policies, Rules, and Regulations of the President

Section 505 further implements the salary policy by authorizing the President to prescribe policies, rules, and standards in order to carry out the policy and purpose of the conference substitute with respect to the several Federal salary systems covered by the conference substitute and in order to provide adequate supervision and control by the President over the functions, duties, and regulations of the respective authorities in the executive branch in connection with the administration and operation of the four major salary systems and the provisions of this title.

Title II—Pay System of the Classification Act of 1949

Title II of part II of the conference substitute pertains to the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Section 601 provides that title II may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962."

Section 602 contains the compensation schedules for the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and the salary conversion rules for the two phases of the salary adjustment plan which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment (first phase) and on January 1, 1964 (second phase).

Section 602(a) prescribes the compensation schedules. The schedule contains 10 regular steps in lieu of 7 scheduled and 3 longevity rates currently provided for GS–1 through GS–10; 9 rates for

GS–11 through GS–14 in lieu of 6 scheduled and 3 longevity rates; 8 rates for GS–15 in lieu of 5 scheduled and 3 longevities; and 5 rates for GS–16 and GS–17 in lieu of the 5 rates currently provided by the Classification Act. Grade GS–18 continues to have a single rate. Because the number of regular step rates is increased, the current provisions for longevity step increases in title VII of the Classification Act of 1949 are no longer needed and are repealed in subsequent sections of the conference substitute.

Section 602(b) specifies the rules adjusting existing pay rates to the rates of the new schedules. Employees generally are to retain the same relative place within the new grade range as they had within their former grade range.

Paragraph (10) of section 602(b) provides that service immediately preceding the effective date shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended by the conference substitute.

Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) applies to each officer or employee who is receiving immediately prior to the effective date of section 602, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation, determined under section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, 83d Cong.), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960. Such officer or employee will receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (1) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under the savings provisions of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, referred to above, and (2) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, and (3) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and (4) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (5) the amount of the increase made by section 602 under compensation schedule I in the maximum rate of his grade. This rate will remain in effect for such officer or employee until he leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of the amendment or any other law. However, when the position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any later appointee thereto will be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) also contains a provision to the effect that, subject to the possibility that any such officer or employee may leave his position or may become entitled to aggregate compensation at a higher rate, the amount of the increase provided by section 602 is to be held and considered, for the savings purposes of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing aggregate rate of compensation of the officer or employee.

Step Increases

Section 603 amends title VII, "Step Increases" of the Classification Act of 1949. Title VII currently provides two types of step increases: (1) Periodic step increases under section 701, and (2) longevity step increases beyond the scheduled maximum rate of the grade under section 703. As amended by the conference substitute, title VII provides for (1) periodic step increases, and (2) additional step increases to be granted in recognition of high quality performance.

Section 701 now provides periodic step increases, for employees below the maximum rate of the grade, for each 52 calendar weeks of service if the amount of the step increase is less than $200, or 78 weeks of service if the employee's position is in a grade in which the step increase is $200 or more. As amended, section 701(a) provides for periodic increases at all grades following the completion of (1) 52 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, (2) 104 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, and (3) each 156 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9.

Paragraphs (A) and (C) of section 701(a) which relate to eligibility for step increases are in existing law. Paragraph (B) requires, as a prerequisite to within-grade advancement, that the employee's work is of an acceptable level of competence in contrast with the present wording that the employee has a current performance rating of "satisfactory" or better.

Subsection (b) of the revised section 701 is present law.

The new section 702 of the Classification Act of 1949 in the conference substitute authorizes, in subsection (a), additional step increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Such additional step increases could be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Civil Service Commission and, under subsection (b), would be limited to not more than one within any period of 52 weeks.

Current provisions of sections 703 and 704 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to longevity step increases, are no longer needed since these steps have been included in the regular rate range for the respective grades. The provisions are therefore repealed. Section 703 of the amended title VII which is already in existing law (as sec. 705) provides that title VII shall not apply to persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Title VII currently does not have a section 702.

General Compensation Rules

Section 604(a) revises section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949 to provide that when an employee is promoted to a position in a higher grade he shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of the higher grade which exceeds his existing rate by not less than two step increases of the grade from which promoted. This subsection also specifies the action to be taken if there is no rate in the higher grade two step increases above the employee's existing rate, or if he is receiving a rate saved under section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 on reduction in grade. Existing law provides only a one-step increase upon promotion or transfer to a higher grade. A similar proposal is included in H.R. 1010 which passed the House of Representatives on August 22, 1961.

Section 604(b) adds a new subsection (d) to section 802 of the Classification Act of 1949. There is no present authority for saving the basic compensation of an employee who, together with his position, is brought under the Classification Act from some other Federal pay system (such as the wage board system), if his salary rate is in excess of the maximum rate of the classification grade in which his position is placed. The new subsection would authorize the Civil Service Commission to issue regulations to permit the retention of salary in such instances. It includes special provision applicable in case of subsequent demotion in grade.

Section 604(c) substitutes a new section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949. Because of the more comprehensive provisions in section 504 of title I, part II, of the conference substitute, the present provisions of section 803, authorizing advanced entrance rates of the grades for appointments in shortage occupations, are unnecessary and therefore are being deleted. Section 803, as amended, provides that under regulations of the Civil Service Commission, any employee under the Classification Act who regularly has responsibility for supervision, including technical supervision, over wage board employees may be paid a rate for his grade above the highest rate paid to any such prevailing rate employee.

Salary Retention

Section 605 amends section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 which provides for the retention of salary when an employee is demoted to a lower grade. The amendment in paragraph (1) extends application of the provisions of section 507 to employees in all grades of the Classification Act of 1949 by omitting the language of existing law which excludes application of the benefits to employees in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. The amendment in paragraph (2) strikes out "B in the same grade or in the same or higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section 507 and inserts in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;". This change in language will permit salary retention not now permitted under section 507 where there may have been a series of promotions followed by a demotion or a series of demotions.

Section 606 amends section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949. Subsection (a) increases from 1,989 to 2,400 the limitation on the number of positions the Civil Service Commission, under section 505(b) of the Classification Act, may authorize to be placed in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule, and excludes from this limitation engineering research and development positions and positions in the physical sciences, natural sciences, and medicine. Subsection (b) excludes these same types of positions from the number of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 now authorized for the Department of Defense in section 505(j) of the Classification Act.

Section 606(c) authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of 10 positions of warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the general schedule. This increases by four the number of such positions which may be assigned to GS–16. This subsection also authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of eight positions of member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the general schedule. Presently only one such position is in grade GS–17 and the other seven are in grade GS–16.

Section 607 repeals certain provisions of law authorizing (1) incumbency allocations to top Classification Act grades, and (2) certain positions to be placed in top grades of the act or to have an equivalent salary.

Section 608(a) provides that each position covered by a repeal provision in section 607 shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the general schedule of the Classification Act, in accordance with the provisions of that act.

Section 608(b) provides that positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule immediately prior to the effective date shall remain in such grades until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act.

Savings Provision

Section 609 contains the usual salary savings provisions.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 610 provides that except as otherwise expressly provided the provisions of title II of part II shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment.

TITLE III—POSTAL FIELD SERVICE EMPLOYEES

Section 701 cites this title as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962."

Employees Under the Postal Field Service Schedule

Section 702 provides two postal field service schedules. Schedule I would be effective the first pay period after enactment and schedule II, the first pay period after January 1, 1964. The salary schedules for the postal field service follow the pattern established for other statutory pay systems in that they are based on the principle of industry comparability for levels of work.

The structure of the proposed schedules is generally similar to that of the Classification Act of 1949. It replaces both annual salary steps in the present PFS schedule and longevity rates which is accomplished by the addition of step increases to the PFS schedule.

Employees Under the Rural Carrier Schedule

Section 703(a) establishes two new schedules for determining rural carrier pay, the first effective on the first pay period after enactment and the second on the first pay period after January 1, 1964. It also combines the present salary steps and longevity steps into a single 12-step schedule.

Pay rates for the RCS schedule were determined by adding the amount of increase provided for PFS–4, step 7, to the present step 7 rate for the 42-mile route, and adjusting other rates for that route to the corresponding rates for PFS–4.

Section 703(b) amends section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, which authorizes payment of additional compensation to rural carriers on heavily patronized routes, by eliminating the existing provision permitting such payment only if the route does not exceed 61 miles in length, as well as the provision limiting the additional compensation to an amount which when added to the basic salary for the maximum step for the route would equal the basic salary for the maximum step for a 61-mile route.

Section 703(c) amends section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, to increase the equipment maintenance allowance for rural carriers from 10 cents to 12 cents a mile or from $3.50 to $4.20 a day, whichever is greater.

Section 703(d) changes the method of compensating substitute rural carriers. Under the present system these carriers are paid at the rate of the carrier in whose absence they are serving. Under the new provisions, substitute carriers will be paid on the basis of their own service in the same manner as regular carriers.

Postmasters Under the Fourth-Class Office Schedule

Section 704 amends section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, the code to provide two new compensation schedules for postmasters in fourth-class post offices, one effective the first pay period after enactment and the other effective the first pay period after January 1, 1964.

The proposed schedules continue to relate compensation to receipts categories. The first schedule provides an increase of 10 percent above current salary rates. The second schedule adds another 5 percent or a total of 15 percent over existing rates. Subsection (b) extends to postmasters of the third- and fourth-class salary restoration rights now enjoyed by other postal employees.

Automatic Advancement by Step Increases

Section 705 amends 39 U.S.C. 3552, which relates to advancement of employees by step increases.

Under subsection (a), 39 U.S.C. 3552, the schedule of advancement is established. The present schedule of advancement provides for increases based on 52 weeks of service in a step until the highest step in the level is reached. In levels PFS–1 through PFS–6 this form of advancement is continued for the first six increases; the next five increases are attained after a 156-week waiting period for each. In all levels above PFS–6, under the new schedule, the employee will be advanced to steps 2, 3, and 4, on the basis of 52 weeks of service in each step, to steps 5, 6, and 7, on the basis of 104 weeks of service, and to steps 8 and above, on the basis of 156 weeks of service. The conference substitute does not continue the limitation on the advancement of substitutes assigned to road duty. It has been the practice of the Post Office Department to credit service by such a substitute in step 4, PFS–5, and, upon placement in a position not subject to the limitation, the employee would be advanced in step in the new position on the basis of such service, if otherwise proper. The removal of such limitation will permit these substitute employees who were not advanced beyond step 4 of salary level PFS–5 by reason of the limitation, to be given credit for all their service in step 4 and given the appropriate step increases at the time of conversion.

Subsection (b), 39 U.S.C 3552, codifies and makes permanent a provision of law common to salary increase legislation affecting postal employees. In effect, it provides that statutory increases in basic compensation are not equivalent increases for purposes of determining eligibility for advancement under subsection (a).

Subsection (c), 39 U.S.C. 3552, reenacts the last sentence of 39 U.S.C. 3552 (a) as a separate subsection.

The current provisions of 39 U.S.C. 3552(b) are, in effect, repealed by this amendment. Under present service conditions, withholding of advancement by step increases from substitutes in PFS–5 assigned to road duty cannot be justified.

Temporary Employees

Section 706 amends 39 U.S.C. 3554 by deleting the phrase "under the postal field service schedule" and inserting in its place the phrase "in the postal field service." The purpose of this change is to permit the payment of compensation to temporary rural carriers serving under limited appointments in the same manner as to other postal field service employees. In effect, this change will continue the present method of compensation of these carriers.

Promotions

Section 707 amends 39 U.S.C. 3559 in its entirety. The present method of promotion guarantees to each employees a minimum increase equivalent to the difference between step 1 of the level from which promoted and step 1 of the level immediately above. The new provision will guarantee to each employee promoted to a higher level a minimum increase equivalent to two step increases of the level from which promoted; if the employee is promoted to a level more than two levels above the level of his position, he will receive a minimum increase equivalent to three step increases.

Rural Routes

The purpose of section 708 is to remove the limitation on the present authority of the Postmaster General with respect to the establishment or extension of star routes in areas previously served by rural routes. Under present law such substitution may not be made if a qualified rural carrier can be obtained. This change will permit the Postmaster General to exercise administrative discretion in the selection of the more efficient or economical service.

Miscellaneous Provisions

The new salary plan abolishes longevity steps and provides for recognition of long service through addition of within-grade steps. Therefore, the distinction made in sections 3101(5) and 3101(6) of title 39, between basic salary and basic compensation, is no longer valid and section 709 eliminates this distinction.

Section 710 amends 39 U.S.C. 3541 to provide a method for determining the daily rate of compensation of substitute rural carriers. By using a factor of 304, the number of days of service on a rural route in a year, holiday pay is prorated throughout the year against the actual service of the substitute rural carrier. In this respect, pay treatment of these employees will be consistent with that afforded other substitute employees.

Conversion Rules

Section 711 provides the rules for the conversion of existing salaries to the new pay schedules which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment. The conversion method generally will place each employee in the numerical step which he attains immediately prior to the effective date of the new pay plan, plus an additional numerical step for each longevity step attained immediately prior to conversion.

Credit is preserved toward the next within-grade or automatic step increase earned by employees prior to conversion if they were not given an additional step increase by reason of longevity steps attained prior to conversion. Such credit will be applied toward fulfillment of the requirements of the new advancement schedule. No credit earned toward longevity steps will be carried over. No employee's salary will be reduced on conversion.

In addition, to provide a greater salary increase for present employees, each employee in levels PFS–1 through PFS–4 or under the rural carrier schedule will be advanced one extra step on conversion.

Section 712 provides for the conversion of employees to the schedules to become effective in January 1964 according to the numerical step attained immediately prior to the date of conversion. Where existing compensation exceeds the rate for the numerical step, the existing compensation is retained if conversion cannot be made to a scheduled step.

Section 713 amends section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, as added by section 201 of the act of September 21, 1961 (75 Stat. 569, Public Law 87–270), which provides, among other things, that employees in protected rates will be given statutory increases applicable to the salary standing from which reduced. The purpose of section 713 is to make clear that, inasmuch as the new salary plan involves basic structural changes for employees now under the PFS, RCS, and FOS schedules, this particular feature of 39 U.S.C. 3560 cannot be given application at the time of conversion to the new schedules. Salaries of employees in protected rates as of the date of conversion will be converted under sections 711 and 712 of the conference substitute, as appropriate.

Basic Salary in Cases of Assignments of Postal Employees

Section 714 amends section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, so as to clarify the intent of Congress with respect to the authority of the Postmaster General to authorize higher level compensation. This amendment is required to remove objections of the Comptroller General, as stated in his decision of February 1, 1962 (B–138999), to the Department's application of the present statutory provision and to validate payments that have been made.

Salary Protection

Section 715 extends existing salary protection provisions to all levels of the postal field service schedule and clarifies their application to certain situations.

Section 716 contains a new compensation rule which will permit the Postmaster General to make exceptions to the schedule of automatic advancement provided in 39 U.S.C. 3552 in recognition of exceptional competence. This provision will require implementation by regulations to be issued by the Postmaster General.

Top grade positions and Whitten Amendment

Section 717 removes PFS–17 from the controlled position group and grants the postal field service a 10-percent exemption under the Whitten amendment.

Section 718 contains two conforming changes to the table of contents of title 39, United States Code.

Repeals

Section 719 repeals those provisions of Public Law 86–568 which contained salary increases for postal field service employees, effective July 9, 1960. It also repeals 39 U.S.C. 3558, which provides for the present system of longevity compensation; the new pay schedules supersede the longevity system in its entirety.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 720 specifies the effective dates of the various sections in title III.

TITLE IV—DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY IN THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

Title IV relates to physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration who are subject to a separate pay system prescribed by chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code. The revisions made by this title not only take into account the Bureau of Labor Statistics findings but also reflect the results of extensive studies of the Veterans' Administration concerning the need for a modernization of the entire grade and salary structure of the Department of Medicine and Surgery to recognize the numerous organizational and functional changes which have taken place in the Department since its inception in 1946.

In recognition of the nature of their occupations and the variability of assignments in a clinical setting, the grade and salary of physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery are determined on the basis of an individual's qualifications and professional attainment. Notwithstanding this fact, comparison of the qualification and skill requirements for like occupations under the Classification Act corroborate extension to the Department of Medicine and Surgery schedules in the manner indicated in the conference substitute bill of the salary scale proposed for the Classification Act system. Appropriate differentiation in pay between recognized skill levels as well as executive and managerial levels is maintained. Internal relationships of pay between the D.M. & S. system and the Classification Act system are also continued.

Section 801 amends section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code. It reduces the maximum number of Assistant Chief Medical Directors from eight to five and modifies the provisions pertaining to directors of service and chiefs of division. In lieu of these positions, a new position level of Medical Director is established. The salaries of the Assistant Chief Medical Directors, the Director of Nursing Service, the Chief Pharmacist, and Chief Dietitian are appropriately adjusted in line with other increases proposed by the conference substitute. The statutory positions of the Deputy Director of Nursing Service, Chief Physical Therapist, and Chief Occupational Therapist are eliminated. The duties of the first-named position will be filled by a nurse of the Assistant Director grade. The salaries for the positions of Chief Physical Therapist and Chief Occupational Therapist will be set in the future under the Classification Act of 1949.

Section 802 amends section 4107 of title 38, United States Code. In subsection (a) of section 4107, the former schedules entitled "Medical Service" and "Dental Service" have been combined and retitled "Physician and Dentist Schedule." The existing schedules have provided identical grades and pay scales and their continued separation serves no purpose. The junior grade of the former schedules has been eliminated, and two new grades—the director grade and executive grade—have been established. The schedule now titled "Nursing Service" has been retitled "Nurse Schedule." Two new grades—the assistant director grade and chief grade—have been established, and the former grades of assistant director and senior grade have been retitled "Senior grade" and "Intermediate grade," respectively.

The amendment also provides the pay scales for the physician and dentist schedule and the nurse schedule to be effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

The amendment of section 4107 of title 38 of the United States Code specifies the intended use of the two new grades—director and executive—in the physician and dentist schedule.

Section 803, which amends section 4108 of title 38 of the United States Code, repeals the present provision providing for an allowance equal to 15 percent of the pay of persons rated as medical, surgical, or dental specialists under the provisions of that section, since the latitude which will be afforded within the pay range of each grade will permit appropriate recognition of specially qualified individuals. The current subsection (b) of 4107 of title 38, without change, has been redesignated as section 4108 for purpose of greater clarity and as a matter of drafting convenience.

Subsection (b) of section 803 is a perfecting amendment to the table of contents at the head of chapter 73 of title 38, to reflect the change in the catchline of section 4108.

Section 804 amends section 4111(b) of title 38 to provide that the per annum salary rate of a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary he would receive if such service as a director had been as a physician in the director grade. Except with respect to change in rate of salary, the subsection does not affect the allocation of any such position to any grade of the Classification Act or the application of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual.

Section 805 provides that title IV shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment except as otherwise expressly provided.

TITLE V—THE FOREIGN SERVICE ACT OF 1946

Section 901 provides that title V may be cited as the "Foreign Service Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 902 amends section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by adjusting upward the per annum salary rates for the eight classes of Foreign Service officers. No change is made in the number of classes and, with the exception of class I, which has two salary rates, the general pattern of seven rates for each class is continued. As in other sections of this title, the schedules of per annum salary rates, provided by this section, are to be effective in two phases at the beginning of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 903 amends section 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by revising the structure of the Foreign Service Staff salary schedule and embodying certain changes directly comparable to those made in the revision of the Classification Act of 1949.

There are at present 22 classes in the Foreign Service Staff schedule. The proposed schedule of 10 classes would eliminate the unnecessary and seldom-used classes in the current schedule. Since custodial, maintenance, and the most routine clerical functions are performed almost exclusively by alien employees at Foreign Service posts, there is little need for U.S. citizen employees at the levle of duties represented by classes 14 through 22. Since classes 14 through 22 are to be abolished, it will be necessary to give the Secretary the authority contained in proposed section 415(b) in order that persons in such classes may continue to be employed at appropriate rates. The new section 415(b) would give the Department all needed flexibility in this respect, should it be desirable in unusual circumstances, to employ American personnel at lower rates for duties less difficult than those of FSS–10. Within the proposed Foreign Service Staff salary schedule, 10 salary rates are proposed for the lower 6 classes, and 9 for the upper 4. This conforms with Classification Act of 1949 salary ranges proposed at similar salary levels. Section 903 prescribes two schedules of per annum salaries for staff officers and employees to be effective the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 904 provides for the conversion of Foreign Service personnel from their present salary rates to those established by the conference substitute.

Section 905 repeals section 642(b) of the Foreign Service Act relating to longevity step increases for Foreign Service staff officers and employees and makes minor conforming changes in the heading and identification of the section in the Foreign Service Act. Since the new Foreign Service staff schedule provides 9 or 10 rates for within-class increases, this section is no longer needed.

Section 906 provides that, except as otherwise expressly provided, title V shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

TITLE VI—MISCELLANEOUS SALARY PROVISIONS

Section 1001 increases the salary limitations for certain scientific, professional, and other positions to accord with the salary ranges of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. In most cases the salary range stated in the laws which are amended has a $19,000 maximum. The amendments proposed would tie the maximum to grade 18 of the general schedule.

Subsection (a) of section 1001 revises the salary range in section 2(b) of Public Law 313, 80th Congress, as amended, from $12,500–$19,000, to a range from the minimum salary of grade GS–16 to the highest rate of grade GS–18, and authorizes eight such positions in the Library of Congress.

Subsection (b) amends section 1581(b) of title 10 of the United States Code, relating to certain scientific or professional positions in the Department of Defense, to provide a minimum rate for such positions as the minimum rate of GS–16 and a maximum rate equivalent to GS–18 pay.

Subsection (c) extends the new range to positions now paid at $12,500 to $19,000 in the National Security Agency.

Subsection (d) amends the proviso in the first sentence of section 208(g) of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, which relates to compensation rates of certain scientific, professional, and administrative personnel in the Public Health Service to provide a minimum rate of grade GS–16 and a maximum at the pay of grade GS–18.

Subsection (e) establishes a maximum rate, equivalent to the pay of grade GS–18 for five positions of technical experts in the Department of Agriculture engaged in research in foot-and-mouth and other animal diseases.

Subsection (f) amends section 203(b)(2) of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 to provide that the Administrator may fix the rates for certain excepted positions at not to exceed the pay of grade GS–18 of the Classification Act of 1949. Thirty of these positions may continue to be paid up to $21,000.

Subsection (g) amends the proviso in section 161(d) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, to permit the fixing of salaries of scientific and technical personnel up to a limit of the pay of grade GS–18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. The present limit is $19,000.

Subsection (h) substitutes the GS–18 rate in place of $19,500 as the top salary for 23 positions in the Federal Aviation Agency.

Subsection (i) authorizes use of Foreign Service salary rates for paying the U.S. representatives and alternate on the Executive Board of the World Health Organization in place of present maximum salaries of $12,000 and $10,000.

Subsection (j) sets the GS–18 rate as the maximum salary for certain positions established under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, not authorized to be paid up to $1,000 more than the rate of GS–18.

Subsection (k) fixes the GS–18 salary as the maximum rate for certain positions under the Foreign Assistance Act which may now be paid up to $19,000 a year.

Subsection (l) fixes the GS–18 salary rate as the top salary for certain Peace Corps positions now paying up to $19,000 a year.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee Employees

Section 1002 extends to agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees the salary increases provided by the conference substitute for corresponding Classification Act of 1949 salary levels.

Assistant U.S. Attorneys

Section 1003 raises from $15,000 to $17,500 the maximum amount which can be paid to assistant U.S. attorneys and provides for an increase of 7½ percent in their existing rates of compensation.

Employees in the Judicial Branch

Section 1004 authorizes, for employees of the judicial branch, salary increases corresponding to those proposed in the statutory salary systems in the executive branch.

Officers and Employees in the Legislative Branch

Section 1005(a) provides an increase of 7 percent to officers and employees in or under the legislative branch.

Subsection (b) provides for the automatic adjustment, effective October 16, 1962, of the compensation of employees in the office of a Senator to the rate nearest that being received by such employees immediately preceding such effective date unless the disbursing office of the Senate is notified to the contrary within 15 days after the date of enactment. Such notice, when given, would give effect to the increase.

Subsection (c) provides an increase of 7 percent in the rates of basic compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (not including the presiding officer) the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the legislative counsel and senior counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the official reporters of debates of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate, except that no such salary may be raised to an amount above $21,500.

Subsection (d) increases the limitation fixed by law on the compensation of employees of the Senate by the amount necessary to pay the additional compensation provided by the conference substitute bill.

Subsection (e) provides that the provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to employees engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets whose compensation is subject to the new limitation.

Subsection (f) covers elected officers of the House of Representatives (other than Members) and certain other officers of the House of Representatives who are not covered by other provisions of the conference substitute bill. Subsection (f) covers the following officers and employees of the House of Representatives:

(1) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 1 of the House of Representatives, whose total rate of per annum compensation is now prescribed by House Resolution 339, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), and section 117(g) of the Federal

Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The following elected officers of the House of Representatives, whose total rates of per annum compensation are now prescribed by House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(k) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304: Public Law 86–568); the Clerk of the House, the Sergeant at Arms of the House, the Doorkeeper of the House, and the Postmaster of the House;

(3) The chief of staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, whose total per annum compensation is now prescribed under authority of section 302(c) of the act of October 4, 1961 (75 Stat. 793; Public Law 87–367);

(4) The legislative counsel of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed in accordance with a provision relating to the legislative counsel of the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 251; Public Law 85–75) (as modified by secs. 4(c) and 4(m) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 208 and 209; Public Law 85–462)), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(5) The coordinator of information of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under House Resolution 183, 80th Congress, section 105 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1948 (61 Stat. 377; Public Law 197, 80th Cong.), section 2(e) of the act of October 24, 1951 (65 Stat. 612; Public Law 201, 82d Cong.), section 4(c) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 176; Public Law 94, 84th Cong.), section 4(l) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(6) Two printing clerks, one for the majority caucus room and one for the minority caucus room, whose total per annum compensation is now provided for on a present incumbency basis in the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 247; Public Law 85–75), as modified by a comparable provision in each annual appropriation act for the legislative branch, the latest such provision currently being the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962 75 Stat. 325; Public Law 87–130);

(7) Four minority employees of the House in positions referred to in House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under such resolution and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(r) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

The above list of officers and employees within the purview of subsection (f) is not necessarily all-inclusive.

It may be noted, in connection with House officers and employees in the categories covered by subsection (f), that three employees in comparable categories are granted increases in compensation under section 1005(a) rather than subsection (f). These employees are as follows:

(1) The Chaplain of the House of Representatives, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate prescribed by section 6 of the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 508; Public Law 242, 84th Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 2 of the House of Representatives whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate provided by House Resolution 277, 82d Congress, and section 277 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1953 (66 Stat. 478; Public Law 471, 82d Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(3) The clerk to the House Parliamentarian, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of per annum basic rate fixed under House Resolution 486, 85th Congress, and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1959 (72 Stat. 453; Public Law 85–570), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568).

Subsection (g) increases the limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person payable to employees of the House of Representatives engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets by an amount equal to the increases granted to legislative employees under the conference substitute.

Subsection (h) makes clear that the increases provided by section 1005 are to be considered part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Subsection (i) provides that notwithstanding any other provision of section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by such section, and no increase provided by such section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

Subsection (j) provides that, insofar as the provisions of section 1005 apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962. The purpose of subsection (j) is to insure that officers and employees in the legislative branch will receive pay increases at approximately the same time as other officers and employees covered by the conference substitute.

Saving Provision

Section 1006 provides, in effect, that no provision of the conference substitute shall operate to reduce any rate of salary, pay, or compensation of any officer or employee covered by the conference substitute.

Absorption of Costs

Under section 1007, the departments and agencies are directed to provide for absorption of the costs of salary increases from available funds of the executive departments, but this section is not to be considered to require any employee to be separated from the service or placed in a leave-without-pay status.

Effective Dates

Section 1008 provides that title VI, except as otherwise expressly provided, is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

Ceiling Provisions

Section 1009 makes it clear that, except as provided in section 1005, this act will not cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III.—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES UNDER CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT ACT

The House bill contained no provisions such as are contained in the conference substitute under Part III, Adjustment of Annuities.

An explanation of part III of the conference substitute is set forth below.

Section 1101(a) provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the fund which commenced on or before that date.

Subsection (b) extends this initial increase on a graduated percentage basis to all annuities which commence in the 5-year period following January 1, 1963, in accordance with the following schedule:

Annuities commencing between—	Are increased from commencing date by—
Jan. 2, and Dec. 31, 1963	4 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1964	3 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1965	2 percent.
Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1966	1 percent.

Subsection (c) provides that the percentage increase granted a retiree under subsection (a) or (b) will apply to the annuity subsequently granted his survivor.

Subsection (d) excludes from the 1963 increase annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsections (e) and (f) remove the ceilings on increases to retirees imposed by the 1952 and 1955 annuity increase laws. Under the annuity increase act of July 16, 1952, as amended by the act of August 31, 1954, no retiree's annuity (exclusive of that purchased by voluntary contributions) could be raised beyond $2,160. The act of August 11, 1955, similarly provided that no regular annuity could be increased under its terms beyond $4,104. These increase ceilings are repealed and made no longer effective on and after January 1, 1963. Each retiree affected by one or both of these ceilings who is still on the annuity rolls will be entitled to have his annuity rate reestablished as of January 1, 1963, as though these ceilings had never existed. This reestablished rate, plus a 5-percent 1963 increase, will be payable from and after January 1, 1963.

Subsection (g) states effective date provisions for increases.

Subsection (h) provides that monthly annuity rates after adjustment will be fixed to the nearest dollar.

Section 1102(a) adds a new subsection to section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act to define the term "price index" as the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Subsection (b) renumbers present section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act as section 19 and inserts a new section 18. New section 18 embodies an automatic annuity adjustment plan.

The new section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act provides for future adjustment of annuities as follows:

Subsection (a) directs the Civil Service Commission to annually determine, after January 1, 1964, and each succeeding January 1, the percentage change in living costs from 1962 or from the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. Depending on the price index change, adjustment actions ensue.

Subsection (a)(1) provides that if the price index change from 1962 to 1963 equals a rise of at least 3 percent, an increase will be allowable, effective April 1, 1964. All annuities which began before January 2, 1963, will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (a)(2) provides for automatic increases in annuities effective April 1 of any later year after the percentage change in the price index has equaled a rise of at least 3 percent. All annuities payable from the fund as of April 1 which commenced earlier than January 2 of the preceding year will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (b) states the general rule that eligibility for an increase is governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable as of the appropriate April 1 effective date, but with these exceptions to the rule:

Under subsection (b)(1), a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor) on the roll as of the first cost-of-living increase, whose annuity started the date after the retiree's death, will receive the initial increase provided the retiree's commencing date of annuity was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

Under subsection (b)(2), the annuity of a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor), which starts the day after the retiree's death and after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase will be increased from commencing date by whatever percentage increase the retiree was receiving at death.

Under subsection (b)(3), a special method is provided for increasing annuities of child survivors under the current act. These annuities are unique in that they are not the product of years of service times percentage of average salary. The child's rate is the lesser of (i) a set percent of average salary or (ii) a dollar amount which cannot reflect living cost salary increments. Thus, for these annuities, the cost-of-living annuity adjustment must be built into the benefit formula. The following provisions are made for child-survivor annuities which commence after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase:

Existing formula		Increase provided—proposed increase
Spouse surviving	No spouse surviving
40 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	50 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent granted after commencing date of retired parent's annuity. Inapplicable to children of employee, because his average salary includes living cost adjustments which pass on to children.
$1,800 divided by number of children.	$1,160 divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.
$600	$720	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.

Provision is made for applying these formula changes to any child's annuity which commenced in the 15-month period before the effective date of the first increase as if such initial increase had been in effect. Resulting rate adjustments would start on the effective date of the initial cost-of-living increase.

Subsection (c) excludes from cost-of-living increases annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsection (d) provides that monthly annuity rates after cost-of-living increase will be fixed at the nearest dollar.

Section 1103 amends sections 1(j), 9(g), and 10(a)(1) of the Retirement Act to revise and liberalize provisions for children survivors and election of reduced annuity with benefit to widow or widower.

The present section 9(g) of the act permits a married person retiring for any reason to irrevocably elect, in lieu of single life annuity, a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, the choice to be made at time of retirement. The retiring individual may designate all or any portion of the single life annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) as the base for annuity to spouse. To partially support the added survivor protection the retiring individual accepts, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $2,400 and by 10 percent of any amount over $2,400 designated as the base for survivor annuity. Under the present section 10(a)(1), the named spouse becomes entitled to 50 percent of this base amount as widow's or widower's annuity, starting the day after the retiree's death and continuing until remarriage or death.

Under the conference substitute, section 9(g) of the act is amended to accord the retiring married employee a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, unless he affirmatively elects to receive in lieu thereof the single life annuity. In the absence of the life annuity election, the total annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) or such lesser portion as may be designated at time of retirement will be used as the base for annuity to spouse, and the individual will receive, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $3,600 and by 10 percent of any amount over $3,600 which serves as the base for annuity to spouse. Section 10(a)(1) of the act is amended to accord the named spouse 55 percent of the amount used for the survivor base as widow's or widower's annuity, which would start the day after the retiree's death and continue until remarriage or death.

Subsections (c), (d), and (e) similarly amend subsections (b), (c), and (e) of section 10 of the act to uniformly accord a named survivor or a spouse survivor 55 percent, instead of 50 percent, of the annuity in respect to the deceased former employee or member.

Under existing law survivorship benefits paid to a child cease when the child attains the age of 18, marries, or dies except that such benefits may continue past the age of 18 if the child is incapable of self-support due to a disability incurred before attaining the age of 18.

Subsection (f) of section 1103 of the conference substitute amends section 1(j) of the Retirement Act. The substitute retains all present termination provisions but adds the further exception that benefits may continue to the end of the school year in which the child attains the age of 21 only so long as the child pursues a full-time course of study in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution.

This change in the Civil Service Retirement Act is in keeping with veterans' benefit laws which provide for the continuance of benefits between the ages of 18 and 21 to unmarried children while taking an approved course of instruction.

Section 1104 specifies January 1, 1963, as the effective date for section 1101 and provides that amendments made by section 1103, except subsection (F), will not apply to employees or members retired or otherwise separated prior to date of enactment.

access and make possible the sale of the full allowable cut of timber products from the national forests. Such an acceleration would also permit the development of multiple-purpose roads and trails and thereby intensify the use and enjoyment of all the resources of the national forests.

Of the 186 million acres of land under Forest Service administration, approximately 80 million acres are in or adjacent to present areas of labor surplus and low rural income. Acceleration of resource development would contribute materially to improving the economy of these areas.

The record shows that Federal funds invested in forest development roads and trails will return to the Treasury many times the amount of the investment, and therefore, insofar as possible, Federal appropriations should be used, rather than have the roads constructed by timber purchasers.

Mr. MCNAMARA. I would like the record to show that the senior Senator from Oregon is responsible for the progress that has been made on forest roads and trails. Every time a road bill has been before the Congress the progress we have made has stemmed from his good work. This bill incorporates his requests. The additional $10 million provided for 1963 added by the Senate resulted from the persuasive presentation to the President on July 26 which the senior Senator from Oregon personally made.

All of our forest resources today and in the future will be better because of the consistent good work of the Senator from Oregon. The lumber industry of this Nation, the conservationists and all who use the forests owe a debt of gratitude to him for the enlightened leadership he has demonstrated.

Mr. MORSE. I thank my colleague, but I point out that my colleagues in the Senate from Washington and Montana, along with the senior Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH] have always worked on a team for the development of our forest resources.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, I congratulate and compliment, as did the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE], the Senator from Michigan upon having done a superb piece of work on the highway bill. The bill means much to the entire country. It is another evidence of the devoted public interest of the Senator from Michigan.

Mr. President, with the consent of the Senator from Michigan, I submit an amendment to H.R. 12315 and ask that it be read. The amendment would add a new section at the bottom of the last page of H.R. 12315.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, may we have the amendment read?

Mr. BARTLETT. It might be relatively meaningless to have it read; it is quite long. I shall explain it, if the Senator from Michigan will permit me to do so.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment will be printed in the RECORD.

The amendment is as follows:

SEC. 13(a). That the Secretary of Commerce, in cooperation with the State of Alaska, is hereby authorized to make engineering studies and estimates and planning surveys relative to a highway construction program for the State of Alaska, and, in accordance with treaties or other agreements to be negotiated with Canada by the Secretary of State in consultation with the Secretary of Commerce, engineering studies, estimates, and planning surveys relative to roads in Canada to connect with Alaska.

(b) On or before May 15, 1964, the Secretary of Commerce shall submit a report to the Congress which shall include—

(1) an analysis of the adequacy of the Federal-aid highway program to provide for a satisfactory program in both the populated and the undeveloped areas in Alaska;

(2) specific recommendations as to the construction of roads through undeveloped areas of Alaska and to connect them with roads in Canada; and

(3) a feasible program for implementing such specific recommendations, including cost estimates, recommendations as to the sharing of cost responsibilities, and other pertinent matters.

(c) From time to time, either before or after submission of the report provided for in subsection (b) of this section, the Secretary of Commerce may submit recommendations to the Congress with respect to the construction of particular highways to carry out the purposes of this section.

(d) Nothing in this section shall be construed as creating any obligation in the Congress, express or implied, to carry out the recommendations referred to in subsections (a) and (b).

(e) There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be available until expended, the sum of $800,000 for the purpose of making the studies, surveys, and report authorized by subsections (a) and (b) hereof.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, the amendment incorporates the exact language of Senate Joint Resolution 137, which passed the Senate on July 23 last.

The amendment was originated and sponsored by my colleague from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], who is a member of the Committee on Public Works. At the moment, he is traveling over the roads of Alaska. If the amendment is accepted, we hope and expect that better travel will be provided on those roads in the future.

The amendment authorizes the appropriation of $800,000 for certain engineering studies and estimates with respect to the entire roads network. This work has been long delayed. It should have been done years ago, but it has not been done. So the amendment will offer an opportunity to accomplish the very desirable purpose sought.

The reason why I am offering the amendment in behalf of the junior Senator from Alaska is that an unusual situation developed in the House. The joint resolution was approved by the House Committee on Public Works. It is my understanding that it was to have been placed on the suspension list in the House on Monday of this week. But because of a clerical error or a clerical failure, that was not done. If the action is not handled in this manner, there is grave danger that the language will not become a part of the law this year, and it is most important that there be early enactment.

The language of the joint resolution is strongly supported by the administration, particularly the Department of Commerce. I hope the chairman of the subcommittee will accept it.

Mr. MCNAMARA. Is the amendment in exactly the same form as the joint resolution which previously passed the Senate?

Mr. BARTLETT. Literally so; not a comma has been changed.

Mr. MCNAMARA. It has passed through the committees of both the House and the Senate and has the approval of all the agencies concerned.

Mr. BARTLETT. That is true. Not only that; it passed the Senate itself on July 23.

Mr. MCNAMARA. Yes. The Senator has made that point quite plain.

Mr. President, speaking for the committee, I have no reluctance to accept the amendment as presented by the Senator from Alaska and shall take it to conference.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. President, do I understand that the amendment in the form of a separate measure previously passed the Senate?

Mr. BARTLETT. Yes.

Mr. COOPER. It has not been passed by the House?

Mr. BARTLETT. No. We are confident that it would have been passed on Monday had it been placed on the suspension list, as it was supposed to have been.

Mr. MCNAMARA. We have been advised by the Department of Commerce that this item was omitted from the Consent Calendar in the House through inadvertence on the part of the Clerk. The House recommends this procedure.

Mr. COOPER. I have no objection to the amendment.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, is not this the same language as that of the measure which passed the Senate, with an amendment which provided that nothing therein contained was to commit Congress?

Mr. MCNAMARA. That is exactly correct. We seek to adopt this amendment in the same form.

Mr. RUSSELL. Is that language now in the bill?

Mr. MCNAMARA. I understand that every word in the proposed amendment is in exactly the same form as the measure which passed the Senate.

Mr. RUSSELL. I thank the Senator from Michigan.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment of the Senator from Alaska is agreed to.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I ask that the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives on the postal rate and pay bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PELL in the chair) laid before the Senate a message from the House further insisting upon its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes; requesting a further conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. MURRAY, Mr. MORRISON, and Mr. CORBETT were appointed managers on the part of the House at the further conference.

Mr. President, I move that the Senate agree to a further conference with the House and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. JOHNSTON, Mr. MONRONEY, and Mr. CARLSON conferees on the part of the Senate.

Mr. McNAMARA. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. CASE], if I may do so without losing the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH of Massachusetts in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CASE. I thank the Senator from Michigan. I wish to make a little legislative history in connection with the bill.

Mr. President, I have become increasingly convinced that we are not going to solve any of the great problems of the metropolitan areas of the country until we provide more effectively for comprehensive planning for all their needs, including the planning for transportation, and that in the planning for transportation we must take into account a balanced transportation system, including rapid transit, highways, passenger cars, and all the rest.

I am happy to see that in his transportation message the President took cognizance of this need. I applaud him for it.

Pursuant to the President's message in April of this year, the bill introduced by the Senator from Michigan, S. 3136, provides specifically, in section 7, a requirement that before the Secretary of Commerce approves specific projects—that is to say, highway projects—for any metropolitan area, he shall find that they are consistent with adequate, comprehensive plans for metropolitan areas. This is spelled out in some detail.

I think the Senator from Michigan rendered a great service by introducing the bill with that provision contained in it.

The House made rather substantial changes in that section, which is section 134 of the Highway Code. This action gave me some concern. I called it to the attention of the Senate Committee on Public Works, and I know the committee gave this subject consideration. In the end, they agreed with the House on the language in question; and in section 9 of the bill before us, the same subject is covered—that is, section 9 of House bill 12135, as it is before us with the Senate amendment.

When I saw that the action taken by the Senate committee agreed with the action taken in this regard by the House, I took up the matter with the Under Secretary of Commerce for Transportation, because I had been given to understand—based on the reports—that neither the House nor the Senate committee intended to depart from the basic requirement for the development of comprehensive planning for transportation purposes, for metropolitan areas. It had been said that the effect of the measure the House passed would be to require, not planning for all forms of transportation, but only planning for highways, and that therefore one of the main objectives, and one with which I had been concerned, had been thrown out the window.

So I wrote to the Secretary of Commerce. I am happy to say that I have received a letter, dated September 20, from the Under Secretary of Commerce for Transportation, Clarence D. Martin, Jr. I have given a copy of the letter to the Senator from Michigan, and he now has it before him.

In the letter, the Under Secretary of Commerce, after describing what he regards as certain minor and irrelevant amendments effected by the House itself and approved by the Senate committee, makes the following statement:

> The elimination or change of any language in that section of the original administration bill—

Being section 7 of the McNamara bill to which I have referred—> has no significance other than what I have stated here. We would have no reluctance to having reinserted in the language the word "balanced" in line 25, page 8, of H.R. 12135, now pending in the Senate. We also would have no objection to the reinsertion at the end of the section on line 16, page 9, the language of the original administration bill reading "and that the Federal-aid system so developed will be an integral part of a soundly based, balanced transportation system for the area involved." It is our belief, however, that the language in the presently pending bill adequately covers the requirements that planning consideration must be given to all modes of transport and the planning process must give consideration to overall development plans of urban areas.

The letter has other paragraphs; and I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the letter be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF COMMERCE FOR TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, D.C., September 20, 1962.

Hon. CLIFFORD P. CASE,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR CASE: This letter is being written in the hope that it will clear up an unfortunate misunderstanding over one of the provisions contained in the Highway Act of 1962.

The section of the legislation referred to is section 9 of H.R. 12135, Transportation Planning in Certain Urban Areas. This section was contained in the legislation prepared by the administration in connection with the President's message to Congress on transportation April 5, 1962. The legislation was introduced by Senator MCNAMARA (S. 3136) and by Congressman BUCKLEY (H.R. 11199). The original language was amended in an executive session of the House Public Works Committee following public hearings April 17 and 18 and May 1 and 2. We feel that two substantive changes were made by the amendments. One is the limitation that the required urban planning section would apply only to urban areas of more than 50,000 population. The second eliminated the possibly that an urban area could qualify under this section by merely adopting a specific comprehensive plan instead of establishing a continuous planning process which would give consideration to total transportation needs in relation to continuing comprehensive community planning.

These changes were made with the concurrence of the Commerce Department and the Bureau of Public Roads. They had the support of several organizations which testified before the committee including the Honorable Ben West, Mayor of Nashville, Tenn., who was spokesman for the American Municipal Association. In his testimony he said in part (hearings before the House Subcommittee on Roads, p. 163):

"That portion of the proposal requiring that a continuing planning process be established seems reasonable and not overly restrictive and is supported by our association. That portion requiring that the projects are part of a comprehensive development plan does seem to be unreasonable. Unreasonable in that comprehensive plan for an area can only be a general guide for development of the area. Even then the plan is not static but needs continual revision as a part of the planning process. We recommend that this requirement be deleted from the bill."

The change limiting the application of this section to urban areas over 50,000 population was made in the belief that requiring smaller urban areas to establish a continuous comprehensive transportation planning process would be an undue financial burden.

The elimination or change of any language in that section of the original administration bill has no significance other than what I have stated here. We would have no reluctance to having reinserted in the language the word "balanced" in line 25, page 8, of H.R. 12135, now pending in the Senate. We also would have no objection to the reinsertion at the end of the section on line 16, page 9, the language of the original Administration bill reading "and that the Federal-aid system so developed will be an integral part of a soundly based, balanced transportation system for the area involved." It is our belief, however, that the language in the presently pending bill adequately covers the requirements that planning consideration must be given to all modes of transport and the planning process must give consideration to overall development plans of urban areas.

I hope this letter and the assurances contained herein adequately answer any questions relating to the interpretations we place on this particular section of the pending legislation.

We have been advised by the Bureau of the Budget that there would be no objection to the submission of this letter from the standpoint of the administration's program.

Sincerely,

CLARENCE D. MARTIN, Jr.

Mr. CASE. Mr. President, my question to the Senator from Michigan [Mr. MCNAMARA], in charge of the bill, is, first, whether he agrees that the Senate committee had no intention other than that expressed in the letter of the Under Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Martin, and that the requirement for comprehensive planning for all forms of transportation is still in the bill.

Mr. McNAMARA. Mr. President, I have before me a copy of the letter to which the Senator from New Jersey has referred; and I agree with the statement made by Under Secretary Martin in dealing with this matter, and I am sure that was the intent.

Mr. CASE. Does the Senator from Michigan also agree that there has been no change in the original intent, although the language is changed in some particulars?

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, will the Senator from Georgia withhold briefly his request?

Mr. RUSSELL. Yes; briefly.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I believe the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON] wishes to call up the conference report on the postal rate and pay bill.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President——

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I should like to know how long it is anticipated the consideration of this report will take.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I do not think it will take more than 2 minutes.

The House objected to one feature of the retirement provision which was in conference, and wished to have it stricken out.

There has been unanimous agreement in regard to the other provisions of the bill.

The House objects to the one section which provides for the payment from the civil service retirement and disability fund increases provided for in the bill. The House objected to that, on the ground that it constituted an appropriation in violation of the House rules.

Therefore, that provision is being stricken out; and that is all there is to the conference report.

Mr. RUSSELL. So I understand that the Senator from South Carolina is proposing that such funds be provided, not from the retirement funds, but by means of an authorization bill and, thereafter, an appropriation; is that correct?

Mr. JOHNSTON. Yes; and I do not think there is any opposition to this arrangement. The conferees met and, in a minute, agreed that we would have to abide by the rule; and the conference report is now ready for action by the Senate.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I do not agree that there is a rule that a provision adopted by one House is subject to a point of order in the other. If some provision is adopted by the Senate, certainly it is not subject to a point of order in the other body.

Every time an appropriation bill is received by the Senate—and the Senate always receives them late, because the House insists on originating the appropriation bills, and holds them up, and they come to the Senate late in the fiscal year—we find that they include legislation; and although there is in each House a rule prohibiting the inclusion of legislation in an appropriation bill, nevertheless, if the House votes to include legislation in an appropriation bill, such legislation is not subject to a point of order in the Senate.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I agree entirely with the Senator from Georgia, but under the circumstances, it seems to me there is nothing else for us to do.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, if the Senator from South Carolina does not anticipate any controversy in regard to the conference report, I shall be glad to withhold, temporarily, my remarks.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I thank the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, if the Senator from Georgia is willing to comply with my request that the report be laid down now, I should like to have it laid down, and then to suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. RUSSELL. Very well.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. (Mr. SMITH of Massachusetts in the chair). The report will be read, for the information of the Senate.

(For text of conference report, see House proceedings for today.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, as the Senate has been advised, a point of order has been sustained in the House of Representatives against section 1104 on the ground that it constitutes an appropriation in violation of the House rules.

Section 1104 provided that increases for retired employees could be paid out of the civil service retirement and disability fund notwithstanding the provisions of Public Law 85–844.

The new conference report omits the provision in question.

The Senate conferees agreed to have stricken from the bill the section that has to do with payment out of the retirement and disability fund.

The point of order was raised in the House, and it was upheld. The bill was sent back to conference. The conferees have met. The Senate conferees agreed to strike that section of the bill.

There is nothing for us to do but to adopt the conference report and to make other arrangements as to how and when the increases provided for in the bill will be paid.

The conference report was agreed to unanimously.

Mr. CARLSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON. I yield.

Mr. CARLSON. I concur in the statement just made by the Senator from South Carolina, the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. I regret that we must accept the conference without the provision relating to increased benefits for the retired, and that we are forced to ask the Senate to accept the striking of that amendment, but it was necessary that it be done to comply with the House rules. I regret it because it may delay increased payments to the retired Federal workers, to which they are entitled. Now provision for retirees depends on getting an appropriation from the Appropriations Committee and putting it into effect.

Notwithstanding that situation, I submit that the Senate should agree to the conference report on the bill as amended, in order that action may be started at the earliest possible date on a program to help the retirees.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I think I should also invite the attention of Senators to the fact that in the past we have provided for such increased retirement payments as were provided in this particular bill, but no point of order was raised, and the retirees were paid. This time a point of order was raised. There is nothing else for us to do as conferees but recommend that the Senate adopt the conference report.

So I move that the Senate agree to the conference report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

Mr JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was agreed to.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

A SALUTE TO AMBASSADOR WILLIAM C. DOHERTY

Mr. KUCHEL. Mr. President, I salute the nomination of William C. Doherty as our first Ambassador to Jamaica. This is an outstanding appointment worthy of respect and congratulations.

William C. Doherty is a personal friend of mine—and of almost every Member of the U.S. Senate. I treasure his friendship but I salute this appointment on the basis of Bill Doherty's excellent qualities and abilities.

The appointment of William C. Doherty is a clear documentation of what Americans have been trying to tell the world—that any boy born in this country, no matter how impoverished his circumstances may have been, can rise to the highest positions of responsibility within the gift of the Nation if he has the ability, the integrity, the genius necessary for the position he seeks.

Bill Doherty was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1902—and he is the first one to say that, by the standards of 60 years ago, it was on the the farther side of the tracks. His people were poor but—in the words of President Eisenhower, spoken at Abilene, Kans., in 1952—it is the glory of America that they did not know they were poor. They had all the human qualities that make honest people feel possessed of great wealth—the spiritual wealth that is of far more value than mere material wealth.

Bill Doherty was never granted the boon of higher education. The financial circumstances of his family precluded that. But, instead of becoming disheartened by this fact, he characteristically determined to overcome it. He educated himself studiously and diligently until the reached the point where he can walk with savants and scholars without, for even a moment, being out of step. Indeed, if everyone were capable of educating himself as thoroughly and as exhaustively as William C. Doherty has done, we would have little use for school teachers. But, of course, everyone is not so capable. Few people have the talent and the determination that Bill Doherty has shown in acquiring a knowledge and a culture that extends over many areas and runs as deeply as it runs abroad.

After serving honorably with the U.S. Army in our Siberian campaign, after World War I, Bill Doherty returned to Cincinnati and entered the postal service as a letter carrier. He carried the letter carrier's sack upon his back and he carried it well. However, his talents were so obvious to his fellow workers that he began a swift upward climb within the National Association of Letter Carriers, culminating in his election as President in 1941. Two years later he became vice president of the old American Federation of Labor and, since the AFL amalgamated with the CIO in 1955, he has been one of the senior vice presidents of the AFL–CIO.

His talents were so recognizable and his integrity so unassailable that President George Meany of the AFL determined to give them even greater scope than they had previously enjoyed. Bill Doherty was encouraged to broaden his activities into the international field and he has done this with high distinction.

In 1945 he was invited by Gen. Lucius D. Clay to help reestablish free trade unions in Germany. Twice he was invited to attend the British Trade Union Congress as a fraternal delegate (a unique distinction, incidentally) and in 1949 he participated, as one of the founders, in the formation of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions in London, England.

Two Presidents, each of different political parties, have recognized his talents in the foreign relations field. In 1956 President Dwight D. Eisenhower appointed him to the official delegation, led by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, to the inauguration of the then-President of Brazil. In 1961 President John F. Kennedy appointed him as a delegate to the International Conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay, and just last August, the President appointed him as a Special Ambassador to accompany Vice President LYNDON B. JOHNSON to the independence ceremonies at Kingston, Jamaica. And now, as the aftermath of that experience, comes the nomination as Ambassador to that country.

This, Mr. President, is the sort of thing we Americans have been talking about. This is the real American dream—the dream that Soviet Russia and the other Communist and enemies of freedom have been saying isn't true. The nomination of William C. Doherty as Ambassador proves the truth of the dream—it proves that in a free society such as ours, first-class men can, and do, and will, rise to the top if they will only use what talents the Almighty has given them.

I congratulate Bill Doherty upon his nomination. But, even more so, I congratulate President Kennedy on having made that nomination.

U.S. POLICY TOWARD EASTERN EUROPE

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, some recent hearings by the European Subcommittee of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs provided an opportunity for the expression of American concern for the self-determination and well-being of the peoples behind the Iron Curtain. One of the byproducts of these hearings was an official statement of American policy toward Eastern Europe—a statement which in my view puts our announced policy on a new level of maturity, insight, and firmness. I am gratified, therefore, to share with my colleagues the full text of the statement delivered before the subcommittee on September 13 by Mr. William R. Tyler, Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs. If I am not mistaken, this is one of the first, if not the first, major policy statement made by Mr. Tyler since he succeeded to the post occupied for so many years by Mr. Foy Kohler, our newly appointed Ambassador to the Soviet Union. It is an auspicious beginning.

I ask unanimous consent that the statement of Assistant Secretary Tyler be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF MR. WILLIAM R. TYLER, ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE FOR EUROPEAN AFFAIRS, BEFORE THE EUROPEAN SUBCOMMITTEE, HOUSE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS, SEPTEMBER 13, 1962.

POLITICAL BACKGROUND

It is evident that significant changes have taken place since 1953 in Moscow's approach to its control of Eastern Europe. The former monolithic system of centralized and total domination instituted and maintained by Stalin was severely shaken after his death, and Khrushchev launched a new policy in Eastern Europe to replace it. This policy appears to be based on two basic principles: Moscow will still retain primary authority and exercise tutelage in the field of foreign policy and ideology, but it will leave to each individual bloc government and party, within strictly defined doctrinal limits determined by the Soviet Union, the details of internal development and day-to-day conduct of internal affairs. Thus, the bloc regimes of Eastern Europe have gradually been given the appearance, not of full-fledged partners of the Soviet Union, but of junior allies, each charged with making a go of the system in its country. Of course, Soviet military power remains the ultimate force that sustains the power and authority of the Communist minorities, guarantees the continued existence of the regimes, and prevents any national defection from the Soviet bloc. This policy is the natural aftermath of the disavowal and discard of certain essential elements of Stalin's rigid and utterly repressive methods of rule.

Fear of a renascent militarist Germany is a significant factor among some elements of the Polish and Czech population that tends psychologically to make their relationship with the Soviet Union, if not more acceptable at least more tolerable. This factor is also operative, though less important, in the other Soviet bloc states.

The crises produced in Eastern Europe by the Soviet repudiation of Stalin's system, which reached their peak in 1956, where brought under control by the open use, or the implied threat, of Soviet armed force. The Soviet leaders also made it clear to all nationalist dissident and revisionist elements after the Hungarian national uprising that the process of de-Stalinization had definite limits and that any organized opposition would be crushed by Soviet power. On the other hand, the problems of adapting Soviet de-Stalinization policies to the individual bloc countries and of coping with the impact of the Sino-Soviet controversy continue to have an unsettling effect upon the composition and standing of certain of the Eastern European regimes where Stalinist elements still hold positions of influence and are reluctant to abandon past methods. At the same time, those bloc leaders who have openly repudiated Stalinism and who appear to stand close to Khrushchev, such as Gomulka in Poland and Kadar in Hungary, have been exercising increasing autonomy in internal affairs. Gomulka used the 22d Party Congress to reinforce his gradualist and unique approach to Polish agriculture by going beyond the Soviet criticism of Stalin, to identify forcible collectivization as the root cause of Stalinism. And Kadar reasserted Hungarian autonomy in internal matters by denying that the decisions of the 22d Party Congress were mandatory for all Communist Parties. With growing confidence in his ability to control or get rid of Stalinist elements in his party, the Hungarian leader has encouraged the participation of non-Communists in his moderate internal program by affirming the dictum that "who is not against us is with us."

Khrushchev's new approach to his relationships with the regimes of Eastern Europe serves Soviet interests in many ways. It does not vitiate the essential Soviet military control of the area and continues to require that the bloc regimes follow the Soviet lead on foreign policy issues. At the same time, however, it permits these regimes to assume an outward semblance of independence and sovereignty, which contributes to their stability. Khrushchev's policy is abetted by popular impressions of the growth of Soviet power which have tended to bolster, in turn, the confidence of the bloc regimes in Soviet leadership as well as in the security of their own position.

Within the limits indicated, each of these countries has evolved with some diversity in form and institutions, according to its own conditions, under the pressure of the post-Stalin changes in the U.S.S.R. Except for Poland, where there has been a definite liberalization of internal rule and lack of pressure for collectivization of the land, none of these states has as yet modified in any essential way, the standard Communist program or displayed any real independence in relations with the United States. But most of the others in varying degree have copied Moscow in such matters as abandoning some of the ruthless practices of police rule and putting more stress on the use of economic incentives rather than arbitrary and coercive methods in their efforts to stimulate productivity. On the other hand, with the exception again of Poland, there has been litle disposition to ease the controls over public information, the arts, and the intellectual professions, as most of these regimes remain fearful of the consequences. While the risk of overthrow has been largely banished, the criticism from below and the current estimated cost of constructing the Cross-Florida Barge Canal project is $173,600,000, of which $168 million would be Federal cost. However, we have been making a detailed review of our cost estimate for the project, and from the information developed to date, the current cost estimate will be greatly reduced.

The existing Okeechobee Waterway provides a channel 8 feet deep and 80 feet wide from the Intracoastal Waterway near St. Lucie Inlet to the Gulf of Mexico near Fort Myers Beach. This waterway includes three locks, 50 feet wide and 250 feet long. In 1958, preliminary cost estimates were made for enlarging the Okeechobee Waterway to the same design criteria established for the Cross-Florida Barge Canal Project. Those estimates showed that the cost of enlarging the Okeechobee Waterway would exceed $100 million. Traffic studies also showed that the volume of commerce that would use an enlarged Okeechobee Waterway, and the transportation savings therefrom, would be far from sufficient to justify the large cost of improvement of the existing waterway to the dimensions of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

I trust that the foregoing information is sufficient for your needs. Looking forward to seeing you in the future, I remain

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT C. MARSHALL,
Colonel, Corps of Engineers; Assistant Director of Civil Works for Eastern Divisions.

Another argument made is that the proposed Cross-Florida Barge Canal is not the "missing link" envisoned by the Mississippi Valley Association and others since the western terminus is in the Gulf of Mexico necessitating barge transit across open waters. This is answered pointblank by the Chief of Engineers in House Document No. 109, 79th Congress:

With reference to the use by Intracoastal Waterway traffic of the open gulf between the eastern terminus of the present Intracoastal Waterway in the vicinity of Apalachee Bay and the gulf terminus of the above mentioned barge canal, it may be stated that coastwise traffic now follows this route and that while some danger is connected therewith, I am informed that there is very little time lost in navigating this portion of the gulf. Accordingly, it would be possible to eliminate that section of the Intracoastal Waterway from the improvements proposed in H.R. 6999 and still move very large quantities of commerce by barge from terminals along the gulf coast to the eastern seaboard with the completion of the other improvements proposed in the bill.

In addition, Engineer H. H. Buckman, president of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, states:

One acquainted with barge navigation will recognize the following facts:

(a) Barge traffic is now, and has been for many years, moving over the Apalachee Bay reach from the terminus of the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway near Carrabelle to the mouth of the Withlacoochee River adjacent the proposed gulf terminus of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal project, and to Cedar Keys and other points on the Florida west coast.

(b) The ease of barge navigation and the safety thereof in open water is not primarily dependent upon conditions of wave and water, but on the power of the tug. The power of the tug used on our Intracoastal and other inland waterways has been constantly increasing during the past two decades, and relatively short hauls, like that in question, over coastal waters are now routine. Almost all major routine barge movement over our inland waters are now propelled or towed by tugs sufficiently powerful to move barges safely in the coastal waters of Apalachee Bay.

Mr. Speaker, I could not sum up the case for this much-needed project better than the following letter to Senator ELLENDER from the Mississippi Valley Association made up of non-Floridians:

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY ASSOCIATION,
St. Louis, Mo., August 20, 1962.

Hon. ALLEN J. ELLENDER,
Chairman, Public Works Subcommittee, Senate Appropriations Committee, Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR ELLENDER: The Mississippi Valley Association is distressed to learn that the House of Representatives has disallowed the budget request of $205,000 for advance planning and design on the Cross-Florida Barge Canal. We had requested an appropriation of $1 million for this project with the balance of the money to be used to initiate construction following completion of the advanced planning and design.

We view with amazement the reasoning which the House Appropriations Committee used in disallowing this project, as contained on pages 38 and 39 of House Report No. 2223, dated August 14, 1962, and which accompanied H.R. 12900. That this important House committee could have been so misled by the only opponent of this project, the American Association of Railroads, in the face of such overwhelming justification for the project, is almost beyond belief.

The House committee refers to the estimated total cost of this project as being $145,300,000 in 1962 as compared to only $44 million when it was authorized in 1942. If the project had been built when it was authorized, a savings of more than $100 million would have been effected, and the project would long since have paid for itself.

As you know, the Corps of Engineers engaged the Arthur D. Little Co. to do an economic evaluation of this project. This firm has a world-wide reputation which certainly cannot be questioned, and their disinterested evaluation gave the project a benefit-cost ratio of 4.6 to 1 for a project life of 50 years. The Corps of Engineers in their evaluation reduced the average annual tonnage and benefit estimates of the Little Co. by approximately 75 percent which appears to be unreasonably low to us, but this still provided a favorable benefit-cost ratio of 1.2 to 1. The committee notes in its report that a group opposed to the project contends that the benefit-cost ratio is only 0.13 to 1 and apparently gives this estimate by the railroads the same weight as those made by the Little Co. and the Corps of Engineers which were based upon many years of experience and knowledge and with no selfish motive involved.

The main difference between the benefit-cost ratios suggested by the Little Co. and those of the Corps of Engineers is based upon the vast difference in the estimated freight tonnage between the two. The Little Co. estimates annual tonnage during the first 50 years of the project's life of 10,727,000 while the Corps of Engineers estimate is only 2,500,000. As previously stated, the Corps of Engineers estimate appears to be unreasonably low to us.

In the August 1962 issue of the Mississippi Valley Association's Newsletter, we reported a news release from the New Orleans District Engineer which stated, in part, "A new record in barge traffic was established in 1961 on the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, Colonel Jennings said. He noted that a total of 58,866,964 tons of commerce passed over this major inland transportation artery which runs from Apalachicola Bay, Fla., to the Mexican border. This is a 3,918,305-ton increase over 1960 traffic."

The Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, which will feed the Cross-Florida Barge Canal, is already carrying nearly 59 million tons of commerce and is experiencing a single-year increase of almost 4 million tons in 1961. It appears inconceivable to us that the Cross-Florida Barge Canal will carry only 2½ million tons annually as estimated by the Corps of Army Engineers. The 10,727,000 tons estimated by the Little Co. appears to be a much more realistic appraisal of the situation, including their benefit-cost ratio of 4.6 to 1. The Gulf Intracoastal Canal currently shows a benefit-cost ratio of approximately 15 to 1.

The report notes that "testimony solicited by the committee during the course of the hearings indicates that 80 percent of the claimed total benefits in the movement of commodities on completion of this canal would revert to the State of Florida and that its national significance is limited to 20 percent of the benefits."

This erroneous conclusion was presumably based on a notation in the justification provided by the Corps of Engineers which the committee apparently misinterpreted. The Corps of Engineers' statement says: "About 20 percent of the barge canal prospective traffic could be classified as through traffic in that it would move through the length of the barge canal generally to and from points beyond Florida. The balance would be termed local traffic, 80 percent of which would be classed as interstate commerce in that it would either originate in Florida and move to another State, or originate in another State and move to Florida."

We believe a correct interpretation of this statement is that 20 percent of the total traffic will move through the entire length of the canal and have no direct connection with Florida. Of the remaining total traffic, 30 per cent would be "intrastate" in nature and 80 percent would be "interstate" traffic. In other words, only 16 percent of the total traffic will be within Florida and 84 percent of the total traffic will be interstate traffic. Saying that 80 percent of the total traffic will benefit only Florida is like saying that New Orleans will get 80 percent of the benefits from the Mississippi River gulf outlet project or that Louisiana and Texas receive 80 percent of the benefits of the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway." The people of the United States benefit from the proper development of this Nation's water resources and the Cross-Florida Barge Canal is no exception.

Additionally, the division engineer states in his testimony before the House Committee that all the estimates of the Corps of Engineers on the Cross-Florida Barge Canal are based on "the limits of the project." In other words, the estimates of traffic do not contemplate construction of the Intracoastal Waterway from St. Marks to Tampa, which is now under study by the Corps of Engineers. If this project is feasible, and we believe it will be, then total traffic, particularly through traffic, on the Cross-Florida Barge Canal should greatly exceed the Corps' present estimates.

For years the Cross-Florida Barge Canal has been called the "missing link" in our transportation system. The Cross-Florida Barge Canal, together with the St. Marks to Tampa Canal, would tie the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway system to the Atlantic Intercoastal Waterway system and would benefit the eastern two-thirds of our country, encompassing that area from Montana to New England and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico. Certainly, Florida would benefit by the construction of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal, but the major benefits would accrue to the citizens adjacent to all our inland waterways, including the Mississippi Valley, and it is for this reason that the Mississippi Valley Association has long been in the forefront of the proponents of the project.

It is an old axiom of the inland waterways that it costs as much to load and unload a bulk commodity from a barge as it does to transport the barge 600 miles. Since the economics of barge transportation are predicated on relatively long hauls, it seems apparent that construction of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal would have little, if any, adverse effect upon the economics of the existing Intracoastal Waterways on both coasts of Florida, as the House committee contends.

The report of the House committee concludes with the statement that * * * "Since the authorization of this project was 20 years ago and its feasibility and economics are in this committee's opinion questionable, it seems only appropriate that the legislative committees and Congress should reaffirm its authorization before it is again presented to the Appropriations Committee for funding."

In the opinion of the Mississippi Valley Association, this was a good project when it was authorized 20 years ago, and its feasibility and economics are even better now than they were at the time of the original authorization. We believe this project is important to the welfare of the United States and that it should be built without further delay. We, therefore, again request that the Senate Appropriations Committee approve the sum of $1 million to complete advanced planning and design and to initiate construction of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

Respectfully submitted.

GLADE R. KIRKPATRICK,
Chairman of the Board.
EVERETT T. WINTER,
Executive Vice President.

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND REMARKS

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to extend their remarks in the RECORD on the conference report just considered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

There was no objection.

CONCETTA MARIA, ET AL.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H.R. 12402) for the relief of Concetta Maria, Rosetta, and Tomasino Mangiaracina, with Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert "That, for the purposes of the Act of September 26, 1961 (Public Law 87-301), Concetta Maria, Rosetta, and Tomasino Mangiaracina shall be deemed to be within the purview of section 25 of that Act."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I shall not object, I think probably this is an opportune time for me to make a very short statement. I am sure it is the hope of all of us that we are coming into the closing days of this session. As we know from past experience many things have to be done by unanimous consent. I think all of us on both sides of the aisle understand that.

Mr. Speaker, I want to be cooperative, and I am going to be cooperative. But I just want to say, first of all, I hope when unanimous consent requests are made by Members on the majority side they will work with the minority members of the committees involved in order that there may be a complete understanding about what we are doing. Secondly, Mr. Speaker, may I say before I go any further that the gentleman from Pennsylvania talked to me about these particular unanimous consent requests. After some checking, I am very sure that they are in proper form and should be granted. But there have been a number of matters suggested to me that might be brought up here by unanimous consent. All I am saying, Mr. Speaker, is that I think we would get along much better and more expeditiously if these unanimous consent requests could be arranged for in advance so that all of us on our side could know and that I could know when they are coming up, because obviously no one of us can be here every minute of all the time we are in session. If we knew when they were coming, then we would have an opportunity to take whatever action might be deemed necessary in order to be sure that measures do not go by under unanimous consent that should not be passed or that some Members would object to if they knew about them and could be here for the purpose of objecting.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ELAINE VERONICA BRATHWAITE

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H.R. 1691) for the relief of Elaine Veronica Brathwaite, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows:

Line 6, strike out "natural-born".

After line 7, insert:

"SEC. 2. For the purposes of sections 101(a)(27)(A) and 205 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, Jessie Bamer shall be held and considered to be the alien minor child of Mr. Albert Bamer, a citizen of the United States."

After line 7, insert:

"SEC. 3. The natural mothers of the said Elaine Veronica Brathwaite and Jessie Bamer shall not, by virtue of such parentage, be accorded any right, privilege, or status under the Immigration and Nationality Act."

Amend the title so as to read: "An Act for the relief of Elaine Veronica Brathwaite and Jessie Bamer."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JOAN ROSA ORR

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H.R. 10605) for the relief of Joan Rosa Orr, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows:

Page 1, line 7, strike out all after "such" where it appears for the first time down to and including "impose:" in line 11, and insert "Act:".

Page 1, line 11, strike out all after "That" over to and including "Code," in line 2 on page 2.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate, by Mr. McGown, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 11880. An act to amend the Foreign Service Buildings Act, 1926, to authorize additional appropriations, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 1447. An act to amend the District of Columbia Teachers' Salary Act of 1955, as amended, and to provide for the adjustment of annuities paid from the District of Columbia teachers' retirement and annuity fund;

S. 3313. An act to authorize an increase in the borrowing authority for the general fund of the District of Columbia; and

S. 3705. An act to amend the District of Columbia Police and Firemen's Salary Act of 1958, as amended, to increase salaries, to adjust pay alinement, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the amendments of the House to a bill of the Senate of the following title:

S. 914. An act to provide for more effective administration of public assistance in the District of Columbia; to make certain relatives responsible for support of needy persons; and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4670) entitled "An act to amend the law relating to indecent publications in the District of Columbia."

TO ADJUST POSTAL RATES, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I do so in order to make a parliamentary inquiry, I desire to make a point of order against consideration of the conference report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is unable to hear the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry. Will the gentleman from Iowa state his parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a point of order against consideration of the conference report, and I ask to be recognized at the proper time to make that point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. When the Clerk reports the title of the bill, the gentleman may be recognized.

The Clerk will report the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Iowa makes a point of order. The gentleman will state the point of order.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order against the conference report on the ground that it violates clause 2 of rule XX of the House rules.

Clause 2, rule XX, reads in part as follows:

> Nor any amendment of the Senate providing for an appropriation upon any bill other than a general appropriation bill shall be agreed to by the managers on the part of the House unless specific authority to agree to such amendment shall first be given by the House by a separate vote on every such amendment.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 7927 as passed with the amendment of the Senate provides in section 1104, page 110, the following:

> SEC. 1104. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the benefits made payable under the Civil Service Retirement Act by reason of the enactment of this part shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund.

The words "shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund" constitute an appropriation within the meaning of clause 2 of rule XX.

For example, here are some decisions noted under clause 4 of rule XXI:

> A direction to pay out of Indian trust funds is not in order.
>
> * * * * *
> A direction to a departmental officer to pay a certain sum out of unexpended balances is equivalent to an appropriation and not in order.
> * * * * *
> Language reappropriating, making available, or diverting an appropriation or a portion of an appropriation already made for one purpose to another is not in order.

Mr. Speaker, since the pending conference report includes the language making an appropriation it is, I submit, out of order under clause 2 of rule XX.

Inasmuch as the House, when it sent the bill to conference, did not give specific authority to agree to such amendment I therefore submit that it is not in order for such language to be included in the conference report.

I make a point of order against the conference report on that basis.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot stand idly by and see the rules of the House and orderly procedure set aside for the sake of expediency. This section of the bill involves the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars and it seeks to make these funds available through what amounts to the back door of the Treasury. I insist that this added liability on the retirement fund be met through the appropriation process. There is involved here not a few thousand dollars, but in total and over a period of time a vast amount of money.

I point out again, as I did a few days ago, that the Federal employees retirement fund as of June 1962, was estimated to be $33,700 million in the red. This ought to be of the utmost concern to every Member of Congress.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MURRAY] desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. MURRAY. I do not, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS] makes a point of order that the language contained on page 110, section 104, line 12, "shall be paid from the civil service retirement and disability fund" is in violation of clause 2, rule XX.

The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon its disagreement with the amendments of the Senate and request a conference with the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair appoints the following conferees: Messrs. MURRAY, MORRISON, and CORBETT.

There was no objection.

THE FARM PROGRAM

(Mr. COOLEY asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. COOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to make a report on agriculture. Farm income is up, and Main Street is humming again. When this, the 87th Congress, convened in January of 1961, the Nation's agriculture, our basic and largest industry, was on the brink of bankruptcy. Honorable Ezra Taft Benson, in 8 years as Secretary of Agriculture, had reduced the Nation's general farm program to a shambles.

Farmers' net income had declined by more than $20 billion under Mr. Benson, as compared with the previous 8 years. Their earnings were at the lowest level, in relation to volume of their sales, for any period since the Department of Agriculture began keeping records. Average farm prices had reached their lowest, in terms of parity, for any year since the depths of the great depression. Per capital annual income of people living on farms was less than one-half that of nonfarm people.

Huge surpluses of food and fiber—$9 billion worth—were accumulated and piled high in swollen Government warehouses, at great costs to taxpayers.

This was the sorry situation in agriculture when this Congress convened.

GREAT GAINS FOR FARMERS

Now as the 87th Congress draws to a close, Mr. Speaker, it is my duty, as chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture, to review for the Members of the House, and to advise the country at large, concerning the work of this Congress in behalf of agriculture. Moreover, I deem it to be my obligation to bring into perspective for the Nation the circumstances of our farmers and their families who have made this the best fed and best clothed nation on earth.

Mr. Speaker, this Congress has accomplished more for agriculture than any Congress since the 1930's.

A Democratic administration took charge in Washington in January 1961. President John F. Kennedy appointed Orville L. Freeman the Secretary of Agriculture, to replace Mr. Benson.

The new administration and the 87th Congress, working as a team—although against tremendous opposition—promptly halted the long downslide in farm income.

Net earnings of farmers already have increased by $2 billion.

The pile-up of surplus upon surplus has been stopped.

Taxpayers have been saved many millions of dollars, on farm program costs.

And, Mr. Speaker, the discredited Benson programs of the 1950's—which brought the big surpluses and bigger costs—and the smaller and smaller income for the farmer—have been wiped off the statute books.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS AHEAD

There is a new mood of confidence for Rural America.

The Agricultural Act of 1962, just signed into law by the President, clears the way for further improvements in farm income, better resource use, lower Government costs, stable food prices, and constructive use of our farm abundance.

Let us review briefly the significant gains contributed by previous actions by the 87th Congress and by the new Democratic administration since early 1961.

Last year's net farm income of $12.8 billion was 10 percent higher than in 1960 and the highest since 1953.

Average income per farm was up 13 percent, from $2,960 to $3,360.

Hourly return per farmworker was 99 cents, compared with 83 cents in 1960.

MAIN STREET HUMMING

Business is humming again along Main Street.

Bank deposits and busines activity in 20 major farm states are 10 percent above 1960, an indication of farm prosperity and of the importance of farm income to business generally.

Income prospects for farmers this year are equally good, and prospects for next year may be even better under the 1963 program.

This increased income has provided better lives for farm people, new hope for rural communities and rural merchants, and new business for farm machinery and supply industries. While the rural economy has been boosted, the stocks of surplus farm commodities held by the Government have been cut sharply.

SURPLUSES CUT

The 1961 and 1962 programs will cut grain surpluses by some 27 percent.

The 1961 feed grain program has reduced carryover stocks of corn already by nearly 400 million bushels—the first reduction in 10 years.

The 1962 feed grain program promises equally good results.

The emergency wheat program enacted by Congress in 1961 will reduce the carryover stocks of wheat next year to the lowest level since 1957.

TAXPAYERS GET A BREAK AT LAST

Annual cost of storing and handling feed grain and wheat will be down $213 million as a result.

The major savings in the cost of farm programs remain to be realized, however. Passage of the Agricultural Act of 1962 insures that the results achieved in 1961 and 1962 can be continued into 1963 and 1964.

For the first time in more than 10 years, the Secretary of Agriculture will have—in 1964—a wheat program which he can administer properly and which will not add to the surpluses each year.

Feed grain stocks—more than 3 billion bushels last year—can be reduced to needed reserve levels by 1964.

Wheat stocks, which were 1,400 million bushels last year, can be cut to half that level by the mid-1960's.

The billion-dollar annual cost of carrying the surplus of farm products in 1960 will be cut in half, and eventually will represent only the costs of carrying needed food reserves.

There are no consumer price increases built into the 1962 farm bill. Food prices have been stable and should remain stable.

Sections of the Agricultural Act of 1962 relating to land use, recreation and rural development represent the first new direction in farm policy since the 1930's. The pilot program for placing unneeded farmland in nonagricultural uses, and the provisions for loans and technical assistance to encourage recreational development are new landmarks of farm legislation.

Indeed, agriculture again is looking up.

PARTISAN POLITICS HURT FARMERS

Mr. Speaker, there is great satisfaction in making this report to the House but I must say, in this regard, there is also some regret. In years past, as I have made other reports upon agriculture, it has given me great joy to turn to the Republican side of this House and commend many Members there—along with my Democratic colleagues—as devoted friends of agriculture who have placed the well-being of our farm people above any partisan advantage. My regret now is that this House has become a bitter partisan battleground, where the interests of our farm people are concerned, and that in this situation the great progress for agriculture in these last 2 years has been achieved often over the virtually solid opposition of the Republican side of this House.

Let me say to the House, as I often have said before, that our farm people are Democrats and they are Republicans. Their well-being should have no reference to cheap partisan politics. There were days, in times past, when it was difficult to distinguish a Democrat from a Republican in this body when legislation relating to the well-being of agriculture was debated and voted upon. It was in those years, with bipartisan dedication and effort—and with the help of such great leaders as Edward A. O'Neal of Alabama and Earl Smith of Illinois, then the top officers of the American Farm Bureau Federation, along with the leaders of the Grange and the Farmers Union—that we developed the farm program which helped agriculture out of the great depression and under which for 11 consecutive years—1942 to 1952, inclusive—our farmers enjoyed their greatest prosperity in history. You will recall that farm prices in each of those 11 years were at or above 100 percent of parity. There were no wasteful surpluses. The production and price stabilization programs for the six basic crops—corn, wheat, cotton, rice, peanuts, and tobacco—operated for 20 years at an actual profit of $13 million to the Government. The Government had no loss but made a profit on these programs. During these years also our consumers bought food at fair and reasonable prices.

EZRA TAFT BENSON

But, Mr. Speaker, when Mr. Ezra Taft Benson became in 1953 the chief agricultural magistrate of the land, he forthwith set out upon a course to administer the farm program in a way to discredit it, and thereby to destroy it. He set out to destroy the program that had brought to agriculture its greatest era of prosperity in all history—the program for the basic crops that actually had returned a profit in dollars to the Government.

It was the consequences of the Benson regime that confronted us when the 87th Congress convened.

We moved first to deal with the most pressing problems. We promptly passed a feed grains bill, to stop the piling up of corn and other grains, and to stabilize the income of farmers. This bill embraced a voluntary program for 1961 in which the grain farmers were paid to reduce their acreages. Next we enacted similar programs for 1962 crops of feed grains and wheat. And, in the Agriculture Act of 1962, enacted in the closing days of this Congress, we continued these programs for 1963, in modified form, as we provided other programs of vast importance to agriculture and to the Nation, in the future.

Mr. Speaker, in a very few days we shall be back home, among the good people who sent us to Congress, and in our daily associations we shall be giving accounts of our stewardship. I am going to speak to my people back home with great pride in our accompilshments for agriculture.

THE NATURE OF THE OPPOSITION

Moreover, I intend to try to enlighten farmers generally on the nature of the opposition to their best interests, as it is reflected in the Congress.

Never have I seen agricultural policymaking faced with such powerful cant and deprecation and denunciation as was evident through the partisan action in Congress and among the lobby groups, these last 2 years.

Early this year, Secretary Freeman submitted general farm legislation to the Congress. This legislation would have offered farmers this crucial choice:

One. Controlling surplus production and thereby enjoying firm price supports and stable incomes; or

Two. The complete abandonment of farm price stabilization programs.

In short, the decision offered the producers of major crops was between self-imposed restraints on surplus production, or freedom to plunge headlong into bankruptcy.

This bill would have been the most effective means of cutting down farm surpluses, saving billions of dollars for taxpayers, strengthening the entire economy by improving the income of farmers, and it would have assured consumers plentiful food and fiber at fair prices.

I think that in assuring price stability for farmers the Government has the right to expect of farmers that they will cooperate in programs to hold their production within reasonable bounds. It makes no sense to me for the Government to provide price supports for the unlimited production of anything.

But a hue and cry went around the land.

Some people who pretend to be leaders in agriculture, and who approve of production adjustments in cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco, shouted that it would be nothing short of socialism if corn and other feed grains producers were given the opportunity to vote similar restraints upon themselves so that they could enjoy fair and stable prices. Cattlemen were told that Washington wanted to control the livestock industry. The South was told that there was a plot to cripple the livestock industry in this region. None of this, of course, made sense, but it did confuse a lot of farmers.

The Department of Agriculture did not propose, nor would I support, Government control programs for cattle and hogs. In fact the feed grains provisions of the general farm bill first proposed by the Department were designed to remove any need for such programs. This bill was the best means of avoiding price supports or Government restrictions on cattle and hogs.

PROGRAM FOR GRAINS BOON TO LIVESTOCKMEN

It is an accepted fact that cheap and surplus supplies of feed grains, in the absence of a feed grains program, will lead to excessive expansion of cattle and hog production. Independent studies by Iowa State University, Cornell University, and the Joint Economic Committee of Congress show that, without such a program, corn prices will fall to 65 to 98 cents a bushel in the commercial Corn Belt. The cattle prices would range for $12 to $17 per hundredweight, and hog prices from $11 to $14.

Missouri River Agricultural Levees, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska (active units): The increase above the budget includes funds for initiating construction on units L–601, L–594, R–345–330 and L–351, and planning for unit L–15.

"Repeals and Technical Amendments

"SEC. 304. (a) The following provisions of law are repealed:

"(1) The third proviso in section 3 of the Act of October 30, 1951, as amended by the Act of June 23, 1959 (73 Stat. 89; Public Law 86–56);

"(2) Sections 204(d), 204(e)(1), and 204(e)(2) of the Postal Rate Revision and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1948, as amended by the Act of July 14, 1960 (74 Stat. 479; Public Law 86–644);

"(3) Sections 4361 and 4652 of title 39, United States Code.

"(b) Section 4359(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out '4358, 4361, and 4362' and inserting in lieu thereof '4358 and 4362'.

"(c) Section 4451(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking out '(a)(2)' and inserting in lieu thereof '(a)(3)'.

"Communist Political Propaganda

"SEC. 305. (a) Chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"'§ 4008. Communist political propaganda

"'(a) Mail matter, except sealed letters, which originates or which is printed or otherwise prepared in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to rules and regulations to be promulgated by him to be "communist political propaganda", shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the United States domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received and will be delivered only upon the addressee's request, except that such detention shall not be required in the case of any matter which is furnished pursuant to subscription or which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee. If no request for delivery is made by the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed sixty days, the matter detained shall be disposed of as the Postmaster General directs.

"'(b) For the purposes of this section, the term "communist political propaganda" means political propaganda, as defined in section 1(j) of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended (22 U.S.C. 611(j)), issued by or on behalf of any country with respect to which there is in effect a suspension or withdrawal of tariff concessions pursuant to section 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 or section

231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or any country from which any type of foreign assistance is withheld pursuant to section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

"'(c) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable with respect to (1) matter addressed to any United States Government agency, or any public library, or to any college, university, graduate school, or scientific or professional institution for advanced studies, or any official thereof, or (2) material whether or not "communist political propaganda" addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal cultural international agreement under which the United States Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in any country described in subsection (b).'

"(b) The table of contents of chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"'4008. Communist political propaganda.'

"EFFECTIVE DATE

"SEC. 306. Except as otherwise provided, the foregoing provisions of this part shall become effective on January 7, 1963.

"Notice With Respect To Obscene Matter Distributed by Mail and Detention Thereof

"SEC. 307. In order to alert the recipients of mail and the general public to the fact that large quantities of obscene, lewd, lascivious, and indecent matter are being introduced into this country from abroad and disseminated in the United States by means of the United States mails, the Postmaster General shall publicize such fact (1) by appropriate notices posted in post offices, and (2) by notifying recipients of mail, whenever he deems it appropriate in order to carry out the purposes of this section, that the United States mails may contain such obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter. Any person may file a written request with his local post office to detain obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter addressed to him, and the Postmaster General shall detain and dispose of such matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

"PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

"Title I—General policy

"Short Title

"SEC. 501. This part may be cited as the 'Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962'.

"Declaration of Policy

"SEC. 502. The Congress hereby declares that, whereas the functions of a Federal salary system are to fix salary rates for the services rendered by Federal employees so as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the Government's programs and to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and whereas fulfillment of these functions is essential to the development and maintenance of maximum proficiency in the civilian services of Government, then, accordingly, Federal salary fixing shall be based upon the principles that—

"(a) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and

"(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

Salary levels for the several Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated, and salary levels shall be set and henceforth adjusted in accordance with the above principles.

"Implementation of Policy

"SEC. 503. In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 502, the President: (1) shall direct such agency or agencies, as he deems appropriate, to prepare and submit to him annually a report which compares the rates of salary fixed by statute for Federal employees with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work in private enterprise as determined on the basis of appropriate annual surveys conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and, after seeking the views of such employee organizations as he deems appropriate and in such manner as he may provide, (2) shall report annually to the Congress (a) this comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and (b) such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structures, and compensation policy, as he deems advisable.

"SEC. 504. (a) Whenever the President shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under (1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b), (2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, (3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or (4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), he may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level: Provided, That in no case shall any minimum salary rate so established exceed the seventh salary rate prescribed by law for the grade or level. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency or agencies as he may designate.

"(b) Within the limitations specified in subsection (a), rates of basic compensation established under such subsection may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

"(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an 'equivalent increase' in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

"SEC. 505. The functions, duties, and regulations of the departments and the Civil Service Commission with respect to this title, the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, and the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38 of the United States Code relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration, shall be subject to such policies and rules as the President may issue. Among other things, the President's policies and rules may provide for—

"(1) preparing and reporting to him the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates,

"(2) obtaining and reporting to him the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison, and on other salary matters,

"(3) reviewing and reporting to him on the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures for the Federal programs to which they apply,

"(4) reviewing the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupation and local areas, and

"(5) providing step-increases in recognition of high quality performance and providing for properly relating supervisory salary rates paid under one system to those of subordinates paid under another system.

"(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (10) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

"(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first or second longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8; the first longevity step to step 9; and the second longevity step to step 10.

"(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the third longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive basic compensation at the highest rate of the appropriate grade plus an amount equal to the value of the maximum within grade increment provided for that grade in effect on and after such day.

"(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate, of grade 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

"(4) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

"(5) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

"(6) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period, which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of grade 16 or grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

"(7) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

"(8) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate between two scheduled or two longevity rates, or between a scheduled and a longevity rate, of a grade of the General Schedule, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates, as specified in paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection, in effect on and after such day.

"(9) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate in excess of the maximum longevity rate for his grade, or in excess of the maximum scheduled rate for his grade if there is no longevity rate for his grade, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule, in effect on and after such day, prescribed by paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection for employees at the maximum longevity rate or at the maximum scheduled rate, as the case may be, for his grade, or (B) if such rate is less than his existing rate, (i) the lowest rate of the new schedule or his grade which equals or exceeds his existing rate or (ii) if there is no such rate, his existing rate.

"(10) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such day, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

"(11) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after the date of enactment of this Act, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall reecive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

"(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964, as follows:

"(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at one of the rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

"(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate between two rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates in effect on and after such date.

"(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade, as in effect on and after such date, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule prescribed for employees at the maximum rate for his grade, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation if such existing rate is higher.

"(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and the amount of the initial increase provided by this section, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

"Step-Increases

"SEC. 603. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"'Title VII—Step-increases

"'SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) one each ice in salary rates, 7, 8, and 9, subject to the hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of servfollowing conditions:

"'(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"'(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"'(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"'(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"'SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"'(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

"'SEC. 703. This title shall not apply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.'

"General Compensation Rules

"SEC. 604. (a) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to read as follows:

"'(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher.'

"(b) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

"'(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is later demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.'.

"(c) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

"'SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act, who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.'.

"Salary Retention

"SEC. 605. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

"(1) by striking out '(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)' in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

"(2) by striking out '(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;' in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof '(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;'.

"Top Grade Positions Under Classification Act of 1949

"SEC. 606. (a) Section 505(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such Act, is amended by striking out 'not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine' and substituting in lieu thereof 'not to exceed an aggregate of twenty-four hundred, in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades'.

"(b) Section 505(j) of such Act is amended by inserting after the word 'positions' the following: '(in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades)'.

"(c) Section 505 of such Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsections:

"'(k) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of ten positions of Warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).

"'(l) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of eight positions of Member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).'

"Conforming Changes in Existing Law

"SEC. 607. (a) The following provisions of law are hereby repealed:

"(1) Section 104 of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 234; 5 U.S.C. 592(d), authorizing grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 for the position of Budget Officer of the Department of Commerce so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

"(2) Section 206 of the Public Works Appriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 360; 5 U.S.C. 483–2), authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the position of Director, Division of Budget and Finance, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

"(3) The second paragraph under the heading 'Administrative Provisions' in title III of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 364, 10 U.S.C. 1335, note), authorizing the Chief of Engineers to place the position of Chief of the Programs Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Engineers for Civil Works, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

"(4) Section 24(d) of the Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 62, 42 U.S.C. 2521(d), authorizing five positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 for agencies performing functions under that Act.

"(5) The fourth sentence of section 3(a) of the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1120; 16 U.S.C. 742b(a)), relating to the annual salary of the Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife in the Department of the Interior, which reads: 'He shall receive compensation at the same rate as that provided for grade GS–18.'.

"(6) That part of section 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 200; 7 U.S.C. 1857), relating to the annual salary of an agricultural surplus disposal administrator in the Department of Agriculture, which reads: ', at a salary rate of not exceeding $15,000 per annum,'.

"(7) Section 1102 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (63 Stat. 971; 5 U.S.C. 1073), relating to the submission of reports with respect to the rates of compensation under, and the administration of, such Act.

"(b) The second proviso of the paragraph under the heading 'FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM' and under the subheading 'SALARIES AND EXPENSES, BUREAU OF PRISONS' in title II (the Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956) of the Departments of State and Justice, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appriations Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 273; Public Law 133, Eighty-fourth Congress; 5 U.S.C. 298a) is amended by striking out 'three positions' and inserting in lieu thereof 'one position'.

"SEC. 608. (a) Each position specifically referred to in, or covered by, any repeal made by section 607(a) of this title shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, in accordance with the provisions of such Act.

"(b) Positions in grade 16, 17, or 18, as the case may be, of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, immediately prior to the effective date of this section, shall remain, on and after such effective date, in their respective grades, until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect on and after such effective date.

"Savings Provisions

"SEC. 609. (a) The changes in existing law made by this title shall not affect any position existing immediately prior to the effective date of any such changes in existing law, the compensation attached to such position, and any incumbent thereof, his appointment thereto, and his entitlement to receive the compensation attached thereto, until appropriate action is taken in accordance with this title.

"(b) The incumbent of each such position immediately prior to the effective date of this title shall continue to receive the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving immediately prior to such effective date until he leaves such position or until he is entitled to receive compensation at a higher rate in accordance with law. When such incumbent leaves such position, the rate of basic compensation of each subsequent appointee to such position shall be determined in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"Effective Dates

"SEC. 610. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

"Title III—Postal field service employees

"Short Title

"SEC. 701. This title may be cited as the 'Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962'.

"Postal Field Service Schedules

"SEC. 702. Subsection (a) of section 3542 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(a) There are established basic compensation schedules for positions in the postal field service which shall be known as the Postal Field Service Schedules and for which the symbol shall be "PFS". Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Except as provided in sections 3543 and 3544 of this title, basic compensation shall be paid to all employees in accordance with these schedules.

"'(1) 12 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

"'(2) $4.20 per day, whichever is greater.'

"(d) Section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding thereto new subsections (i) and (j) as follows:

"'(i) Each person serving as a substitute of record on the effective date of this subsection shall be placed in step 2 of the Rural Carrier Schedule and he shall be advanced by step-increases, on the basis of time on the rolls prior to the effective date, in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552, except that no such person shall be so advanced to a step higher than the step to which a regular carrier with the same length of service would have advanced prior to such effective date. Thereafter, he shall be advanced by step-increases, pursuant to the provisions of sections 3552 and 3553 of this title. On and after the effective date of this subsection, each substitute rural carrier shall be paid the daily rate, based on the step attained by him, for the route on which service is performed.

"'(j) Each temporary rural carrier who, on the effective date of this subsection, is serving on a vacant route pending the appointment of a regular rural carrier shall be placed in step 2 and shall be advanced by step-increases on the basis of any prior substitute or temporary rural carrier service in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552.'

"Fourth Class Office Schedules

"SEC. 704. (a) Section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(a) There are established basic compensation schedules which shall be known as the Fourth Class Office Schedules, and for which the symbol shall be "FOS", for postmasters in post offices of the fourth class. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Each such schedule is based upon the gross postal receipts as contained in returns of the post office for the calendar year immediately preceding. Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with these schedules.

"(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary may be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposes of advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment.'

"SEC. 705. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases

"'(a)(1) Each employee in levels 1 through 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, each employee subject to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and each employee subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step as follows:

"'(A) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"'(B) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"'(2) Each employee in the postal field service in level 7 or above of the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"'(A) To steps 2, 3, and 4—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service;

"'(B) To steps 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and four calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"'(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services.'

"SEC. 706. Section 3554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3554. Compensation of certain temporary employees

"'Temporary employees hired for a continuous period of one year or less for a position in the postal field service shall be paid basic compensation at the entrance step of the position to which they are appointed.'.

"SEC. 707. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3559. Promotions

"'An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the rate for the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.'.

"SEC. 708. Subsection (a)(4) of section 6402 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(4) delivery and collection service may not be established or extended under a star route contract on a rural route except when such rural route does not meet the minimum standards established by the Postmaster General, and becomes vacant, and'.

"SEC. 709. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

"'(5) "basic salary" and "basic compensation" means the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.'.

"SEC. 710. Subsection 3541(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by (a) inserting in paragraph (3) thereof, after 'rural carriers,' the phrase '(other than substitute rural carriers,)' and (b) adding a new paragraph (5) as follows:

"'(5) To compute the daily rate of basic compensation for substitute rural carriers, the annual rate of compensation shall be divided by 304.'.

"Conversion as of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this act

"SEC. 711. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to Postal Field Service Schedule I or Rural Carrier Schedule I, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

"(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees (except employees subject to section 3543(j) of title 39, United States Code) in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph.

"(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

"(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1) prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a), and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

"(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule I on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

"(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

"(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code.

"(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

"(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

"Conversion as of the First Pay Period Beginning on or After January 1, 1964

"SEC. 712. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule II, Rural Carrier Schedule II, or Fourth Class Office Schedule II, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

"(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

"(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the mployee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation, the employee shall be placed in the exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

"SEC. 713. Subject to section 711(c) and 712(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary.

"Basic Salary in Cases of Assignments of Postal Employees

"SEC. 714. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: 'The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.'.

"(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b), if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment. Payments of increases validated by this subsection shall be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267).

"Salary Protection Revision

"SEC. 715. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,'.

"(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and'.

"(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

"(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting '; or' in lieu of such period, and

"(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"'(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.'.

"(d)(1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United State Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

"(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date of enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

"Rules for Special Compensation

"SEC. 716. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106 as follows:

"'§ 3106. Special compensation rules

"'In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may, within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase.'

"Personnel Requirements

"SEC. 717. (a) Section 3301 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"'§ 3301. Personnel requirements

"'The Postmaster General shall determine the personnel requirements of the postal field service, and fix the number of supervisors and other employees in that service, except that there may not be at any one time more than one assistant postmaster employed at any post office or a total of 70 employees assigned to salary levels 18, 19, and 20 in the postal field service.'

"(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word 'Provided,' the following: 'That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950, shall not be chargeable to this limitation: And provided further,'.

"Conforming Amendment

"SEC. 718. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after the heading entitled 'Employees generally,' the following:

"'3106. Special compensation rules'.

"(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting '3558. Longevity step-increases'.

"Repeals

"SEC. 719. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296, Public Law 86–568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed.

"Effective Dates

"SEC. 720. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, except that section 712 (conversion rules for second postal field service salary increases) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964.

"Title IV—Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration

"SEC. 801. (a) Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended by striking out the words 'not to exceed eight Assistant Chief Medical Directors' in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words 'not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated to suit the needs of the Department,'.

"(b) Such section is further amended by striking out subsections (d) to (i), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"'(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid a salary of $20,000 a year.

"'One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"'(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid a salary of $18,500 minimum to $19,500 maximum a year.

"'(f) The Director of Nursing Service shall be a qualified registered nurse, appointed by the Administrator, and shall be responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operation of Nursing Service. During the period of service as such, the Director of Nursing Service shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"'the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"Employees in the Judicial Branch

"SEC. 1004. (a) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in or under the judicial branch of the Government whose rates of compensation are fixed by or pursuant to paragraph (2) of subdivision a of section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. 102(a)(2)), section 3656 of title 18 of the United States Code, the third sentence of section 603, section 604(a)(5), or section 672 to 675, inclusive, of title 28 of the United States Code, or section 107(a)(6) of the Act of July 31, 1956, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2206(a)(6)), are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"(b) The limitations povided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

"Employees in the Legislative Branch

"SEC. 1005. (a) Each officer and employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be paid additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of his gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law).

"(b) The basic compensation of each employee in the office of a Senator is hereby adjusted, effective on October 16, 1962, to the lowest multiple of $60 which will provide a gross rate of compensation not less than the gross rate such employee was receiving immediately prior thereto, except that the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of any employee if on or before the fifteenth day following the date of enactment of this Act the Senator by whom such employee is employed notifies the disbursing office of the Senate in writing that he does not wish such provisions to apply to such employee. In any case in which, at the expiration of the time within which a Senator may give notice under this subsection, such Senator is deceased such notice shall be deemed to have been given.

"(c) Notwithstanding the provision referred to in subsection (d), the rates of gross compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (except the Presiding Officer of the Senate), the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate, the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the Senior Counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate are hereby increased by 7 per centum.

"(d) The paragraph imposing limitations on basic and gross compensation of officers and employees of the Senate appearing under the heading 'SENATE' in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568), is amended to read as follows:

"'No officer or employee whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of $8,880 per annum, or gross compensation at a rate in excess of $18,880 per annum, unless expressly authorized by law.'

"'(e) The limitation on gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the Senate is hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. The provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall not apply to employees whose compensation is subject to such limitation.

"(f) Each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of the rate of his total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section.

"(g) The limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives are hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of each such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

"(h) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following).

"(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by this section, and no increase provided by this section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

"(j) Insofar as the provisions of this section apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962.

"Saving Provision

"SEC. 1006. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

"Absorption of Costs

"SEC. 1007. (a) The departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions.

"(b) No request for additional or supplemental appropriations to meet the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act shall be transmitted to the Congress unless it is accompanied by a certification of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget that the amounts requested are necessary to provide for the continued execution of essential functions of the department, agency, or corporation concerned.

"(c) Pursuant to the objective of this section, heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignation, retirement, or death and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions.

"(d) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

"Effective Date

"SEC. 1008. Except as otherwise expressly provided, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

"Ceiling provision

"SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

"PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

"SEC. 1101. (a) The annuity of of each person who, on the effective date of this section, is receiving or entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity.

"(b) The annuity of each persons who receives or is entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund commencing during the period which begins on the day following the effective date of this section and ends five years after such date, shall be increased in accordance with the following table:

"If the annuity commences between—	The annuity shall be increased by—
"January 2, 1963, and December 31, 1963	4 per centum
"January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1964	3 per centum
"January 1, 1965, and December 31, 1965	2 per centum
"January 1, 1966, and December 31, 1966	1 per centum

"(c) In lieu of any other increase provided by this section, the annuity of a survivor of a retired employee or Member of Congress who received an increase under this section shall be increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which the annuity of such employee or Member was so increased.

"(d) No increase provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"(e) The limitation reading 'or (3) the sum necessary to increase such annuity, exclusive of annuity purchased by voluntary contributions under the second paragraph of section 10 of this Act, to $2,160' contained in section 8(c)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended by the Acts of July 16, 1952 (66 Stat. 722; Public Law 555, Eighty-second Congress), and August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1043; Public Law 747, Eighty-third Congress), shall not be effective on or after the effective date of this section.

"(f) The limitation contained in the next to the last sentence of section 8(d)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, as enacted by the Act of August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 692; Public Law 369, Eighty-fourth Congress), shall not be effective on and after the effective date of this section.

"(g) The increases provided by this section shall take effect on the effective date of this section, except that any increase under subsection (b) or (c) shall take effect on the beginning date of the annuity.

"(h) The monthy installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.

"Sec. 1102. (a) Section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"'(t) The term "price index" shall mean the annual average over a calendar year of the Consumer Price Index (all items—United States city average) published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.'

"(b) Such Act is further amended by redesignating section 18 as 19, and by inserting after section 17 the following new section:

"'Cost-of-Living Adjustment of Annuities

"'Sec. 18. (a) After January 1, 1964, and after each succeeding January 1, the Commission shall determine the per centum change in the price index from the later of 1962 or the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. On the basis of such Commission determination, the following adjustments shall be made:

"'(1) Effective April 1, 1964, if the change in the price index from 1962 to 1963 shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each anuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2, 1963, shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"'(2) Effective April 1 of any year other than 1964 after the price index change shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2 of the preceding year shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"'(b) Eligibility for an annuity increase under this section shall be governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable from the fund as of the effective date of an increase, except as follows:

"'(1) Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commenced the day after the annuitant's death, shall be increased as provided in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) if the commencing date of annuity to the annuitant was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

"'(2) Effective from its commencing date, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commences the day after the annuitant's death and after the effective date of the first increase under this section, shall be increased by the total per centum increase the annuitant was receiving under this section at death.

"'(3) For purposes of computing an annuity which commences after the effective date of the first increase under this section to a child under section 10(d), the items $600, $720, $1,800, and $2,160 appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section, and, in case of a deceased annuitant, the items 40 per centum and 50 per centum appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section to the annuitant at death. Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply as if such first increase were in effect with respect to computation of a child's annuity under section 10(d) which commenced between January 2 of the year preceding the first increase and the effective date of the first increase.

"'(c) No increase in annuity provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"'(d) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.'

"SEC. 1103. (a) Section 9(g) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended to read as follows:

"'(g) The annuity as hereinbefore provided (excluding any increase because of retirement under section 7) for any married employee or Member retiring under this Act, or any portion of such annuity designated in writing for purposes of section 10(a)(1), shall be reduced by 2½ per centum of so much thereof as does not exceed $3,600 and by 10 per centum of so much thereof as exceeds $3,600, unless the employee or Member notifies the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in section 10(a)(1).'

"(b) Section 10(a)(1) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"'(1) If an employee or Member dies after having retired under any provision of this Act and is survived by a wife or husband to whom the employee or Member was married at the time of retirement, such wife or husband shall be paid an annuity equal to 55 per centum of an annuity computed as provided in subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 9, as may apply with respect to the annuitant, or of such portion thereof as may have been designated in writing for such purpose by the employee or Member at the time of retirement, unless the employee or Member has notified the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive such annuity."

"(c) Section 10(b) of such Act is amended by striking out '50 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '55 per centum'.

"(d) Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking out '50 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '55 per centum'.

"(e) Section 10(e) of such Act is amended by striking out '50 per centum' and inserting in lieu thereof '55 per centum'.

"(f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: 'or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have attained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim.'

"(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: 'The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, age (2) his becoming capable of self-support after eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one.'

"SEC. 1104. Section 1101 of this part shall take effect on January 1, 1963. The amendments made by section 1103 (except subsection (f)) shall not apply in the case of employees or Members retired or otherwise separated prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and the rights of such persons and their survivors shall continue in the same manner and to the same extent as if these amendments had not been enacted."

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7927) entitled "An act to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes," submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The committee of conference recommends that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for both the text of the House bill and the text provided by the Senate amendment and that the Senate agree to the same.

The text of the House bill related only to postal rates.

The Senate amendment to the House text consisted of three parts.

Part I of the Senate amendment, consisting of three titles, related to postal rate increases. Title I of part I covered postal rate increases. Title II of part I contained amendments to the postal policy provisions of the postal laws. Title III of part I contained certain miscellaneous amendments to the postal laws.

Part II of the Senate amendment, consisting of six titles, related to Federal salary reform. Title I of part II contained a statement of policy with respect to Federal salary reform. Title II of part II contained provisions revising the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Title III of part II revised the compensation schedules of title 39, United States Code, and contained certain related provisions, with respect to postal field service employees. Title IV of part II of the Senate amendment contained salary increases for physicians, dentists, and nurses, and other personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration. Title V of part II revised the salary rates for personnel in the Foreign Service under the Department of State prescribed by the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended. Title VI of part II contains certain miscellaneous salary provisions which, in effect, revise the compensation rates for the following groups of employees: (1) certain scientific and professional employees; (2) agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees; (3) assistant U.S. attorneys; (4) employees in the judicial branch; (5) employees in the legislative branch.

Part III of the Senate amendment contained provisions making adjustments in annuities under the Civil Service Retirement Act, as amended.

The conference substitute, with the exceptions to be noted, is in general the same as the Senate amendment. Except for technical and minor drafting changes, the differences between the text of the House bill and the conference substitute are discussed below.

SUMMARY OF MAJOR PROVISIONS OF CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

Increased postal revenue

Postal revenue wil be increased by $600.3 million per annum when all of the postal rate adjustments provided by part I of the conference substitute are placed in effect. Such increased revenue and the public service policy provisions of the conference substitute will—when adjustment in rates and conditions of mailability of fourth-class mail for which the Postmaster General has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission (as required by law) shall be approved—eliminate the postal deficit.

Such increased postal revenue provided by part I of the conference substitute is approximately $20 million less than the aggregate annual increased postal revenue of $620 million which would have been provided by the postal rate adjustment bill recommended to the House of Representatives by the Postmaster General and presented for consideration by the chairman of the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service on January 23, 1962.

A table comparing present and proposed postal rates follows:

[4] When number of copies mailed for delivery outside the county is fewer than 5,000, the minimum per copy is ½ cent.

On magazines containing less than 5 percent advertising the minimum charge per copy is 0.55 of a cent during 1963, 0.65 of a cent during 1964, and 0.75 of a cent thereafter.

Salary increases

Part II of the conference substitute places in effect major provisions of the Federal statutory salary reform proposal submitted to the Congress by the President earlier in the current session. The essential requirements of comparability of Federal and private enterprise salary rates, internal alinement of Federal salary schedules, and annual review and adjustment of salaries recommended by the President are provided by part II of the conference substitute. The chief differences between such part of the conference substitute and the President's recommendations are (1) salary adjustments under the conference substitute are in two phases, spaced 15 months apart, instead of three annual phases as recommended by the President, and (2) the three highest grades of the Classification Act of 1949 and the three highest levels of the postal field service schedule receive only one upward adjustment, leaving the final determination of the appropriate salaries for such grades and levels for consideration in the next Congress.

The conference substitute also provides comparable salary adjustments for employees in the judicial branch, agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees, congressional employees, and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed by administrative action. This is in conformity with the policy adopted by the Congress in all recent salary increase legislation.

The conference substitute provides salary increases which, when all are in effect, will average 11.2 percent for postal field service employees and 9.6 percent for classified employees and certain others.

Cost of salary increases

The annual cost of the salary reform provisions of the conference substitute will be $1.049 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964, when the salary adjustments provided for therein become fully effective. The salary reform legislation recommended by the President would have cost $1.054 billion a year beginning in the calendar year 1965. The annual cost of Federal civilian salary reform provisions contained in H.R. 9531, as reported favorably by the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service but not acted upon by the House, would have been $1.469 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964—a difference of $420 million savings under the conference substitute.

Civil service retirement annuities

Part III of the conference substitute—

1. Provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the civil service retirement fund which commenced on or before that date.

2. Applies the increase on a graduated reduction basis to all annuities which commence in the 4-year period following January 1, 1963, in keeping with the practice followed in the last previous enactment of this kind.

3. Provides that the proper proportion of the increase granted an annuitant will accrue to his survivors.

4. Excludes from the increase annuity amounts purchased by voluntary contributions.

5. Removes the ceilings on increases imposed by certain previous enactments.

6. Provides the future adjustments in the event the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics increases not less than 3 percent.

7. Raises from $2,400 to $3,600 the portion of annuity to which the reduction of 2½ percent applies when electing survivorship benefits.

8. Increases the ratio of survivorship benefits from 50 to 55 percent.

9. Reverses present procedure by providing that in the future survivorship benefits will be automatic unless an adverse election is made.

10. Extends the right of membership benefits for children to the end of any school year in which a child attains the age of 21 years so long as the child pursues full-time studies in a school, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. This change is in keeping with provisions of veterans' benefit laws.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE TEXT OF THE HOUSE BILL AND THE CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

Part I.—Postal service

Title I.—Postal Rates

Both the House bill and part I of the conference substitute provide increases in postal rates and certain changes in the public service features of postal policy under chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

First-class mail: Section 3 of the House bill and section 101 of the conference substitute both provide for increases in the rate on first-class letter mail from 4 to 5 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, in the rate on drop letters from 3 to 4 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, and in the rate on each post card and each postal card from 3 to 4 cents.

Airmail: The amendments made by section 4 of the House bill increase the postage rates on airmail letters from 7 cents to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 cents to 6 cents. The existing requirement of minimum first-class ounce rates for air parcel post first-class matter is retained, but the existing minimum rate of 3 cents an ounce on such matter is eliminated.

Section 102 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on airmail letters from 7 to 8 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof, and on airmail postal and post cards from 5 to 6 cents.

In keeping with the increase of 8 cents on airmail weighing 8 ounces, the first pound rate for air parcel post (other than first-class matter) is increased 8 cents. Air parcel post rates for first-class matter will be the regular 8-cents-an-ounce rate for each of the first 8 ounces, and the regular first-class letter rate of 5 cents an ounce for each ounce or fraction thereof over 8 ounces, but in no case less than the air parcel post rate for other matter.

SECOND-CLASS MAIL WITHIN COUNTY OF PUBLICATION

Section 5 of the House bill removes the requirement, in connection with free-in-county mail, that publications must be printed in the county in which published.

Section 103 of the conference substitute eliminates free-in-county mailings and extends to all such within-county mailings for calendar years 1963 and 1964 the existing 1 cent per pound and one-eighth cent minimum charge now applicable to certain categories of within-county mailings. At the start of calendar year 1965, the pound rate would be increased to 1 and one-fourth cents. The minimum charge per piece would remain at one-eighth cent. Existing per-copy rates applicable to publications issued less frequently or more frequently than once a week when mailed for delivery by letter carrier at the office of mailing are left unchanged.

SECOND-CLASS MAIL BEYOND COUNTY OF PUBLICATION

Section 6 of the House bill imposes a piece rate charge of one-half cent effective July 1, 1962, and a piece rate charge of 1 cent effective July 1, 1963, to be paid in addition to existing pound rates.

Section 104(a) of the conference substitute increases second-class pound rates and the minimum charge per piece of publications for delivery outside the county of publication except that the current minimum charge of one-half cent per copy is not changed in the case of publications mailing less than 5,000 copies per issue outside the county of publication. The increase in pound rates on the nonadvertising portion is in three annual increments of 4 percent each year. The increase in pound rates on the advertising portion is in three annual increments of 0.4 cent each. The schedule provides increases after 3 years of 40 percent in zones 1 and 2; 30 percent in zone 3; 20 percent in zone 4; 15 percent in zone 5; and 12 percent in zone 6. The existing rates of 12 cents and 14 cents in zones 7 and 8, respectively, are not changed.

Any issue of a publication the advertising portion of which does not exceed 5 per centum of the entire issue will pay .55 of a cent per piece when mailed after January 6, 1963, and prior to January 1, 1964, .65 of a cent per piece when mailed during calendar year 1964, and .75 of a cent per piece when mailed after December 31, 1964.

Subsection (a) except as noted above also increases the minimum charge on the above publications in annual increments over a 3-year period from one-half cent to six-tenths of a cent, eight-tenths of a cent, and 1 cent respectively.

Subsection (a) also fixes the postage rate on classroom publications at 60 percent of the regular rate. The rate applicable to the total content of publications of qualified nonprofit organizations (advertising and nonadvertising portions alike) is maintained at 1 cent per pound less than the pound rate applicable to the nonadvertising portion of regular publications. This produces a rate for these publications of less than 50 percent of the pound rates described above and the minimum per piece rate is retained at the present one-eighth cent.

Subsection (b) of section 104 extends the nonprofit rate to publications of official State highway agencies which meet all requirements for second-class entry and which contain no advertising. However, only one such publication in any State could be mailed at this rate. Also, the nonprofit rate is extended to associations of rural electric cooperatives.

Subsection (c) repeals existing law to the extent necessary to give effect to the changes in rates discussed above.

Second-class transient mail:

Section 105 of the conference substitute increases the postage rate on the first 2 ounces of transient mail from 2 to 4 cents.

The House bill has no comparable provision relating to transient mail.

Controlled circulation publications:

Section 8 of the House bill increases the rate to be paid by controlled circulation publications from 12 cents a pound to 14 cents a pound.

Section 106 of the conference substitute increases the pound rate on controlled circulation publications from 12 to 12½ cents the first year, to 13 cents the second year, and to 13½ cents thereafter.

Third-class mail:

Section 9 of the House bill provides increases in rates for third-class mail as follows:

(1) The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof to 4 cents.

(2) The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants) is increased from 16 to 21 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants is increased from 10 to 18 cents except in the case of mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations which remains at 10 cents. The minimum rate per piece for other than qualified nonprofit organizations is increased from 2½ cents to 3½ cents.

(3) The minimum rate on pieces of odd size is increased from 3½ cents to 4½ cents.

Section 107 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in rates for third-class mail:

(1) The piece rate on single mailings is increased from 3 cents on the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof and 1½ cents on each additional ounce or fraction thereof to 4 and 2 cents, respectively.

(2) The pound rate on all matter mailed in bulk (except books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants) is increased from 16 to 18 cents. The pound rate on books and catalogs of 24 pages or more, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants is increased from 10 to 12 cents. The minimum rate per piece in either instance is increased in three annual increments—first to 5⅝ cents, a year later to 2¾ cents, and a year following that to 2⅞ cents.

Section 107 continues in effect the present minimum per piece charges on bulk third-class mailings by qualified nonprofit organizations and provides that the pound rates for such mailings shall be 50 percent of the regular pound rates for bulk third-class mailings as embodied in the conference agreement.

In addition to the foregoing, this section raises the fee for a third-class bulk mailing permit from $20 to $30 and increases the minimum weight requirement from 20 to 50 pounds. This should have been adjusted in 1958 when the weight for third-class mail was increased from 8 to 16 ounces. One of the requirements for the bulk third-class pound rates is that such mail be in quantities of 20 pounds or of not less than 200 pieces. When the weight limit was 8 ounces a minimum of 40 such pieces was necessary, but when the weight limit was raised to 16 ounces only 20 such pieces was necessary to comply with the minimum weight limit. This is entirely too small a number of pieces to justify the bulk pound rate. Thus, in the future, to obtain the bulk third-class rate, it will be necessary to mail a minimum of 50 pounds or 200 pieces.

Fourth-class mail:

Section 108 of the conference substitute restores to the States of Alaska and Hawaii the benefits of certain provisions relating to the maximum size and weight of fourth-class parcels mailed at or for delivery at first-class post offices which they enjoyed prior to their admission as States. Under these provisions, such parcels could be as large as 100 inches in length and girth combined and could weigh as much as 70 pounds. These are the maximums which are already applicable generally to parcels mailed at or for delivery at second-, third-, and fourth-class post offices or rural and star routes, and to parcels mailed at or for delivery at Army, Air Force, or Fleet Post Offices. The conditions which led to the original extension of these maximums to Alaska and Hawaii while in territorial status have not been altered by statehood and those maximums should be restored.

Section 109.—This section provides an increase in fourth-class postage rates on books, films, and similar educational materials from 9 cents for the first pound to 9½ cents during the first year and to 10 cents thereafter. The existing rate of 5 cents on each additional percent will continue wtihout change.

The postage rates on fourth-class library materials would remain at 4 cents on the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The House bill contains no provisions similar to sections 108 or 109 of the conference substitute.

Fees for second-class entry and registration:

The House bill made no change in fees for second-class mail.

Section 110 of the conference substitute provides increases as follows in second-class mailing fees:

	Existing fee	Proposed fee
Circulation:
Not over 2,000	$25	$30
2,000 to 5,000	50	60
Over 5,000	100	120
Reentry	10	15
Additional entry	10	[1] 15 / [2] 50
News agent	20	25

[2] Zones 3 to 8.

Permit fees for mailing without stamps:

Section 111 of the conference substitute increases from $10 to $15 the permit fee for mailing without stamps.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Fixing of fees by Postmaster General:

Section 112 of the conference substitute gives the Postmaster General the authority to adjust second-class entry and registration fees and permit fees for mailing with printed postage indicia in the future.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Keys and other small articles: Section 113 of the conference substitute increases from 5 cents for each 2 ounces to 6 cents for each 2 ounces the postage rate on keys and other small articles mailed without the prepayment of postage. The House bill contains no such provisions.

Method of determining gross receipts:

Section 11 of the House bill and section 114 of the conference substitute both provide that increased revenues derived from the rate increases shall be excluded in determining compensation and allowances of postmasters and other employees and classes of post offices.

This is similar to the provision contained in the 1958 Postal Increase Act.

Qualifications of postmasters:

Section 115 of the conference substitute requires the Civil Service Commission, in evaluating the qualifications of applicants for positions of postmaster, to give appropriate consideration to experience in the postal field service.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Title II—Postal Policy

Section 2 of the House bill revises and strengthens the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees originally enacted as the Postal Policy Act of 1958 and now contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code.

Subsection (a) clarifies and strengthens the language of such policy with respect to the determination of postal expenses attributable to the performance of public service by the Postal Establishment.

Subsection (b) makes several important changes in the existing provisions of law with respect to identification of public services rendered by the Postal Establishment and the determination of the costs of such public services which shall be excluded from postal expenses for purposes of fixing postal rates and fees.

The first such change (sec. 2(b) (1) and (2)) provides that "the estimated calculated loss" from operation of third- and fourth-class post offices, star routes, and rural routes shall be held and considered to be an item of public service rendered by the Postal Establishment. Under present law, the "loss" on star routes and third- and fourth-class post offices is designated as an item of public service.

The second such change (sec. 2(b)(3)) supplies a needed clear definition of the terms "loss" and "total loss" as applied to revenues and expenses of the public service items specified in the law—a definition which was not included in the Postal Policy Act of 1958. This definitive language, coupled with the remaining provisions of section 2 of the bill, will provide standards and guidelines which are necessary for the Postmaster General to determine the amount of public service charges to be excluded from postal expenses each year for purposes of considering the need for adjustments in postal rates and fees.

The amendment made by section 2(c) requires the Postmaster General, on or before February 1 of each year beginning with the year 1962, to report to the Congress the amount by which costs of the public service items set forth in the postal policy provisions exceed revenues from such public service items and specifies, further, that the amount so determined and reported shall be excluded from the total cost of postal operations for purposes of adjustment of postal rates and fees. The last sentence of the amendment requires that the amount so determined and reported (and thus excluded from total operating costs for rate and fee purposes) shall be not less than 7½ percent of the total current budget of the Post Office Department.

The amendment made by section 2(d) is a technical amendment which conforms the table of contents of the appropriate chapter of title 39, United States Code, with the amendments made by the remainder of section 2 of the bill.

Section 201 of the conference substitute makes changes necessary to clarify and strengthen the statement of congressional policy with respect to postal rates and fees contained in chapter 27 of title 39, United States Code. Further, certain technical changes are made necessary by the elimination of free-in-county mailing under section 104. This section resolves a problem of long standing by providing a formula for use in determining the amount that shall be considered public service costs in the operation of star and rural routes and third- and fourth-class post offices. The conference substitute provides that 10 percent of the gross cost of the operation of third-class post offices and the star route system, and 20 percent of the gross cost of the operation of fourth-class post offices and rural routes shall be attributable to public service.

Title III—Miscellaneous

Eligibility of certain organizations for second-class entry:

Section 301 of the conference substitute adds publications of State industrial development agencies and public or nonprofit elementary and secondary schools to the list of those entitled to second-class entry without the necessity of having a bona fide list of regular subscribers.

The House bill contains no provisions on this matter.

Educational materials:

Section 10 of the House bill makes certain technical changes in the preferential educational and library material rate listings to reflect the substantive changes made by Public Law 86-644, approved July 14, 1960. The subsection also supplies corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39, United States Code, which extends the preferential library materials rates to scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, and devices, and catalogs and guides or scripts relating to their use. The existing preferential rates of 9 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 5 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof on educational materials and 4 cents a pound for the first pound or fraction thereof and 1 cent a pound for each additional pound or fraction thereof on library materials are retained.

Section 302 of the conference substitute provides corrective language to clarify the purpose and intent of that part of section 4554(c) of title 39 relating to the inclusion of guides, scripts, and catalogs with scientific or mathematical kits, instruments, or devices and sound recordings.

The conference substitute adds looseleaf pages, and binders therefor, consisting of medical information for distribution to doctors, hospitals, medical schools, and medical students to the educational materials category.

Reading matter and other materials for blind persons:

Section 303 of the conference substitute revises sections 4653 and 4654 of title 39, United States Code, which relate to the mailing of reading and other materials for the use of blind persons. The changes made in these sections are designed to accomplish the following:

(1) Existing law permits the free mailing to blind persons of books with raised type and recordings. This section would add books printed in sightsaving size type to this category. It would also make clear that the term "recordings" includes sound tapes.

(2) Under present law public libraries and public institutions for the blind may mail free of postage books being loaned to blind persons. This section extends this privilege to any nonprofit organizations which lends books to the blind.

(3) Extends the same free mailing treatment to reading materials mailed to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons as when sent directly to the blind persons.

(4) Existing law permits magazines furnished to blind persons at cost to be mailed at the rate of 1 cent a pound. This section extends that rate to other reading materials furnished to blind persons at cost. It also makes it applicable where the materials are sent to nonprofit organizations for the use of blind persons.

(5) Under present law sound reproduction devices owned by the United States which have been loaned to blind persons may be returned by those persons for repair at a postage rate of 1 cent a pound. The Postmaster General has authority to extend this rate to reproducers owned by States, public libraries, nonprofit agencies, and blind persons themselves. This section would eliminate the 1-cent-a-pound charge and permit free mailing of these devices. It also authorizes the Postmaster General, in his discretion, to extend free mailing privilege to the sending by State agencies, public libraries, private nonprofit agencies for the blind, and blind persons themselves, of paper, records, tapes, and other materials owned by them for use by the recipients for the production of reading matter in raised characters or sight saving size type, or in the form of recordings, for the use of blind persons. The House bill has no similar provision.

Repeals and technical amendments:

Section 9(c) of the House bill and section 304 of the conference substitute repeal section 3 of the act of October 30, 1956 (Public Law 86-56). Also, paragraph (3) of the conference substitute repeals the following substantive provisions of law:

(1) Section 4361 of title 39, which authorizes publishers to mail proofs of advertisements at second-class zone rates applicable to advertising portions.

(2) Section 4652 of title 39, which permits public mailing of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD from the District of Columbia at the rate of 1 cent per copy.

Communist political propaganda:

Section 12 of the House-passed bill contains a provision which would amend section 505 of title 39, United States Code (international postal arrangements) for the purpose of excluding Communist political propaganda from the U.S. mails.

This section in the House bill also contains provisions designed to accomplish this purpose with respect to mail originating within the United States as well as mail originating outside the United States. Under these provisions mail matter determined by the Attorney General to be Communist political propaganda which is financed or sponsored by a Communist-controlled government is nonmailable within the United States, except as fourth-class mail.

During extensive hearings on section 12 of H.R. 7927, widely divergent views were expressed as to the need for such a provision and the form any such provision should take. Following extended deliberations in executive session, the committee has agreed upon what it considers to be an appropriate substitute which meets many of the objections expressed during the hearings, and which is designed to provide a workable solution to the problem of Communist political propaganda arriving for distribution in the United States.

Section 305 of the conference substitute consist of a modification of S. 2740, introduced by Senator BUSH on January 25, 1962, which would have had the effect of reinstating the program of screening Communist political propaganda substantially as that program was conducted prior to March 17, 1961.

Section 305 of the conference substitute provides for a program under which, with certain exceptions, Communist political propaganda coming into the United States from foreign countries would be intercepted and would be delivered only upon the request of the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed 60 days.

Section 305 specifically provides that mail matter, except sealed letters, originating in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be Communist political propaganda, shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the U.S. domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received. Such detention would not be required in the case of any matter which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee.

Exempted would be matter addressed to Government agencies, to libraries, or to colleges, universities, graduate schools, scientific or professional institutions for advanced studies, or any individual connected therewith. Likewise, material addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal international agreement under which the U.S. Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in a Communist country, would be exempted.

In order to furnish guidelines to the Secretary of the Treasury as to what constitutes Communist political propaganda, the entire definition of political propaganda contained in the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1948 is incorporated by reference and related to matter issued by or on behalf of any country from which tariff concessions have been withdrawn under section 5 of the Trade Agreement Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or which is denied assistance under section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Effective date: Section 13 of the House bill provides an effective date of July 1, 1962. Section 306 of the conference substitute provides that, except as otherwise provided, the provisions of Part I—Postal Service shall become effective January 7, 1963.

Obscene matter distributed by mail:

The House bill has no provisions on this subject.

Section 307 of the conference substitute authorizes the Postmaster General to detain and dispose of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

Part II of the conference substitute relates to Federal salary reform.

Title I—General Policy

Title I of part II contains a statement of Federal salary policy.

Section 501 provides that part II may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 502 sets forth the policy of the Congress that pay of Federal civilian personnel shall be established upon the principles of equal pay for substantially equal work with pay distinctions maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and that Federal salaries shall be comparable with salaries in private enterprise for the same levels of work.

Section 503, pertaining to the implementation of the above policy, provides that the President shall have prepared and submitted to him an annual report comparing salary rates paid to Federal employees with rates paid for the same levels of work in private industry as determined through annual surveys of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. After seeking the views of employee organizations the President shall make an annual report to the Congress containing the comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structure, and compensation policy as he deems advisable.

In further implementation of the stated salary policy, section 504 provides that whenever the President or his designee finds that the salary rates in private enterprise for an occupation in any particular location are so substantially above the salary rates of Federal statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government in recruiting and retaining well-qualified persons in positions under the pay systems of the executive branch covered by the conference substitute, the President, or his designee, may establish for such location higher minimum rates of basic compensation. Corresponding increases may be made in all step rates in the salary range for the applicable grade or level; however, the minimum salary rate established under this authority may not exceed the seventh compensation rate prescribed by law for the grade or level involved. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency as he may designate.

Section 504 also provides that such rates may be revised from time to time and that such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

Section 504 further provides that any increase in basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, or section 3552 of title 39, United States Code.

Policies, rules, and regulations of the President: Section 505 further implements the salary policy by authorizing the President to prescribe policies, rules, and standards in order to carry out the policy and purpose of the conference substitute with respect to the several Federal salary systems covered by the conference substitute and in order to provide adequate supervision and control by the President over the functions, duties, and regulations of the respective authorities in the executive branch in connection with the administration and operation of the four major salary systems and the provisions of this title.

Title II—Pay System of the Classification Act of 1949

Title II of part II of the conference substitute pertains to the pay system of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Section 601 provides that title II may be cited as the "Classification Act Amendments of 1962."

Section 602 contains the compensation schedules for the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and the salary conversion rules for the two phases of the salary adjustment plan which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment (first phase) and on January 1, 1964 (second phase).

Section 602(a) prescribes the compensation schedules. The schedule contains 10 regular steps in lieu of 7 scheduled and 3 longevity rates currently provided for GS–1 through GS–10; 9 rates for GS–11 through GS–14 in lieu of 6 scheduled and 3 longevity rates; 8 rates for GS–15 in lieu of 5 scheduled and 3 longevities; and 5 rates for GS–16 and GS–17 in lieu of the 5 rates currently provided by the Classification Act. Grade GS–18 continues to have a single rate. Because the number of regular step rates is increased, the current provisions for longevity step increases in title VII of the Classification Act of 1949 are no longer needed and are repealed in subsequent sections of the conference substitute.

Section 602(b) specifies the rules adjusting existing pay rates to the rates of the new schedules. Employees generally are to retain the same relative place within the new grade range as they had within their former grade range.

Paragraph (10) of section 602(b) provides that service immediately preceding the effective date shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended by the conference substitute.

Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) applies to each officer or employee who is receiving immediately prior to the effective date of section 602, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation, determined under section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, 83d Cong.), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960. Such officer or employee will receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (1) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under the savings provisions of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, referred to above, and (2) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, and (3) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and (4) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (5) the amount of the increase made by section 602 under compensation schedule I in the maximum rate of his grade. This rate will remain in effect for such officer or employee until he leaves his position or until he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of the amendment or any other law. However, when the position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any later appointee thereto will be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Paragraph (11) of section 602(b) also contains a provision to the effect that, subject to the possibility that any such officer or employee may leave his position or may become entitled to aggregate compensation at a higher rate, the amount of the increase provided by section 602 is to be held and considered, for the savings purposes of section 208(b) of the act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing aggregate rate of compensation of the officer or employee.

Step increases:

Section 603 amends title VII, "Step Increases" of the Classification Act of 1949. Title VII currently provides two types of step increases: (1) Periodic step increases under section 701, and (2) longevity step increases beyond the scheduled maximum rate of the grade under section 703. As amended by the conference substitute, title VII provides for (1) periodic step increases, and (2) additional step increases to be granted in recognition of high quality performance.

Section 701 now provides periodic step increases, for employees below the maximum rate of the grade, for each 52 calendar weeks of service if the amount of the step increase is less than $200, or 78 weeks of service if the employee's position is in a grade in which the step increase is $200 or more. As amended, section 701(a) provides for periodic increases at all grades following the completion of (1) 52 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, (2) 104 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, and (3) each 156 calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9.

Paragraphs (A) and (C) of section 701(a) which relate to eligibility for step increases are in existing law. Paragraph (B) requires, as a prerequisite to within-grade advancement, that the employee's work is of an acceptable level of competence in contrast with the present wording that the employee has a current performance rating of "satisfactory" or better.

Subsection (b) of the revised section 701 is present law.

The new section 702 of the Classification Act of 1949 in the conference substitute authorizes, in subsection (a), additional step increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Such additional step increases could be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Civil Service Commission and, under subsection (b), would be limited to not more than one within any period of 52 weeks.

Current provisions of sections 703 and 704 of the Classification Act of 1949, relating to longevity step increases, are no longer needed since these steps have been included in the regular rate range for the respective grades. The provisions are therefore repealed. Section 703 of the amended title VII which is already in existing law (as sec. 705) provides that title VII shall not apply to persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Title VII currently does not have a section 702.

General compensation rules:

Section 604(a) revises section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949 to provide that when an employee is promoted to a position in a higher grade he shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of the higher grade which exceeds his existing rate by not less than two step increases of the grade from which promoted. This subsection also specifices the action to be taken if there is no rate in the higher grade two step increases above the employee's existing rate, or if he is receiving a rate saved under section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 on reduction in grade. Existing law provides only a one-step increase upon promotion or transfer to a higher grade. A similar proposal is included in H.R. 1010 which passed the House of Representatives on August 22, 1961.

Section 604(b) adds a new subsection (d) to section 802 of the Classification Act of 1949. There is no present authority for saving the basic compensation of an employee who, together with his position, is brought under the Classification Act from some other Federal pay system (such as the wage board system), if his salary rate is in excess of the maximum rate of the classification grade in which his position is placed. The new subsection would authorize the Civil Service Commission to issue regulations to permit the retention of salary in such instances. It includes special provision applicable in case of subsequent demotion in grade.

Section 604(c) substitutes a new section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949. Because of the more comprehensive provisions in section 504 of title I, part II, of the conference substitute, the present provisions of section 803, authorizing advanced entrance rates of the grades for appointments in shortage occupations, are unnecessary and therefore are being deleted. Section 803, as amended, provides that under regulations of the Civil Service Commission, any employee under the Classification Act who regularly has responsibility for supervision, including technical supervision, over wage board employees may be paid a rate for his grade above the highest rate paid to any such prevailing rate employee.

Salary retention:

Section 605 amends section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949 which provides for the retention of salary when an employee is demoted to a lower grade. The amendment in paragraph (1) extends application of the provisions of section 507 to employees in all grades of the Classification Act of 1949 by omitting the language of existing law which excludes application of the benefits to employees in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. The amendment in paragraph (2) strikes out "B in the same grade or in the same or higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section 507 and inserts in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;". This change in language will permit salary retention not now permitted under section 507 where there may have been a series of promotions followed by a demotion or a series of demotions.

Increase in number of top grade positions under the Classification Act of 1949:

Section 606 amends section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949. Subsection (a) increases from 1,989 to 2,400 the limitation on the number of positions the Civil Service Commission, under section 505(b) of the Classification Act, may authorize to be placed in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule, and excludes from this limitation engineering research and development positions and positions in the physical sciences, natural sciences, and medicine. Subsection (b) excludes these same types of positions from the number of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 now authorized for the Department of Defense in section 505(j) of the Classification Act.

Section 606(c) authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of 10 positions of warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the general schedule. This increases by four the number of such positions which may be assigned to GS–16. This subsection also authorizes the Attorney General to place a total of eight positions of member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the general schedule. Presently only one such position is in grade GS–17 and the other seven are in grade GS–16.

Section 607 repeals certain provisions of law authorizing (1) incumbency allocations to top Classification Act grades, and (2) certain positions to be placed in top grades of the act or to have an equivalent salary.

Section 608(a) provides that each position covered by a repeal provision in section 607 shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the general schedule of the Classification Act, in accordance with the provisions of that act.

Section 608(b) provides that positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the general schedule immediately prior to the effective date shall remain in such grades until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act.

Savings provision:

Section 609 contains the usual salary savings provisions.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 610 provides that except as otherwise expressly provided the provisions of title II of part II shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment.

Title III—Postal Field Service Employees

Section 701 cites this title as the "Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962."

Employees under the Postal Field Service schedule:

Section 702 provides two postal field service schedules. Schedule I would be effective the first pay period after enactment and schedule II, the first pay period after January 1, 1964. The salary schedules for the postal field service follow the pattern established for other statutory pay systems in that they are based on the principle of industry comparability for levels of work.

The structure of the proposed schedules is generally similar to that of the Classification Act of 1949. It replaces both annual salary steps in the present PFS schedule and longevity rates which is accomplished by the addition of step increases to the PFS schedule.

Employees under the rural carrier schedule:

Section 703(a) establishes two new schedules for determining rural carrier pay, the first effective on the first pay period after enactment and the second on the first pay period after January 1, 1964. It also combines the present salary steps and longevity steps into a single 12-step schedule.

Pay rates for the RCS schedule were determined by adding the amount of increase provided for PFS–4, step 7, to the present step 7 rate for the 42-mile route, and adjusting other rates for that route to the corresponding rates for PFS–4.

Section 703(b) amends section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, which authorizes payment of additional compensation to rural carriers on heavily patronized routes, by eliminating the existing provision permitting such payment only if the route does not exceed 61 miles in length, as well as the provision limiting the additional compensation to an amount which when added to the basic salary for the maximum step for the route would equal the basic salary for the maximum step for a 61-mile route.

Section 703(c) amends section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, to increase the equipment maintenance allowance for rural carriers from 10 cents to 12 cents a mile or from $3.50 to $4.20 a day, whichever is greater.

Section 703(d) changes the method of compensating substitute rural carriers. Under the present system these carriers are paid at the rate of the carrier in whose absence they are serving. Under the new provisions, substitute carriers will be paid on the basis of their own service in the same manner as regular carriers.

Postmasters under the fourth-class office schedule:

Section 704 amends section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, the code to provide two new compensation schedules for postmasters in fourth-class post offices, one effective the first pay period after enactment and the other effective the first pay period after January 1, 1964.

The proposed schedules continue to relate compensation to receipts categories. The first schedule provides an increase of 10 percent above current salary rates. The second schedule adds another 5 percent or a total of 15 percent over existing rates. Subsection (b) extends to postmasters of the third- and fourth-class salary restoration rights now enjoyed by other postal employees.

Automatic advancement by step increases:

Section 705 amends 39 U.S.C. 3552, which relates to advancement of employees by step increases.

Under subsection (a), 39 U.S.C. 3552, the schedule of advancement is established. The present schedule of advancement provides for increases based on 52 weeks of service in a step until the highest step in the level is reached. In levels PFS–1 through PFS–6 this form of advancement is continued for the first six increases; the next five increases are attained after a 156-week waiting period for each. In all levels above PFS–6, under the new schedule, the employee will be advanced to steps 2, 3, and 4, on the basis of 52 weeks of service in each step, to steps 5, 6, and 7, on the basis of 104 weeks of service, and to steps 8 and above, on the basis of 156 weeks of service. The conference substitute does not continue the limitation on the advancement of substitutes assigned to road duty. It has been the practice of the Post Office Department to credit service by such a substitute in step 4, PFS–5, and, upon placement in a position not subject to the limitation, the employee would be advanced in step in the new position on the basis of such service, if otherwise proper. The removal of such limitation will permit these substitute employees who were not advanced beyond step 4 of salary level PFS–5 by reason of the limitation, to be given credit for all their service in step 4 and given the appropriate step increases at the time of conversion.

Subsection (b), 39 U.S.C. 3552, codifies and makes permanent a provision of law common to salary increase legislation affecting postal employees. In effect, it provides that statutory increases in basic compensation are not equivalent increases for purposes of determining eligibility for advancement under subsection (a).

Subsection (c), 39 U.S.C. 3552, reenacts the last sentence of 39 U.S.C. 3552 (a) as a separate subsection.

The current provisions of 39 U.S.C. 3552 (b) are, in effect, repealed by this amendment. Under present service conditons, withholding of advancement by step increases from substitutes in PFS–5 assigned to road duty cannot be justified.

Temporary employees: Section 706 amends 39 U.S.C. 3554 by deleting the phrase "under the postal field service schedule" and inserting in its place the phrase "in the postal field service." The purpose of this change is to permit the payment of compensation to temporary rural carriers serving under limited appointments in the same manner as to other postal field service employees. In effect, this change will continue the present method of compensation of these carriers.

Promotions: Section 707 amends 39 U.S.C. 3559 in its entirety. The present method of promotion guarantees to each employee a minimum increase equivalent to the difference betwen step 1 of the level from which promoted and step 1 of the level immediately above. The new provision will guarantee to each employee promoted to a higher level a minimum increase equivalent to two step increases of the level from which promoted; if the employee is promoted to a level more than two levels above the level of his position, he will receive a minimum increase equivalent to three step increases.

Rural routes: The purpose of section 708 is to remove the limitation on the present authority of the Postmaster General with respect to the establishment or extension of star routes in areas previously served by rural routes. Under present law such substitution may not be made if a qualified rural carrier can be obtained. This change will permit the Postmaster General to exercise administrative discretion in the selection of the more efficient or economical service.

Miscellaneous provisions:

The new salary plan abolishes longevity steps and provides for recognition of long service through addition of within-grade steps. Therefore, the distinction made in sections 3101(5) and 3101(6) of title 39, between basic salary and basic compensation, is no longer valid and section 709 eliminates this distinction.

Section 710 amends 39 U.S.C. 3541 to provide a method for determining the daily rate of compensation of substitute rural carriers. By using a factor of 304, the number of days of service on a rural route in a year, holiday pay is prorated throughout the year against the actual service of the substitute rural carrier. In this respect, pay treatment of these employees will be consistent with that afforded other substitute employees.

Conversion rules:

Section 711 provides the rules for the conversion of existing salaries to the new pay schedules which would become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment. The conversion method generally will place each employee in the numerical step which he attains immediately prior to the effective date of the new pay plan, plus an additional numerical step for each longevity step attained immediately prior to conversion.

Credit is preserved toward the next within-grade or automatic step increase earned by employees prior to conversion if they were not given an adiditional step increase by reason of longevity steps attained prior to conversion. Such credit will be applied toward fulfillment of the requirements of the new advancement schedule. No credit earned toward longevity steps will be carried over. No employee's salary will be reduced on conversion.

In addition, to provide a greater salary increase for present employees, each employee in levels PFS–1 through PFS–4 or under the rural carrier schedule will be advanced one extra step on conversion.

Section 712 provides for the conversion of employees to the schedules to become effective in January 1964 according to the numerical step attained immediately prior to the date of conversion. Where existing compensation exceeds the rate for the numerical step, the existing compensation is retained if conversion cannot be made to a scheduled step.

Section 713 amends section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, as added by section 201 of the act of September 21, 1961 (75 Stat. 569, Public Law 87–270), which provides, among other things, that employees in protected rates will be given statutory increases applicable to the salary standing from which reduced. The purpose of section 713 is to make clear that, inasmuch as the new salary plan involves basic structural changes for employees now under the PFS, RCS, and FOS schedules, this particular feature of 39 U.S.C. 3560 cannot be given application at the time of conversion to the new schedules. Salaries of employees in protected rates as of the date of conversion will be converted under sections 711 and 712 of the conference substitute, as appropriate.

Basic salary in cases of assignments of postal employees: Section 714 amends section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, so as to clarify the intent of Congress with respect to the authority of the Postmaster General to authorize higher level compensation. This amendment is required to remove objections of the Comptroller General, as stated in his decision of February 1, 1962 (B–138999), to the Department's application of the present statutory provision and to validate payments that have been made.

Salary protection:

Section 715 extends existing salary protection provisions to all levels of the postal field service schedule and clarifies their application to certain situations.

Section 716 contains a new compensation rule which will permit the Postmaster General to make exceptions to the schedule of automatic advancement provided in 39 U.S.C. 3552 in recognition of exceptional competence. This provision will require implementation by regulations to be issued by the Postmaster General.

Top grade positions and Whitten amendment:

Section 717 removes PFS–17 from the controlled position group and grants the postal field service a 10-percent exemption under the Whitten amendment.

Section 718 contains two conforming changes to the table of contents of title 39, United States Code.

Repeals: Section 719 repeals those provisions of Public Law 86–568 which contained salary increases for postal field service employees, effective July 9, 1960. It also repeals 39 U.S.C. 3558, which provides for the present system of longevity compensation; the new pay schedules supersede the longevity system in its entirety.

EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 720 specifies the effective dates of the various sections in title III.

Title IV—Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration

Title IV relates to physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration who are subject to a separate pay system prescribed by chapter 73 of title 38, United Stats Code. The revisions made by this title not only take into account the Bureau of Labor Statistics findings but also reflect the results of extensive studies of the Veterans' Administration concerning the need for a modernization of the entire grade and salary structure of the Department of Medicine and Surgery to recognize the numerous organizational and functional changes which have taken place in the Department since its inception in 1946.

In recognition of the nature of their occupations and the variability of assignments in a clinical setting, the grade and salary of physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery are determined on the basis of an individual's qualifications and professional attainment. Notwithstanding this fact, comparison of the qualification and skill requirements for like occupations under the Classification Act corroborate extenson to the Department of Medcine and Surgery schedules in the manner indicated in the conference substitute bill of the salary scale proposed for the Classification Act system. Appropriate differentiation in pay between recognized skill levels as well as executive and managerial levels is maintained. Internal relationships of pay between the D.M. & S. system and the Classification Act system are also continued.

Section 801 amends section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code. It reduces the maximum number of Assistant Chief Medical Directors from eight to five and modifies the provisions pertaining to directors of service and chiefs of division. In lieu of these positions, a new position level of Medical Directors is established. The salaries of the Assistant Chief Medical Directors, the Director of Nursing Service, the Chief Pharmacist, and Chief Dietitian are appropriately adjusted in line with other increases proposed by the conference substitute. The statutory positions of the Deputy Director of Nursing Service, Chief Physical Therapist, and Chief Occupational Therapist are eliminated. The duties of the first-named position will be filled by a nurse of the Assistant Director grade. The salaries for the positions of Chief Physical Therapist and Chief Occupational Therapist will be set in the future under the Classification Act of 1949.

Section 802 amends section 4107 of title 38, United States Code. In subsection (a) of section 4107, the former schedules entitled "Medical Service" and "Dental Service" have been combined and retitled "Physician and Dentist Schedule." The existing schedules have provided identical grades and pay scales and their continued separation serves no purpose. The junior grade of the former schedules has been eliminated, and two new grades—the director grade and executive grade—have been established. The schedule now titled "Nursing Service" has been retitled "Nurse Schedule." Two new grades—the assistant director grade and chief grade—have been established, and the former grades of assistant director and senior grade have been retitled "Senior grade" and "Intermediate grade," respectively.

The amendment also provides the pay scales for the physician and dentist schedule and the nurse schedule to be effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

The amendment of section 4107 of title 38 of the United States Code specifies the intended use of the two new grades—director and executive—in the physician and dentist schedule.

Section 803, which amends section 4108 of title 38 of the United States Code, repeals the present provision providing for an allowance equal to 15 percent of the pay of persons rated as medical, surgical, or dental specialists under the provisions of that section, since the latitude which will be afforded within the pay range of each grade will permit appropriate recognition of specially qualified individuals. The current subsection (b) of 4107 of title 38, without change, has been redesignated as section 4108 for purpose of greater clarity and as a matter of drafting convenience.

Subsection (b) of section 803 is a perfecting amendment to the table of contents at the head of chapter 73 of title 38, to reflect the change in the catchline of section 4108.

Section 804 amends section 4111(b) of title 38 to provide that the per annum salary rate of a director of a hospital, domiciliary, or center who is not a physician in the medical service shall not be less than the rate of salary he would receive if such service as a director had been as a physician in the director grade. Except with respect to change in rate of salary, the subsection does not affect the allocation of any such position to any grade of the Classification Act or the application of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 to any individual.

Section 805 provides that title IV shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment except as otherwise expressly provided.

Title V—The Foreign Service Act of 1946

Section 901 provides that title V may be cited as the "Foreign Service Salary Reform Act of 1962."

Section 902 amends section 412 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by adjusting upward the per annum salary rates for the eight classes of Foreign Service officers. No change is made in the number of classes and, with the exception of class I, which has two salary rates, the general pattern of seven rates for each class is continued. As in other sections of this title, the schedules of per annum salary rates, provided by this section, are to be effective in two phases at the beginning of the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 903 amends section 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946 by revising the structure of the Foreign Service Staff salary schedule and embodying certain changes directly comparable to those made in the revision of the Classification Act of 1949.

There are at present 22 classes in the Foreign Service Staff schedule. The proposed schedule of 10 classes would eliminate the unnecessary and seldom-used classes in the current schedule. Since custodial, maintenance, and the most routine clerical functions are performed almost exclusively by alien employees at Foreign Service posts, there is little need for U.S. citizen employees at the level of duties represented by classes 14 through 22. Since classes 14 through 22 are to be abolished, it will be necessary to give the Secretary the authority contained in proposed section 415(b) in order that persons in such classes may continue to be employed at appropriate rates. The new section 415(b) would give the Department all needed flexibility in this respect, should it be desirable in unusual circumstances, to employ American personnel at lower rates for duties less difficult than those of FSS–10. Within the proposed Foreign Service Staff salary schedule, 10 salary rates are proposed for the lower 6 classes, and 9 for the upper 4. This conforms with Classification Act of 1949 salary ranges proposed at similar salary levels. Section 903 prescribes two schedules of per annum salaries for staff officers and employees to be effective the first pay period after enactment and after January 1, 1964.

Section 904 provides for the conversion of Foreign Service personnel from their present salary rates to those established by the conference substitute.

Section 905 repeals section 642(b) of the Foreign Service Act relating to longevity step increases for Foreign Service staff officers and employees and makes minor conforming changes in the heading and identification of the section in the Foreign Service Act. Since the new Foreign Service staff schedule provides 9 or 10 rates for within-class increases, this section is no longer needed.

Section 906 provides that, except as otherwise expressly provided, title V shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

Title VI—Miscellaneous Salary Provisions

Section 1001 increases the salary limitations for certain scientific, professional, and other positions to accord with the salary ranges of the general schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. In most cases the salary range stated in the laws which are amended has a $19,000 maximum. The amendments proposed would tie the maximum to grade 18 of the general schedule.

Subsection (a) of section 1001 revises the salary range in section 2(b) of Public Law 313, 80th Congress, as amended, from $12,500–$19,000, to a range from the minimum salary of grade GS–16 to the highest rate of grade GS–18, and authorizes eight such positions in the Library of Congress.

Subsection (b) amends section 1581(b) of title 10 of the United States Code, relating to certain scientific or professional positions in the Department of Defense, to provide a minimum rate for such positions as the minimum rate of GS–16 and a maximum rate equivalent to GS–18 pay.

Subsection (c) extends the new range to positions now paid at $12,500 to $19,000 in the National Security Agency.

Subsection (d) amends the proviso in the first sentence of section 208(g) of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, which relates to compensation rates of certain scientific, professional, and administrative personnel in the Public Health Service to provide a minimum rate of grade GS–16 and a maximum at the pay of grade GS–18.

Subsection (e) establishes a maximum rate, equivalent to the pay of grade GS–18 for five positions of technical experts in the Department of Agriculture engaged in research in foot-and-mouth and other animal diseases.

Subsection (f) amends section 203(b)(2) of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 to provide that the Administrator may fix the rates for certain excepted positions at not to exceed the pay of grade GS–18 of the Classification Act of 1949. Thirty of these positions may continue to be paid up to $21,000.

Subsection (g) amends the proviso in section 161(d) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, to permit the fixing of salaries of scientific and technical personnel up to a limit of the pay of grade GS–18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949. The present limit is $19,000.

Subsection (h) substitutes the GS–18 rate in place of $19,500 as the top salary for 23 positions in the Federal Aviation Agency.

Subsection (i) authorizes use of Foreign Service salary rates for paying the U.S. representatives and alternate on the Executive Board of the World Health Organization in place of present maximum salaries of $12,000 and $10,000.

Subsection (j) sets the GS–18 rate as the maximum salary for certain positions established under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, not authorized to be paid up to $1,000 more than the rate of GS–18.

Subsection (k) fixes the GS–18 salary as the maximum rate for certain positions under the Foreign Assistance Act which may now be paid up to $19,000 a year.

Subsection (l) fixes the GS–18 salary rate as the top salary for certain Peace Corps positions now paying up to $19,000 a year.

Agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees: Section 1002 extends to agricultural stabilization and conservation county committee employees the salary increases provided by the conference substitute for corresponding Classification Act of 1949 salary levels.

Assistant U.S. attorneys: Section 1003 raises from $15,000 to $17,500 the maximum amount which can be paid to assistant U.S. attorneys and provides for an increase of 7½ percent in their existing rates of compensation.

Employees in the judicial branch: Section 1004 authorizes, for employees of the judicial branch, salary increases corresponding to those proposed in the statutory salary systems in the executive branch.

Officers and employees in the legislative branch: Section 1005(a) provides an increase of 7 percent to officers and employees in or under the legislative branch.

Subsection (b) provides for the automatic adjustment, effective October 16, 1962, of the compensation of employees in the office of a Senator to the rate nearest that being received by such employees immediately preceding such effective date unless the disbursing office of the Senate is notified to the contrary within 15 days after the date of enactment. Such notice, when given, would give effect to the increase.

Subsection (c) provides an increase of 7 percent in the rates of basic compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (not including the presiding officer) the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the legislative counsel and senior counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the official reporters of debates of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate, except that no such salary may be raised to an amount above $21,500.

Subsection (d) increases the limitation fixed by law on the compensation of employees of the Senate by the amount necessary to pay the additional compensation provided by the conference substitute bill.

Subsection (e) provides that the provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to employees engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets whose compensation is subject to the new limitation.

Subsection (f) covers elected officers of the House of Representatives (other than Members) and certain other officers of the House of Representatives who are not covered by other provisions of the conference substitute bill. Subsection (f) covers the following officers and employees of the House of Representatives:

(1) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 1 of the House of Representatives, whose total rate of per annum compensation is now prescribed by House Resolution 339, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The following elected officers of the House of Representatives, whose total rates of per anum compensation are now prescribed by House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(k) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B. of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304: Public Law 86–568); the Clerk of the House, the Sergeant at Arms of the House, the Doorkeeper of the House, and the Postmaster of the House;

(3) The chief of staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, whose total per annum compensation is now prescribed under authority of section 302(c) of the act of October 4, 1961 (75 Stat. 793; Public Law 87–367);

(4) The legislative counsel of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed in accordance with a provision relating to the legislative counsel of the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 251; Public Law 85–75) (as modified by secs. 4(c) and 4(m) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 208 and 209; Public Law 85–462)), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(5) The coordinator of information of the House of Representatives, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under House Resolution 183, 80th Congress, section 105 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1948 (61 Stat. 377; Public Law 197, 80th Cong.), section 2(e) of the act of October 24, 1951 (65 Stat. 612; Public Law 201, 82d Cong.), section 4(c) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 176; Public Law 94, 88th Cong.), section 4(l) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568);

(6) Two printing clerks, one for the majority caucus room and one for the minority caucus room, who total per annum compensation is now provided for on a present incumbency basis in the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1958 (71 Stat. 247; Public Law 85–75), as modified by a comparable provision in each annual appropriation act for the legislative branch, the latest such provision currently being the paragraph under the heading "House of Representatives" and the subheading "Special and Minority Employees" in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962 (75 Stat. 325; Public Law 87–130);

(7) Four minority employees of the House in positions referred to in House Resolution 486, 84th Congress, whose total per annum compensation is now fixed under such resolution and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957 (70 Stat. 370; Public Law 624, 84th Cong.), section 4(r) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 209; Public Law 85–462), and section 117(g) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568).

The above list of officers and employees within the purview of subsection (f) is not necessarily all-inclusive.

It may be noted, in connection with House officers and employees in the categories covered by subsection (f), that three employees in comparable categories are granted increases in compensation under section 1005 (a) rather than subsection (f). These employees are as follows:

(1) The Chaplain of the House of Representatives, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate prescribed by section 6 of the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 508; Public Law 242, 84th Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, including section 117 (a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(2) The Assistant Parliamentarian No. 2 of the House of Representatives whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of a per annum basic rate provided by House Resolution 277, 82d Congress, and section 277 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1953 (66 Stat. 478; Public Law 471, 82d Cong.), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568);

(3) The clerk to the House Parliamentarian, whose present rate of total per annum compensation consists of per annum basic rate fixed under House Resolution 486, 85th Congress, and section 103 of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1959 (72 Stat. 453; Public Law 85–570), and additional compensation provided by the various pay increase laws covering legislative branch employees generally, excluding the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958 but including section 117(a) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960 (pt. B of title I of the act of July 1, 1960; 74 Stat. 303; Public Law 86–568).

Subsection (g) increases the limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person payable to employees of the House of Representatives engaged in folding speeches and pamphlets by an amount equal to the increases granted to legislative employees under the conference substitute.

Subsection (h) makes clear that the increases provided by section 1005 are to be considered part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Subsection (i) provides that notwithstanding any other provision of section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by such section, and no increase provided by such section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

Subsection (j) provides that, insofar as the provisions of section 1005 apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962. The purpose of subsection (j) is to insure that officers and employees in the legislative branch will receive pay increases at approximately the same time as other officers and employees covered by the conference substitute.

Saving provision: Section 1006 provides, in effect, that no provision of the conference substitute shall operate to reduce any rate of salary, pay, or compensation of any officer or employee covered by the conference substitute.

Absorption of costs: Under section 1007, the departments and agencies are directed to provide for absorption of the costs of salary increases from available funds of the executive departments, but this section is not to be considered to require any employee to be separated from the service or placed in a leave-without-pay status.

Effective dates: Section 1008 provides that title VI, except as otherwise expressly provided, is to become effective on the first day of the first pay period after enactment.

Ceiling provisions: Section 1009 makes it clear that, except as provided in section 1005, this act will not cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

Part III.—Adjustment of annuities under Civil Service Retirement Act

The House bill contained no provisions such as are contained in the conference substitute under Part III, Adjustment of Annuities.

An explanation of part III of the conference substitute is set forth below.

Section 1101(a) provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the fund which commenced on or before that date.

Subsection (b) extends this initial increase on a graduated percentage basis to all annuities which commence in the 5-year period following January 1, 1963, in accordance with the following schedule:

Annuities commencing between—

	Are increased from commencing date by—
Jan. 2, and Dec. 31, 1963	4 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1964	3 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1964	2 percent.
Jan. 1, and Dec. 31, 1966	1 percent.

Subsection (c) provides that the percentage increase granted a retiree under subsection (a) or (b) will apply to the annuity subsequently granted his survivor.

Subsection (d) excludes from the 1963 increase annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsections (e) and (f) remove the ceilings on increases to retirees imposed by the 1952 and 1955 annuity increase laws. Under the annuity increase act of July 16, 1952, as amended by the act of August 31, 1954, no retiree's annuity (exclusive of that purchased by voluntary contributions) could be raised beyond $2,160. The act of August 11, 1955, similarly provided that no regular annuity could be increased under its terms beyond $4,104. These increase ceilings are repealed and made no longer effective on and after January 1, 1963. Each retiree affected by one or both of these ceilings who is still on the annuity rolls will be entitled to have his anuity rate reestablished as of Janaury 1, 1963, as though these ceilings had never existed. This reestablished rate, plus a 5-percent 1963 increase, will be payable from and after January 1, 1963.

Subsection (g) states effective date provisions for increases.

Subsection (h) provides that monthly annuity rates after adjustment will be fixed to the nearest dollar.

Section 1102(a) adds a new subsection to section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act to define the term "price index" as the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Subsection (b) renumbers present section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act as section 19 and inserts a new section 18. New section 18 embodies an automatic annuity adjustment plan.

The new section 18 of the Civil Service Retirement Act provides for future adjustment of annuities as follows:

Subsection (a) directs the Civil Service Commission to annually determine, after January 1, 1964, and each succeeding January 1, the percentage change in living costs from 1962 or from the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. Depending on the price index change, adjustment actions ensue.

Subsection (a)(1) provides that if the price index change from 1962 to 1963 equals a rise of at least 3 percent, an increase will be allowable, effective April 1, 1964. All annuities which began before January 2, 1963, will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (a)(2) provides for automatic increases in annuities effective April 1 of any later year after the percentage change in the price index has equaled a rise of at least 3 percent. All annuities payable from the fund as of April 1 which commenced earlier than January 2 of the preceding year will be increased by the percentage rise in the price index, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent.

Subsection (b) states the general rule that eligibility for an increase is governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable as of the appropriate April 1 effective date, but with these exceptions to the rule:

Under subsection (b)(1), a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor) on the roll as of the first cost-of-living increase, whose annuity started the date after the retiree's death, will receive the initial increase provided the retiree's commencing date of annuity was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase.

Under subsection (b)(2), the annuity of a retiree's survivor (other than a current act child survivor), which starts the day after the retiree's death and after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase will be increased from commencing date by whatever percentage increase the retiree was receiving at death.

Under subsection (b)(3), a special method is provided for increasing annuities of child survivors under the current act. These annuities are unique in that they are not the product of years of service times percentage of average salary. The child's rate is the lesser of (1) a set percent of average salary or (ii) a dollar amount which cannot reflect living cost salary increments. Thus, for these annuities, the cost-of-living annuity adjustment must be built into the benefit formula. The following provisions are made for child-survivor annuities which commence after the effective date of the first cost-of-living increase:

Existing formula		Increase provided—proposed increase
Spouse surviving	No spouse surviving
40 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	50 percent of average salary divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent granted after commencing date of retired parent's annuity. Inapplicable to children of employee, because his average salary includes living cost adjustments which pass on to children.
$1,800 divided by number of children.	$1,160 divided by number of children.	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.
$600	$720	Cumulative cost-of-living percent currently authorized. Applicable to children of retiree and employee alike, because salary living cost adjustments can never pass on to children.

Provision is made for applying these formula changes to any child's annuity which commenced in the 15-month period before the effective date of the first increase as if such initial increase had been in effect. Resulting rate adjustments would start on the effective date of the initial cost-of-living increase.

Subsection (c) excludes from cost-of-living increases annuity amounts purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

Subsection (d) provides that monthly annuity rates after cost-of-living increase will be fixed at the nearest dollar.

Section 1103 amends sections 1(j), 9(g), and 10(a)(1) of the Retirement Act to revise and liberalize provisions for children survivors and election of reduced annuity with benefit to widow or widower.

The present section 9(g) of the act permits a married person retiring for any reason to irrevocably elect, in lieu of single life annuity, a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, the choice to be made at time of retirement. The retiring individual may designate all or any portion of the single life annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) as the base for annuity to spouse. To partially support the added survivor protection the retiring individual accepts, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $2,400 and by 10 percent of any amount over $2,400 designated as the base for survivor annuity. Under the present section 10(a)(1), the named spouse becomes entitled to 50 percent of this base amount as widow's or widower's annuity, starting the day after the retiree's death and continuing until remarriage or death.

Under the conference substitute, section 9(g) of the act is amended to accord the retiring married employee a reduced benefit carrying with it a survivor annuity to spouse, unless he affirmatively elects to receive in lieu thereof the single life annuity. In the absence of the life annuity election, the total annuity (excluding any increase because of disability retirement) or such lesser portion as may be designated at time of retirement will be used as the base for annuity to spouse, and the individual will receive, for life, his or her annuity reduced by 2½ percent of the first $3,600 and by 10 percent of any amount over $3,600 which serves as the base for annuity to spouse. Section 10(a)(1) of the act is amended to accord the named spouse 55 percent of the amount used for the survivor base as widow's or widower's annuity, which would start the day after the retiree's death and continue until remarriage or death.

Subsections (c), (d), and (e) similarly amend subsections (b), (c), and (e) of section 10 of the act to uniformly accord a named survivor or a spouse survivor 55 percent, instead of 50 percent, of the annuity in respect to the deceased former employee or member.

Under existing law survivorship benefits paid to a child cease when the child attains the age of 18, marries, or dies except that such benefits may continue past the age of 18 if the child is incapable of self-support due to a disability incurred before attaining the age of 18.

Subsection (f) of section 1103 of the conference substitute amends section 1(j) of the Retirement Act. The substitute retains all present termination provisions but adds the further exception that benefits may continue to the end of the school year in which the child attains the age of 21 only so long as the child pursues a full-time course of study in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution.

This change in the Civil Service Retirement Act is in keeping with veterans' benefit laws which provide for the continuance of benefits between the ages of 18 and 21 to unmarried children while taking an approved course of instruction.

Section 1104 specifies January 1, 1963, as the effective date for section 1101 and provides that amendments made by section 1103, except subsection (F), will not apply to employees or members retired or otherwise separated prior to date of enactment.

PERMISSION TO FILE MINORITY VIEWS

Mr. SAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to file minority views in connection with the report on the bill H.R. 776, and that they be printed as part of the report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

GUARANTEED AIRCRAFT PURCHASE LOANS

Mr. O'BRIEN of New York (on behalf of Mr. WILLIAMS), submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 10129) to amend the act of September 7, 1957, relating to aircraft loan guarantees:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 2534)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 10129) to amend theh Act of September 7, 1957, relating to aircraft loan guarantees, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: "That subsection (a) of section 2 of the Act of September 7, 1957 (Public Law 85–307; 71 Stat. 629), is amended to read as follows:

"'(a) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Commerce.

"SEC. 2. Section 3 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'Board' the first place it appears in the first sentence of such section 3 and inserting in lieu thereof 'Secretary';

"(2) by inserting 'Civil Aeronautics' immediately preceding 'Board' the second place it appears in such first sentence;

"(3) by striking out the term 'United States' each place it appears in clause (c) of such first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof in each such place 'forty-eight contiguous States'; and

"(4) by striking out 'Board' where it appears in the second sentence of such section 3 and inserting in lieu thereof 'Secretary'.

"SEC. 3. Section 4 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended—

"(1) by striking out '$5,000,000' in subsection (d) and inserting in lieu thereof '$10,000,000'; and

"(2) by striking out 'Board' in subsections (e) and (f) and inserting in lieu thereof in each of such subsections 'Secretary'.

"SEC. 4. Section 5 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended by striking out 'Board' and inserting in lieu thereof 'Secretary'.

"SEC. 5. (a) Subsection (a) of section 6 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'it' the first place it appears therein and inserting in lieu thereof 'him';

"(2) by striking out 'it' the second place it appears therein and inserting in lieu thereof 'he'; and

"(3) by striking out 'Board' and inserting in lieu thereof 'Secretary'.

"(b) Section 6 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"'(c) The Secretary shall make available to the Comptroller General of the United States such information with respect to the loan guaranty program under this Act as the Comptroller General may require to carry out his duties under the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921'.

"SEC. 6. Section 7 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended by striking out 'Board' in subsections (b) and (c) and inserting in lieu thereof in each of such subsections 'Department of Commerce'.

"SEC. 7. Section 8 of such Act of September 7, 1957, is amended by striking out 'five' and inserting in lieu thereof 'ten'.

"SEC. 8. Section 410 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1380), is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to the guaranty of loans by the Secretary of Commerce under the provisions of such Act of September 7, 1957, as amended, but the Secretary of Commerce shall consult with and consider the views and recommendations of the Board in making such guaranties.'

"SEC. 9. (a) All orders, determinations, rules, regulations, permissions, approvals, agreements, rulings, directives, and privileges which have been issued, made, or granted, or allowed to become effective, by the Civil Aeronautics Board, or any court of competent jurisdiction, under any provision of law amended by this Act, or in the exercise of duties, powers, or functions which, under this Act, are vested in the Secretary of Commerce, and which are in effect on the date of enactment of this Act shall continue in effect according to their terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set aside, or repealed by the Secretary of Commerce or by any court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law.

"(b) The provisions of this Act shall not affect any proceedings pending before the Civil Aeronautics Board on the date of enactment of this Act; but any such proceedings shall be continued before the Secretary of Commerce, orders issued therein, and payments made pursuant to such orders, as if this Act had not been enacted; and orders issued in any such proceedings shall continue in effect until modified, terminated, superseded, or repealed by the Secretary of Commerce, or by operation of law.

"(c) The provisions of this Act shall not affect suits commenced prior to the date of its enactment; and all such suits shall be continued by the Secretary of Commerce, proceedings therein had, appeals therein taken, and judgments therein rendered, in the same manner and with the same effect as if this Act had not been enacted. No suit, action, or other proceeding lawfully commenced by or against the Civil Aeronautics Board or officer of the United States, in relation to the discharge of official duties, shall abate by reason of any transfer of authority, power, or duties from the Board or officer to the Secretary of Commerce under the provisions of this Act, but the court upon a motion or a supplemental petition filed at any time within twelve months after such transfer, showing the necessity for a survival of such suit, action, or other proceeding to obtain a settlement of the questions involved, may allow the same to be maintained by or against the Secretary of Commerce.

"SEC. 10. (a) The officers, employees, and property (including office equipment and official records) of the Civil Aeronautics Board which the Bureau of the Budget, after consultation with the Board, shall determine to have been employed by the Board in the exercise and performance of those powers and duties vested in and imposed upon it by the Act of September 7, 1957 (71 Stat. 629), as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act, and which are vested by this Act in the Secretary of Commerce, shall be transferred to the Department of Commerce upon such date or dates as the Bureau of the Budget shall specify. The transfer of personnel under this section shall be without reduction in classification or compensation, except that this requirement shall not operate after the end of the fiscal year during which such transfer is made to prevent the adjustment of classification or compensation to conform to the duties to which such transferred personnel may be assigned.

"(c) All records transferred to the Secretary of Commerce under this Act shall be available for use by him to the same extent as if such records were originally records of the Secretary."

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 10129) to amend the act of September 7, 1957, relating to aircraft loan guarantees, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text, and the House disagreed to the Senate amendment.

The committee of conference recommends that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate, with an amendment which is a substitute for both the text of the House bill and the Senate amendment thereto.

The differences between the House bill and the substitute agreed to in conference are explained below, except for clerical corrections, incidental changes made necessary by reason of agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clarifying changes.

Existing law referred to in this statement is the act entitled "An act to provide for Government guaranty of private loans to certain air carriers for purchase of modern aircraft and equipment, to foster the development and use of modern transport aircraft by such carriers, and for other purposes," approved September 7, 1957 (Public Law 85-307; 71 Stat. 629). The authority to guarantee loans under this act expired September 7, 1962.

HOUSE BILL

The bill passed by the House proposed to change existing law in the following respects:

1. It extended for five years from September 7, 1962, the authority of the Civil Aeronautics Board to guarantee aircraft purchase loans.

2. It increased from $5 million to $10 million the ceiling on the amount of loans which could be guaranteed and outstanding with respect to the same carrier.

3. It required the Civil Aeronautics Board to furnish the Comptroller General such information with respect to the loan guarantee program as he might require to carry out his auditing duties under the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921.

SENATE AMENDMENT

The Senate amendment, which was a substitute for the text of the House bill, also proposed to extend the loan guarantee program for five years from September 7, 1962, and to increase from $5 million to $10 million the ceiling on the amount of loans which could be guaranteed and outstanding with respect to the same carrier. In addition, however, the Senate amendment proposed to change existing law in the following respects:

1. It made scheduled all-cargo carriers eligible for loan guarantees, with a ceiling of $15 million per carrier on the amount of loans which could be guaranteed and outstanding, subject to certain conditions relating to the type of aircraft purchased with a guaranteed loan and the use of such aircraft by the purchasing carrier.

2. It transferred from the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Secretary of Commerce the responsibility for administering the loan guarantee program.

The Senate amendment also contained appropriate provisions for the transfer from the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Department of Commerce of property and personnel utilized by the Civil Aeronautics Board in the administration of the loan guarantee program, and appropriate transitional provisions preserving existing agreements, rules, and regulations, and pending administrative and judicial proceedings, involved in the loan guarantee program.

CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

The substitute agreed to in conference follows the provisions of the Senate amendment transferring from the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Secretary of Commerce the responsibility for the administration of the loan guarantee program, together with appropriate transitional provisions preserving existing agreements, regulations, and proceedings, and appropriate provisions transferring property and personnel utilized in such program.

Aside from the transfer of administrative responsibility, the conference substitute follows the provisions of the House bill extending the loan guarantee authority for five years from September 7, 1962; increasing from $5 million to $10 million the ceiling on loans to one carrier which may be guaranteed and outstanding; restricting the class of carriers eligible for loan guarantees to those originally included in existing law; and requiring that information with respect to the loan guarantee program be made available to the Comptroller General.

INDECENT PUBLICATIONS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. DOWDY. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 4670) to amend the law relating to incident publications in the District of Columbia, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOWDY]?

Mr. COHELAN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, can the gentleman tell us what this bill is all about?

Mr. DOWDY. Mr. Speaker, this bill pertains to the distribution of obscene publications or literature in the District of Columbia and provides penalties for indecent photographs, posing or acting. In other words, it makes the distribution of recordings and other things that are obscene against the law.

Mr. COHELAN. Were there any hearings held on this bill in the House?

Mr. DOWDY. Yes.

Mr. COHELAN. How long ago were the hearings held?

Mr. DOWDY. That was last year.

Mr. COHELAN. When did the bill come before the House, and under what circumstances was this bill passed?

Mr. DOWDY. The same as all District bills come before the House on District Day.

Mr. COHELAN. There was no date on the bill. The gentleman knows I was opposed to it.

Mr. Speaker, I object to the unanimous-consent request.

The Clerk read the conference report and statement.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of October 3, 1962.)

Mr. LINDSAY. Mr. Speaker, I am casting my vote against H.R. 4670, the so-called indecent publications in the District of Columbia bill. There have been no hearings in the House. Apparently there are no executive reports in favor of the bill. The bill provides for summary confiscation of printed matter, film, news matter, or anything else. There are no standards. Apparently any minor governmental official or policeman can set himself up as the judge. The total burden is on the citizen, rather than on the government as it should be.

Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the dissemination of pornographic literature, but let us not burn down the whole house to catch a few rats.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I strongly disapprove of the procedure used here to get this bill through. There are members of the Committee on the District of Columbia who have never seen this bill before this moment, and I might note for the record that it is now 8 o'clock at night. This is not a good time to be slipping bills like this through the House.

Mr. MATHIAS. Mr. Speaker, the burden imposed by H.R. 4670 on booksellers seems to me to be unreasonable. The fact that "possession" is made a crime raises questions in my mind that are not answered by the conference report. This imputes to every bookseller a degree of knowledge that goes beyond that required by the law of ordinary and prudent men.

There are sound laws designed to curb the traffic in obscene literature and other matter. I would be happy to support legislation which is framed on a constitutional basis and which does not violate the rights of private citizens. My doubts in this respect, however, require that I vote against H.R. 4670 in its present form.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the conference report.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the yeas had it.

Mr. CURTIS of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground a quorum is not present, and I make the point of order a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will count. (After counting.) Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Doorkeeper will close the doors, the Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members, and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 270, nays 18, not voting 147, as follows:

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That there be printed for the use of the Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, one hundred and eighty-five thousand copies of the Constitution of the United States and the amendments thereto, suitable for distribution as provided for by section 8 of the Act approved July 14, 1960 (74 Stat. 508; Public Law 86–650), as amended by S.J. Res. 60, to immigrants admitted for permanent residence.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SOCIAL SECURITY COVERAGE FOR POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN IN MAINE

Mr. MILLS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (H.R. 8853) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to include Maine among the States which may obtain social security coverage, under State agreement, for the State and local policemen and firemen.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 218(p) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "Maine," after "Kansas,".

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. MILLS. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of H.R. 8853, which was introduced by our colleague from the State of Maine, the Honorable STANLEY R. TUPPER, is to amend title II of the Social Security Act to include Maine among the States which may obtain old-age, survivors' and disability insurance coverage, under State agreement, for State and local policemen and firemen.

Under present law, the provision permitting such coverage of services performed by employees of a State—or of any political subdivision thereof—in any policeman's or fireman's position covered by a retirement system of the State or local government, when the members of the system vote in favor of coverage, has been extended to 17 specified States and all interstate instrumentalities. These 17 States are: Alabama, California, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Kansas, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, and Washington. The pending bill would simply add the State of Maine to this list.

Existing law provides adequate assurance that old-age, survivors' and disability insurance coverage will be extended only to groups of policemen or firemen who want such coverage. Under the present referendum provisions of the Social Security Act, members of a State or local government retirement system group have a voice in any decision to cover them under old-age, survivors' and disability insurance. In addition, existing law contains a declaration that it is the policy of the Congress that the protection afforded members of a State or local government retirement system not be impaired as a result of the extension of old-age and survivors' insurance coverage to members of the system.

Mr. TUPPER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished majority leader for asking that H.R. 8853 be taken up by the House. This bill will amend title II of the Socical Security Act to include Maine among the States which may obtain social security coverage, under State agreement for State and local policemen and firemen.

The bill would extend to the State of Maine the provision in present law which makes social security—old-age survivors and disability insurance—coverage available already in 17 States and in all interstate instrumentalities to policemen and firemen who are members of a State or local retirement system.

If H.R. 8853 is approved, Maine policemen and firemen now covered by a retirement system—all present and future members—may be also covered by social security if a majority of the eligible employees approve such coverage.

The State legislature in my State of Maine voted in favor of such permissive coverage. The Maine Law Enforcement Association, made up over every branch of law enforcement officers in the State of Maine—1,070 members—support the bill, and I have received many communications from individual policemen and firemen from my State in favor of this legislation.

It should be emphasized that Maine policemen and firemen now under a retirement system will be able, if they choose, to supplement their retirement income under this legislation.

I think it is appropriate that these public servants who protect lives and property of others throughout their working years be given the opportunity to participate in the social security system as well as their other retirement system.

We all know that the pay for police and firemen does not often compensate for the long hours and frequent risk of their lives. This bill will help in my State to make these jobs more attractive.

The State of Maine is proud of the excellence of our State and local law enforcement departments and of our local fire departments.

H.R. 8853 will help to maintain and improve upon these organizations.

[Mr. BYRNES of Wisconsin addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Appendix.]

(Mr. TUPPER and Mr. BYRNES of Wisconsin (at the request of Mr. MILLS) were granted permission to extend their remarks on the bill H.R. 8853.)

PRINTING OF PROCEEDINGS IN HOUSE COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY

Mr. BURLESON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of House Resolution 819).

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the transcript of the proceedings in the Committee on Banking and Currency of Thursday, September 27, 1962, incident to the presentation of a portrait of Hon. Brent Spence to the Committee on Banking and Currency be printed as a House Document with illustration and suitable binding.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

HOUSE RESOLUTION 821 LAID ON THE TABLE

The SPEAKER. On yesterday the House passed Senate bill, S. 3631. A similar House bill (H.R. 10569) to amend title 13, United States Code, to preserve the confidential nature of copies of information filed with the Bureau of the Census on a confidential basis, was laid on the table.

Without objection, the rule (H. Res. 821) providing for consideration of the House bill will be laid on the table.

There was no objection.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 7927) to adjust postal rates, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

(For conference report and statement see proceedings of the House of October 4, 1962.)

Mr. MURRAY (interrupting the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the statement be dispensed with.

Mr. GROSS. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I assume the gentleman will take ample time to explain the bill.

Mr. MURRAY. I will say to the gentleman from Iowa that I will take ample time to anyone to explain the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 7927, to adjust postal rates and for other purposes, passed the House on January 24, 1962. It was amended in the other body to include Federal salary adjustments and increases in civil service retirement annuities.

The conference substitute contains the most important and far-reaching provisions for postal financing, Federal civilian salary reform, and civil service retirement annuities that have been presented in a single legislative measure.

Postal revenues will be increased by $600 million when all of the postal rate adjustments become effective. This added revenue and the public service policy provisions—first approved by the Congress in 1958 and modernized in this bill—will eliminate all of the postal deficit which exists in the first-, second-, and third-class mail categories. The remaining deficiency—primarily in parcel post operations—will be eliminated when the Interstate Commerce Commission approves adjustments for which the Postmaster General has petitioned to make fourth-class revenues equal costs within 4 percent, as required by law.

The increased postal revenue to be provided by part I of the conference substitute is approximately $20 million less than the increased revenue of $620 million which would have been provided by the substitute provisions for H.R. 7927 recommended last January by the Postmaster General and presented to the House under my name. The bill passed by the House, however, increased those revenue provisions by $71 million by the adoption of an amendment raising the third-class bulk minimum charge per piece an additional one-half cent.

SALARY INCREASES

Part II of the conference substitute places in effect major provisions of the Federal statutory salary reform proposal submitted to the Congress by the President earlier in the current session. The essential requirements of comparability of Federal and private enterprise salary rates, internal alinement of Federal salary schedules, and annual review and adjustment of salaries recommended by the President are provided by part II. The chief differences between the conference substitute and the President's recommendations are, first, salary adjustments under the conference substitute are in two phases, spaced 15 months apart, instead of three annual phases as recommended by the President; and, second, the three highest grades of the Classification Act of 1949 and the three highest levels of the postal field service schedule receive only one upward adjustment, leaving the final determination of the appropriate salaries for such grades and levels for consideration in the next Congress.

The conference substitute also provides comparable salary adjustments for employees in the judicial branch, agricultural stabilization and conservation country committee employees, congressional employees, and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed by administrative action. This is in conformity with the policy adopted by the Congress in all recent salary increase legislation.

COST OF SALARY INCREASES

The annual cost of the salary reform provisions of the conference substitute will be $1.049 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964, when the salary adjustments provided for therein become fully effective. The salary reform legislation recommended by the President would have cost $1.054 billion a year beginning in the calendar year 1965. The annual cost of Federal civilian salary reform provisions contained in H.R. 9531, as reported favorably by the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service but not acted upon by the House, would have been $1.469 billion beginning with the calendar year 1964—a difference of $420 million savings under the conference substitute.

CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT ANNUITIES

Part III of the conference substitute—

First. Provides a 5-percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities then payable from the civil service retirement fund which commenced on or before that date.

Second. Applies the increase on a graduated reduction basis to all annuities which commence in the 4-year period following January 1, 1963, in keeping with the practice followed in the last previous enactment of this kind.

Third. Provides that the proper proportion of the increase granted an annuitant will accrue to his survivors.

Fourth. Excludes from the increase annuity amounts purchased by voluntary contributions.

Fifth. Removes the ceilings on increases imposed by certain previous enactments.

Sixth. Provides for future adjustments in the event the calendar year average of the monthly Consumer Price Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics increases not less than 3 percent.

Seventh. Raises from $2,400 to $3,600 the portion of annuity to which the reduction of 2½ percent applies when electing survivorship benefits.

Eighth. Increases the ratio of survivorship benefits from 50 to 55 percent.

Ninth. Reverses present procedure by providing that in the future survivorship benefits will be automatic unless an adverse election is made.

Tenth. Extends the right of survivorship benefits for children to the end of any school year in which a child attains the age of 21 years so long as the child pursues full-time studies in a school, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. This change is in keeping with provisions of veterans' benefit laws.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly recommend approval of the conference substitute.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may require to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CORBETT].

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Speaker, in the consideration of this conference report, there are four main points which we can very briefly clarify. I might, by way of preface, point out that in a bill of this kind there is perhaps no provision to which some objection cannot be found. Obviously, when you are considering something as complicated as postal rates, when you are into something as complicated as salary schedules, the job of eliminating inequalities, the job of keeping everything in balance, it is very difficult, particularly when there are groups that feel these pressures one way or the other.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, according to the report, section 1310, an act of several years ago, commonly known as the Whitten Rider, has been amended in connection with the total number of permanent Federal employees.

The Postmaster General conferred with me as to this, and we worked this out with the staff of the appropriate committees, and the allocation of permanent positions to the Post Office Department was changed from the total fixed by the act, and was such as to prohibit some additional plans for the Post Office Department where they now hire temporary employees. He felt that because we are allocating as large a percentage as the law permits, that some adjustments should be made.

In connection with it, I assured the Postmaster General in view of the fact that he could not get a higher allocation that I, personally, would have no objection to an increase of 10 percent in the postal service in permanent jobs.

Second, they said that it would save money and would not change the total overall ceiling.

It is my information that what is in the conference report represents an increase in the total number of permanent positions in question of 10 percent, which is a far different story; that the total number of permanent employees would be raised from something like 1 to 1.1 million.

Could the gentleman from Pennsylvania advise me at this point and could the gentleman make certain that the record shows it and tell us all he can about it at this time?

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Speaker, I might say to the gentleman that I had an earlier conversation with the gentleman. The gentleman has been very reasonable and considerate of this situation. The gentleman recognizes that the volume is increasing by leaps and bounds, and that the number of new post offices which we need demands this.

I shall be happy to clarify this situation, as it relates to this conference report.

Mr. WHITTEN. I shall thank the gentleman if the gentleman will do it in that way. I have read the hearings and have tried to make it out, but my latest information is that it applies across the board rather than to our intention to allocate these positions.

Mr. CORBETT. The conference report provides merely for an increase in the number of permanent employees in the postal field service. The provision to which I refer is on page 29 of conference report No. 2532 and reads as follows:

(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word "Provided," the following: "That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950, shall not be chargeable to this limitation:".

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALTER. I understand in the bill as it passed the Senate there was a provision requiring the Civil Service Commission to give consideration to the experience which employees had in the postal services where they were applicants for appointment as Postmaster. This is a very desirable provision, and as I see it there had been a clear-cut expression in regard to it.

I am just wondering whether or not that provision was left in the conference report?

Mr. CORBETT. I assure my colleague that provision was left untouched by the conferees. I agree with the gentleman from Pennsylvania wholeheartedly, that any other arrangement would have been unwise. If we are not going to recognize experience in career training, we have gotten into a very unhealthy situation.

Mr. WALTER. I trust that this will serve as notice to the Civil Service Commission as to what the intent of the Congress is, and that they will pay attention to it in determining eligibility.

Mr. CORBETT. I think the gentleman is entirely correct.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to compliment the gentleman for his work on the conference committee and to compliment the conferees as well for coming up with as good a bill as we could expect at this time.

It has been a pleasure for me to be one of the team working with the gentlemen for these pay raises and although I do not agree with the postal rate raises in many instances I know that this is the best we can do now. Would the gentleman agree that this is about the best bill we can get for these Government employees and postal workers to bring them up to the level of industrial and business pay?

Mr. CORBETT. First of all, I want to thank the gentleman for his very kind observations and hope that he is not expressing a minority opinion. As we all know, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, during all his years of service in the Congress, has been in the forefront of the continuing fight to secure reasonable and adequate salaries for all our Government employees. It has been a pleasure for me to have worked closely with him in this endeavor.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I should like to get to the main features of the bill, and then if I have time I should be glad to yield further.

No. 1, the part of the bill dealing with postal rates is a large section of this measure. These rates are coupled with a realistic appraisal of the value of the public service features, and will result in the Post Office Department having a real surplus rather than its traditional deficit. Even with the pay raise provided in this bill for postal workers I want to emphasize the fact that the new revenues provided and a proper estimate of public service cost will leave the Post Office Department at long last in a surplus situation.

Now with regard to the salary situation, the pay features of this bill. It is somewhat different from the administration's proposals. However, it does do these two things to a degree. In the lower grades it brings salaries up to meet the increased cost of living. In the higher grades the attempt is made to introduce the philosophy of comparability. There is an attempt made, incomplete as it is, to make the pay of people working for the Federal Government comparable to what they would secure in private industry.

So I think this should be emphasized, that we recognize that every year or every 2 years we have this matter of pay raises and we have the matter of postal rates to consider. Some may say that this bill was considered in haste. That kind of charge simply is not true, because the Post Office and Civil Service Committees of both the House and the Senate are in almost constant session when Congress is in session, on these subjects, hearing one witness after another and having executive sessions. So while the action may have been fast, the consideration was very long and very painstaking.

Mr. Speaker, the only other feature of the bill that needs to be mentioned is the fact that is recognizes that our older, retired employees are the true victims of the inflation. They need help. This bill authorizes a 5-percent increase in their retirement annuities, but because of the action yesterday does not make available the funds. It also authorizes a permanent change in the annuity situation by gearing future adjustments to increases in the cost of living which will be beneficial to those who have served our Federal Government.

Mr. Speaker, having studied this bill carefully, worked on the conference report and on the hearings, I can very sincerely recommend its overwhelming passage by this body.

Mr. MINSHALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield to the gentleman.

(Mr. MINSHALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

REPORT ON 87TH CONGRESS, 2D SESSION

Mr. MINSHALL. Mr. Speaker, the 2d session of the 87th Congress has set a record, at least as to length. More than 9 months in continuous session makes it the longest election-year congressional session in history, with the exception of certain wartime sessions which ran year around.

The House of Representatives, in this session, passed something over 550 bills out of the more than 4,500 measures introduced. It has been said before, but it is worth repeating, that bare statistics do not adequately picture the long hours spent by each of us in committee work. It is, of course, in committee where the major part of the work of Congress is done. The 4,500 measures introduced had to be studied and analyzed and discussed in committee. Those which were favorably reported out of committee were again studied and debated on the floor of the House.

I am privileged to serve on what I believe to be the most powerful subcommittee of the House—Defense Appropriations. The larger part of our entire national budget is spent on the military, and as appropriations originate in the House, our Defense Appropriations Subcommittee has unique and great responsibility. I have a keen interest in the work of this important committee, and I feel that here is one of my chief services as a Representative in Congress.

I can report to you that every member of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee works diligently in what he believes to be the best interests of his country.

My report on the 2d session of the 87th Congress follows:

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Complete bipartisan cooperation was evidenced in the unanimous vote for our national defense appropriations. This year, it was $48,136,247,000, the highest defense appropriation in peacetime history. In addition to this amount nearly $1.4 billion was appropriated for military construction.

As I have mentioned, I am a member of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, and it was this committee's job to examine every item proposed, and prepare the necessary legislation. On our shoulders—13 of us—rests the responsibility of making the difficult initial decisions affecting the defense budget.

ATOMIC ENERGY AND SPACE

We approved over $3 billion for atomic energy experiments and development. Nearly $4 billion was appropriated for the space program. We also passed the Communications Satellite Act, establishing a commercial communications satellite system with Federal support. This was designed to improve global communications and contribute to better international understanding and world peace. Incidentally, this measure survived a filibuster by a small group of Senator who usually favor Government ownership and control over free enterprise.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Cuba: Both Houses of Congress passed a resolution expressing the determination of the American people to prevent by whatever means may be necessary, including the use of arms, the Communist regime in Cuba from extending its aggressive or subversive activities to any part of this hemisphere. A move to make the language even stronger failed to pass.

Trade: One of the most important pieces of legislation to be enacted by the second session was the Trade Expansion Act. Its main provision authorizes the President to cut tariffs across the board up to 50 percent and to eliminate entirely tariffs on goods of which the United States and the European Economic Community account for 80 percent of the free world trade. Under the provisions of the legislation, the President may raise duties if, in his opinion, such boost is needed to protect domestic interests. The bill also provides for certain tax and loan aid to industries damaged by foreign competition, and for extra unemployment compensation for workers who lose their jobs as a direct result of tariff reductions.

Foreign aid: The Congress looked at foreign aid with a very critical eye this year. There has been general disenchantment with the program. Examples of waste and mismanagement were numerous. The House made a very deep cut in the appropriation. The Senate restored some of the funds, but the final figure of nearly $4 billion was still considerably lower than that requested by the administration.

U.N. bonds: After much debate, Congress agreed to the U.S. purchase of United Nations bonds, not to exceed $100 million. The bond issue was designed to relieve the financial pressures on the U.N. caused by the refusal of some member nations to pay their share of the expenses for U.N. operations in the Congo and the Middle East. Let us hope that nations can be compelled to pay their just dues, and that the bond issue will not create a precedent.

DOMESTIC AFFAIRS

Tax reform: The new tax bill, as finally passed, was not the bill recommended by the President. Again heeding the voice of the people, who sent in letters to their Congressmen by the tens of thousands, Congress struck out the provision for the withholding of taxes on interest and dividends.

Self-employed pensions: The bill as finally agreed to would allow the self-employed individual to provide himself a pension plan wherein he could deposit up to $2,500 a year and make half of his annual deposit tax exempt. The final version of the bill did not provide so great an incentive to establish voluntary retirement programs as originally designed. However, it did equalize the pension position of the company employee and that of the self-employed person. The House and Senate conferees deleted some Senate amendments which would have had a damaging effect on company pension plans and profit-sharing plans.

Postal rates: Congress passed the bill to raise by 1 cent the basic postal rates on first class mail and raised the rates on second and third class mail on a graduated scale. Under the provisions of the bill, Communist propaganda would not be delivered unless addressee, after notification, advises he wants it. Libraries and certain professional institutions would be exempt from this provision.

Federal pay raise: Civil service and postal employees, under the provisions of legislation passed by both Houses, would get about a 10-percent salary increase in two stages, and legislative employees would get a 7-percent increase, this designed to make the Federal worker's pay comparable to that paid for similar work in private industry. Federal retirees would receive a 5 percent boost.

Public works: The public works acceleration bill was designed to provide public works and employment in areas of high unemployment. The President had requested $1.5 billion for this program; this was cut almost in half.

Ohio projects: An appropriation of $1,553,000 was voted to continue the Cleveland Harbor improvement program. Also included was an item of $74,000 to continue the Army Corps of Engineers' technical study of the feasibility of constructing Tinkers Creek Dam to prevent flooding of the Cuyahoga River.

Antipoll tax: A constitutional amendment doing away with poll taxes was passed by the Congress and submitted to the States for ratification. To become law the constitutional amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the States. This was the only major civil rights measure to be approved during this session.

Retraining: The Manpower Retraining Act, passed and now in effect, provides funds for the retraining of persons whose job skills are no longer in demand, and for on-the-job training.

Drug protection: Additional requirements were imposed by legislation to improve procedures of drug manufacture, testing, inspection and informing the medical profession and the public. Under the new law, drugs must be shown to be effective as well as safe. Furthermore, a drug suspected of being hazardous may be withdrawn from public use.

Housing for elderly: The Senior Citizens Housing Act, passed and enacted into law, authorizes an increase of $100 million for direct loans for urban rentals and another $100 million to broaden the rural housing program for the elderly.

Mass vaccination: Another piece of legislation passed by Congress is the Vaccination Assistance Act, which launches a 3-year program of special grants to States for mass vaccination against polio, diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus.

Federal aid to education: The bill designed to provide assistance to primary and secondary schools never came out of committee. Though the House originally passed the college aid bill, providing for grants and loans to public and private colleges for construction of buildings to be used for science, engineering, and general classroom purposes, but not for chapels, divinity schools or sports facilities, the student scholarship provision was not acceptable to the House. The conference report was recommitted so no final action was taken.

Health care for aged: The Senate defeated the administration-backed bill to provide medical care for the aged under social security. Among objections to the bill was the fact that it covered only those older people already under social security, leaving some millions of needy older people unprotected, while, at the same time, providing care for many wealthy people who need no help, all at the expense of the working taxpayer. The medicare bill, usually referred to as the King-Anderson bill, did not do many of the things generally expected of it. It made no provision for doctor or surgeon fees, and the patient would have to bear the first $90 of hospital expenses plus a $20 diagnosis fee. We already have medical care legislation, the Kerr-Mills Act, providing for Federal and State cooperation in taking care of all medical expenses of the aged who need financial help. Approximately half of the States are already operating a Kerr-Mills program. Some of those who opposed the King-Anderson bill felt that private and nonprofit groups should be given a chance to provide the needed services, with possibly Federal aid to the needy in the payment of premiums. Congress will certainly be considering alternative solutions to this very real and important problem in the next session.

OTHER MEASURES WHICH FAILED

The youth employment bill, resurrecting the old Civilian Conservation Corps idea died in committee.

The creation of a new Department of Urban Affairs was defeated by the House early in the session.

The administration's farm bill was killed in the House, and a less controversial substitute passed.

The wilderness bill never received final consideration.

The mass transit bill to provide Federal aid to communities for traffic problems did not receive final consideration.

FOR THE FUTURE

The 88th Congress will inherit many leftover legislative problems from the 87th Congress—among them, taxes, labor, medical care for the aged, aid to education, mass transportation, a youth employment program, tighter controls over farming, marketing, stock sales.

(Mr. LANKFORD asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. LANKFORD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report on H.R. 7927, the postal-Federal pay bill.

The bill has three important objectives: first, it is designed to carry out the President's recommendations for an upward adjustment in postal rates sufficient to reduce significantly the postal deficit; second, it provides an increase in the annuities for persons now on the Federal retirement rolls; and third, it puts into effect—to a limited extent—the principal aspects of the President's recommendations for needed reforms in the major statutory pay systems in the Federal service.

In the section dealing with retirement annuities, the bill provides for a 5 percent increase, effective January 1, 1963, in all annuities payable from the civil service retirement funds. This increase will affect 600,000 persons who are retired Federal employees or the survivors of former Federal employees. In addition, the bill protects these persons against increases in the cost of living by requiring that annuities be raised by another 3 percent whenever the cost of living rises by that much. This provision tying annuities to the cost of living index is the most important feature of this section and is a major step in insuring that retired Federal employees—those people who have devoted their adult lives to dedicated Government service—will have the type of security in retirement that they need and rightfully deserve.

In addition, the bill provides a two-step pay raise for the 1.6 million Federal and District Government employees, of which 250,000 live and work in the Washington Metropolitan area. The total raise for these employees amounts to approximately 10 percent, averaging $603 for classified workers and $584 for postal workers. This is a well-deserved raise and long overdue, in my opinion.

But the most significant point of this bill, Mr. Speaker, is that it is not merely a pay raise bill. It is, indeed, much more than that, for it incorporates a number of reform features which are long overdue. In short, the bill contains the most significant steps that Congress has ever made to make the income of the Government worker comparable to that received by a person in private industry holding a similar job.

In order to meet its responsibility to the public a Federal salary system must pay enough to permit competent staffing so that the national security is not endangered and so that the public service is not degraded, but it must also pay no more than is necessary for this purpose and to provide equity for the Federal employee.

To insure fair treatment for the Federal employee, the salary system must provide equity among Federal employees and between them and their counterpart in private employment. The system in addition must provide for executive discretion to meet individual and special needs, to use pay for motivating employees and to initiate general adjustments as required, in order to make sure that the system is adaptable to the changing conditions and in order to stimulate peak performance.

The existing Federal salary spread from the entry professional or administrative level at GS–5 to the top career level at GS–18 is entirely inadequate by modern standards. A Federal employee from the time he first starts his Federal service can anticipate a maximum increase of only four and one-half times for a lifetime of service—and that is only true if he is one of the relatively few who reaches the very top. By contrast, his equal in private enterprise can expect to increase his beginning salary by six or seven times, without even having to reach the very top bracket in his profession.

Additional problems in the existing system are created by the fact that inequities now exist among the various Federal pay systems—for instance, supervisors under the Classification Act system are sometimes paid less than their subordinates who are under the wage board system.

The bill which we are being asked to approve here today, Mr. Speaker, incorporates reforms which affect all four Federal statutory systems—employees paid under the Classification Act, the Postal Service Compensation Act and the Foreign Service Act, and physicians, dentists and nurses of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration.

This bill will do away with many of the equities which I have just recounted. It will do this through the adoption of two principles which will be basic to the whole Federal pay structure from now on: the comparability principle and the internal alinement principle.

Under the comparability principle, Federal salary rates will be comparable to those in private enterprise for the same level of work. This principle takes into account the effects of such legitimate pay considerations as the cost of living, the standards of living and productivity, as those factors are resolved into the going rate over bargaining tables, and the other salary determining processes used throughout the country. Under the bill, comparability for the more specialized salary systems will be established by appropriately relating key levels with grades of the Classification Act.

The internal alinement principle, on the other hand, rests on the two concepts of equal pay for equal work and pay distinctions in keeping with differences in work and quality performance. Equal pay for equal work is already in effect and it works well, but pay distinctions for differences in work are not adequate under any of the Government's statutory salary systems.

The proposed schedules would regularize and generally enlarge the differences in salaries between successive grade levels of positions. In addition, the bill would improve the provisions for within grade increases and make them more meaningful.

However, Mr. Speaker, it would not be sufficient to make these changes now and expect them to endure for all time, because the inequities would soon show up again. So the bill includes a provision which insures that the Federal employee will from here on out be treated fairly with regard to salary. The bill requires the President to submit an annual report to Congress on the relationship of Federal salaries to those in private enterprise and he is also required at the same time to make recommendations for the adjustment of salary schedules, structure, and policy he considers advisable in order to maintain equity.

It would be unrealistic, Mr. Speaker, to assume that this bill eliminates all the inequities in the Federal pay systems. This bill, like all major legislation, has its shortcomings.

Its most serious defect is that it does not solve the pressing problem of salaries at the higher executive levels. It is my hope, and I understand the intention of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, that the next session of Congress will be able to make further improvements in the Federal pay system so that we can pay the most valuable civil servants what they deserve. I hope then, for instance, we will be able to create new top-level civil service posts—a GS–19 and a GS–20.

Let us remember that a high turnover rate in the Federal service would be more expensive in the long run than paying these employees sufficient salaries now.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to support this conference report. It is badly needed.

(Mr. WICKERSHAM asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

[Mr. WICKERSHAM addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Appendix.]

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS.]

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, this is a culmination of a legislative travesty. Hearings before the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service on pay increase legislation were carried on for weeks, and I do not think anyone can say that the gentleman from Iowa was not faithful in attending those hearings. I can remember time after time when the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Iowa, and two or three other Members, mostly on the minority side, constituted the committee that listened to the testimony given by a long list of witnesses before the committee. I thought at times, and I say this deliberately, that the members of the majority were boycotting the hearings.

Here we are today dealing with pay-increase legislation that in very few respects resembles the legislation upon which we held hearings and which was voted out by the committee. I say again that the entire history of this legislation is a travesty, for the House has never considered any part of it except the postal rate increase. Frankly, I do not know what is in this bill, and so in the limited time allotted to me I must ask a few questions.

Am I correctly informed that the increases go to 21 percent, as high as 21 percent for some Federal employees in the upper brackets? Will someone who is an expert on this bill now tell me?

Mr. MURRAY. The gentleman is incorrect. The increase is no more than 15 percent for anybody.

Mr. GROSS. Perhaps I am incorrectly informed, but I doubt that to be the case.

Do I understand correctly that some employees of Members of the Senate will under this bill get $18,800 a year?

Mr. DERWINSKI. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. DERWINSKI. The gentleman is correct in that observation, because, as the gentleman well knows, the other body wrote that section of the bill to meet their peculiar needs.

Mr. GROSS. Do I understand correctly that for all practical purposes the lid has been taken off super grades? How many super grades have been provided in this bill, may I ask?

Mr. JOHANSEN. If the gentleman will yield, my understanding is that it provides for an increase from 1989 to 2400, an increase of 411. In addition, it excludes from the limitation now in effect engineering, research, and development positions, and positions in the physical sciences, natural sciences, and medicine, which means withdrawal completely from those.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman is speaking of Public Law 313, Scientific and Professional Employees?

Mr. JOHANSEN. I am.

Mr. GROSS. Neither the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. JOHANSEN], nor the gentleman from Iowa had anything to do with the fast conference that was held. We have to try to get some information from some source concerning this bill, and apparently we are going to get very little from those who ought to know.

Mr. JOHANSEN. If the gentleman will yield further, I think the gentleman recalls a conference in the last session in which we were conferees and we were successful finally in putting some kind of a lid on the increase in supergrades.

Mr. GROSS. Yes, and we thought we were making a concession in the pay bill that was reported out of the committee—I did not vote for it—a concession of 51 supergrades to be put into the civil service pool. We thought we were making quite a concession at that time. I am sure the gentleman remembers that.

Mr. JOHANSEN. The gentleman is right. The gentleman from Michigan did not vote for that, either.

Mr. GROSS. So there are 411 identifiable supergrades under this bill, and there may be 1,000 or more when the provisions dealing with Public Law 313 are taken into consideration.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. JONAS. I want to congratulate the gentleman from Iowa for asking these questions and to hold up his hands in the hope that he will get some information so that those of us who do not even have the privilege of serving on the committee will know what is in this conference report.

Mr. GROSS. I will say again to the gentleman. This bill in very few respects even resembles the bill upon which the committee held long and protracted hearings day after day; which was approved by the committee; and then died a strange death.

Mr. JONAS. The record ought to show also, if the gentleman will permit, that this House has never acted on a pay bill.

Mr. GROSS. That is exactly right.

Mr. JONAS. And we have never had an opportunity to debate one or find out what was in it.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, this bill will increase the taxes on the public by raising postal rates by more than $600 million; it will increase the pay of Federal employees, including those of Members of Congress, by more than $1 billion; it will increase retirement and annuities by hundreds of millions of dollars, and last but not least it will increase the retirement paid to Members of Congress. This bill deals in $2½ billion; a major portion of it has never before been discussed in the House and yet it apparently will be approved in less than an hour with almost no explanation as to specific provisions.

Under these circumstances I have no alternative than to vote against it.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Iowa has expired.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. HOLIFIELD].

(Mr. HOLIFIELD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make one point and that is about the necessity of raising the salary rates for Government employees. We are living in a dangerous world, in a world which needs specialists to do the job of government. The taxpayers are going to have to pay for these specialists under prime contract arrangements with defense industries or under the research, planning and management arrangements like the Federal Government has with the Rand Corp., MIT, California Institute of Technology, University of California and other university institutions throughout the United States where higher than civil service classification salaries are paid. This situation exists today and nothing you can do can change it because you have to have that type of skilled and trained manpower to do the job that needs to be done in this highly technical and scientific world today, if we are going to meet the challenge of communism.

I just want to say that if you gentlemen do not give to the Government the right to pay the salaries to get the people in Government to evaluate these highly complicated and scientific programs which the Government is financing to the tune of billions and billions of dollars, then you are going to have low-grade incompetent people passing judgment on programs which will waste uncounted billions of dollars.

I want to compliment the gentleman from Tennessee, chairman of this committee, for bringing forward a piece of legislation which is realistic on this point.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may require to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BROYHILL].

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Speaker, time does not permit a lengthy discussion of this important legislation which is now pending before the House in the form of a conference report on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. This legislation is far short of being the kind of bill which we should have approved. The challenge was here but this Congress has failed to respond and has yielded to pressures on all sides so that in the closing minutes of this session we are forced to approve an inadequate bill which is, however, better that nothing at all.

This legislation will be characterized by its supporters as the greatest achievement in postal rate and Federal pay reform in half a century. But by those who have observed the dilatory tactics and the strong measures which have been taken to water down the postal rate bill and to deprive 1,600,000 postal and other Federal employees of their rightful and just compensation and to deny 600,000 civil service annuitants of adequate annuities, this bill will be known as the most dishonorable compromise of postal rate and Federal pay principles to be approved by the Congress in many years.

We had an opportunity—which apparently we have lost—to have enacted legislation in all areas covered by this bill of which we could have been justly proud, but rather the enactment of this measure will require lengthy legislative procedures during the next Congress to complete the job which we have only begun with the enactment of this legislation.

Had the President been more courageous, had the White House staff been less concerned with political advantage and more concerned with principles and had the Members of this Congress, in the other body as well as in this body, been more devoted to the ideals which were so eloquently expressed in the halls of this Congress last January, we could have approved legislation today which would have been a credit to our Nation in terms of fiscal responsibility and provided a just and fair compensation schedule for 1,600,000 Federal employees.

With respect to the postal rate provisions, last year the Postmaster General came before our committee and recommended increases in postal rates which were needed to eliminate a postal deficit amounting to over $800 million annually. As he marched up the hill, he described the great obligation Congress has to balance the postal budget; he called for fiscal integrity and responsibility in the affairs of the postal service; and he summoned his colleagues from other parts of the executive branch to help him in his objective to solve for once and for all the gigantic postal deficit which had been sought to be eliminated by his predecessors on many occasions. When the heat began to develop it became clear that the administration was stealing away silently in the fog of confusion. To the surprise of many Members of Congress the postal revenues in the compromise bill, which was finally endorsed by the administration, had been reduced over a hundred million dollars and they appeared willing to back down even further. The bill which was finally approved by our committee followed the administration's proposal in only one or two categories of mail. The first-class increase was not reduced nor was there a reduction in the proposed increase in airmail rates but in every other category the administration agreed to retreat from its original proposal. Even in its dissipated form, when the bill was presented to the Rules Committee, the administration sought to have a closed rule applied which would have prevented perfecting amendments on the floor.

The ignoble history of the rate bill was not yet over. It then came to rest in the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee where it has languished in solitude since January of this year while every day that goes by the American taxpayer loses $2 million and the postal deficit goes up and up finally to be added to our national debt. Now when the autumn leaves begin to fall the postal rate bill reappears in the House after our colleagues in the other body have had more than 8 months to deliberate and to consider it.

In its resurrected form the postal rate bill now provides about $90 million less in annual revenues for the Post Office Department than was approved by the House of Representatives in January of this year. I am certain the conferees on the part of the House did all they could to maintain the position which was so strongly expressed by the House of Representatives and I deeply regret the necessity for our conferees to yield to the Senate and to deprive our postal service of much needed revenues.

Thus we have won only a partial victory against fiscal irresponsibility in terms of eliminating the postal deficit.

Let us examine briefly the other provisions of the bill which we are called upon today to approve or to disapprove—a bill which can neither be amended nor improved by the able members of our committee who spent many days in hearings and in deliberations on pay increases for postal employees and classified employees and in considering the important measures relating to increased annuities for retired Federal employees and their survivors.

It is clear from what the other body has done in connection with pay increases that they established an arbitrary ceiling on the amount of funds which could be spent and from that they constructed pay schedules for postal and other Federal employees without regard to actual need or salary comparability. In fact, the Senate ignored the President's recommendations in many respects concerning proper pay adjustments, particularly in the upper grades.

Of course, this discussion is rather academic because we are now faced with the question of approval or disapproval of the bill. I will support the pay provisions of the conference report because this is the only thing that can be done in order to give immediate pay adjustments to postal and classified and other Federal employees. However, I wish to make it clear that I believe the pay recommendations of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee of the House were superior in all respects to those which are contained in the conference report or in the bill which was approved by the Senate.

During our deliberations on postal pay increases, I proposed and secured the adoption of an amendment which preserved longevity credit for postal employees. I was pleased to learn that the Post Office Department reversed its position and now supports my amendment which is included in the provisions of the Senate bill and is in the conference report.

It is useless to point out those areas where increases should have been granted higher than those proposed in the conference report or in the Senate bill because the way in which this bill reaches the House there is nothing we can do except to take the Senate version of pay increases.

I earnestly hope that during the next session of Congress this matter will be fully explored and that proper adjustments will be made to bring the salaries of postal and other Federal employees in line with the recommendations of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee in all levels in the postal service and all grades in the Classification Act.

Testimony before our committee was overwhelmingly in favor of the increases which were approved by our committee and all of the evidence presented to the committee showed a need for the kind of pay increases which we approved and the kind of flexibility which the administration had recommended in connection with pay adjustments. Unfortunately, the Senate version and the conference report do not contain all of these provisions relating to flexibility for administrative pay adjustments when such action becomes necessary.

In my judgment, it is pennywise and pound foolish for us to ignore appropriate and proper salary adjustments for our Federal employees who, under the terms of the conference report, will receive less compensation than their counterparts in private industry.

Statutory pay systems have failed to meet the needs of today's Federal service. Absence of an accepted standard for Federal salaries and a procedure for periodic review and adjustment coupled with rigid statutory rules of pay administration, deprive the systems of the adaptability so essential in a period of rapidly changing conditions.

Major inequities exist between the Federal employee and his equals throughout the national economy. Comparison can now be made directly between private salaries and those in the Classification Act, which has a broad occupational coverage having many counterparts in private employment. Findings of the Bureau of Labor Statistics national survey of professional, administrative, technical, and clerical pay reported in 1961 provide the data. This annual survey clearly shows that the greater the level of difficulty and responsibility, the greater the gap between public and private pay. Private salary averages consistently exceed Federal salaries. At the lower professional levels of GS–7 and GS–9, the difference is quite noticeable. For example:

National average rate in private enterprise	Classification Act rate range
	Grade	Minimum	Maximum
$6,648	GS–7	$5,355	$6,345
7,776	GS–9	6,435	7,425

At the upper professional levels there is an even greater lag of Federal salaries:

National average rate in private enterprise	Classification Act rate range
	Grade	Minimum	Maximum
$13,152	GS–13	$10,625	$11,935
$15,362	GS–14	12,210	13,510
$19,348	GS–15	13,730	15,030

Further evidence of this trend was furnished by the Civil Service Commission's 1960 study of salaries paid in 21 large nationwide firms for personnel, finance, research and development, law, and plant management positions with responsibilities equivalent to those of Federal positions in grades GS–16, GS–17, and GS–18. This study showed these serious disparities:

Federal Government		21 firms, major salary clusters
Grade	Salary range
GS–16	$15,255–$16,295	$20,000–$30,000
GS–17	16,530–17,570	27,500–37,500
GS–18	18,500	32,500–45,000

Many State and local jurisdictions now have exceeded the Federal Government's pay rates. For example, California, Georgia, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania all have career salaries higher than the highest Classification Act and other top statutory salaries. The same is true of Los Angeles City and County, Denver, Detroit, the St. Louises, San Francisco, and Philadelphia. In cities with populations over 500,000, city managers average $22,950 and school superintendents average $25,869, about 25 and 40 percent, respectively, above the top Classification Act salary.

These are but a few of the reasons why the conference report does not completely solve the Federal employee pay problems.

The Senate included in this bill the provisions of the so-called Clark retirement bill which provides an increase of 5 percent in the annuities of retired civil service employees and their supervisors. Here again the House is in the distressing position of either accepting this amendment or depriving 600,000 civil-service annuitants of an upward adjustment in their annuities which is long overdue. Our committee determined that the increase in civil-service annuities should be at least 7½ percent, but unfortunately we could not negotiate this matter in conference because 5 percent was the highest amount which could be considered. This places Members of the House in a position of either voting for this provision as written or voting against the conference report in its entirety. Since it cannot be amended, I will support this provision with the understanding as I indicated in connection with the pay features of the bill that further consideration should be given this matter during the next Congress.

I have long advocated the principle that when pay adjustments are made for Federal employees similar adjustments should be made in the annuities of retired Federal employees and their survivors. This is the policy which is followed in connection with the policemen and firemen of the District of Columbia. I am delighted that the Senate committee adopted a proposal which is in line with my recommendations and legislation which I have introduced to include increases in annuities for civil-service annuitants when pay increases are granted Federal employees.

With respect to the annuity portion of the bill there is a particularly meritorious provision which raises from $2,400 to $3,600 the portion of annuity to which the reduction of 2½ percent applies when electing survivorship benefits.

While the bill approved by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee includes a number of other features which in my judgment are meritorious and omitted from the Senate bill and the conference report, I am supporting this measure because I recognize the practical impossibility of improving this legislation at this time.

As I stated at the outset this legislation is not the best we could have secured. Under present circumstances, the lateness of the hour, the manner in which this bill reaches the House, the failure of the Senate to act more promptly, the amount of pressures which have been brought to bear both in connection with postal rates and Federal pay and a host of other problems which have complicated an otherwise straightforward and proper course of action, it is rather futile to insist upon changes and improvements now in this important legislation .

Mr. Speaker, I shall support the conference report because I think it is a step forward in the direction of fiscal responsibility in the postal service and toward proper recognition of our dedicated and conscientious Federal employees for the important and vital activities which they perform above and beyond the call of duty daily throughout the world in the service of our Nation.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. JOHANSEN].

(Mr. JOHANSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHANSEN. Mr. Speaker, the temptation to "go along" with this three-in-one omnibus Federal pay-postal rate-retirement pay bill is very strong.

There is no question in my mind that H.R. 7927 is going to pass and be signed into law.

There is no question that some of the specific pay raises provided are justified. Indeed, I offered a 7-percent, across-the-board increase amendment in committee. There is undoubtedly a good case for the retirement pay increase and in different circumstances there could be much justification for postal rate increases, which I supported last January.

Under the kind of package deal provided here it is not surprising to find that it contains features which will greatly please the AFL–CIO on the one hand and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce on the other hand.

The former always wants pay increases and the latter has been clamoring for the rate increases for years.

The simplest, the easiest, and the pleasantest course is to take a deep breath, swallow hard, and vote "aye."

But, Mr. Speaker, there are some other very serious considerations.

All that I hope to do is to record a few of the more important ones.

First. We are setting some extremely dangerous precedents in the legislative procedures we are following in this matter.

During debate Monday on the resolution sending this bill to conference I stressed the fact that there has been no opportunity for any meaningful debate on the floor of the House with respect to two of the three major provisions of this omnibus bill. This is the case despite very lengthy and laborious hearings by the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service on the pay bill together with subcommittee hearings on the retirement pay bill.

So far as Members of the House having any benefit from those hearings, it is "love's labor lost."

I think the gag rule procedure we are following is infinitely worse because this is a 3-in-1 deal to say the least. It involves three basically distinct and basically unrelated items of major legislation. In truth, it could be accurately said that it involves at least four such items of legislation because the usual procedure has been to consider the postal pay and the classified pay legislation in separate bills.

The irony of this procedure is further underscored by the fact that adherents of opposing views regarding the pay bill themselves are having to pay tribute in the form of tax dollars to secure what they believe desirable. Thus, the administration is having to acept larger pay increases in the lower grades in order to get the substantially higher increases it wants in the higher grades. Conversely, those who feel that the pay increases ought to be concentrated primarily in the lower grades are having to accept the excessive increases in the upper grades. This is the penalty for gag rule handling of pay legislation.

So much for the procedural precedents we are establishing today.

Second. Now let us direct attention to some of the substantive features of this omnibus legislation.

This House should understand that we are doing more in the pay section of this bill than merely increasing salaries. We are adopting a completely new and revolutionary philosophy of Federal pay—and we are doing it without any opportunity for meaningful debate of that philosophy.

Simply stated, this consists of the premise that Federal pay should be based on the principle of comparability with the pay scales of private enterprise. As was pointed out by critics of this principle during debate in the other body, this comparability base does not include the salary scale in other governmental units, particularly at the State level. Certainly this is a factor which should be carefully weighed if there is to be a valid comparability.

There is a further serious aspect involved in this comparability principle. We are tying the Federal pay system and scale to a private enterprise pay system and scale very gravely influenced by two inflationary factors. First of these factors is the pay increases—certainly sometimes excessive—imposed by union pressure. The other factor—and this relates particularly to the higher salary levels and to the pay scale of scientists and engineers—is the inflationary effects on private pay systems of the numerous and vast cost-plus contracts which the Government itself has with private enterprise.

I can envision as the effect of this comparability principle an extremely serious inflationary trend which will be reciprocal as between Government and private enterprise pay systems with the result that the sky will be the limit for both.

Third. As I mentioned during the debate on Monday, the House should be on notice that this pay legislation, if enacted, sets the stage for very substantial pay increases next year at the top of the classified pay system, in the Executive Pay Act, and in the salaries of the Federal judiciary and Members of Congress. There is not the slightest question that this is the intention and there is not the slightest question in my mind that the pressures for such increases in the next Congress will be irresistible.

In that connection I cite the following statement in the Senate committee report on this bill. After pointing out that this bill eliminated the administration proposal for new grades GS–19 and GS–20, the committee said:

> The committee does not disagree with the objectives of the administration's bill in these respects. Rather than establishing grades GS–19 and GS–20, however, the committee believes that appropriate salary levels for the relatively few career positions of this order can be determined in a more appropriate manner if done in conjunction with a reform of top level executive salaries which were not included in the proposals submitted by the President and a consideration of the executive pay problem in its full dimensions at one time rather than by treating one part now and the rest later. * * *
> Consequently the committee urges the President to recommend for consideration at the next session of Congress appropriate increases in Federal executive salaries at all levels. Such a recommendation should include salaries for all ranks up through the levels of heads of executive departments. In addition, it should include proposals for a rational relationship between executive salaries under the Executive Pay Act and those under other Federal schedules.

Obviously, the stage is being set for substantial financial reward for top officials of Government who have demonstrated their total incapacity for achieving governmental solvency. In a word, we are to reward ourselves for our consistent record of deficit financing.

Fourth. This leads me to my final observation. This entire legislation is a sorry commentary on fiscal inconsistency.

On the heels of the Government's refusal to permit a 5-percent price increase for the steel industry, we are voting a 25-percent price increase for first-class mail and substantial price increases for the other classes of mail.

We match a purported effort to balance the budget of the Post Office Department through rate increases with an offsetting increase in the labor costs of the Department. At the same time, key leaders of this administration openly proclaim that in present circumstances increasing deficits are in order in the overall operations of the Federal Government. And we add to those deficits by a billion-dollar pay increase. At the same time we are experiencing alarming increases in the number of Federal employees, some 160,000 in 19 months, and this bill further removes manpower ceilings.

We have already voted one tax cut and propose to consider very substantial additional tax cuts next year—which will further greatly increase the national deficit—and, at the same time, through postal rate increases we add substantially to the cost of business and particularly of small business.

Meanwhile, so far as the retirement pay program is concerned, we add to a retirement program which already has an unfunded liability of $33.7 billion a further increase of $1.6 billion of unfunded liability.

What kind of fiscal insanity is this? Where are we headed?

Again I say, the simple, easy, pleasant course is to "go along" with what is apparently inevitable. However, there is another inevitability that concerns me—to wit, the consequences of the fiscal policies of this Administration and this Congress to the economic security and survival of this Nation.

I remind this House of a statement attributed to a Swiss banker by the eminent columnist Constantine Brown writing earlier this year:

> The core of your trouble is the frenzied public expenditures and your inability to come near to balancing your budget. * * * If you were not such a wealthy country you would be rated according to all banking standards as a poor credit risk. * * * I believe that unless you trim your sails considerably in domestic and foreign expenditures you are facing the most serious crisis in your existence. And should this occur you will drag us down with you.

It is out of concern over these consequences that I shall vote "no" on this legislation.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. CUNNINGHAM].

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I want to comment on section 305 of this conference report, which is entitled "Communist Political Propaganda." The House had a very strong, well thought-out section in its bill known as section 12, the so-called Cunningham amendment. Like the House version I want to say that this amendment in the conference report is a very strong and worthwhile amendment to stop the free delivery of Communist propaganda in the United States by our postal system. In my opinion it will stop at least 95 percent of Communist political propaganda from being delivered in the United States. It is going to be easily administered; it is going to stop this vicious material from coming into this country and being delivered free. Section 305 of the conference report accomplishes the same thing as would section 12 in the House-passed version.

I certainly want to congratulate all of the Members of the House for the position they have taken in support of the House position, and I should like to express my appreciation to the Members of the Senate who also recognized this problem and strongly supported the House position. This conference report represents a 100-percent victory as far as stopping this material coming from overseas and being delivered is concerned.

There is one small area having to do with Communist propaganda issued by the Soviet Embassy in this country and delivered to addressees in this country which is not covered. However, this is a rather minor matter, and it can be given consideration later. So I say the language in this conference report is very strong, it will stop the free delivery and the entry through the postal system of at least 95 percent of this vicious Communist propaganda coming in from abroad. The main reason I say 95 percent is because it does make provision for certain Government agencies and universities to receive it to answer a legitimate problem that is so that they may study this material and do research on it.

Mr. Speaker, I am wholeheartedly in support of the strong language that is in the conference report.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate the gentleman on the time he has spent in working on this very difficult problem. Those of us who have been interested in accomplishing what we hope this language will accomplish have always been fearful we would run into constitutional objections. The language in the instant measure that the Committee on Un-American Activities included in its bill, we feel sure, meets that objection. However, I have always felt that maybe the committee leaned over too far in anticipating what the Supreme Court would do. After all, nobody can foresee what the Supreme Court will ever do in any case.

(Mr. WALTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. ROUSSELOT].

[Mr. ROUSSELOT addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Appendix.]

(Mr. ROUSSELOT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROUSSELOT. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I wish to associate myself with the remarks of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALTER], the distinguished chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, in regard to the diligent efforts which have been made by our colleague, the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. CUNNINGHAM], to make sure that Communist propaganda is kept out of the U.S. mails. I have contacted Mr. CUNNINGHAM many times in connection with his efforts. Had it not been for the staying qualities of the gentleman from Nebraska, the language would have been much less strong than it is as now written. The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee on which I have the privilege to serve, approved the original Cunningham amendment; I voted for it. Representative CUNNINGHAM has made many contacts in the House and Senate. I emphasize that Representative CUNNINGHAM has spent hours and hours in pressing for the adoption of a strong anti-Communist mail amendment. He has succeeded in a great way. I commend him once again.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WALLHAUSER].

Mr. WALLHAUSER. Mr. Speaker, the rate bill passed this House on January 24, 1962. Many of its provisions are well understood by us. Those that are not will be better understood from personal experience after January 7, 1963, when the new rates go into effect. Therefore, I would like to address myself briefly to the pay rates section of the report.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out specifically that the report on which the salary increases were recommended was made and filed in late 1961, based upon figures brought out in 1960. While some constructive comparability has been attained in this field in this measure, by the time the final section goes into effect on January 1, 1964, it will be 3 years out of date. So, therefore, I say to the Members of the House, Mr. Speaker, we are not giving a reward today. What we are doing when we vote for this report is to correct a gross inequity, so far as we are able to, to assist our dedicated Federal employees and retirees in their efforts to maintain their dignity and a decent standard of living to which they are entitled as first-class citizens.

Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that tonight, as we go to bed, those of us who vote for this bill will be able to sleep a little better.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will count.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the point of order.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DERWINSKI].

(Mr. DERWINSKI asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DERWINSKI. Mr. Speaker, what I hope to do in the brief time allotted me is review the remarks of previous speakers and to pull this entire bill into sharp focus.

First of all, regardless of what may be said, this is a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde creation. A pay raise to many Federal employees is overdue. A pay raise to others is unjustified. The bill does not present the long overdue reevaluation of Federal manpower practices. But at the same time it is a bill which we know must be passed. The facts of life dictate its passage. So, we are in effect passing an imperfect bill, with full realization of its virtues and defects.

Mr. Speaker, this bill perpetuates the inequities in the present Federal salary schedules and with reference to Federal personnel policies. The Federal employees deserve to have a sound, long-range salary structure without having to depend on the whims of Congress in election year periods. This is especially so of the Post Office Department, where politics is a traditional disrupting factor.

Mr. Speaker, one of the good features in this bill is the Cunningham amendment. I am surprised that it was kept in as good form as it has been. Certainly it was necessary for the Congress to include this amendment to correct the tragic blunder the President committed in March 1961, when he permitted the Communists to flood the country with unsolicited propaganda. Another noteworthy provision in the bill is the increase in the annuities for retired Government workers. The increase in the cost of living caused by excessive Government spending has deprived them of the purchasing power of their fixed income. However, as a further example of the bill's inconsistencies, even with the passage of the bill, post office employees—the average carrier, the average clerk, in my district, will still be underpaid, and will still have financial problems.

In many other parts of the country a post office position is a prize possession. Postal positions are sought after. But this bill does not take into account the cost of living in metropolitan areas that adversely affects the career postal employee. This is one of the reasons why pay raise legislation should not follow an across-the-board principle. I would suggest to the Congress that we start working in 1963 and come up in 1964 with an intelligent, long-range reevalution of the Federal salary and personnel structure. If we do not meet this obligation in 1964 we will continue a disservice to the employees and in the process the public is not served, either.

One point that the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS] raised, should be repeated; that is, that the largest increases in salaries go to the political appointees. They do not go to the career employees. They do not go to the man who has given his lifetime to public service. They go to the political appointees who are serving, not to advance the cause of the entire Federal operation, but merely to serve a short-sighted political end. This is another inequity in the bill.

One of the tragedies in the election year salary bills is the manner in which the representatives of Federal employee groups, especially postal department organizations, betray their members for short-sighted purposes. The only way that we can improve the operation of Federal Government agencies is to encourage career personnel to remain in this service so that we might benefit from their experience and knowledge. Adjustments in pay schedules that depend on the election year fancy of the Congress is hardly an adequate system of keeping skilled career personnel.

May I also point out a very dangerous precedent set in this legislation. That is the coupling of the salary with the rate bill. The increase in first-class and air mail will not meet with much public opposition this year, but for practical purposes, we have reached the ceiling of increases within those categories. The second- and third-class rate increases will be absorbed by the users of the mail, but again future increases will be most difficult to come by. The claim is made that the increase in postal rates exceeds the cost of the postal salary increases, and, therefore, the two justify each other. Does this mean that future salary increases for postal employees will come only as rates are increased?

I hope I have given the Members food for thought as we move to pass this conference report. Certainly, our Post Office and Civil Service Committees should give immediate attention to these questions as soon as the next Congress convenes.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I renew my point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WALTER). Evidently a quorum is not present.

Mr. PIKE. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

The SPEAKER. On this rollcall 324 Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

CORRECTION OF ROLLCALL

Mr. BECKER. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 276, I am recorded as being absent. I was present and answered in the affirmative when my name was called, and I ask unanimous consent that the permanent RECORD be corrected accordingly.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 270, I am recorded as not having answered to my name. I was here and answered to my name, and I ask unanimous consent that the permanent RECORD be corrected accordingly.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

POSTAL SERVICE AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SALARY ACT OF 1962

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Montana [Mr. OLSEN].

(Mr. OLSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OLSEN. Mr. Speaker, as has already been said and repeated, this is not a perfect bill. But it is the best that we can get accomplished at this session. I regret that we have not been able to meet the new standards that we have attempted to meet, which would be comparability. I regret that in the lower brackets and in the higher brackets we have in every instance failed to raise the Federal pay and the postal pay schedules to that comparable paid to employees in private industry who have similar responsibilities and who perform similar work.

We are indeed, with the figures at which we have arrived, at least 3 years late—at least 3 years late. So, we are not even catching up in our responsibilities to pay Federal employees and postal employees comparable to what they should be paid, if their responsibilities and their chores are compared with private industry.

Mr. Speaker, in the lower grades I have always contended that Uncle Sam should be the best kind of an employer. He should not pay any better than, but he should pay as good as the better wages and the better salaries of industry. In the higher brackets, of course, we cannot expect the Government to pay the same type of compensation which is paid in the higher brackets of industry. But in this bill, as has been said, we have done the best we can and I think it is a good job. But I do regret that we have been so tardy in increasing the annuities payable to retirees. I think that the increase should have been a good deal more. I regret, too, that of all the people who are to realize some increase in benefits or increase in pay in this bill, the people who least can afford to wait are having to wait the longest, and they are the retirees. Indeed, the retirees will get an increase, but they will not get it until next year. They will not get their increase until the Committee on Appropriations can meet and can vote that increase. I assume that the Committee on Appropriations will vote the increased appropriation to apply as of the effective date of the bill, January 1, 1963.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, as my dear friend, the gentleman from Louisiana has said a few days ago, this is our only opportunity. If we are in favor of paying just wages and just salaries to Federal employees and postal employees, and somewhere near a rightful annuity to the Federal employees, this is our only opportunity. If we are in favor of improving these standards, we will vote for this bill. If we are against an improvement in these benefits and these standards, we will vote against this bill. This is our only opportunity. I shall vote for the bill and I recommend to my colleagues that you vote for the bill.

I hope that next year we can provide a more adequate increase of annuities for the widows, especially those who are receiving less than $50 per month.

Now let us pass this bill today.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. MORRISON].

(Mr. MORRISON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORRISON. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, we have now come to the final decision on this pay raise legislation. Those who are opposed to this legislation have tried to bring up confusion as a reason to be against this bill and argue about the way the hearings were held and the way the bill was reported out.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know of any bill that has been before this House at this session where there were more witnesses or more hearings or where the entire subject was gone into to the fullest extent, than this bill which was reported by the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. The same thing applies to the other body.

The other body passed this bill out of its committee by an overwhelming majority of the members of that committee. This bill is just about the same bill in the form that you find it now as the Senate passed it. The House bill which was passed out of our committee by an overwhelming majority is about 90 to 95 percent of the bill in conference and the compromise which is now before the House. So I say this: The Senate has passed the bill; those who are for giving the Federal employees equal pay as compared to those in like jobs in private industry will vote for this conference report. If you are for giving the Federal employees a fair and reasonable wage as compared to similar jobs in private industry, then you are for this bill. If you are not, then you should vote against the bill.

Mr. SANTANGELO. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRISON. I yield.

Mr. SANTANGELO. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman and the committee for coming here with a bill which will finally give a fair wage to Government employees and to postal workers. I associate myself with the gentleman in his remarks.

Mr. MORRISON. I thank the gentleman. Members can now vote either yea or nay exactly how they feel about this bill. I feel sure it will pass by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. WAGGONNER. Mr. Speaker, I reluctantly rise in support of this legislation with the same reservation I have on nearly every bill we consider here in the House. I recognize that this is far from being a perfect bill, but after months of study and consideration of it, I am persuaded that the good outweighs the parts I, personally, would just as soon were not included.

Since we must either vote for or against the entire bill as it now stands, I will have to cast my vote for it. It comes to us in the form of a conference report and we cannot make any amendments or alter it in any way.

There is justification for approval of this measure because of a number of factors involved and I mention only a few.

First of all, and this is one of the really important, if not the most important consideration here, we are able with this bill to establish a program under which Communist political propaganda coming into the United States from foreign countries would be intercepted and would be delivered only upon the request of the addressee. This bill expressly provides that mail matter, especially sealed letters originating in a foreign country, which is determined to be Communist political propaganda will be detained by the Post Office. I have never been in favor of our subsidizing the propaganda of the Communist countries and with this bill, we are finally taking a strong stand against it.

Who can possibly oppose this? Some things in this life have more value than the dollar.

This is a bill which, finally, involves long-needed salary reform. Some people will actually have their salary cut. The adjustments which are being made here are the result of a study begun in 1959, comparing the compensation of Federal employees with those in private industry doing the same or similar work.

I think the postal workers, for instance, are not receiving wages comparable to industry and if we are going to make more and more demands on the post office, as we do every year, for increased and improved services, then we have to pay for it.

We cannot be put in the position of penalizing people for working for the Federal Government.

It is not reasonable to hold Government employees at fixed salaries, yet allow industry, year after year, to raise the salaries of their employees. The cost of living creeps up every month and, if we are to keep qualified men on the job, we are going to have to keep a respectable ratio established.

The rising cost of living affects the elderly retired folks even more than it does those who are still laboring. This bill corrects a very serious situation with them, too.

This measure has the support of such diverse groups as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and Tax Foundation, Inc. It is widely supported by the management of many of our largest industries.

The Senate vote of 78 to 3 indicates complete bipartisan support and I think the vote here in the House will reflect that same attitude.

There will be, no doubt, those who will be able to pick at the bill and find flaws in it. I do myself. I am not satisfied with the section that raises the postal rates. Some raises are too much; some are too little. But under the rules for consideration of the measure, the bill cannot be amended so the final question for all of us to consider is: does the good outweigh the bad?

As Members of Congress, we serve as the employer of every Federal employee and we must answer that question.

I have examined this bill and it is my opinion that the good outweighs the doubtful provisions.

Therefore, I am casting my vote for it.

Mr. ELLSWORTH. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Louisiana is exactly right, and as a membor of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, I can testify that our committee worked long and hard over a period of months here in the House to develop this much-needed legislation.

The measure we have today passed in the House of Representatives is an excellent bill, embodying both necessary postage rate revision and equitable, essential pay reform. It is a major step forward in Federal pay policies, incorporating the long-neglected philosophy of comparable pay for comparable work.

Certainly it is in the best interests of all of our citizens individually and the Nation as a whole to assure the presence in the Post Office Department and the Federal Civil Service of the highest caliber employees, and this outstanding pay reform legislation is definitely a step in the right direction.

I have been privileged to have been able to fight for this bill from the beginning, both in the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and on the floor of the House, and I am proud of my role in obtaining for our valued Federal employees a pay revision commensurate with their outstanding service to the citizens of the United States.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. COLMER].

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, I do not imagine I shall add anything to my popularity either here or at home, by this speech, but I feel under some obligation to state the facts. Mr. Speaker, this bill started out as a revenue-raising bill, to get the deficit cut down in the operation of the Post Office Department. I supported that legislation on the floor of this House. It went over to the other body and now has come back with a pay increase for Federal employees.

Here are the facts, and if you are interested I hope you will listen. This bill, if you pass it, and you are going to pass it, because of the popular appeal and the lobbying of the Federal employees, will bring in revenue of $600 million under the increased rates for postage. Its cost will be $1,108 million, or an additional deficit to be added to the current deficit of $508 million a year. In other words the net result of this legislation is that the taxpayers in addition to paying higher postages rates will be taxed an additional $508 million. Those of you who talk about fiscal responsibility, those of you who talk about trying to save this Government, who are opposed to inflation, had better take a look at this situation and what you are doing. Like you, I would like to support this, but I cannot do so, in good conscience.

Mr. SCHADEBERG. Mr. Speaker, it is with regret that this House cannot, with responsibility, meet its obligation to the postal workers. It is difficult to believe that it is necessary to bring a bill to the House floor so important to the welfare of those who serve us in Government in the closing days of this session of Congress under pressure of time and circumstance that certainly do not work in the best interest of either the Government or the people involved.

There are many things I do not like in the bill but I shall support the bill as the best we can expect from this 87th Congress. I have spoken to various members of the committee about the deficiencies in this legislation and am sorry that we did not consider the bill of significant proportion enough to have given it priority in the earlier days of the session.

My foremost objection to this bill is that the ones who need an increase in pay most are those who are the recipients of the least increase. I do not feel we can justify an increase of $3,460 to one group of Government workers whose annual income is $15,810 over that of a mail carrier who, having equal years of service and whose annual salary is $3,920, receives an increase of but $120.

While it is understood the employee receiving $15,810 has a responsibility greater than that of the employee who earns $3,920 the adverse conditions under which a postal carrier fulfills his duty, is not to be compared with the relative ease in which the $15,810 employee fulfills his duty, yet the increase in annual pay to the $15,810 employee is only $460 less than the annual pay of the carrier.

The second objection I have to the bill is that the pay increase for the carrier is tied to the postal rate increase. When this House set the minimum wage for a worker in private industry at $1.15 per hour, there was no suggestion that he may or may not earn it. Yet we insist that the postal workers' wage be tied to increase in the cost of handling mail.

My third objection to the bill is that it provides for pay increases in stages rather than an increase needed now.

I trust we will take a serious look at salaries of Government and postal employees next year before personal political considerations are associated with the decisions.

Mr. ROUSSELOT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report on H.R. 7927, a bill to increase the postal rates and Federal employee salary benefits. I do this with a real sense of regret, not for the very well deserved classes of the postal workers, especially at the lower levels, or the needed tightening of the distribution of Communist mail in this country or because of the adjustment in postal rates for those classes of mail which have not been fully paying their share of Post Office expenses, but primarily because this is a poor method of legislating very important increases for all of our Federal employees without proper consideration of the impact that this bill will have on our Federal budget.

I especially wish to commend my good colleague from Nebraska with whom I personally worked in committee to include section 305 which provides a good method for screening out Communist political propaganda distributed in this country. The gentleman from Nebraska, Congressman CUNNINGHAM, was gracious enough to allow me to work with him in committee to see that this was included in the original postal rate adjustment bill and finally, to make sure that the Senate sustained the House position on this very important section. This action to screen Communist propaganda in no way denies adequate constitutional protection to those in the printing business and/or foreign organizations who care to distribute appropriate literature in this country.

However, it does allow the Postmaster General and the Attorney General to move vigorously to prevent the heavy impact of insidious Communist propaganda in this country and lessens the possibility of free postage to overseas Communist organizations. The gentleman from Nebraska, Congressman CUNNINGHAM is to be commended for his unceasing effort to maintain this section in the bill and we are all aware how many forces worked equally with diligence to remove this needed screening process.

I introduced, earlier in the session, H.R. 9455, which was very similar in nature to Congressman CUNNINGHAM'S provisions and I am pleased that those of us on the committee who worked with the gentleman from Nebraska, Congressman CUNNINGHAM, were successful on a very close vote in including this in the bill. I am not sure the other body would have done the same had the House not insisted on this important amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make the further point that it is the postal workers who once again are carrying this bill through the Congress because the overwhelming number of American people realize how deserved their increases are. Unfortunately, other Government employee organizations are receiving unmerited increases in this bill and are riding the coattails of fair and just increases for our postal service. I am not saying there are not increases merited in other Federal systems of employment because there are, but the postal workers' salary participation lags far behind other Government services.

I think it is unfair that the sentiment behind proper increases for the postal service should be responsible for carrying through unmerited increases in other Federal services. I expressed this objection in committee, and I express it now.

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Evins with Mr. McVey.
Mr. Elliott with Mr. Seely-Brown.
Mrs. Griffiths with Mrs. Weis.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mrs. CHURCH. Mr. Speaker, on the vote on H.R. 7927, since the conference report contains an increase in retirement pay which would, if passed, be of personal benefit to me upon my retirement at the close of this 87th Congress, I regretfully accepted the necessity of disqualifying myself from voting and voted "present."

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND

Mr. MURRAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the conference report just agreed to.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. McGown, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 10501. An act for the relief of Kenyon B. Zahner.

H.R. 12217. An act for the relief of George Edward Leonard.

H.R. 12434. An act to facilitate the work of the Forest Service, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed a bill of the following title, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 3361. An act to facilitate the entry of alien skilled specialists and certain relatives of U.S. citizens, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H.R. 5700) entitled "An act to amend the Tariff Act of 1930 to permit the designation of certain contract carriers as carriers of bonded merchandise," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. BYRD of Virginia, Mr. KERR, Mr. LONG of Louisiana, Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware, and Mr. Curtis to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H.R. 8952) entitled "An act to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 with respect to the conditions under which the special constructive sale price rule is to apply for purposes of certain manufacturers excise taxes," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. BYRD of Virginia, Mr. KERR, Mr. LONG of Louisiana, Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware, and Mr. CURTIS to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H.R. 12599) entitled "An act relating to the income tax treatment of terminal railroad corporations and their shareholders," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. BYRD of Virginia, Mr. KERR, Mr. LONG of Louisiana, Mr. WILLIAMS of Delaware, and Mr. CURTIS to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 7283) entitled "An act to amend the War Claims Act of 1948, as amended, to provide compensation for certain World War II losses."

The message also announced that the Senate disagrees to the amendment of the House to the Senate amendment No. 2 to the bill (H.R. 12648) entitled "An act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture and related agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, and for other purposes."

The message further announced that the Senate further insists on its amendments Nos. 2, 19, 44, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, and 54 to the above-entitled bill.

USE OF MOBILE TRADE FAIRS

Mr. BONNER submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (S. 3389) to promote the foreign commerce of the United States through the use of the mobile trade fairs:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 2538)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 3389) to promote the foreign commerce of the United States through the use of mobile trade fairs, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the text of the bill and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following: "That title II of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.), is amended by adding immediately after section 212(A) thereof (46 U.S.C. 1122a) the following new section:

"'SEC. 212. (B)(a) The Secretary of Commerce shall encourage and promote the development and use of mobile trade fairs which are designed to show and sell the products of United States business and agriculture at foreign ports and at other commercial centers throughout the world where the operator or operators of the mobile trade fairs exclusively use United States flag vessels and aircraft in the transportation of their exhibits.

"'(b) The Secretary of Commerce is authorized to provide to the operator or operators of such mobile trade fairs technical assistance and support as well as financial assistance for the purpose of defraying certain expenses incurred abroad, when the Secretary determines that such operations provide an economical and effective means of promoting export sales.

"'(c) There is authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $500,000 per fiscal year for each of the three fiscal years during the period beginning July 1, 1962, and ending June 30, 1965. In addition to such appropriated sums, the President shall make maximum use of foreign currencies owned by or owed to the United States to carry out the purposes of this section.

"'(d) The Secretary of Commerce shall submit annually to the Congress a report on his activities under this Act.'

"SEC. 2. Section 104(m) of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, is amended by inserting immediately before ', and (B)' the following: 'or section 212(B) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936'."

And the House agree to the same.

That the title be amended to read as follows: "To amend the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, to develop American flag carriers and promote the foreign commerce of the United States through the use of mobile trade fairs."

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 3389) to promote the foreign commerce of the United States through the use of mobile trade fairs, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The House amendment struck out all of the Senate bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute. The Senate recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the House with an amendment which is a substitute for both the Senate bill and the House amendment. The conference substitute is in large part the same as the amendment of the House to the Senate bill. The differences between the House amendment and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted in the following outline except for minor technical and clarifying changes made necessary by reason of the conference agreement.

The House amendment authorized the Secretary of Commerce to encourage and promote the development and use of mobile trade fairs which are designed to show and sell the products of U.S. business and agriculture at foreign ports and other commercial centers throughout the world, and which, to the extent they are transported by vessel, shall be transported by vessels of U.S. registry. The conference substitute adds language to include U.S.-flag aircraft as well as vessels for the transportation of the mobile trade fairs.

The House amendment authorized appropriations for each of the 3 fiscal years during the period beginning July 1, 1962, and ending June 30, 1965, together with foreign currencies owned by or owed to the United States when made available by the President. The conference substitute retains the appropriation provision, and includes in substance the provision of the Senate bill granting discretionary authority to the Secretary of Commerce to provide the operator or operators of the mobile trade fairs technical and financial support for the purpose of defraying certain expenses incurred abroad when he determines that such operations provide an economical and effective means of promoting export sales.

The conference substitute adds a new subsection which would require the Secretary of Commerce to submit annual reports to the Congress on activities under the act.

The committee report on the House amendment expressed the opinion that the administration of the mobile trade fairs program proposed by the bill should be carried out through the Maritime Administration, rather than through other agencies within the Department of Commerce concerned with trade promotion through the use of land-based, international trade fairs, trade centers, and trade mission programs. In a letter dated September 27, 1962, the General Counsel of the Department of Commerce made the following comments to Senator CLAIR ENGLE, chairman of the managers on the part of the Senate, with reference to the above-mentioned report:

"The Secretary does not believe it is at all desirable, by legislative history or express statutory language, to restrict administration of such program to any given bureau within the Department. It is by no means certain that this sort of program would now or at all times in the future be best administered by the Maritime Administration. Neither do I suggest that such a program, if provided by Congress and if funds are appropriated, would not in fact be administered by the Maritime Administration. The point I would emphasize is that this feature of administration should not be fixed by statute or legislative history but rather be left to the best judgment and discretion of the Secretary of Commerce in the light of events which may develop in the future.

"Accordingly, we would recommend that any legislation on this subject enacted by Congress should clearly provide, both in its express terms and in any legislative history, that administration is to be accomplished through such bureaus or offices in the Department of Commerce as the Secretary finds most suitable for the task."

The managers on the part of the House recognized the justification for the views of the Department of Commerce in regard to the desirability of leaving full discretion in the Secretary as to the best method of administering the program. However, the managers on the part of the House wish to emphasize their belief that, insofar as concerns mobile trade fairs transported by U.S.-flag vessels, the Maritime Administrator should participate in the coordination of plans for carrying out the program, irrespective of the particular bureau within the Department having overall responsibility for administration.

The managers on the part of the House expressed the view, concurred in by the managers on the part of the Senate, that official travel by U.S. officers or employees concerned with the administration of the mobile trade fairs program shall be on U.S.-flag ships or aircraft where such ships or aircraft are available, unless the necessity of the mission requires the use of a ship or aircraft under foreign flag.

HERBERT C. BONNER,
THOMAS N. DOWNING,
BOB CASEY,
WILLIAM S. MAILLIARD,
THOMAS M. PELLY,
Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the conference report on the bill (S. 3389) to promote the foreign commerce of the United States through the use of mobile trade fairs, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

COMMUNIST POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

SEC. 305. (a) Chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: 74 Stat. 654.

"§ 4008. Communist political propaganda

"(a) Mail matter, except sealed letters, which originates or which is printed or otherwise prepared in a foreign country and which is determined by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to rules and regulations to be promulgated by him to be 'communist political propaganda', shall be detained by the Postmaster General upon its arrival for delivery in the United States, or upon its subsequent deposit in the United States domestic mails, and the addressee shall be notified that such matter has been received and will be delivered only upon the addressee's request, except that such detention shall not be required in the case of any matter which is furnished pursuant to subscription or which is otherwise ascertained by the Postmaster General to be desired by the addressee. If no request for delivery is made by the addressee within a reasonable time, which shall not exceed sixty days, the matter detained shall be disposed of as the Postmaster General directs.

"(b) For the purposes of this section, the term 'communist political propaganda' means political propaganda, as defined in section 1(j) of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended (22 U.S.C. 611(j)), issued by or on behalf of any country with respect to which there is in effect a suspension or withdrawal of tariff concessions pursuant to section 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 or section 231 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, or any country from which any type of foreign assistance is withheld pursuant to section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. 56 Stat. 250. 65 Stat. 73. 19 USC 1362. 75 Stat. 444; Ante, p. 261.

"(c) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable with respect to (1) matter addressed to any United States Government agency, or any public library, or to any college, university, graduate school, or scientific or professional institution for advanced studies, or any official thereof, or (2) material whether or not 'communist political propaganda' addressed for delivery in the United States pursuant to a reciprocal cultural international agreement under which the United States Government mails an equal amount of material for delivery in any country described in subsection (b)."

(b) The table of contents of chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"4008. Communist political propaganda."

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 306. Except as otherwise provided, the foregoing provisions of this part shall become effective on January 7, 1963.

NOTICE WITH RESPECT TO OBSCENE MATTER DISTRIBUTED BY MAIL AND DETENTION THEREOF

SEC. 307. In order to alert the recipients of mail and the general public to the fact that large quantities of obscene, lewd, lascivious, and indecent matter are being introduced into this country from abroad and disseminated in the United States by means of the United States mails, the Postmaster General shall publicize such fact (1) by appropriate notices posted in post offices, and (2) by notifying recipients of mail, whenever he deems it appropriate in order to carry out the purposes of this section, that the United States mails may contain such obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter. Any person may file a written request with his local post office to detain obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter addressed to him, and the Postmaster General shall detain and dispose of such matter for such period as the request is in effect. The Postmaster General shall permit the return of mail containing obscene, lewd, lascivious, or indecent matter, to local post offices, without cost to the recipient thereof. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Postmaster General to open, inspect, or censor any mail except on specific request by the addressee thereof. The Postmaster General is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.

Written request for detention.

PART II—FEDERAL SALARY REFORM

TITLE I—GENERAL POLICY

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 501. This part may be cited as the "Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962".

Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962.

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 502. The Congress hereby declares that, whereas the functions of a Federal salary system are to fix salary rates for the services rendered by Federal employees so as to make possible the employment of persons well qualified to conduct the Government's programs and to control expenditures of public funds for personal services with equity to the employee and to the taxpayer, and whereas fulfillment of these functions is essential to the development and maintenance of maximum proficiency in the civilian services of Government, then, accordingly, Federal salary fixing shall be based upon the principle that—

(a) There shall be equal pay for substantially equal work, and pay distinctions shall be maintained in keeping with work and performance distinctions; and

(b) Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work.

Salary levels for the several Federal statutory salary systems shall be interrelated, and salary levels shall be set and henceforth adjusted in accordance with the above principles.

IMPLEMENTATION OF POLICY

SEC. 503. In order to give effect to the policy stated in section 502, the President: (1) shall direct such agency or agencies, as he deems appropriate, to prepare and submit to him annually a report which compares the rates of salary fixed by statute for Federal employees with the rates of salary paid for the same levels of work in private enterprise as determined on the basis of appropriate annual surveys conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and, after seeking the views of such employee organizations as he deems appropriate and in such manner as he may provide, (2) shall report annually to the Congress (a) this comparison of Federal and private enterprise salary rates and (b) such recommendations for revision of statutory salary schedules, salary structures, and compensation policy, as he deems advisable.

Report to Congress.

SEC. 504. (a) Whenever the President shall find that the salary rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are so substantially above the salary rates of statutory pay schedules as to handicap significantly the Government's recruitment or retention of well-qualified persons in positions compensated under (1) section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b)), (2) the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, (3) the pay scales for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration under chapter 73 of title 38, United States Code, or (4) sections 412 and 415 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 867 and 870), he may establish for such areas or locations higher minimum rates of basic compensation for one or more grades or levels, occupational groups, series, classes, or subdivisions thereof, and may make corresponding increases in all step rates of the salary range for each such grade or level: Provided, That in no case shall any minimum salary rate so established exceed the seventh salary rate prescribed by law for the grade or level. The President may authorize the exercise of the authority conferred upon him by this section by the Civil Service Commission or, in the case of employees not subject to the civil service laws and regulations, by such other agency or agencies as he may designate.

Higher minimum compensation rates, Presidential authority.

Post, p. 843.

72 Stat. 1243; Post, p. 859.
Post, pp. 861-862.

(b) Within the limitations specified in subsection (a), rates of basic compensation established under such subsection may be revised from time to time by the President or by such agency or agencies as he may designate. Such actions or revisions shall have the force and effect of law.

Compensation rates, revision.

(c) Any increase in rate of basic compensation established under this section shall not be regarded as an "equivalent increase" in compensation within the meaning of section 701(a) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and section 3552 of title 39 of the United States Code.

Post, p. 847.
Post, p. 854.

SEC. 505. The functions, duties, and regulations of the departments and the Civil Service Commission with respect to this title, the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, the provisions of part III of title 39, United States Code, relating to personnel in the postal field service, the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended, and the provisions of chapter 73 of title 38 of the United States Code relating to personnel of the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration, shall be subject to such policies and rules as the President may issue. Among other things, the President's policies and rules may provide for—

(1) preparing and reporting to him the annual comparison of Federal salary rates with private enterprise rates,

(2) obtaining and reporting to him the views of employee organizations on such annual comparison, and on other salary matters,

(3) reviewing and reporting to him on the adequacy of the Federal statutory salary structures for the Federal programs to which they apply,

(4) reviewing the relationship of Federal statutory salary rates and private enterprise salary rates in specific occupation and local areas, and

(5) providing step-increases in recognition of high quality performance and providing for properly relating supervisory salary rates paid under one system to those of subordinates paid under another system.

(b) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule I of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (10) of this subsection, be initially adjusted, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows: Compensation Schedule I, initial adjustment of rates.

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first or second longevity rate of a grade below grade 4 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8; the first longevity step to step 9; and the second longevity step to step 10. Grades 1-3.

(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate, of grade 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day. Grades 4-10.

(4) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, or sixth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 11, 12, 13, or 14 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, or ninth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day. Grades 11-14.

(5) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth scheduled rate, or at the first, second, or third longevity rate of grade 15 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, or eighth rate of such grade in effect on and after such day. Grade 15.

(6) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period, which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of grade 16 or grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding Grades 16 or 17.

first, second, third, fourth, or fifth rate of the appropriate grade in effect on and after such day.

Grade 18.

(7) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at the rate of grade 18 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate of such grade in effect on and after such day.

Rates between scheduled or longevity rates.

(8) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate between two scheduled or two longevity rates, or between a scheduled and a longevity rate, of a grade of the General Schedule, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates, as specified in paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection, in effect on and after such day.

Maximum longevity or scheduled rates.

(9) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act at a rate in excess of the maximum longevity rate for his grade, or in excess of the maximum scheduled rate for his grade if there is no longevity rate for his grade, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule, in effect on and after such day, prescribed by paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection for employees at the maximum longevity rate or at the maximum scheduled rate, as the case may be, for his grade, or (B) if such rate is less than his existing rate, (i) the lowest rate of the new schedule for his grade which equals or exceeds his existing rate or (ii) if there is no such rate, his existing rate.

Certain previous service.

(10) Service of officers and employees performed immediately preceding the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, in the grade of the General Schedule in which their respective positions were placed on such day, shall be counted toward not to exceed one step increase under the time in grade provisions of subsection (a) of section 701 of the Classification Act of 1949 as amended by this Act.

Post, p. 847.

(11) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which began on or after the date of enactment of this Act, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

Compensation Schedule II, initial adjustment of rates.

(c) The rates of basic compensation of officers and employees to whom Compensation Schedule II of the General Schedule set forth in subsection (a) of this section applies shall be initially adjusted, effective as of the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1964, as follows:

(1) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at one of the rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the corresponding rate in effect on and after such date.

Rate between two rates.

(2) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate between two rates of a grade in the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, he shall receive a rate of basic compensation at the higher of the two corresponding rates in effect on and after such date.

Maximum rate of grade.

(3) If the officer or employee is receiving basic compensation immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade, as in effect on and after such date, he shall receive (A) the rate of the new schedule prescribed for employees at the maximum rate for his grade, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation if such existing rate is higher.

69 Stat. 173. 5 USC 1113 note. 5 USC 926 note. 72 Stat. 203. 5 USC 1113 and note. 74 Stat. 298.

(4) If the officer or employee, immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, is receiving, pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 2(b) of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, an existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954 (68 Stat. 1111; Public Law 763, Eighty-third Congress), plus the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, and by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and the amount of the initial increase provided by this section, he shall receive an aggregate rate of compensation equal to the sum of (A) his existing aggregate rate of compensation determined under such section 208(b) of the Act of September 1, 1954, (B) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955, (C) the amount of the increase provided by section 2 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1958, (D) the amount of the increase provided by section 112 of the Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1960, and (E) the amount of the increase made by this section in the maximum rate of his grade, until (i) he leaves his position, or (ii) he is entitled to receive aggregate compensation at a higher rate by reason of the operation of this Act or any other provision of law; but, when such position becomes vacant, the aggregate rate of compensation of any subsequent appointee thereto shall be fixed in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Subject to clauses (i) and (ii) of the immediately preceding sentence of this paragraph, the amount of the increase provided by this section shall be held and considered for the purpose of section 208(b) of such Act of September 1, 1954, to constitute a part of the existing rate of compensation of such employee.

STEP-INCREASES

64 Stat. 1100; 65 Stat. 613.

SEC. 603. Title VII of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1121–1125), relating to step-increases under such Act, is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE VII—STEP-INCREASES

"SEC. 701. (a) Each officer or employee compensated on a per annum basis, and occupying a permanent position within the scope of the compensation schedules fixed by this Act, who has not attained the maximum rate of compensation for the grade in which his position is placed, shall be advanced in compensation successively to the next higher rate within the grade at the beginning of the next pay period following the completion of (1) each fifty-two calendar weeks of service in salary rates 1, 2, and 3, or (2) each one hundred and four calendar weeks of service in salary rates 4, 5, and 6, or (3) each one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of service in salary rates 7, 8, and 9, subject to the following conditions:

"(A) That no equivalent increase in compensation from any cause was received during such period;

"(B) That his work is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the department; and

"(C) That the benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations issued by the Commission, for officers and employees whose continuous service is interrupted in the public interest by service with the Armed Forces or by service in essential non-Government civilian employment during a period of war or national emergency.

"(b) Any increase in compensation granted by law shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a).

"SEC. 702. (a) Within the limit of available appropriations and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commission, the head of each department is authorized to grant additional step-increases in recognition of high quality performance above that ordinarily found in the type of position concerned. Step-increases under this section shall be in addition to those under section 701 and shall not be construed to be an equivalent increase in compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of section 701.

"(b) No officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks.

Presidential appointments, exception.

"SEC. 703. This title shall not apply to the compensation of persons appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

GENERAL COMPENSATION RULES

63 Stat. 969.

SEC. 604. (a) Section 802(b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1132(b)), relating to the salary to be received by an officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a higher grade, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) Any officer or employee who is promoted or transferred to a position in a higher grade shall receive basic compensation at the lowest rate of such higher grade which exceeds his existing rate of basic compensation by not less than two step-increases of the grade from which he is promoted or transferred. If, in the case of any officer or employee so promoted or transferred who is receiving basic compensation at a rate in excess of the maximum rate for his grade under any provision of law, there is no rate in such higher grade which is at least two step-increases above his existing rate of basic compensation, he shall receive (1) the maximum rate of such higher grade, or (2) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher. In case any such officer or employee so promoted or transferred is receiving basic compensation at a rate saved to him under section 507 of this Act upon reduction in grade, such officer or employee shall receive (A) basic compensation at a rate two steps above the rate which he would be receiving if such section 507 were not applicable in his case, or (B) his existing rate of basic compensation, if such existing rate is the higher."

Infra.

(b) Section 802 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection to read as follows:

Basic compensation of certain employees, retention.

"(d) The Commission may issue regulations governing the retention of the rate of basic compensation of an employee who together with his position is brought under this Act. If any such employee so entitled to receive a retained rate under regulations issued pursuant to this subsection is later demoted to a position under this Act, his rate of basic compensation shall be determined in accordance with section 507 of this Act, except that service in the position which was brought under the Act shall, for purposes of section 507, be considered as service under this Act.".

(c) Section 803 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1133), is amended to read as follows:

Supervisors of wage board employees, compensation.

"SEC. 803. Each employee in a position under this Act, who regularly has responsibility for supervision (including supervision over the technical aspects of the work concerned) over employees whose compensation is fixed and adjusted from time to time by wage boards or similar administrative authorities as nearly as is consistent with the public interest in accordance with prevailing rates, may, in accordance with regulations issued by the Commission, be paid at one of the scheduled rates for his grade which is above the highest rate of basic compensation being paid to any such prevailing-rate employee regularly supervised, or at the maximum rate for his grade, as provided for in such regulations.".

SALARY RETENTION

SEC. 605. Section 507 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (72 Stat. 830; 5 U.S.C. 1107), is amended—

72 Stat. 830.

(1) by striking out "(other than grade 16, 17, or 18 of the General Schedule)" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of such section; and

(2) by striking out "(B) in the same grade or in the same and higher grades;" in paragraph (4) of subsection (a) of such section; and by inserting in lieu thereof "(B) in any grade or grades higher than the grade to which demoted;".

TOP GRADE POSITIONS UNDER CLASSIFICATION ACT OF 1949

SEC. 606. (a) Section 505 (b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1105(b)), relating to the limitation on numbers of positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule of such

75 Stat. 786.

Act, is amended by striking out "not to exceed an aggregate of nineteen hundred and eighty-nine" and substituting in lieu thereof "not to exceed an aggregate of twenty-four hundred, in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades".

Department of Defense. 73 Stat. 700; 75 Stat. 786.

(b) Section 505(j) of such Act is amended by inserting after the word "positions" the following: "(in addition to any professional engineering positions primarily concerned with research and development and professional positions in the physical and natural sciences and medicine which may be placed in such grades)".

Warden, Bureau of Prisons.

(c) Section 505 of such Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsections:

"(k) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of ten positions of Warden in the Bureau of Prisons in grade 16 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b).

Member, Board of Parole.

"(l) The Attorney General is authorized, without regard to any other provision of this section, to place a total of eight positions of Member of the Board of Parole in grade 17 of the General Schedule. Such positions shall be in addition to the number of positions authorized to be placed in such grade by subsection (b)."

CONFORMING CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

Repeals.

SEC. 607. (a) The following provisions of law are hereby repealed:

Commerce, Budget Officer.

(1) Section 104 of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 234; 5 U.S.C. 592(d)), authorizing grade 17 of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949 for the position of Budget Officer of the Department of Commerce so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

Interior, Director, Division of Budget and Finance.

(2) Section 206 of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 360; 5 U.S.C. 483–2), authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to place the position of Director, Division of Budget and Finance, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

Engineers, Chief, Programs Branch.

(3) The second paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provisions" in title III of the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 364; 10 U.S.C. 1335, note), authorizing the Chief of Engineers to place the position of Chief of the Programs Branch, Office of the Assistant Chief of Engineers for Civil Works, in grade 17 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 so long as the position is held by the present incumbent.

Area Redevelopment Act, certain positions.

(4) Section 24(d) of the Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 62; 42 U.S.C. 2521(d)), authorizing five positions in grades 16, 17, and 18 of the General Schedule established by the Classification Act of 1949 for agencies performing functions under that Act.

Fish and Wildlife, Commissioner.

(5) The fourth sentence of section 3(a) of the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1120; 16 U.S.C. 742b(a)), relating to the annual salary of the Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife in the Department of the Interior, which reads: "He shall receive compensation at the same rate as that provided for grade GS–18.".

Agriculture, surplus disposal administrator.

(6) That part of section 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 200; 7 U.S.C. 1857), relating to the annual salary of an agricultural surplus disposal administrator in the Department of Agriculture, which reads: ", at a salary rate of not exceeding $15,000 per annum,".

(7) Section 1102 of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (63 Stat. 971; 5 U.S.C. 1073), relating to the submission of reports with respect to the rates of compensation under, and the administration of, such Act. Reporting requirement.

(b) The second proviso of the paragraph under the heading "FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM" and under the subheading "SALARIES AND EXPENSES, BUREAU OF PRISONS" in title II (the Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956) of the Departments of State and Justice, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1956 (69 Stat. 273; Public Law 133, Eighty-fourth Congress; 5 U.S.C. 298a) is amended by striking out "three positions" and inserting in lieu thereof "one position". Bureau of Prisons, certain positions.

SEC. 608. (a) Each position specifically referred to in, or covered by, any repeal made by section 607(a) of this title shall be placed in the appropriate grade of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, in accordance with the provisions of such Act. Affected positions, transfer to General Schedule.

(b) Positions in grade 16, 17, or 18, as the case may be, of the General Schedule of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, immediately prior to the effective date of this section, shall remain, on and after such effective date, in their respective grades, until appropriate action is taken under section 505 of the Classification Act of 1949 as in effect on and after such effective date. Supergrades.

Ante, pp. 848, 849.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 609. (a) The changes in existing law made by this title shall not affect any position existing immediately prior to the effective date of any such changes in existing law, the compensation attached to such position, and any incumbent thereof, his appointment thereto, and his entitlement to receive the compensation attached thereto, until appropriate action is taken in accordance with this title.

(b) The incumbent of each such position immediately prior to the effective date of this title shall continue to receive the rate of basic compensation which he was receiving immediately prior to such effective date until he leaves such position or until he is entitled to receive compensation at a higher rate in accordance with law. When such incumbent leaves such position, the rate of basic compensation of each subsequent appointee to such position shall be determined in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

Ante, p. 843.

(b) Section 3543(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: 74 Stat. 646.

"(c) The Postmaster General may pay such additional compensation as he may determine to be fair and reasonable in each individual case to rural carriers serving heavily patronized routes."

(c) The first sentence of section 3543(f) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: "In addition to the compensation provided in the Rural Carrier Schedule, each rural carrier shall be paid for equipment maintenance a sum equal to—

"(1) 12 cents per mile for each mile or major fraction of a mile scheduled, or

"(2) $4.20 per day, whichever is greater."

(d) Section 3543 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding thereto new subsections (i) and (j) as follows:

"(i) Each person serving as a substitute of record on the effective date of this subsection shall be placed in step 2 of the Rural Carrier Schedule and he shall be advanced by step-increases, on the basis of time on the rolls prior to the effective date, in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552, except that no such person shall be so advanced to a step higher than the step to which a regular carrier with the same length of service would have advanced prior to such effective date. Thereafter, he shall be advanced by step-increases, pursuant to the provisions of sections 3552 and 3553 of this title. On and after the effective date of this subsection, each substitute rural carrier shall be paid the daily rate, based on the step attained by him, for the route on which service is performed. Substitute of record. Post, p. 854. 74 Stat. 649.

"(j) Each temporary rural carrier who, on the effective date of this subsection, is serving on a vacant route pending the appointment of a regular rural carrier shall be placed in step 2 and shall be advanced by step-increases on the basis of any prior substitute or temporary rural carrier service in accordance with the schedule of step-increases provided in section 3552."

Post, p. 854.

FOURTH CLASS OFFICE SCHEDULES

74 Stat. 647.

SEC. 704. (a) Section 3544(a) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) There are established basic compensation schedules which shall be known as the Fourth Class Office Schedules, and for which the symbol shall be 'FOS', for postmasters in post offices of the fourth class. Each such schedule shall be in effect for the period specified with respect to such schedule. Each such schedule is based upon the gross postal receipts as contained in returns of the post office for the calendar year immediately preceding. Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with these schedules.

(b) Section 3544(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

Gross receipts category.

"(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in gross receipts at the start of the first pay period after the beginning of each fiscal year. When a post office is restored to a gross receipts category held by it prior to relegation to a lower gross receipts category, the postmaster's basic salary may be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher gross receipts category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding fiscal year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted gross receipts of the office.

Each increase in basic salary because of change in gross receipts shall be deemed the equivalent of a step-increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposes of advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment." Infra.

SEC. 705. Section 3552 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: 74 Stat. 649.

"§ 3552. Automatic advancement by step increases

"(a)(1) Each employee in levels 1 through 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, each employee subject to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and each employee subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(B) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(2) Each employee in the postal field service in level 7 or above of the Postal Field Service Schedule, who has not reached the highest step for his position, shall be advanced successively to the next higher step, as follows:

"(A) To steps 2, 3, and 4—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of fifty-two calendar weeks of satisfactory service;

"(B) To steps 5, 6, and 7—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and four calendar weeks of satisfactory service; and

"(C) To steps 8 and above—at the beginning of the first pay period following the completion of one hundred and fifty-six calendar weeks of satisfactory service.

"(3) The receipt of an equivalent increase during any of the waiting periods specified in this subsection shall cause a new full waiting period to commence for further step-increases.

"(b) Any increase in basic compensation granted by law on or after the date of enactment of the Postal Employees Salary Adjustment Act of 1962, to employees in the postal field service shall not be deemed to be an equivalent increase in basic compensation within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section. Ante, p. 850.

"(c) The benefit of successive step-increases shall be preserved, under regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General, for employees whose continuous service is interrupted by service in the armed services."

SEC. 706. Section 3554 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: 74 Stat. 649.

"§ 3554. Compensation of certain temporary employees

"Temporary employees hired for a continuous period of one year or less for a position in the postal field service shall be paid basic compensation at the entrance step of the position to which they are appointed.".

SEC. 707. Section 3559 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: 74 Stat. 651.

"§ 3559. Promotions

"An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is not more than two salary levels above the salary level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than two steps of the salary level from which promoted. An employee who is promoted to a position in the Postal Field Service Schedule which is more than two salary levels above the level of the position from which promoted shall be paid basic compensation at the lowest step of the higher salary level which exceeds his existing basic compensation by not less than three steps of the salary level from which promoted. If there is no step in the salary level to which the employee is promoted which exceeds his existing basic compensation by at least the amount of the specified difference, the employee shall be paid the rate for the maximum step of the salary level to which promoted, or his existing basic compensation, whichever is higher.".

74 Stat. 607.

SEC. 709. Section 3101 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting paragraphs (5) and (6), and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

"(5) 'basic salary' and 'basic compensation' mean the rate of annual or hourly compensation specified by law, exclusive of overtime and night differential.".

Compensations.
74 Stat. 644.

SEC. 710. Subsection 3541(d) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by (a) inserting in paragraph (3) thereof, after "rural carriers," the phrase "(other than substitute rural carriers,)" and (b) adding a new paragraph (5) as follows:

"(5) To compute the daily rate of basic compensation for substitute rural carriers, the annual rate of compensation shall be divided by 304.".

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER THE DATE OF ENACTMENT OF THIS ACT

Ante, pp. 851, 852.

SEC. 711. (a) The basic compensation of each employee subject to Postal Field Service Schedule I or Rural Carrier Schedule I, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows:

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical level and step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule, except that employees in the first four levels of the Postal Field Service Schedule and employees (except employees subject to section 3543(j) of title 39, United States Code) in the Rural Carrier Schedule shall be advanced as follows: Employees in step 1 to step 2 of the new schedule; step 2 to step 3; step 3 to step 4; step 4 to step 5; step 5 to step 6; step 6 to step 7; step 7 to step 8. If changes in level or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion under this paragraph.

Ante, p. 852.

(2) In addition to conversion under paragraph (1) of this subsection, each employee shall be advanced one additional step for each longevity step which he had earned on or prior to such conversion.

(3) Credit toward the next step-increase (other than toward longevity steps) earned by an employee who had not reached step 7 or who is not advanced to step 7 under paragraph (1) prior to the effective date of such schedule shall be creditable under subsection 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States

Ante, p. 854.
74 Stat. 649.

Code, toward further step-increases if no step-increases were granted pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases pursuant to subsection 3552(a), and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code. Ante, p. 854. 74 Stat. 649.

(b) The basic compensation of each postmaster subject to the Fourth Class Office Schedule I on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows: Ante, p. 853.

(1) Each postmaster shall be assigned to the same receipts category and numerical step he was in prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in receipts category or step would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to the enactment of such schedule, such changes in receipts category or step shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) Postmasters who, as of the effective date of this schedule, have not reached step 7, shall retain credit for advancement to the next step under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code, if no step-increases are granted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this subsection. Credit earned toward longevity step-increases prior to the effective date of such schedule shall not be creditable toward further step-increases under section 3552(a) and section 3553 of title 39, United States Code. Ante, p. 854. 74 Stat. 649.

(3) For each longevity step earned on or prior to the effective date of such schedule postmasters shall be advanced one step.

(c) If the existing basic compensation of any employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule, Rural Carrier Schedule, or Fourth Class Office Schedule, as the case may be, is greater than the rate established by subsection (a) or (b) of this section, he shall be placed in the first step of such schedule which exceeds his existing basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation is greater than any numerical step, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation. 39 USC 3542-3544.

CONVERSION AS OF THE FIRST PAY PERIOD BEGINNING ON OR AFTER JANUARY 1, 1964

SEC. 712. The basic compensation of each employee subject to the Postal Field Service Schedule II, Rural Carrier Schedule II, or Fourth Class Office Schedule II, as the case may be, on the effective date of such schedule shall be determined as follows: Ante, pp. 850-853.

(1) Each employee shall be assigned to the same numerical step for his position which he had attained prior to the effective date of such schedule. If changes in levels, receipts categories, or steps would otherwise occur on the effective date of such schedule without regard to enactment of such schedule, such changes shall be deemed to have occurred prior to conversion.

(2) If existing basic compensation is greater than the rate to which the employee is converted under paragraph (1) of this section, the employee shall be placed in the lowest step which exceeds his basic compensation; if the existing basic compensation exceeds the maximum step of his position, his existing basic compensation shall be established as his basic compensation.

SEC. 713. Subject to sections 711(c) and 712(2) of this title, rates of compensation fixed by reason of section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, shall not be increased by this title, notwithstanding any provision of such section to the contrary. 74 Stat. 584, 585; Ante, p. 835. 75 Stat. 569; Post, p. 857.

BASIC SALARY IN CASES OF ASSIGNMENTS OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES

74 Stat. 612. SEC. 714. (a) Section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following sentence: "The Postmaster General may pay, as he deems advisable, in cases of such assignments, a basic salary computed in accordance with the provisions of such section 3559 without regard to the requirement in this subsection of assignment for more than thirty days in a calendar year.".

Ante, p. 854.

(b) Each payment of an increase in basic salary which was made prior to the date of enactment of this section for services performed for periods of thirty days or less in any calendar year in the course of an assignment referred to in section 3335(b) of title 39, United States Code, by a postal field service employee assigned to duties and responsibilities of a higher salary level, and which would have been authorized by such section 3335(b), if such services had been performed in the course of such assignment after the completion by such employee of thirty days of service in any calendar year in such higher salary level, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such services had been performed after the completion of thirty days of service in any calendar year in the course of such assignment. Payments of increases validated by this subsection shall be considered as basic salary for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251–2267).

70 Stat. 743.

SALARY PROTECTION REVISION

75 Stat. 569. SEC. 715. (a) Section 3560(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,".

(b) Section 3560(b)(4) of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(4) who, for two continuous years immediately prior to such reduction in salary standing, served in the postal field service with any salary standing higher than the salary standing to which he is reduced; and ".

(c) Section 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (B) and inserting "; or" in lieu of such period, and

(2) by adding at the end of such section 3560(c) the following paragraph:

"(C) the amount of the rate in the lowest salary standing which such employee held during the two years immediately preceding such reduction in salary standing augmented by each step increase which he would have earned in such salary standing and by each increase provided by law in such salary rate.".

(d) (1) Subject to paragraph (2) of this section, the amendments made by this section to sections 3560(a)(1), 3560(b)(4), and 3560(c) of title 39, United States Code, shall apply only with respect to reductions in salary standing occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) Payments not authorized by section 3560 of title 39, United States Code, which were made prior to the date of enactment of this Act to employees in the postal field service in connection with reductions in salary standing and which would have been authorized under such section 3560 if the amendments made by this section to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of such section 3560 had been in effect at the time such payments were made, are hereby validated to the same extent as if such amendments had been in effect at such time.

RULES FOR SPECIAL COMPENSATION

SEC. 716. Chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding immediately following section 3105 a new section 3106 as follows: 39 USC 3101, 3103-3105, 3111-3116.

"§ 3106. Special compensation rules

"In order that the basic compensation schedules in sections 3542, 3543, and 3544 of this title may be used equitably and with maximum effect to attract and motivate employees, the Postmaster General may prescribe regulations pursuant to which he may, within the limit of available appropriations, grant to any officer or employee before the expiration of the periods prescribed by section 3552, step-increases in recognition of extra competence: Provided, That no officer or employee shall be eligible under this section for more than one such additional step-increase within any period of fifty-two weeks, and such increase shall not be considered to be an equivalent increase." 74 Stat. 645-647.

PERSONNEL REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 717. (a) Section 3301 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows: 74 Stat. 609; 75 Stat. 795.

"§ 3301. Personnel requirements

"The Postmaster General shall determine the personnel requirements of the postal field service, and fix the number of supervisors and other employees in that service, except that there may not be at any one time more than one assistant postmaster employed at any post office or a total of 70 employees assigned to salary levels 18, 19, and 20 in the postal field service."

(b) Section 1310(a) of the Act of November 1, 1951 (65 Stat. 757), as amended, which fixes a ceiling on permanent employees in the Federal Government, is amended by inserting after the word "Provided," the following: "That increases in the number of permanent personnel in the Postal Field Service not exceeding 10 per centum above the total number of its permanent employees on September 1, 1950, shall not be chargeable to this limitation: And provided further,". 5 USC 43 note.

CONFORMING AMENDMENT

SEC. 718. (a) The table of contents of chapter 41 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after the heading entitled "EMPLOYEES GENERALLY", the following: 39 USC 3101.

"3106. Special compensation rules".

(b) The table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by deleting 39 USC 3501.

"3558. Longevity step-increases".

REPEALS

SEC. 719. Sections 101 through 105 of the Act of July 1, 1960 (74 Stat. 296, Public Law 86–568), and section 3558 of title 39, United States Code, are repealed. 74 Stat. 296-298. 39 USC 971 notes, 971-974, 981.

EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 720. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this title, the provisions of this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, except that section 712 (conversion rules for second postal field service salary increases) shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964. 74 Stat. 650.

Title IV—Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration

72 Stat. 1243; 74 Stat. 300.

Sec. 801. (a) Section 4103 of title 38 of the United States Code, relating to the appointment and annual salaries of the Chief Medical Director and certain other officers of the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, is amended by striking out the words "not to exceed eight Assistant Chief Medical Directors" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the words "not to exceed five Assistant Chief Medical Directors, such Medical Directors as may be designated to suit the needs of the Department,".

(b) Such section is further amended by striking out subsections (d) to (i), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(d) Each Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be appointed by the Administrator upon the recommendation of the Chief Medical Director and shall be paid a salary of $20,000 a year.

"One Assistant Chief Medical Director shall be a qualified doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine who shall be directly responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operations of the Dental Service.

"(e) Medical Directors, during their period of service as such, shall be paid a salary of $18,500 minimum to $19,500 maximum a year.

"(f) The Director of Nursing Service shall be a qualified registered nurse, appointed by the Administrator, and shall be responsible to the Chief Medical Director for the operation of the Nursing Service. During the period of service as such, the Director of Nursing Service shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

Ante, p. 841.

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(g) The Administrator may appoint a chief pharmacist and a chief dietitian. During the period of his service as such, the chief pharmacist and the chief dietitian shall be paid, effective on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after—

"the date of enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, a salary of $14,565 minimum to $17,925 maximum a year;

"January 1, 1964, a salary of $15,665 minimum to $19,270 maximum a year.

"(h) Except as provided in subsection (j), any appointment under this section shall be for a period of four years but persons so appointed shall be subject to removal by the Administrator for cause.

"(i) Reappointments may be made for successive like periods.

"(j) The Administrator may designate a member of the Chaplain Service of the Veterans' Administration as Director, Chaplain Service, for a period of two years, subject to removal by the Administrator for cause. During the period that any such member serves as Director, Chaplain Service, he shall be paid a salary, as determined by the Administrator, within the minimum and maximum salary limitations prescribed for grade GS–15 positions by the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. Redesignations under this subsection may be made for successive like periods. An individual designated as Director, Chaplain Service, shall at the end of his period of service as Director revert to the position, grade, and status which he held immediately prior to being designated Director, Chaplain Service, and all service as Director, Chaplain Service, shall be creditable as service in the former position."

Ante, p. 843.

63 Stat. 954.
5 USC 1071 note.

(b) The limitations provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the aggregate salaries payable to secretaries and law clerks of circuit and district judges are hereby increased by two amounts, the first amount to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and the second amount to be effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

(c) Section 753(e) of title 28 of the United States Code (relating to the compensation of court reporters for district courts) is amended by striking out the existing salary limitation contained therein and inserting a new limitation to be effective for the period beginning as of the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and ending immediately prior to the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and a second new limitation effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after January 1, 1964, and thereafter, which reflect the respective applicable increases provided by title II of this part in corresponding rates of compensation for officers and employees subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

62 Stat. 921.

EMPLOYEES IN THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

SEC. 1005. (a) Each officer and employee in or under the legislative branch of the Government whose rate of compensation is increased by section 5 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall be paid additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of his

74 Stat. 708.
5 USC 391, 392.

gross rate of compensation (basic compensation plus additional compensation authorized by law).

(b) The basic compensation of each employee in the office of a Senator is hereby adjusted, effective on October 16, 1962, to the lowest multiple of $60 which will provide a gross rate of compensation not less than the gross rate such employee was receiving immediately prior thereto, except that the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of any employee if on or before the fifteenth day following the date of enactment of this Act the Senator by whom such employee is employed notifies the disbursing office of the Senate in writing that he does not wish such provisions to apply to such employee. In any case in which, at the expiration of the time within which a Senator may give notice under this subsection, such Senator is deceased such notice shall be deemed to have been given.

(c) Notwithstanding the provision referred to in subsection (d), the rates of gross compensation of the elected officers of the Senate (except the Presiding Officer of the Senate), the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, the Official Reporters of Debates of the Senate, the Parliamentarian of the Senate, the Senior Counsel in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate, and the Chief Clerk of the Senate are hereby increased by 7 per centum.

(d) The paragraph imposing limitations on basic and gross compensation of officers and employees of the Senate appearing under the heading "SENATE" in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, as amended (74 Stat. 304; Public Law 86–568), is amended to read as follows:

"No officer or employee whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of $8,880 per annum, or gross compensation at a rate in excess of $18,880 per annum, unless expressly authorized by law."

(e) The limitation on gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the Senate is hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent. The provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall not apply to employees whose compensation is subject to such limitation.

(f) Each officer or employee of the House of Representatives, whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and is not increased automatically, or is not permitted to be increased administratively, by reason of any other provision of this section, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 7 per centum of the rate of his total annual compensation in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this section.

(g) The limitations on gross rate per thousand and gross rate per hour per person provided by applicable law on the effective date of this section with respect to the folding of speeches and pamphlets for the House of Representatives are hereby increased by 7 per centum. The amount of each such increase shall be computed to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as a whole cent.

(h) The additional compensation provided by this section shall be considered a part of basic compensation for the purposes of the Civil Service Retirement Act (5 U.S.C. 2251 and the following). 70 Stat. 743.

(i) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no rate of compensation which exceeds $21,500 shall be increased by this section, and no increase provided by this section shall cause the gross rate of compensation (basic plus additional compensation authorized by law) or the total annual compensation of any officer or employee to exceed $21,500.

(j) Insofar as the provisions of this section apply to officers and employees whose compensation is based on a monthly pay period which begins on the first day of the month, such provisions shall become effective on October 16, 1962.

SAVING PROVISION

SEC. 1006. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, no rate of basic, gross, or total annual compensation or salary shall be reduced by reason of the enactment of this Act.

ABSORPTION OF COSTS

SEC. 1007. (a) The departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the costs of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions.

(b) No request for additional or supplemental appropriations to meet the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act shall be transmitted to the Congress unless it is accompanied by a certification of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget that the amounts requested are necessary to provide for the continued execution of essential functions of the department, agency, or corporation concerned.

(c) Pursuant to the objective of this section, heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignation, retirement, or death and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions.

(d) Nothing contained in subsection (a) of this section shall be held or considered to require (1) the separation from the service of any individual by reduction in force or other personnel action or (2) the placing of any individual in a leave-without-pay status.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1008. Except as otherwise expressly provided, this title shall become effective on the first day of the first pay period which begins on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

CEILING PROVISION

SEC. 1009. Except as provided in section 1005, no rate of compensation which exceeds $20,000 per annum shall be increased or established by or pursuant to this Act and no increase made by or pursuant to this Act shall cause any rate of compensation to exceed $20,000 per annum.

PART III—ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

SEC. 1101. (a) The annuity of each person who, on the effective date of this section, is receiving or entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund shall be increased by 5 per centum of the amount of such annuity.

(b) The annuity of each person who receives or is entitled to receive an annuity from the civil service retirement and disability fund commencing during the period which begins on the day following the effective date of this section and ends five years after such date, shall be increased in accordance with the following table:

If the annuity commences between—	The annuity shall be increased by—
January 2, 1963, and December 31, 1963	4 per centum
January 1, 1964, and December 31, 1964	3 per centum
January 1, 1965, and December 31, 1965	2 per centum
January 1, 1966, and December 31, 1966	1 per centum

(c) In lieu of any other increase provided by this section, the annuity of a survivor of a retired employee or Member of Congress who received an increase under this section shall be increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which the annuity of such employee or Member was so increased.

(d) No increase provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

(e) The limitation reading "or (3) the sum necessary to increase such annuity, exclusive of annuity purchased by voluntary contributions under the second paragraph of section 10 of this Act, to $2,160" contained in section 8(c)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended by the Acts of July 16, 1952 (66 Stat. 722; Public Law 555, Eighty-second Congress), and August 31, 1954 (68 Stat. 1043; Public Law 747, Eighty-third Congress), shall not be effective on or after the effective date of this section.

5 USC 736c.

(f) The limitation contained in the next to the last sentence of section 8(d)(1) of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, as enacted by the Act of August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 692; Public Law 369, Eighty-fourth Congress), shall not be effective on and after the effective date of this section.

5 USC 736c.

(g) The increases provided by this section shall take effect on the effective date of this section, except that any increase under subsection (b) or (c) shall take effect on the beginning date of the annuity.

(h) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar.

70 Stat. 743.
5 USC 2251.

SEC. 1102. (a) Section 1 of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(t) The term 'price index' shall mean the annual average over a calendar year of the Consumer Price Index (all items—United States city average) published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics."

5 USC 2251 note.

(b) Such Act is further amended by redesignating section 18 as 19, and by inserting after section 17 the following new section:

"COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT OF ANNUITIES

"SEC. 18. (a) After January 1, 1964, and after each succeeding January 1, the Commission shall determine the per centum change in the price index from the later of 1962 or the year preceding the most recent cost-of-living adjustment to the latest complete year. On the basis of such Commission determination, the following adjustments shall be made:

"(1) Effective April 1, 1964, if the change in the price index from 1962 to 1963 shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2, 1963, shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(2) Effective April 1 of any year other than 1964 after the price index change shall have equaled a rise of at least 3 per centum, each annuity payable from the fund which has a commencing date earlier than January 2 of the preceding year shall be increased by the per centum rise in the price index adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 per centum.

"(b) Eligibility for an annuity increase under this section shall be governed by the commencing date of each annuity payable from the fund as of the effective date of an increase, except as follows:

"(1) Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commenced the day after the annuitant's death, shall be increased as provided in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) if the commencing date of annuity to the annuitant was earlier than January 2 of the year preceding the first increase. 70 Stat. 754. 5 USC 2260.

"(2) Effective from its commencing date, an annuity payable from the fund to an annuitant's survivor (other than a child entitled under section 10(d)), which annuity commences the day after the annuitant's death and after the effective date of the first increase under this section, shall be increased by the total per centum increase the annuitant was receiving under this section at death.

"(3) For purposes of computing an annuity which commences after the effective date of the first increase under this section to a child under section 10(d), the items $600, $720, $1,800, and $2,160 appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section, and, in case of a deceased annuitant, the items 40 per centum and 50 per centum appearing in section 10(d) shall be increased by the total per centum increase allowed and in force under this section to the annuitant at death. Effective from the date of the first increase under this section, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply as if such first increase were in effect with respect to computation of a child's annuity under section 10(d) which commenced between January 2 of the year preceding the first increase and the effective date of the first increase.

"(c) No increase in annuity provided by this section shall be computed on any additional annuity purchased at retirement by voluntary contributions.

"(d) The monthly installment of annuity after adjustment under this section shall be fixed at the nearest dollar."

SEC. 1103. (a) Section 9(g) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended to read as follows: 5 USC 2259.

"(g) The annuity as hereinbefore provided (excluding any increase because of retirement under section 7) for any married employee or Member retiring under this Act, or any portion of such annuity designated in writing for purposes of section 10(a)(1), shall be reduced by 2½ per centum of so much thereof as does not exceed $3,600 and by 10 per centum of so much thereof as exceeds $3,600, unless the employee or Member notifies the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in section 10(a)(1)." 5 USC 2257. Infra.

(b) Section 10(a)(1) of such Act is amended to read as follows: 70 Stat. 754.

"(1) If an employee or Member dies after having retired under any provision of this Act and is survived by a wife or husband to whom the employee or Member was married at the time of retirement, such wife or husband shall be paid an annuity equal to 55 per centum of an annuity computed as provided in subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of section 9, as may apply with respect to the annuitant, or of such portion thereof as may have been designated in writing for such purpose by the employee or Member at the time of retirement, unless the employee or Member has notified the Commission in writing at the time of retirement that he does not desire his wife or husband to receive such annuity." 5 USC 2260. 5 USC 2259.

(c) Section 10(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(d) Section 10(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

(e) Section 10(e) of such Act is amended by striking out "50 per centum" and inserting in lieu thereof "55 per centum".

5 USC 2251. (f)(A) Section 1(j) of the Civil Service Retirement Act is amended by substituting a comma for the period at the end thereof and adding the following: "or such unmarried child between eighteen and twenty-one years of age who is a student regularly pursuing a full-time course of study or training in residence in a high school, trade school, technical or vocational institute, junior college, college, university, or comparable recognized educational institution. A child whose twenty-first birthday occurs prior to July 1 or after August 31 of any calendar year, and while he is regularly pursuing such a course of study or training, shall be deemed for the purposes of this paragraph and section 10(d) to have attained the age of twenty-one on the first day of July following such birthday. A child who is a student shall not be deemed to have ceased to be a student during any interim between school years if the interim does not exceed four months and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has a bona fide intention of continuing to pursue a course of study or training in the same or different school during the school semester (or other period into which the school year is divided) immediately following the interim."

5 USC 2260.

(B) The third sentence of section 10(d) of the Act is amended to read as follows: "The child's annuity shall commence on the day after the employee or Member dies, and such annuity granted under this Act or under the Act of May 29, 1930, as amended from and after February 28, 1948, or any right thereto shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his attaining age eighteen unless incapable of self-support, (2) his becoming capable of self-support after age eighteen, (3) his marriage, or (4) his death, except that the annuity of a child who is a student as described in section 1(j) shall terminate on the last day of the month before (1) his marriage, (2) his death, (3) his ceasing to be such a student, or (4) his attaining age twenty-one."

5 USC 2251 note.

Effective date. SEC. 1104. Section 1101 of this part shall take effect on January 1, 1963. The amendments made by section 1103 (except subsection (f)) shall not apply in the case of employees or Members retired or otherwise separated prior to the date of enactment of this Act, and the rights of such persons and their survivors shall continue in the same manner and to the same extent as if these amendments had not been enacted.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE, OCTOBER 11, 1962

OFFICE OF THE WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY

THE WHITE HOUSE

REMARKS OF THE PRESIDENT
UPON THE SIGNING OF H. R. 7927,
AN ACT TO ADJUST POSTAL RATES, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

I am delighted to approve H. R. 7927, which is a bill adjusting postal rates, reforming Federal white-collar statutory salary systems, and establishing a standard for adjusting annuities under the Civil Service Retirement Act.

The new Postal rates will yield on an annual basis about $600 million of new postal revenues. This is consistent with the fiscal principles I have advocated and is an important step toward a self-sustaining postal system and toward a substantial reduction in the postal deficit.

The new pay legislation is the most comprehensive and significant salary revision in nearly 40 years. It establishes for the first time a basic salary policy, a method for annual review and updating of salaries, coordination among major statutory salary systems, and broad reforms and increased flexibilities under the Classification Act.

It is not merely a salary-increase statute. It furnishes a foundation for adjusting and continuously maintaining Federal salaries comparable to levels of equal difficulty and responsibility in private enterprise. Ultimately it will permit us to prevent large scale attrition of government employees due to more attractive private industry salaries. At the same time, it should not have an unsettling effect on private enterprise salary rates. By helping to reduce turnover, by attracting more capable people into the Federal service, and by improving employee morale, this legislation will make an important contribution to increased productivity.

The provision of higher salaries for Federal employees and the plan to maintain these salaries at a level comparable to the salaries paid in the private economy places an added obligation upon Federal managers to make certain that the Government's business is carried on with the minimum number of personnel. To this end I am separately issuing to all Departments and agencies of the Executive Branch a memorandum which will set forth a program to achieve better manpower controls and utilization.

This legislation also establishes objective standards for adjusting annuities payable in the future under the Civil Service Retirement Act. This is a long overdue reform.

As Congress recognized in enacting this legislation, a number of items now require further attention and I am instructing the Executive agencies to pursue these matters promptly. Of first priorities for the Executive Branch are completion of the partial adjustment in the top career salaries made by the Congress and the pay revision of the highest executive salaries, so that sound relationships among all pay levels are achieved. In this connection, I believe that corresponding reforms in salary structure are desirable in the Congressional and Judicial branches of Government and should be accomplished early in the next Congress.

I want to express my appreciation to all the Members of the House and Senate who were involved. Some of those who were most active are here today. We are also glad to have represented today the leaders of many of the organizations which help serve the interests of the employees of the Federal Government. I think that because the power to strike is denied, quite properly, to Federal employees, I think it is most important that we recognize our responsibility, the Congress and the Executive, to them.

As I said, as these salaries become more in keeping with the salaries in private industry, it is also important that we maintain a comparable rate of productivity increase possible to the extent that Government work permits. I hope that the statement we issue later in the day will stimulate action by responsible officials in the National Government.

ASSIGNING TO THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION
CERTAIN AUTHORITY WITH RESPECT TO FEDERAL SALARIES

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the last sentence of Subsection (a) and Subsection (b) of Section 504 of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962 (which Act constitutes Part II of the Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1962, Public Law 87- , approved October 11, 1962), and as President of the United States, it is ordered as follows:

The Civil Service Commission is hereby designated and authorized to exercise the authority conferred upon the President by the provisions of Subsections (a) and (b) of Section 504 of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962 to make certain findings and to establish and revise certain rates of basic compensation, to the extent that that authority pertains to positions compensated under Section 603 (b) of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended (5 U.S.C. 1113(b)).

FOR RELEASE AT 10:00 a.m. (EDT) October 11, 1962

Office of the White House Press Secretary

THE WHITE HOUSE

MEMORANDUM TO THE HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

Subject: Improving Manpower Controls and Utilization in the Executive Branch

On several occasions I have emphasized the importance of actions to limit the number of Federal employees to the absolute minimum necessary to get the public business done. We can accomplish this objective only if strong efforts are made by every department and agency head to achieve increases in productivity and efficiency, to use better techniques of management, and to add staff only on the basis of demonstrated need to carry out essential activities.

Congress has now enacted legislation, along the lines of the proposal made to the Congress last January, to provide pay scales more nearly to the level of those prevailing in the private economy. I am confident that this will reduce turnover, attract more capable people into the Federal Service, and improve employee morale. It will thus make a direct and and substantial contribution to increased productivity. An added obligation is therefore placed on the executive branch to make certain that essential programs are carried out with the minimum of personnel.

It is most important to recognize that responsibility for manpower control and utilization in the Federal Government rests squarely on the top management of each agency. Without your continuing attention and support, it will not be possible to hold new requests for personnel to bedrock levels, to abolish marginal jobs, and to increase employee productivity. Where rules, regulations, or laws restrict you in carrying out this objective, I will expect you to make these facts known promptly and to suggest solutions.

Employment needs are decreased as productivity rises and as ongoing programs can be reduced or terminated. At the same time it is recognized that new programs or expansion of existing programs will result in increased employment, to the extent that increased manpower needs cannot be offset by greater productivity. It is essential that employment plans be scrutinized at every level to make sure that every opportunity for decreases is seized and increases, where necessary, are held to an absolute minimum. This is vital not only because civilian salaries account for a substantial part of the Federal budget, but equally important -- especially in such fields as engineering, science, and medicine -- because the Federal Government is competing for a scarce supply of manpower. The best utilization of manpower is therefore important not only to keep budget costs down but to maximize our national security and our economic growth.

I have recently completed a review of our present system for determining manpower requirements and for holding the number of Federal employees to a minimum. To strengthen the Government's manpower control program, I have directed that the following actions be taken:

1) Detailed employment plans as well as expenditure plans will be submitted by each Department and Agency in connection with the annual budget review.

2) Such plans will be expected to reflect increases in employee productivity -- that is, it is to be expected that the same amount of work will be performed by increasingly fewer people, and the number of employees will not increase proportionately with increases in programs.

3) The Bureau of the Budget will give increased scrutiny to these employment plans and keep me informed. In addition, the Bureau will strengthen and update present instructions to the departments and agencies concerning the establishment of adequate machinery and methods to increase efficiency and hold down employment.

4) Each Department and Agency will be required to submit to the Bureau of the Budget for review at an early date its over-all program for manpower control and manpower utilization. I expect each department and agency head to give personal attention to this matter.

5) All agencies are requested to undertake increased efforts to search out and apply the most modern and effective means used in either Government or private industry to increase efficiency and output. There are many cases where such productivity has increased rapidly in recent years -- the Internal Revenue Service, the Customs Bureau, the Census Bureau, the Passport Office, and many other parts of Government can be cited as good illustrations. I should like these efforts broadened and expanded. Central research to assist in this effort will be conducted by the Bureau of the Budget and the Civil Service Commission. As an illustration, the Bureau has undertaken, in cooperation with several agencies, a research and demonstration project in five different units of Government to develop methods for measuring over-all agency productivity and for using such measures for improved manpower control.

6) The Bureau of the Budget, the Civil Service Commission, and the departments and agencies will undertake a systematic program of manpower inspections and reviews. The priority and scheduling of these inspections will be worked out under the leadership of the Bureau of the Budget, and will be carried out by staff of the Bureau, the Commssion, and the agency concerned. The special inquiries into manpower utilization practices currently made by the Civil Service Commission will become a part of this new program. The inspections will be made on a selective basis which will give priority attention to areas where the most significant problems and potential savings exist. While every agency cannot be reviewed each year, it may be desirable to review certain agencies annually or more frequently. The inspections will be designed to test the effectiveness of agency systems for manpower analysis and control, and to assist the departments and agencies in discovering opportunities for better use of manpower resources that are available. The results of these reviews will be reported to the head of each agency promptly, for immediate attention and such action as is necessary. I have asked to be kept informed of the findings and recommendations that are made, and the action taken.

7) The Congress, in enacting the Postal Service and Federal Employee Salary Act of 1962, included a provision that "the departments, agencies, establishments, and corporations in the executive branch shall absorb the cost of the increases in basic compensation provided by this Act to the fullest extent possible without seriously affecting the immediate execution of essential functions." It further provides that "the heads of the executive branch activities concerned are directed to review with meticulous care each vacancy resulting from voluntary resignations, retirement, or death, and to determine whether the duties of the position can be reassigned to other employees or whether the position can be abolished without seriously affecting the execution of essential functions." I am in full agreement with this statement of policy and will look to the Director of the Bureau of the Budget to advise me with respect to the observance of this policy in connection with any supplemental appropriations required to carry out that Act.

* * * * *

I regard the program outlined in this memorandum as of the highest importance to good management in the executive branch. If we carry it out firmly, I am confident that productivity in the Federal Government can continue to keep pace with the growth of productivity in the private sector of the economy. Such an accomplishment would translate into tens of thousands of Federal jobs that either could be eliminated or would not have to be added to the present numbers.

I am sure that these measures and objectives will have your strong personal support.
